"AND WHEREAS, in the present election held in District 14, the officials of our district refused to place on the official ballot the names of about fifty of our members who were candidates for different official positions, all of whom were members of our union and eligible to hold district office in accordance with the provisions of our district constitution;

"AND WHEREAS, the officials of this district know that not one of them would have even the remotest chance of being elected had they placed the names of those on the ballot who were nominated and were candidates for office;

"AND WHEREAS, this outrageous action on the part of the officials of District 14 is a malicious and deliberate violation of our district constitution and has created turmoil and dissension throughout the entire district;

"AND WHEREAS as a result of the high-handed manner in which the executive board of this district has violated and outraged our membership, the mine workers of this district have demanded a special convention to be called at once;

"AND WHEREAS, our district constitution provides when twenty local unions demand a special district convention, the executive board is compelled to call such convention without delay;

"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the members of Local Union No.......appeal to the international executive board to compel the officials of this district to give justice to our membership, and to force them to comply with our district constitution."

BRIDGEPORT AMALGAMATED CLOTHING WORKERS HAVE SOME CLASS COLLABORATION

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 26.—The members of the Bridgeport local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers were recently treated to a sample of boss unionism. The union agent acted as the agent of the bosses in pushing a reduction down the throats of the protesting rank and file.

About four weeks ago, as the slaves of Wolf and Abrams came to work, they saw a huge sign on the building, "This Loft to Let." The business agent happened on the scene, and told the workers that he would see about it. After his interview with the bosses, he said that the firm could not continue their business, unless the workers submitted to a cut in wages. A membership meeting was called, and Business Agent Sam Lavitt urged the workers to accept the cut. After a botter debate the membership was solidly opposed to any reduction. Lavitt threatened that if no reduction was allowed the bosses would move their business to another city. The members replied: "Let them move."

Higher Officials Called In.

Another meeting of the union was called, with a representative present from the general executive board of the Amalgamated. Lavitt insisted once more on acceptance of a reduction. He offered the bosses terms, a reduction of $1 a week on wages up to $15—and $2 on $15 up. The membership voted down the proposal.

A week later, a new proposition was brot in by Lavitt, who claimed credit for it. He proposed a cut of $1 on wages up to $30, and $2 above it. The only worker in favor of the proposal was a relative of the boss. All others were bitterly opposed. Lavitt then declared that it was the decision of the general executive board and President Hillman to accept the offer. Under such bludgeoning the membership weakened and accepted the offer. An astounding feature of the agreement calls for two weeks wages to remain with the employers. It was urged because the booses were too poor.

Smacks of Boss Unionism.

Wolf and Abrams employ 600 workers, practically the entire membership of the union in Bridgeport, Conn. The firm has been in the city for seven years. There is poor ventilation in the building, and it is unsanitary. For several years, estimates for painting have been gotten, but no painting done.

Picnics and Banquets.

The first picnic of the union came after a controversy over wages, about a year and a half ago. Work was plentiful and the workers demanded a wage increase of $3 a week. The boss was in favor of giving it, but Lavitt then told the members that the bosses had reconsidered, and would give only $1. The first dollar was taken by the union as an assessment, and a picnic arranged. And strange to say, the bosses contributed $500 for the picnic. Music and trip to the grounds in trolleys.

And that night, a banquet in the finest hotel in the city, the Stratfield. Hillman and other members of the general executive board were present, and last but not least, the bosses, Wolf and Abrams, as guests. The bosses and a capitalist editor praised the policy of harmony between capital and labor.

Time for Action.

It is time that the workers of Bridgeport took things in their own hands, and changed the abominable conditions prevailing in the clothing industry.

Frisco League Bucks Lawyers

The San Francisco and Oakland leagues have made the child labor amendment a special order of business. The California legislature is now in session and a big fight will be staged upon this issue. The League's resolution on the child labor amendment is being taken up in the local unions of both these cities and the socalled "friends of labor" will be called upon to decide whether that term includes abolition of child labor.

Painters' Union Number 19, of San Francisco, the largest local on the Pacific coast adopted a resolution demanding a new trial for Sacco and Zanzetti.

California Section Fights B. & O. Plan

The California Metal Trades section of the T. U. E. L. is carrying on an active campaign against the Johnston and Hannon "progressive" machine. They have issued a circular that is being widely circulated pointing out that these fake progressives are for the "B. & O. plan," against amalgamation and independent working-class political action. That there is but little difference if any between Hannon and Johnston. The circular carries the full slate of the left wing.

SHOE WORKERS DRAW FIGHTING PLAN IN EAST

Amalgamation Demand Against Fake Union

By JOSEPH MANLEY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

Lynn, Mass., with its thousands of shoe workers, will shortly be the scene of a bitter struggle between these workers on the one hand and their employers who want to cut their wages 20 per cent on the other. It appears at this moment as if the Boot and Shoe Workers (A. F. of L.) will get into the fight on the side of the shoe manufacturers.

A big movement is on foot backed by the employers, to exploit the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union to their own benefit and to the detriment of the workers. It has reached its highest point in the city of Lynn. Here there are several large local unions of shoe workers members of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers' Union. This was the organization which grew out of one of the many attempts to amalgamate the various independent unions in the shoe industry.

Capitalist Press Boosts Fake Union

In Lynn the agreement of this union with the employers expires on April 30th. The newspapers of Lynn are flooded with propaganda in favor of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. The propaganda is so extensive that even the churches have taken up the cry. Agents of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union are working in the locals of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers creating sentiment favorable to the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. The purpose of all of this is to create a stituation whereby the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union can come into Lynn at the expiration of the Amalgamated agreement, make an agreement with the Lynn bosses selling them the "union label" and enslaving the Lynn Shoe Workers.

To cope with this situation and the lack of unity, the threat of wage cuts and unemployment in the industry, a conference was called by the T. U. E. L. in Boston. At this conference militant shoe workers from the various New England shoe centers were represented, and in addition two delegates from New York participated.

Zero the Minimum

The situation with regard to the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union and the independent unions was gone into in detail. From reports of militant shoe workers from Lynn, it was plain to be seen that the rank and file of the Lynn shoe workers were bitterly opposed to the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. Its methods, as practiced in other New England cities, were well known to them. They are familiar with the infamous proposition of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union namely, local "0". This zero organization is a scheme of the officials of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union to prevent free expression of the rank and fie. It means that no local union as such functions.

In several centers the Boot and Shoe Workers' National Union has an agreement with the employers permitting them the use of the "union label," in return for which the employers allow the agents of the Boot and Shoe the Workers' Union to visit the plant and collect 25 cents weekly from the workers. By this method the workers are made members of the "union". This arrangement functions 100 per cent to the benefit of the employers and the bureaucrats at the head of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. Other abuses, almost beyond belief, were reported to the conference.

Wide Sentiment for Amalgamation

It was generally agreed that a strong sentiment for amalgamation exists in the industry, and no confidence in anything but in the militants and the program of the T. U. E. L. was expressed.

It was decided to call a large and fully representative conference in the near future. It was the unanimous opinion of all those present, that the time has arrived for the militants to take virtual charge of the amalgamation sentiment, the struggle for unity and the fight against the employers in the shoe industry. To this end the following program was adopted:

Organizational Proposals

1. Raise slogan of one union in shoe and leather industry thru amalgamation of existing organizations. To this end the following measures are proposed.

a. A strong movement to consolidate independent unions in amalgamation convention to be called as soon as possible.

b. A move to amalgamate the independent unions with the B. & S. on the basis of the following demands, which will turn the B. & S. from a company into a trade union:

Abolition of local "0" and restoration of right of minorities to express opinions.

Use of B. & S. label to be governed by local councils and to be given only to closed shops.

Abolition of company collaboration in dues collection.

Establishment of bonafide grievance committees.

Establishment of rank and file control of the B & S. locally and nationally thru democratization of local unions, local councils and national conventions.

Officials to be elected by the rank and file.

2. Pending the accomplishment of amalgamation, there shall be united front movements by the unions upon the policies and issues confronting the shoe and leather workers.

Policies

1. Militant struggle against wage cuts and for increase in wages.
2. Demand relief for unemployed, to be paid by manufacutrers.
3. General drive to organise all the workers in the shoe and leather industry.
4. Abolition of class collaboration on the industrial and political fields, and development of a policy of class struggle.
5. Abolition of state arbitration boards.
6. Abolition of child labor in the shoe industry all children of the workers during age up to 18 years to be maintained by the government.
7. Active propagation of shop committee system in the shoe industry.
8. Establishment of 8 hour day and 44 hour week.
9. Militant exposure of all labor fakers in shoe and leather unions.
10. Struggle against the use of injunctions in strikes, on the basis of mass violation of such injunctions.
11. Demand that all the unions in the shoe and leather industry endose the R. I. L. U. plan for unity of the world trade union movement.
12. Demand for the release of Sacco and Vanzetti and all other class war prisoners.
13. Establishment of effective connections between all left wing elements in the shoe and leather industry.
14. Establishment of a monthly bulletin for the Amalgamation Committee of the shoe and leather industry.

Note:—The foregoing proposals are to be used as the basis for extended resolutions and other propositions to be drawn up in the course of the struggle of the workers in the shoe and leather industry.

PROGRAM OF THE T. U. E. L.

At all times and in all its campaigns and publications, the league shall emphasize the revolutionary aims of the left wing. It shall carry on a ceaseless warfare against the bourgeois ideology and organizations. It shall seek to destroy the workers' faith in the capitalist system and to turn their eyes towards the establishment of a Communist society thru the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Wages, Hours and Working Conditions.

The league shall carry on an intensive campaign for the shortening of the labor hours, increasing of wages improving of working conditions, and it shall stimulate the workers, both organized and unorganized to conduct an effective struggle against exploitation. The league must raise the slogan, "No reduction in wages and no lengthening of the working day!"

Organize the Unorganized.

"Organise the unorganized" is no a temporary slogan that may be cast aside when industrial depression sets in. It must be continued constantly in good times and bad, until the masses are organized. The campaign should take the following general forms: (1) To stimulate the A. F. of L. unions to take in the unorganized; (2) To build the present independent mass unions; (3) To support the formation of new unions wherever practical, by utilizing the Workers Party shop nuclei, local branches of the league, shop committees, and such other connections as can be made use of. Not one of these methods shall be used to the exclusion of the others. All must be employed as expediency dictates. Every means must be given in the organization of the agriculture laborers.

Independent Political Action.

The political and economic struggle of the working class is inseparable. The league recognizes the futility of carrying on the trade union work merely for itself. The chief aim of all its efforts shall be the building of the revolutionary mass political organization of the working class, the Workers Party. To this end, all the struggles of the workers shall be directed into political channels, and all the campaigns of the league for the united front, amalgamation, etc., etc., shall be utilized to strengthen the membership and leadership of the Workers Party.

Unemployment.

The league shall take an active part in the work of organizing the unemployed into national and local councils, and other necessary formations. Wherever possible, these bodies shall work in close co-operation with the trade unions. The league shall stir up the unions everywhere to interest themselves in the question of unemployment. These councils shall demand that the employers and the government shall provide work and funds amounting to full maintenance of the workers. They shall also demand that the unions themselves share their funds and work with those of their members who are unemployed.

Amalgamation.

The amalgamation campaign is not a temporary one. It is always a live slogan. The campaign for amalgamation must be continued relentlessly until the various craft unions are consolidated into industrial unions.

The United Front.

The T. U. E. L. shall pursue the policy of the united front. It shall seek to unite all the workers for revolutionary action along class lines. The united front shall not be conceived as an aim in itself, but as a means to win the masses away from the reactionary petty-bourgeois leaders and to unite them upon the basis of a revolutionary program of action.

Exposure of Bureaucracy.

The league shall make a special point of exposing the corruption of the trade union leaders.

Recognition of Soviet Russia.

To carry on a campaign for full commercial and diplomatic recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States.

Negro Workers.

The league shall demand that the Negroes be given the same social, political, and industrial rights as whites.

Injunctions.

The league shall lead the fight against the injunction by arousing the workers and trade union movement in general to mass violation of the injunction.

Expulsions.

The league shall continue its present policy in the case of expulsions from the trade unions. Wherever the expelled workers are few in number, they shall be kept in the local leagues and in close connection with the National Industrial Committees. But when they are great in number, they shall be formed into unions of the expelled. These expelled members shall endeavor to fight their way back into the old organizations.

International Affiliation.

The league shall intensify its campaign for the affiliation of the trade unions to the R. I. L. U.—Red International of Labor Unions. The league must point out the fallacy of the present policy of isolation, on the part of the American unions, and seek to bring the American workers into closer relationship with the workers of other countries. For this purpose, resolutions on the question of affiliation to the R. I. L. U. shall be presented at all trade union conventions.

Shop Committees.

The league shall carry on an active propaganda in favor of the organization of shop committees in the industries generally. These shop committees shall be elected by all employes of a given industrial establishment, irrespective of age, sex, color, nationality, skill, organized or unorganized etc. The shop committees shall voice the demands of the workers and form the basis for a common struggle against capitalism. The league shall strive to reorganize the old unions into industrial unions upon the basis of the shop committees.

Workers Control.

The league shall put forth the slogan of "The Workers' Control of Industry." The campaign for the establishment of shop committees shall be accompanied by a propaganda for workers' control. The shop committees, working under the direction of the unions, shall aim to break the power of the employers in industry. The shop committees shall aim to revolutionize the masses and to turn their trade unions into fighting working class organizations. They shall strive to give the workers the necessary industrial and political education and organization to carry them, in co-operation with the revolutionary political organization, victoriously thru the final struggle against the bourgeoisie for the overthrow of the capitalist system and the establishment of a Communist society.

Michigan Musicians Condemn Syndicalist Persecution Act

The Michigan Musicians' Association in convention held at Port Huron, Mich., Jan. 22-23, passed a resolution demanding the repeal of the criminal syndicalist law, declaring it to be a constant menace to the organized labor movement. They also demanded that all convictions already secured under this act be nullified and that all further prosecutions caused by the enactment of this law be dropped. The Musicians' Unions in the state of Michigan, led by the left wing, are determined to put an end to this form of persecution.

Chicago Machinists Fight Well Against An Organized Gang

Lodge 113, Machinists' Union, Chicago, cast over 25 per cent of its vote for the left wing slate, despite the fact that the administration had only placed the Johnston-Anderson slates on the blackboard for the members to choose between. The vote was for president, Johnston 57, Anderson 39, Emme 33, and for secretary-treasurer: Davidson 53, Stilgenbaure 8, Tim Buck 26. This was representative of the vote cast for the other candidates for other offices.

MARINE WORKERS DRIVEN BY [illegible] SEEK FOR UNITY

Berlin Conference May Mean Much

The Marine Worker, organ of the live Marine Transport Workers' Union of the I. W. W. in its issue of Jan. 1, contains an excellent editorial entitled, "Get Set for the International Conference." It says, in part:

"Is it not possible to bring our forces together and form a real International of marine transport workers, one that understands there are today but two nations so far as the workers are concerned? The one composed of workers, and the other of their despoilers, those who own the means whereby we live.

"Effort should be made the coming year to call a conference of all marine transport unions and draft a program which will be acceptable to all. The Marine Transport Workers I. U. 510, of the I. W. W. extends the hand of fellowship to all workers regardless of race, creed or color, in asking you to consider with us, plans whereby we can unite our forces into a great International Marine Transport Workers Industrial Union."

This is expressing precisely the aims sought by the transport workers now affiliated to the Red International of Labor Unions, and it is announced by the Red International Affiliation Committee of the revolutionary transport workers, thru their International Propaganda Committee, have for some months intended calling a world conference of transport workers to meet in Berlin during February.

The sentiment and crying need for internationalism in action, for unity of all those transport workers who recognize the class struggle, is well expressed in the editorial mentioned in the Marine Worker. But sentiment is not enough. It must be crystallized in action or the workers will need [illegible] continued advocacy of international organization.

There can be no disagreement between the revolutionary transport workers now in the R. I. L. U. and those in the M. T. W. 510 over the main line of the class struggle.

There should, then, be no obstacle in the M. T. W. attending with full powers at the Berlin conference and finding at least a method of common and united action upon vital issues and a way thru minor differences to a solid fighting international of all revolutionary transport workers. It is a daily need, pressing more heavily every day upon these workers.

ARE RADICALS ILLITERATE? AN ANSWER NEEDED

Write Up the Fights of All Workers

It is claimed by the capitalists that all "radicals," "revolutionists," "agitators" and "left wingers" are ignorant boobs—in fact that they are "illiterate, hardly any of them being able to read and write."

We are not so sure of this. But the question arises, when we see news in the capitalist press of union elections, united front fights in unions, strikes going on here and there, and various labor conditions written up by capitalist henchmen while not a worker in the places where these things happen writes in one line about them to the DAILY WORKER—the question arises, we repeat, are the capitalists right about this illiterate business?

Every day in every city, in every industrial region, things happen which the rest of the world ought to know about. Or else he thinks that everybody knows because he does. But the facts are that a big part of vital news of the labor world gets lost. Even the DAILY WORKER can't get it, because nobody on or near the spot thinks about sending it in.

Moral: Whoever you are or wherever you are, send in short, meaty accounts of what you see going on the labor world. We don't care about your grammar or fine writing, we want facts! Don't try to write fancy articles—or editorials, we have a division of labor and special writers to do this. But you—the fellow who reads this!—you are the one who must send news, facts! Mail them in any time, and address your letter or cards to: "T. U. E. L., 1113 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill."

After reading the Forward's report of his reception, "Workers give Abramovich big reception—Communist disturbance falls thru—strength to politicians," Abramovich declares ruefully, "Woe is to me that I should receive a reception like that. Dodge Unsanitary Factories.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—In New York state, where unsanitary factories and tenements cause sickness and death among thousands of workers, the state legislature is rushing thru a bill to bar unsanitary oysters.

The measure will be introduced into the legislature at once and rushed thru. Several weeks ago, a child of one of the Reeds of New York City, a very wealthy capitalist family, died. It was determined at a post mortem that the child had died from the effects of "unsanitary oysters" which it had eaten for the first time.

U. S. Money Kings Make Big Loan to President Calles

NEW YORK, Jan. 26. — Having learned that President Calles of Mexico is willing to be a good servant of American finance, Morgan and Co. have decided to grant him a loan of $50,000,000. This was to be expected. Before his election, Calles declared that "the workers and poor peasants of Mexico must be protected in their rights—but the bourgeoisie must have its rights too."

Upon being inducted into office, Calles soon showed what the rights of the workers would be. Through his minister of labor, the renegate labor "leader" Morones, he declared a war to the knife against the radicals. The Communist delegate to the recent convention of the Mexican Federation of labor was expelled. Gompers maneuvered this step—Gompers who died with hatred in his heart against the radical labor movement of this country.

Gompers, Calles and Morones were and are good servants of the bankers of America. Now that the situation is cleared up for them, Calles will get his loan of $50,000,000, which means 50,000,000 more chains for the workers and poor peasants of Mexico. The Mexican workers and peasants will have a word to say in good season.

"Story of Mankind," in Russian.

NEW YORK.—Hendrik Wilem Van Loon's Story of Mankind is to be published in Russian in Moscow in early March, according to word received by the author from the translator. The publication of Wells' Outline of History, under the same title as Van Loon's book delayed the latter's publication. Publishers hesitated for fear of censorship when Wells' book raised a storm of criticism that it was unfit for Russian readers. Van Loon's book was in no way deleted when the censors read it, however.

Birth Control Wins Favor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—C. T. Cramp and A. B. Swales, British delegates to the recent American Federation of Labor convention, state to the American Birth Control League that "The workers have as much right to knowledge about birth control and its benefits as the leisured class who have exercised this in their own interests so long." The work of the league among American trade unions was felicitated by the visiting delegates.

FRANCE'S INCOME BIG ENOUGH TO PAY UNCLE SAM

But Why Not Give It to French Wounded?

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—France is in a much better position to fund her $4,000,000,000 debt to the United States than a year ago, judging from figures on revenue that government cabled to the United States today by Commercial Attache C. L. Jones from Paris. The dispatch makes no mention of the fact that the French government has been refusing aid to mutilated war veterans on the plea of poverty.

In 1924 receipts from normal sources were given as 25,835,000,000 francs compared to 18,879,000,000 francs in 1923. War profits taxes and liquidation of surplus war materials added 1,740,000,000 francs and revenues from postal, telegraph and telephone companies 1,434,000,000 francs.

According to Jones' cable direct taxes were reponsible for only 5,807,000,000 francs of the total income.

France is expected to pay $10,250,000 on the interest and principal of her $400,000,000 war supplies debt in February, a similar payment being due in August. Other initial debt payments of the year are due from Great Britain, Hungary, Lithuania and Finland March 15.

New Schemes to Intimidate Workers

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—A writer to the N. Y. Times advocates that "there should be a well-organized policy auxiliary, consisting of dependable citizens who have either demonstrated their fitness to a competent examining board or who have been suitably trained by an instruction corps of the police department. The police, he says, are not able to deal with "criminals" properly, so the public is invited to help. In other words, a nice fascist organization is about to be created. The capitalists are preparing for the coming labor struggles. The workers must take notice.

COMMUNIST CHILDREN'S COLUMN

JUNIOR DAY AT THE DEFENSE BAZAAR OFFERS FINE PROGRAM BY THE CHILDREN THEMSELVES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—One of the features of the joint bazaar, arranged by the joint bazaar committee of the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council, at the Lyceum, 86th and 3rd Ave., will be "Juniors' Day" on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 14.

Singing and Dancing.

This will not only be one of the most attractive affairs, but also show what the proletarian children of New York can do when brought under a new influence. There will be an orchestra of 25 children, boys and girls of the working class performing classical music of the masters. There will be a dancing school of 60 children performing modern dances. The Finnish children of the Workers Party will do Finnish folk and other dances. The Junior groups of the Young Workers' League, who distinguished themselves at the Liebknecht-Luxemburg memorial on Jan. 11, will give some tableaux, mass declamations, etc. The Juniors made a decided hit at the memorial, getting cheered.

The children who will participate in the joint bazaar are the sons and daughters of the revolutionary workers of this country, who are being given the advantage of proletarian culture, insofar as it can be developed under the capitalist system. The children are the most sensitive beings—and their development to an understanding of the class struggle and to an awakening of class consciousness is one of the most important tasks of the revolutionary working class.

Children Part of the Struggle.

No other section of the the working class feels the effect of revolutionary activity more than the children. The families of the revolutionists in Europe and Asia are being persecuted and their children are left to starve. The children themselves are persecuted in the schools; the priests and clergy do not hesitate to condemn the activities of their parents and to slander the trade unions and revolutionary organizations to which they belong. The children are obliged to sit in the schools and listen to this defammation of their elders.

Hence there is nothing more beautiful than the participation of the proletarian children in the bazaar. These children show their solidarity—and their enthusiasm is infectious.

The program that they will give will be very fine. All sympathizers with the cause must bring their children—and they will enjoy themselves, too. Saturday afternoon, Feb. 14, is the day, the Luceum, 86th St. and 3rd Ave. the place.

Dempsey Given Ten Thousand Dollars For Bogus "Ad"

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Jack Dempsey received ten thousand dollars for the use of his name in a "Nuxated Iron" advertisement, the trial of Jas. Stephen G. Clow, charged with attempted blackmail, disclosed. Clow is publisher of the magazine, "Broadway Brevities," scandal sheet which is charged with securing money from business firms and celebrities, in return for immunity from attack in the paper.

Altho Dempsey never drank "Nuxated Iron," in his life, he permitted the use of his name on a widely circulated advertisement headed, "How Nuxated Iron Helped Me Whip Jess Willard."

WOMAN IN N. D. HOUSE WANTS CHILD LABOR

Masks Hostility by Talk Of "Reds"

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 26.—In a discussion on the child labor amendment in the league caucus the other night a woman leaguer, speaking in favor of the amendment, said that the opponents of the amendment opposed it on the excuse that it was sponsored by Communists. This was done, she intimated in order to attach "stigma" to it, and by this means prevent its ratification by the legislature.

A. C. Miller, the Communist, replying to these statements, emphasized strongly that the farmers and the workers had nothing to fear from Communists, that the Communists were always in the forefront of every progressive political and economic battle, fighting continually in behalf of the oppressed everywhere, and that Marx and Engels, even in the 40's of the last century, were sponsoring such measures as woman's suffrage and the prohibition of child labor.

Miller has prepared a bill calling for the immediate withdrawal of all public funds from all private banks and trust companies in the state, also providing that such funds shall at once be deposited in the Bank of North Dakota.

This bill, together with one demanding compulsory state hail insurance, with an acreage tax levied upon all tillable land in the state will be presented to the league caucus for approval or disapproval within the next few days.

Australian Government Declares Seamen's Union Is Illegal

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 26.—In a determined effort to end the strike of waterside workers which has crippled Australian shipping, the attorney general's department has asked the arbitration court to direct the registrar to cancel registration of the Seamen's Union, thus practically outlawing the union.

In supporting this action, Premier Bruce stated that the paralysis of the shipping trade had reached a crisis necessitating definite action.

He felt confident that the community and the overwhelming majority of the trade unions would uphold the government's course.

The revolutionary unionists are not as sure of this as Premier Bruce is, however.

U. S. Imperialism In Hawaii

Newspaper reports inform us that twenty Filipinos are in jail in Hilo, the main city on the island of Hawaii as a result of a strike in which over one thousand workers were involved. This little news item gives much food for thought tho it is likely that its significance will be lost on the average reader of the capitalist press.

It shows the American government defending with its armed forces, the interests of the American capitalist exploiters in distant lands. We are accustomed to seeing United States soldiers shooting down strikers in the balliwicks of the steel trust and in the baronies of the coal operators. We are accustomed to seeing the police clubbing pickets in the name of law and order. But it is a rather new experience for American workers to see the armed forces of what they think is their government, crushing the struggles of pauperized labor in other countries where the American flag has followed the dollars of Wall Street.

The fake progressives in congress deliver eloquent speeches against the participation of the United States in the schemes of the "imperialist governments of Europe." But those charlatans have no word of criticism for the tyrannical rule of American capitalism, in South America, in Hawaii, in Porto Rico and in the Phillipines, a tyranny backed by the administration in Washington.

The extension of American imperialism is one of the most serious problems confronting the American working class. The strike of the sugar slaves in distant Hawaii affects the pay envelopes of the American workers as well as if the strike took place in any section of this country. When the doubly exploited slaves in the colonies win a wage increase, it means a victory for the workers in the United States.

If the Pan-American Federation of Labor was a real organization of Labor and not an auxiliary of Wall Street, it would aid the slaves of the Sugar Trust in their strike in Hawaii and it would take steps to organise them so that their struggle would be more effective. Its failure to do anything of the kind proves that it is just what the Communists charge, the labor wing of American Imperialism.

More Trouble for Czarist Spy

Raphael Abramovich, the gentleman who recently arrived in the United States to satisfy the appetite of the socialist party for anti-Soviet propaganda, is more or less out of luck. His first effort to give public vent to his hate for the Workers' Republic ended in a riot in which the police and hired sluggers participated—on the side of Abramovitch. The friends of Soviet Russia were able to hold up their end of the discussion without the necessity of seeking allies.

The second setback suffered by the delegate of the czar's socialists, was in Philadelphia when the joint board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers rejected by a vote of fourteen to ten a request of the socialist party to send delegates to greet this renegade.

So far so good. Abramovich being a democrat, is no doubt well pleased with the manner in which the American workingclass rise to the opportunity of taking a novel referendum on the question of Soviet Russia. That they feel inclined to take it out of Abramovich's hide, may not be to Raphael's liking, but when we consider the thousands of workers who were sacrificed in Georgia because of this criminal's conspiracies against the Soviet government, it is not surprising that American workers who gave their money generously to help get the first workers' government in history on its feet, should feel an itch to cause a tickling sensation on Mr. Abramovich's hide with their knuckles.

Not that The DAILY WORKER urges that physical violence should be inflicted on the miserable traitor. (It appears that there is no need for such advice.) But judging by his reception so far, it is almost safe to predict that his tour will be at least exciting if not exactly pleasant for him.

We learn that Abramovich will visit Chicago, unless he changes his mind.

Senator Shipstead of Minnesota sees a new financial panic as a result of the inflation process now going on. Stocks and bonds are now worth 25 per cent more than six months ago, tho according to Hoover's figures commerce was less healthy during the latter days of 1924 than during the corresponding period of 1923. It has been a harvest time for the financiers.

Child Labor

In no other way do the capitalist class show their hypocrisy more than in their hostility to the proposed child labor law, referred to the various states for consideration. Judging by the number of states voting against the proposed amendment, it looks as if it stood a poor show of slipping thru the opposition.

The capitalist class howl to high heaven in expressing their assumed indignation over the fate of the home and the family, should Communism supplant the present capitalist system. They have their "Mother's Day" in order to maudlinise the workers with any kind of emotion that will divert their minds from the big question, that is, the struggle between exploited and exploiters. The bourgeoisie set the mothers of the race on a pedestal, at least for one day in the year, but the little children brought into this world by these deified mothers are not allowed even to reach maturity before they are hurled into the slave pens of the nation where their flesh and blood is coined into gold for the benefit of the employers.

This may seem like an overdrawn picture, but let our skeptical readers go into any mill town in New England or in the south and they will find that the story does not even begin to tell the tragedy of capitalism in the industrial hells of this prosperous country.

In Soviet Russia where the workers enjoy political power, the first consideration of the government of the workers and peasants is the child. The laws of the Soviet government provide for adequate means of supporting the children while they are being trained for future service to themselves and society. Here in capitalist America, the wealthiest country in the world, where the god of profit rules, the child as well as the adult is sacrificed to capitalist greed.

Several states have already voted against the child labor amendment. Massachusetts, the great mill state, initiated the dodge of submitting the proposed law to a referendum vote. As already pointed out in the DAILY WORKER, the exploiters of Massachusetts, by using the power of the press, the church and their many other propaganda agencies succeeded in winning a favorable vote in this referendum. It worked so well in Massachusetts that the governor of New York has made a similar recommendation for that state in his inaugural address, and now the Manufacturers' Association of Illinois, thru its controlled press, is urging the referendum in this state fearing that the legislature may pass the amendment.

This new found devotion to "democracy" on the part of the child robbers is illuminating. They are for submitting the question to the voters wherever they are in doubt as to the result, but wherever they feel sure of their legislators no such consideration is shown for the right of the voters to pass their judgment on the proposed amendment.

While the capitalists are united in their opposition to even this puny effort to protect the children, we are sorry to note that very little effort is being made by the official leaders of the trade union movement to rally the workers in the fight to support the amendment. While the capitalists are fighting tooth and nail for their class interests and forgetting their clashing interests for the time being, we find the official bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor engaged in the unholy work of splitting the labor movement by attempting to drive out of the trade unions and labor councils the most militant members.

The fight on child labor must go on, tho we are not humbled among those who expect that the capitalist government can ever be used to better the conditions of the workers, youth or adult. But in this fight and in similar fights the black veil of hypocrisy is torn from the ugly face of capitalism and the workers learn by experience that only by taking political power away from their masters can they begin the task of reconstructing society on a basis which will place the welfare of all useful members of society to the forefront and abolish exploitation of the old as well as that of the young.

A Stupid Concoction

The "foreign" correspondent of the Gaelic American forgot to fake a London or Paris date line over his review of the situation in Europe in a recent issue. He starts out with "over" here, to indicate that the writer was in Europe. But in painting his imaginary picture of Soviet Russia, the ex-saloonkeeper succeeded in making a donkey out of himself. The burden of his imbecility is as follows: Trotsky is gone. Zinoviev is next. Tchitcherin, Stalin and Rykov are against the Third International. Only Kamenev is loyal. The Zinoviev group wants an alliance with the Second International. Instead of supporting the Soviets as formerly, the governments of France and England are putting the screws on them. The "commissar system" is breaking down, etc. If this rot is typical of the stuff turned out by Irish nationalist editors, and we believe it is, it is not surprising that Lloyd George tricked them into signing the Free State treaty, and turned them into a laughing stock.

Theodore Roosevelt liked John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America and an officer of the National Civic Federation, according to a letter written by "Teddy" to Lodge. Mitchell was "reasonable." The other labor fakers were not then properly fixed. Mitchell left an estate worth $250,000. Most of his stock was in non-union coal companies. The mine workers have raised a monument to his memory. The coal barons should build a city in his honor.

BILLIONS SPENT ABROAD HOOVER REPORT REVEALS

Congressman Exposes Tool of Plutes

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Billions of dollars of American capital were invested in industries in foreign countries last year, while billions of dollars more were sent abroad in loans to foreign governments, a report issued by the department of commerce revealed today.

Of the $1,208,428,000 borrowed in the United States, $527,770,000 was sent to Europe.

Securities were bought in the Wall Street market from Canada and Newfoundland amounting to $324,295,000, and loans were made to Latin-American countries amounting to $294,372,000. Japan and the Philippines borrowed $129,000,000 in American money.

U. S. Controls Foreign Governments.

The past year has seen an attempt to capture foreign markets, and control foreign governments by lending money, which has been more ambitious than ever before. The interests of the American bankers and industrialists spread to every corner of the earth.

The American Telegraph and Telephone company took over the Spanish telephone companies, and now controls the entire telephone system of Spain. Millions of dollars of Standard Oil money, and of McCormick money, made by the Chicago Tribune and the International Harvester company were invested in Venezuela oil fields.

The Standard Oil company invested millions of dollars more in the Columbian oil fields, the influence of the Standard Oil being successfully exerted on the United States senate to push thru a treaty making safe the holdings of the Standard Oil company in Columbia.

The Morgan banking interests loaned the German government $110,000,000 at good interest, loaned France $100,000,000 and Belgium $50,000,000.

Hoover Owned by Big Business.

Opposition has developed in the house of representatives to Herbert Hoover's continual service to the large capitalists. It is charged that Hoover has turned the department of commerce entirely over to the capitalists and is trying to undermine the department of agriculture by turning the farm organizations into pro-Coolidge organizations which work in behalf of the large manufacturers and the bankers.

Representative Dickinson, of Iowa submitted an amendment to the bill appropriating $3,207,064 for the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce The amendment provided that no money should be spent by Hoover in investigating agriculture. Dickinson said the bill as introduced represented a desire to "Hooverize the country still farther, and the situation has come to such a pass that even the selection of the secretary of agriculture is to be made on the basis of some one named by or satisfactory to Hoover."

Salesmanager for Plutes.

Dickinson declared that "The activities of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce indicate a desire on the part of big business to employ a salesmanager abroad at the expense of the taxpayers. The collection of information at home and abroad could well be left to the department of agriculture." Dickinson complained that it is now impossible for anyone to pick up a paper without learning that Hoover has some plan for solving some problem for big business. He said Hooverization has already gone too far.

B. of L. F. and E. Get a Few Cents More From Roads

GALESBURG, Ill., Jan. 26.—Retroactive from Sept. 1, 1924, engineers, firemen and hostlers for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad system are to receive an increase in pay, according to announcement made here by Mannie Larson, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, just returned from a meeting with officials held in Omaha, Neb.

The agreement is similar to that reached on the Southern Pacific railroad recently and to the New York Central agreement made a year ago.

Enginemen in passenger service will receive an increase of 24 cents a 100 miles, or for a day's work; in the freight service 36 cents for 100 miles or an eight-hour day, and in the yard, 32 cents a day.

Operators Must Pay For Rescue Work

SYDNEY, Australia. — Following pressure of labor members of perliament and the mining unions, New South Wales has passed an act compelling the mine-owners to establish rescue stations in coal and shale mining centers to be financed by the mine-owners. The persons employed in the stations are to be paid the miners' wages.

With reference to the dispute which Comrade Trotsky has again sought to arouse in our Russian brother party and in the C. I. by his new book, "1917," the joint conference of the Scandinavian Communist parties declares:

The work of Comrade Trotsky is a direct continuation, in literary form, of the liquidation policy of the Russian party opposition which was unanimously condemned at the 13th Party Conference of the Russian C. P. and at the V. Congress of the Comintern.

Wherein consists the great error of Comrade Trotsky? It consists in that he wishes to limit the leading role of the Communist Party in the class war to the "great moments" when the party overthrows the rule of the bourgeoisie and seizes power at the head of the revolutionary masses.

The Communist Party can only lead the working class and the great suppressed masses to victory over the capitalist state and the bourgeoisie, if it follows the Bolshevist line in the every day struggle of the working class, that is to say, if it pursues a policy which at the same time expresses and promotes the revolutionary will to power of the broad masses, and develops the Communist Party into a real disciplined party embracing the most class conscious and self-sacrificing elements of the working class.

If Comrade Trotsky in his book over the Russian October severs the Bolshevik period of preparation from the revolutionary upheaval and the setting up of the proletarian state power, and even put this forward as the "Lessons of the October Revolution," then we see in this a relapse on the part of Comrade Trotsky into his old semi-menshevist failing against which Comrade Lenin himself was the sharpest and most inexorable opponent.

Especially harmful is the criticism by Comrade Trotsky of the leaders of the Comintern, and in the first place of Comrade Zinoviev. What has such a criticism to do with the Lessons of the October revolution? No one has more openly and honestly confessed his mistakes than Comrade Zinoviev. Comrade Zinoviev has thereby drawn lessons from the October revolution which have strengthened and pushed forward the Communist International, and it is precisely therefore that Comrade Zinoviev is at present more hated by the international bourgeoisie than other leader of the Comintern.

The conference of the four Communist Parties of Scandinavia condemns the action of Comrade Trotsky, which will be taken advantage of by all enemies of the Communist International in order to confuse the working class and to weaken the Communist Party.

We say to Comrade Trotsky, that the lessons of the Russian October revolution do not permit of any kind of criticism which strengthens the semi-menshevist liquidatory tendencies in the Comintern, and could thereby weaken the international fighting organization of the working class. On the contrary! The October revolution and our own experiences have taught us that these tendencies constitute the greatest danger to Communism, and that the victory of the revolutionary working class is impossible without the ruthless combatting of these tendences in the ranks of the Communist Parties themselves.

WHAT THE FARMER THINKS IS THE MATTER WITH HIM

But Statistics Are Often Deceitful

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan 26.—The business interests—especially small business men and town bankers—never fail to point out that farmers fail in their work as farmers because they are not good managers and do not save what they earn. This is an old tale and one which has caused farmers generally to dislike many business men.

The department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., has published some figures in relation to this matter that might be of interest to DAILY WORKER readers.

In discussing the various kinds of difficulties that the farmers have to put up with, it says (Agriculture Yearbook, 1923):

"Studies by the department indicate that 42 per cent of the farmers feel that their financial difficulties are due to low prices of farm products; to high taxes, 17 per cent; high costs for farm labor, 11 per cent; high freight rates, 10 per cent; high interest, 10 per cent; reckless expenditures during boom periods, six per cent, and too much credit, four per cent."

From this it would appear that the farmer is not such a witless fellow after all. But the gentleman in the department of agriculture never appear to have asked or found out what percentage of the farmers lay their financial trouble to the capitalist system as a whole.

Penna. Strike In Anthracite Compromised

WILKESBARE, Pa.—The strike of the 60,000 anthracite miners of District One failed to materialize, and the 12,000 strikers of the ten locals striking for two months against the Cappellini-Pennsylvania Coal company combination, are ordered back to work by the body which called them out—their grievance committee.

This was the result of an "S. O. S." sent by Cappellini to John L. Lewis, who sent a special commission to save Cappellini from complete destruction. The commission worked upon the grievance committee leaders, who are not revolutionary and lack strong will and experienced knowledge, getting the vote to return to work in exchange for promises to see that grievances are "considered" and "consideration" given the matter of returning the charters of the ten locals revoked by Cappellini.

While not in the agreement, the Lewis commission has doubtlessly put pressure upon the weak leaders of the grievance committee to force the miners to withdraw from pressing the charges of treachery and their call for a special district convention to try Cappellini on this charge.

It is an unavoidable conclusion from the way the agreement was reached, that altho the grievance committees are an expression of rank and file control of the union which the miners must keep at all costs, still they need to be led by better, and more revolutionary leadership than the present group has furnished to date. Stand by the grievance committees! But make them fighting organs!

CALIFORNIA IS BAROMETER OF DAILY WORKER'S SAFETY

Just One-Third of Quota Raised in District 13; Nationally, Too, Labor Press Only One-Third Safe

How sure are we that the DAILY WORKER is going to make the grade for 1925? Just one-third sure!

District 13 serves as the index of the insurance drive's progress. Just as this district, California, has so far raised only one-third of its quota, so naturally only one-third of the $50,000 is yet [illegible].

California ranks with the three other leading districts in having remitted so far approximately one dollar per member. With an estimated membership of 750, the total remittance has been $716.00. Of the 32 branches in the district, all but 8 have been [illegible].

District Organizer J. H. Dolsen and the various branch secretaries and most of the membership have made a good beginning, no doubt of that. But two-thirds of the work is yet to be done before there can be a good ending. An average of two dollars more must be given by each member.

If California continues to be the barometer for the DAILY WORKER insurance drive, then things will be "looking up" with a vengeance. Witness the $196 check received late Monday as a birthday contribution from all the party branches and sympathizers in Los Angeles, and following on its heels, a check for $60 from the Los Angeles Greek branch, besides.

"We hope to double this amount next birthday," writes Anna Cornblatt, who was chairman of the entertainment at which the $196 was raised.

COOLIDGE DEMANDS FRANCE PAY

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Chicago police are still hunting for the gunmen who shot at Johnny Torrio, evidently with intent to kill. Torrio is reputed to be the General Boss of Chicago's bootleggers and vice houses, owning several city blocks almost entirely devoted to the business of prostitution. And yet his picture looks like that of a church deacon or a highly respectable loan shark. You never can tell. Evolution has materially affected the externals of our illegal business men.

THOSE who go to the movies occasionally (and who doesn't?) cannot fail to note that the screen banker, who rarely ever plays the role of villain, is well dressed, clean shaved and has a little fringe of gray around the head, to add respectability perhaps. When the banker appears upon the scene, your villian takes to his heels. Sin cannot stand up before aggressive virtue. A well tailored man, well shaved and well [illegible] can rob an orphanage and get away with it until he steps on some competitor's corns. What is more natural than our Johnny Torrios should dress like bankers, shave like bankers, contribute to charity like bankers and rob like bankers?

THIS reminds us that the murderers of Dean O'Banion are still at large. If the newspapers offered a reward to their readers for the solution of the O'Banion murder mystery instead of driving them crazy with cross-word puzzles, perhaps the police would stop promising "to have the murderers within twenty-four hours." It should be noted that O'Banion was a friend of State's Attorney Crowe. [illegible] not suggest that because of [illegible] would [illegible]

O'BANION [illegible] on election day. He was murdered a few days afterwards. The assassins were never apprehended. It is not likely they ever will be. As the DAILY WORKER so often declared, there is profit in the illegal sale of booze and in organized prostitution and because of that, protection can be purchased. While strikers and trade union leaders, who fight for their class are thrown into prison on the most trivial excuse, gunmen are practically immune from punishment. If they do manage to get behind the bars, it is not for long. There is an alliance between the underworld that does business illegally and the capitalists who need the gunmen to shoot and beat up strikers.

THE gunman, Torrio, is treated like a potentate, as he lies in a hospital. He has a suite of rooms, with several attendants and as many policemen as he needs to protect him. His life is precious. He is scheduled to serve nine months in jail for violating the prohibition law. He is given two days to set his business affairs in order. His business is prostitution and booze, according to the papers. While this type is granted extraordinary priveleges under capitalism, the nation's jail are filled with radicals and union organizers; men of good character whose only crime is to have attempted to improve the conditions of the workers or in having advocated a change of society. This is the unforgivable sin under capitalism.

Actors Fear the Radio.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The actors of New York, thru their union, the Actors Equity association, are launching a drive to organize the entire theatrical industry to resist the radio and to compete with moving pictures.

There was a time when actors did not consider themselves of the working class but now they do. This is a healthy step forward for them.

Their drive contains other demands. They demand the repeal of the tax on tickets, the legalizing of children's acting and the creation of a propaganda department for the spoken play.

FRENCH TOLD TO SHUT UP AND PAY UP

Uncle Sam, Imperialist, Cracks the Whip

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A definite move by the French government toward serious negotiations for the funding of four billion dollar war debt, is confidently expected in Washington within the next six weeks.

Whether it will be made thru France's new ambassador, Emile Daeschner, or thru another special debt commission, sent here for that purpose, is not yet clear, but administration officials appeared confident the move will be made.

A member of the American debt funding commission said:

"France is laying down a barrage of propaganda preparatory to undertaking the discharge of her debt. It is the French system."

The "barrage" referred to was the almost daily statements that have been coming out of Paris from chairman Clementel, French finance minister; deputy Marin in the chamber of deputies and bankers and other prominent officials—all aimed at inviting the attention of the world and of America in particular in France's war sacrifices, her weakened financial structure, and her claims on "American generosity."

Financial Battle Ahead.

"All this," it was said by the debt commissioner, "is merely to prepare the ground. The real advance toward [illegible] has not presented his credentials, but is expected to during the week. Some move by France will be necessary in the next six weeks if further criticism and action by the United States senate is to be averted. The senate will adjourn on March 4, and if by that time nothing has been done, there is a strong likelihood that France will be "called" even more sharply than Senator Borah called her. American senators are getting accustomed to bossing European nations.

The favorite plan continues to be introduction of a resolution stating that it is "the sense of the senate" that France should begin immediate funding negotiations. In the present temper of the senate such a resolution probably would pass, and it's effect on French private credit thruout the world would be incalculable. French credit already has been to some extent in the private money markets by the discussion in the French chamber and in congress here. This has taken the form of holding up and delaying industrial loans and advances.

ISLAND SWALLOWED UP BY ATLANTIC, SAY SHIPS PICKING UP NEWS

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Portuguese government had received confirmation of the engulfing of the island of Port Alexander by the sea, according to a dispatch received by the Evening News today. Passing ships brought first news that the island had been swallowed, receiving their accounts from sailors who gibbered with fright as they related their escape from the waves.

A mass meeting of all registered voters who signed petitions for Peter M. Lucas, for candidate of the 32nd ward, is called by the campaign committee for Thursday, Jan. 29, at 8 p. m., at the Technical School, 1902 W. Division St. J. Louis Engdahl, editor of The DAILY WORKER, will be the main speaker. All workers living in the vicinity of the meeting place, are invited to attend. The speakers will explain the platform of the candidates indorsed by the Workers (Communist) Party. All who work are welcome. Bring your friends.

Statement by C. E. RUTHENBERG.

THE threat of new trials in the Michigan case which has become definite in setting the trial of Robert Minor for February 2, should be a clarion call to our whole party for a renewed, energetic fight against the Michigan persecution and for the upbuilding of the Workers (Communist) Party.

It is apparent that the capitalist class, which is behind the prosecution in the Michigan case, as has been definitely established thru the open statement at St. Joseph that the money for the prosecution has come from capitalist sources, sees in the Michigan case the opportunity to cripple the Communist movement in this country.

There are involved in this case 75 of the most active workers for Communism in the United States. If the capitalist class can remove these 75 active workers from our party it will mean at least temporarily a set-back for our movement. Eventually the party would triumph even over such a successful attack but for a time at least our work would be greatly handicapped.

Victory Ours Thus Far.

Thus far the victory in the Michigan case is on our side. The best that the capitalist class has been able to do two years and five months after the raid on the Communist convention at Birdgman is to put me in prison for three weeks. It has only one conviction to its credit.

The situation stands thus because of the fight which was made against the Michigan [illegible] and part of 1924. The work of the Labor Defense Council was one of the major achievements of our party. Thru arousing the labor movement, thru rallying all the militant forces in this country to the support of the Communists we made a defense which halted the attack upon our organization.

The building of united front organizations under the auspices of the Labor Defense Council must go forward again and a mass movement developed against the new persecutions. The collection of funds must be undertaken with the same enthusiasm and energy that brot the great results for us in the early days of the Michigan cases.

We must make the persecutions as difficult for the capitalist class as possible. The stronger the movement against it, the greater the possibility of stopping it.

Build the Party.

While we undertake this work of defense, we must not overlook our fundamental task in connection with the persecution and the party work generally. Our strongest defense against persecution, against all attacks by our capitalist enemies, is thru building our party. The greater our party, in numbers, organizational efficiency and fighting spirit, the less the danger to our movement from the attack of its enemies. We have not always taken advantage of our opportunities to increase the membership, to increase the organizational efficiency, and the fighting spirit of our movement. The Michigan attack on us is a call to us to throw ourselves into this work with new enthusiasm.

Comrades! Let us make a Communist answer to the attack upon the Communist Party. Let us throw ourselves into all the work of our party with renewed energy and enthusiasm and build the militant fighting Communist Party of America, the Workers Party.

The New Attack.

The affirmation of the conviction in my case by the supreme court of the state of Michigan has given new impetus to the efforts to railroad the other defendants to prison. Evidently the prosecution believes that with this decision to its credit a trial and conviction will mean immediate imprisonment of the defendants brought to trial since the Michigan supreme court must be appealed to before the constitutional question can be raised in the United States supreme court.

This danger to the comrades who are threatened with immediate trial will arouse every unit of the party to a new effort to halt the second attack against our movement as we were successful in halting the first attack.

THOMAS SAVED UNARMED MINER FROM KLAN GUN

Young Was About to Murder Miner

HERRIN, Ill., Jan. 27.—Ora Thomas, deputy sheriff killed by members of the ku klux klan here, met his death when he tried to save the life of Elias Green, a miner whom Glenn Young was about to murder in the Biotti cigar store, witnesses at the coroner's inquest testified.

Thomas was talking over the telephone to his wife from Dr. Curry's office when friends rushed in and said that Elias Green was being murdered by Glenn Young and a crowd of klansmen. Thomas pushed his way into the Biotti store, and found Young with a revolver pressed into Green's stomach, threatening to shoot. Thomas said, "Well, Young, its man to man at last."

Young Afraid To Fight

But Young was afraid to fight, Green testified at the inquest. He whirled Green around and placed him between Young and Thomas, so that Young was shielded by Green's body. Young then fired at Thomas, but missed, and Green scrambled out to the store to safety, with a bullet-scraped lip.

Another Klan Murder Threat

Glenn Fowler, a member of the klan and one of Young's fellow gangsters, is lodged in the Murphysboro county jail today, charged with trying to kill Joseph McGuire, editor of the Carbondale Free Press, who was printing criticisms of Young in his paper.

THE BRONX, N. Y., REJECTS SPEECH BY ABRAMOVICH

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 27.—The meeting arranged for the agent of the Second (socialist) International, Rafael Abramovich, in Hunt's Point Palace, the Bronx, again proved to be a huge demonstration for Soviet Russia.

Gangsters Wear "Socialist" Badge.

The hired gangsters wore socialist party badges. Abramovich could not be heard above the shouts for Soviet Russia, which filled the hall, and the fighting between the audience and the hired gunmen brought in by the socialists. Abe Cahan, editor of the Forward, tried to speak, but was greeted with shouts of "traitor."

One woman was seized by the throat and dragged thru the aisle, and when one of the workers who could not see such a spectacle without protest sought to save her from further injury, he was taken by one of the police and as he was hauled out, the battery of thugs each struck him heavy blows in the face and kicked him in the ribs.

Tries to Spread Lies.

The base and false statement made by Abramovich that the peasants are against the Bolsheviks drew loud protests and several of the audience were taken out via the route of the sluggers who struck them one after the other as they were shoved out by the police.

That the enthusiasm evidenced is depressingly disappointing to his sponsors was clearly shown when less than half of the audience rose to their feet upon the appearance of Abramovich at the meeting. Thugs all along the aisles and police stationed in the building urged those who sat still to get up, but this was in vain and as the hall would have been more than half emptied if the disobedient ones had been put out they were not molested except in a few cases.

Here's the Roll Call.

On the platform were "Abe" Cahan, of the Forward, Jacob Panken, "so-

HIGH COURT SAYS GERMAN EDITOR MUST NOT ATTACK LEGION

Sentence of six months in jail imposed on Arthur Lorenz, former editor of the Illinois Staats Zeitung, for casting aspersions on members of the American legion, was affirmed today by the appelate court.

Lorenz was convicted by a jury after he had published in 1921, an editorial in the Staats Zeitung which contained sentences American legion officials thought were detrimental and untrue regarding that organization.

OFFICIALS OF U. M. W. COUNT THEMSELVES IN

Win by Fraud, Declares T. U. E. L. Leader

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 27.—All international officers of the United Mine Workers of America were reelected for a term of two years at the December election, it was announced at the union's headquarters here today, following final tabulation of returns.

John L. Lewis, president; Philip Murray, vice president, and William Green, secretary-treasurer, were to start their new terms of office April 1. Thomas Kennedy, appointed successor to Green when the latter became president of the American Federation of Labor, will serve Green's two year term.

Jack Johnstone, assistant secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, in an interview to the DAILY WORKER with reference to the official report of the re-election of John L. Lewis and his reactionary machine said:

"Had the votes cast in the recent elections for officials of the United Mine Workers of America been properly counted, the slate of the progressive miners' committee would have been swept into office.

"In order to rob the progressives of well known leaders in the left wing movement as their candidates, Lewis took care that such veterans as Alexander Howat, Jim McLachlan, Duncan MacDonald and Tom Myerscough were expelled from the union so that their names could not appear on the slate as candidates for election.

Ruled Off Ballot.

"The entire progressive slate was ruled off the ballot in Districts 18 and 14, and in other districts progressive candidates were barred from running for no reason whatever except that they refused to bow to the machine.

"The use of fraudulent ballots and the votes of skyblue locals were tricks used by reactionaries to win. The progressives in southern Illinois discovered 500 fake ballots which were printed by the reactionaries. Over fifty candidates were ruled off the ballot in Kansas alone.

"In spite of all these obstacles the work of the Progressive Miners' Committee was so effective and the opposition inside the United Mine Workers of America so strong that had the votes been counted honestly, Lewis and his gang would have to openly take their positions behind the desks of the coal operators whom they are now serving.

"The Progressive Miners' Committee which has done such splendid work in the last elections has only begun to fight. Grave issues confront the miners. The open shop coal operators are daily widening the scope of their operations. Attacks are being made on the wage and working conditions of the employed miners. The condition of the unemployed is growing more critical. The Progressive Miners' Committee has the task of organizing the militant miners to take the leadership of the union out of the hands of the fakers who now manage it as an auxiliary of the coal operators. They must do this because only when the union is under the control and direction of progressive leadership will it become an effective fighting instrument against the bosses."

GLENWOOD SHOP MACHINISTS WHO WORK UNDER B. & O. PLAN REPUDIATE IT AND JOHNSTON

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 27.—For the first time since the operation of the "B. & O. Plan" those working under it had a chance for expression and an opportunity to repudiate those that had arbitrarily put it into effect. At the Glenwood shops Johnston and his "B. & O. Plan" were snowed under by an avalanche of votes.

In the month of January the machinists lodges are nominating candidates for international officers, and a specially called meeting of Lodge 491 in Glenwood refused to nominate Johnston and his slate.

New Herald Its Repudiation.

It must be remembered that this local at one time was considered conservative and it was at this point that the "B. & O. plan" was first put into operation. The news of its operation was heralded all over the world "as a success of "co-operation" between employed and employes.

Johnston had his good man Friday, Pete Conlon, vice-president of the machinists, come to the lodge meeting all the way from Washington, to see that Johnston and his slate were put over and that nothing should be put in the way of continuing his pet scheme of class collaboration.

"All the King's Horses," Etc.

In addition to Conlon, General Chairman Fullerton, of the "B. & O." system was present. Both tried their level best to carry the lodge for their slate. And in pleading for Johnston, Conlon said in part, "If you do not nominate Johnston, it will be heralded all over the country that you repudiate the 'B. & O. plan.'"

After the nomination, again Conlon tried to save the situation and asked to have a resolution passed stating that the plan had not been [illegible] by refusing to nominate Johnston, but no [illegible] was offered by any of the members. Thus the "B. and O. plan" was directly repudiated. Not one worker under it would offer a resolution in its support. Only a weak-kneed secretary of the local, who never had any backbone to fight for a principle, spoke timidly in favor of the "B. & O. plan."

I. S. Otis, one of the left wing candidates, answered all of these fakers. He explained the program of the left wing, also giving the reason why it was necessary to publish a bulletin outside of the regular trade union journals. He called upon the machinists to stand for solidarity with other workers by amalgamating and fighting the employers who are our enemies and not co-operate with the employer for his profits. These are the leading points of the program of the Trade Union Educational League.

Even "Nice Old Man" Failed.

The members of this local are determined to wipe out the "B. & O. plan," as was shown by their action in refusing even to nominate Conlon, a Johnston henchman, while he was sitting with them in the lodge-room, and Conlon has been known as "the nice old man" with the railroad machinists.

Conlon then made his last plea for the resolution in favor of the Johnston plan, and failing in the attempt, he walked out of the meeting.

Those who work under the "B. & O. plan" unanimously repudiate it!

CRITICISM OF CAL'S SOVIET POLICY GROWS

Morgan and Rockefeller Eye Russian Oil

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—President Coolidge has refused to make a statement as to the effect of the recognition of Soviet Russia by Japan on his policy toward the Soviet government. Coolidge is trying to appear nonchalant and is whistling to keep up his courage.

He has let it be known that "Nothing significant to the United States is seen in the new treaty between Japan and the Soviet Union."

However, the storm brewing around Coolidge's head seems about to break as the demand for recognition of Russia grows. Speaking before the conference on the causes of war now going on here, Allen Wardell, formerly of the American red cross in Russia, in criticizing Coolidge's policy toward the Soviet government declared that, "In the recognition parade, America brings up the rear of the procession and can expect no advantage from that fact."

American Policy Obsolete

"America could have made the best terms with the Soviets just after the war," Wardell, who was in Russia in 1918, stated. "America could have talked things over with the revolutionists and secured favorable conditions by permitting them to return to the family of nations.

"The Wilson and subsequent administrations guessed wrong when they counted on the early collapse of the Soviet, and now they have permitted all the nations nearer at hand to recognize Russia without securing in advance any of the conditions that might have been had. Domestic political crises have forced those European governments to recognise Moscow, and thereby set precedents for further recognitions."

Standard Oil Wants Concessions

It is well known in Wall Street that the Morgan and Rockefeller interests have conferred and decided to recognize Soviet Russia. Production of oil fell short 40 million barrels last year, and it is expected that America's oil deficit will be 20 per cent next year. America badly needs Russian oil, and the recognition by Japan forces drastic and immediate change of Coolidge's policy. The Standard Oil is trying to gain concessions in the rich Baku and Siberian oil fields, and must recognize Soviet Russia, or fall behind as a world power.

TEXTILE BARONS OF THREE STATES MAKE WAR ON WAGES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 27.—The Pacific Mills, a $20,000,000 corporation, has joined the wage cutting gang by a ten per cent cut for the 1,200 workers in the cotton department. The 2,000 workers in the print workers' department and the 4,000 worsted workers will not be immediately affected. The American Federation of Textile Operatives and the United Textile Workers have some members in the plant, but lack control.

PROVIDENCE R. I., Jan. 27—A ten per cent wage cut goes into effect at the Esmond Mills Co., blanket manufacturers, with 1,000 employes, the management announces.

GENERAL T. U. E. L. MEETING, TONIGHT, 8 P. M., NORTHWEST HALL, NORTH AND WESTERN AVES. SPEAKER: J. W. JOHNSTONE

UNITED MINERS LEVY SPECIAL ASSESSMENT

Officials Say Treasury Needs Money

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 27.—The executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, at its last meeting here, decided to assess every member of the organization $1.00 additional dues for the months of February and March.

The money is needed according to a circular letter sent out to the membership, from the international office, to meet the expenses of the organization.

The letter is signed by John L. Lewis, president; Philip Murray, vice-president and Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer.

Members Surprised.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 25.—Members of the United Mine Workers here are surprised to learn from the circular letter from international headquarters, that the international treasury needs replenishing, in view of the boast made by William Green at the last convention of District 12, on the strength of the treasury. Green stated that the treasury was very strong. What happened to the funds since then? Were they used up in printing fake ballots and employing thugs to insure that Lewis and company were properly counted in?

Militant miners are willing to pay the dollar assessment and can assure the international officers that the entire membership of the union will also pay it willingly if they know that the money will be used to fight the operators and not to strengthen the Lewis machine by placing another batch of patriots on the payroll. If the money is to be used to fight the operators who have violated the Jacksonville agreement, and to put on an organizing drive in the open shop territories there is no doubt but the members will be more than anxious to pay the assessment.

Walter Nesbit, secretary-treasurer, of District 12, has notified the locals that the old age pension plan, submitted to the membership in the recent elections was not carried by the necessary two-thirds vote in order to make it legally adopted in accordance with the provisions of the international constitution. Some stoolpigeons of the Farrington machine raised the question of the legality of levying the assessment and the international executive board decided that it could not be legally put into effect.

Make the Bosses Pay.

The Farrington machine decided to resubmit the matter to another vote, knowing quite well that they cannot get the necessary two-thirds vote as the members are more interested in a fighting program that will bring them better wages than a scheme for which they must pay out of their own pockets. The militants believe that the coal barons who have grown wealthy at the expense of the sweat of the miners should be made to pay for old age pensions and not the workers themselves.

Farrington wants to get out of the old age pension plan so he got one of his henchmen to appeal to Lewis. He is a pastmaster of such tricks.

"The Bronx" Rejects Abramovich

cialist" judge, August Claessens, socialist clown and James Oneal, socialist petty boss.

Abramovich spoke for only a few minutes and had to stop abruptly. Morris Lenin, one of the members of the Workers Party, asked for the floor for ten minutes, to correct the false statements made by Abramovich, but was beaten and thrown out thru the fire escape.

The traitors to the working class with their renegade, Abramovich at the head, who came here with the purpose of spreading falsehood about Soviet Russia and the Communist movement received a hostile reception when they tried to speak. The hall was stormed with shouts for Soviet Russia and the audience refused to listen to Abramovich's lies.

Altho hundreds of people were attacked and many severely wounded, by the detectives and police, the workers fought for their lives and shouted "Down with the traitors." In many corners of the hall there were pools of blood where gangsters had beaten up members of the audience, including women and children.

Near the ticket office were detectives and Forward officials who glanced over each ticket buyer, to see that no class conscious worker was allowed to enter the hall. After questions were asked them, "Why did you come to the meeting?" and after being examined they were admitted to the hall under the eye of gangsters, sluggers and detectives.

The Forward clique had prepared themselves for real bloodshed. They had murderers and drunken bandits wearing badges of socialist committeemen. On one side of the hall is a large room. The underworld gunmen were here drinking and shouting that they would teach the Bolsheviks a lesson this time. As soon as the meeting opened, it could be seen that something was about to happen.

It could also be noticed that the gangsters were ready to start as soon as the orchestra started to play.

Traitors Welcomed with Hisses.

When the chairman, J. Boskin, general secretary of the Workmen's Circle, started speaking, at the same time, Abe Cahan, editor of the Forward, Abramovich and a few more yellow socialists came up on the platform. They were welcomed by the audience with a big boo that raised the roof.

After that, the audience was divided into two battling camps. On one side the gunmen, with "socialist" badges, and thugs of the underworld and the police, and on the other side, the workers. The workers were shouting that they would not let a counter-revolutionist make his nest with the Jewish workers here.

Cahan is Hissed.

When the chairman introduced Abe Cahan, hisses and booes rang thru the hall for several minutes. The gangsters, armed with clubs and knives, and using their fists, attacked the audience. Chairs were flying, and the electric lights in the rear were turned out. The police filled the hall.

Many women got hysterical and fainted, and the yellow gang on the platform, fearing for their lives, sent for the police with a captain at their head.

"We'll Treat 'Em Rough."

The captain came and stood by the platform, and ordered the committeemen to get out. He said, "We will treat rough any disturber." But this helped very little. As soon as Abramovich started to talk, he was interrupted by shouts: "You are a traitor. You support the counter-revolution."

The meeting was repeatedly interrupted and one after another the yellows on the platform asked for mercy and asked the audience to quiet down. An answer came from the crowd. "Take out your hired sluggers and slaughterers."

The mass booed and shouted, rapping with their chairs, calling to Abramovich that he is Scheidemann's and Noske's friend. They shouted "Your hands are still filled with the blood of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg. You want to kill us like you did Liebknecht and Luxemburg," the crowd shouted. The hall was turned into a real battleground.

Scratched faces and black eyes were seen everywhere.

The big crowd walked out of the hall in a mass demonstration for Soviet Russia. As they marched out they sang "The International." Shouts were heard, "Down with the traitors," "Long live the Soviet Republic," "Long live the Communist International."

BLDG. TRADES COUNCIL CALLS SCHOOL STRIKE

Open Shop Architect to Blame

The Carl Schurz high and the Grant elementary school construction jobs are tied up by a strike order of the Building Trades Council over the open shop supervisory architect of the board of education, Edgar W. Martin. All crafts are called out.

Expectation is rife that the strike will spread to the other twelve schools now under construction and Martin, who is cordially hated by all real union men, is, by his favoring of scab building contractors of the "Landis award," going to be the one responsible for the continued overcrowding of the schools by blocking the new construction work.

The buildings struck are supposed to be ready by September and to furnish a part of the seating room for the then expected excess of 120,000 children, of whom 100,000 are now not taken care of.

A FEW paragraphs that appeared in this column under date of Jan. 14, got under the hide of the editor of the Klan Kourier, which is published in Washington. The paragraphs selected for the attention of the night shirt editor dealt with the amorous misadventures of a minister of the gospel, who happened to be of the female sex, and the husband of another woman, whom she seduced; the relations of a prohibition enforcement agent and a school teacher. Comment was made on these items not out of malice for those involved because they happened to be of the protestant faith but because of the growing efficiency of satan who seems to take a devilish delight in putting temptation in the way of his rival's earthly agents: clergymen and reformers.

THE Klan Kourier assumed right off the reel that the writer gets his daily instructions by radio from the Vatican and cites as evidence in support of this contention (besides my Hibernian cognomen) the following argument: "It is regarded by real Americans of Chicago as passing strange that O'Flaherty's column contained no mention of a Roman catholic priest who was shot and killed in the act of entering a house in Webster Groves, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, some months ago. It is known that agents of the knights of Columbus forced an entrance to the morgue and stripped the skin from the finger of the dead priest in an attempt to prevent identification. The priest vanished mysteriously from Virdun, Ill., and positive identification was established by neighbors who had known him for many years."

THE DAILY WORKER has often stated that the ku klux klan was a collection of morons organized by unscrupulous money sharks. This organization is sometimes used by the employers wherever it serves their purpose. The above quotation is the craziest piece of rubbish ever conceived in the diseased brain of a religious fanatic. It is offered as proof of our contention that klansmen are psychopathic subjects.

CARPENTERS FOR SQUARE DEAL TO THEIR MEMBERS

Local 181 in Demand for Reinstatement

The members of Local No. 181 of the Carpenters' Union are determined that their brothers who were railroaded without trial by the local officials on the instructions of Harry Jensen and "Czar" Hutcheson" are going to have a square deal.

This was demonstrated at a meeting of the local last Monday night when a resolution signed by a majority of the members present protested against the expulsion of five members without trial and in violation of the constitution.

The resolution says in substance that the offense of the expelled members was in signing a resolution criticising the Chicago agreement as being against the interests of the union and having it adopted by Local No. 181 and sent to the general convention in Indianapolis.

Illegally Ousted.

That the members were expelled over the protest of the membership who were denied a vote on the matter, the president first declaring them suspended and the records afterwards being doctored to read "expelled."

That the majority of the trial committee has signed an affidavit declaring that the report of the chairman of the trial committee submitted to the membership was not the same as the one agreed upon by the trial committee in session; that the report was a distortion of the facts, as the defendants did not plead guilty as reported by the chairman of the trial committee.

The resolution demands that the five members be immediately restored to full membership and given a working card, and that President Hutcheson be requested to compel the officers of the local to live to the constitution.

The five "expelled" members came to the local meeting last Monday and took their seats as usual. When the password was taken, and the announcement made that everything was in order to open the meeting, the chairman stated that there were five expelled members in the hall, and that the session could not open until they left.

One of the defendants asked if the decision of the international president on the matter was yet received. Hutcheson had this appeal for a month, but it appears he is too busy expelling members in Detroit, Philadelphia and other cities to have any time to spare in providing trade unionists who incur his anger, with working cards.

Another expelled member stated that the only thing in order was to proceed with a trial of the five members, who were never tried legally and never convicted. There was no reason why the five members should leave the meeting, he declared. They were neither tried nor convicted. They were perfectly willing to leave if the members so decided.

Jensen Howled Down.

About this time Harry Jensen came running up to the front and shouted that this "is not a Bolshevik meeting" and ordering the chairman to either open the meeting or close it. The chairman, obeying Jensen's orders, meekly declared the meeting adjourned, but as he had not declared the meeting opened yet it was rather difficult for it to be adjourned. The membership howled Jensen and the chairman down.

An old-time member of the local and a former ex-president took the floor and said that while he was not in love with the defendants, he believed in everybody getting a fair trial. So far as he could see, this was a case of railroading the defendants and he was opposed to any such policy.

The resolution was signed willingly by the members present. The fight against the expulsion policy of Jensen and Hutcheson will be carried to other locals thruout the country. What is taking place in Chicago, in Local 181, is but part of a policy of expulsion that is being put into effect by Hutcheson all over the country.

The members of Local 181 are determined that their officials must live up to the constitution and laws made by themselves. Until they do this the Jensen lackeys in Local 181 will find themselves confronted with the hostility of the membership.

European News Shows Socialists Active Wing of Capitalist Reaction

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, as always, murderers do not like to be confronted with their bloody deeds. That is one reason why the "socialists" howl so furiously when faced with the criminal deeds of Rafael Abramovich, whom they have brought into their midst. Abramovich, coming to the United States as the ally of American "socialists" clearly reveals the alliance of Hillquit and Cahan with the would-be hangmen of the successful bolshevik revolution of the Russian workers and peasants. Abramovich becomes the connecting link, if one is necessary, between the American "socialist" counter-revolution of words, and the European counter-revolution of deeds against the first workers' republic.

• • • •

Abramovich is in the United States as the spokesman of the Second (socialist) International; the international of war ministers and capitalist jingoes poisoning the working class by their presence in its ranks.

The blood on the hands of these "socialists" was not only drawn from the veins of the working class to redden the battlefields of the world war; but it is also the blood of the Russian workers and peasants slain after the war in defending their revolution against world imperialism. It is the blood of the hundreds of thousands of martyrs in almost every land, of the world social revolution, victims of the international reaction.

Two items in the day's news unmask the "socialist" breed that has sent Abramovich to these shores, and that has received him and is sponsoring his meetings in the United States.

Readers of the DAILY WORKER are already familiar with the barbarous terror that was recently invoked against the Communists of Esthonia, one of the Baltic states bordering Soviet Russia. "Socialists" are members of the Esthonian government that arrested 149 Communists, many of them deputies elected by the workers and peasants; that ordered a state of siege in order the better to carry out its bloody tyranny and that later sent to the gallows some of the most prominent and self-sacrificing and therefore the most dangerous of the Communists. This was done against the protest of the Communist International and the Russian Soviet government.

• • • •

This Second (socialist) International of Vandervelde, Noske, Ebert, MacDonald, Thomas and Scheidemann went thru the gesture of asking the Esthonian "socialists" to account for their murderous alliance with Esthonian capitalism, the agent of British-French imperialism. Here is the outspoken reply of the Esthonian "socialists":

"WE DECLARE ALL THE ACTS OF THE GOVERNMENT TO BE JUSTIFIED, AND ALL MEASURES OF THE GOVERNMENT TO BE NECESSARY AND DICTATED FROM REASONS OF THE SAFETY OF THE REALM. FOR THE SAME REASONS WE VOTED FOR THE HANDING OVER OF POWER TO THE MILITARY AND ENTERED THE GOVERNMENT FOR THE PURPOSE OF HELPING IT IN ITS STRUGGLE AGAINST COMMUNISM."

Thus the Esthonian "socialists," spawn of the Second (socialist) International, confess themselves the eager ally of the military fascist dictatorship that rules in Esthonia only because of the support it receives from West European capitalism.

• • • •

Similarly in Hungary under the fist of the Horthy terror. Even those socialists driven from their homes by the Horthy dictatorship, that has imprisoned and murdered tens of thousands of workers, are now raising their voices against the latest treason of the Hungarian "socialists." These exiles in Vienna, Austria, complained to their Second (socialist) International of the treason of the Hungarian "socialists" tolerated by the Horthy regime, who are freely working with Horthy's premier, Bethlen, and co-operating with the Horthy government.

It can be depended on that the Second (socialist) International, that sends the enemy of the Soviet Republic, Abramovich, to the United States; that condones the alliance of the "socialists" with the fascisti in Esthonia for the war on Communism, will also find a way of excusing the pact between the Hungarian "socialists" and Horthy, the hangman of the Hungarian working class.

• • • •

But the workers in all of these countries will fight this alliance. They will overthrow it, just as they did in the Russia of Kerensky, to create the Russia of Lenin. Even America's workers will successfully combat this alliance. Not only Abramovich, the agent of the Second (socialist) International, will be repudiated, but all those responsible for bringing him here, including the Hillquits, the Cahans, the Weinbergs, the Pankens and all their breed.

Even the most humble worker and poor farmer will in time learn what these "socialists" really are; these "socialists" who so loudly protest when toilers from the rank and file dare interrupt their bloody and murderous program. The storm raised by workers at the Abramovich meetings is a healthy sign indicating that even American labor is on the right road to its final emancipation from capitalism and its "socialist" lackeys.

Forbes Prosecution Fears for Integrity Of Capitalist Rule

The trial of Charles R. Forbes for conspiracy and corruption while head of the United States veterans' bureau revealed a "seam of dirty intrigue seldom depicted before a jury," Ralph F. Potter, one of the government lawyers, told the jury yesterday.

"It is an ugly picture of what went on in Washington in 1922," he said. "Thompson-Forbes-Mortimer! Corruption, bribery, Langley booze! I tell you this case strikes at the foundations of the integrity of the nation."

No Help from Coolidge.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—Commenting on the Chicago sewage situation a White House spokesman today announced President Coolidge's endorsement of the recent statement of secretary of war Weeks in which he charged the law, the city meanwhile taking every possible action to safeguard Chicago to comply immediately with the health of its population.

RUTHENBERG IS WELCOMED BACK FROM MICH. PEN.

Served Three Weeks; Out on Bail

C. E. Ruthenberg, national executive secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party, was back at this desk in the national office of the party yesterday after serving three weeks of a three to twelve year sentence in Jackson, Michigan penitentiary.

Ruthenberg was released from Jackson prison at twelve o'clock, Monday, after the writ of supersedeas issued by Justice Louis Brandeis of the United States supreme court had gone thru the hands of the supreme court of Michigan.

George Maurer, secretary of the Labor Defense Council brot the order to release Comrade Ruthenberg signed by the clerk of the Michigan supreme court at Lansing, to Jackson. Comrade Ruthenberg was then released on $7,500 bail pending an appeal to the United States supreme court.

Ruthenberg worked for nine days as a clerk in the aluminum shop. For his nine days work Comrade Ruthenberg was given $3.40 as pay, which he has donated to the Labor Defense Council for the defense of the other Communists arrested in the raid on the Bridgman convention in August 1922.

Donates "Wages" to Defense.

"As clerk in the aluminum shop I earned the sum of $3.40 for my nine days work," Comrade Ruthenberg told the DAILY WORKER. "Since the state of Michigan has caused the Communists considerable expense it is but proper that it donate something for the defense of the Communists. Therefore I am turning this sum over to the Labor Defense Council to go toward the expenses of defending the other Communists arrested under the Michigan criminal syndicalism law."

All Day in Cell.

During the first week of imprisonment Comrade Ruthenberg was locked in his cell for 24 hours a day undergoing what is known as "quarantine," Comrade Ruthenberg told the DAILY WORKER. "During this period I was registered, given a number, finger-printed, photographed, and inoculated for typhus," Comrade Ruthenberg said.

The convicts working under the Michigan state prison industrial make sometimes as low as fifteen cents per day, Comrade Ruthenberg declared. The piece workers, by working at breakneck speed, sometimes make as high as two dollars per day.

THE CLASS IN ECONOMICS TO BEGIN TONIGHT

The class in elementary economics, which has been one of the most successful classes started in Chicago, was temporarily postponed several weeks ago until such time as the work could be started again in full force. The resumption of the work of the class will take place this Wednesday evening, at the Hirsch Leckert branch, 2613 Hirsch Blvd.

Due to the pressure of work, Comrade Browder, who conducted the class very successfully thus far will be unable to continue it, but Comrade Lerner, who has had many years experience in this work in various cities will take his place until the course is completed. Nothing will be allowed to interrupt the class from now on.

The class, under the new direction, will be conducted in the spirit in which Comrade Browder has conducted it. All the comrades who have attended the course are asked to be prepared with the work given them by Comrade Browder and ready to answer all questions in connection with the work taken up thus far.

Questions and answers in connection with future sessions of the class will be published as in the past, there being a great demand for this being done, not only on the part of those in the class, but also on the part of many who have been reading the DAILY WORKER and have become interested in the nature and progress of the course.

CHILD LABOR TO CRUSH UNIONS SAY BOSSES

Illinois Plutocrats Also Control Schools

The Illinois manufacturers, who are now engaged in bitterly fighting the proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States, which would permit congress to regulate child labor, are the very ones who own or control the Illinois colleges and universities, it was admitted by John M. Glenn, secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Glenn's speech before the Illinois League of Women Voters showed that the manufacturers are fighting desparately to keep thousands of children of school age in Chicago and Illinois in the factories. At the same time the manufacturers control the schools and colleges.

"We Own The Schools"

"Who are the manufacturers of the United States?" asked Glenn with amazing frankness. "Are they not the men who build and support the colleges and schools, who support the churches, who are back of almost every philanthropic movement that is inaugurated?

"Where would the University of Chicago or the University of Illinois or Northwestern University, or Harvard, Yale and Princeton or hundreds of others be without the help of the manufacturers?"

Child Labor in Schools

Glenn and the Illinois manufacturers association have been actively spreading propaganda for the industrializing of the schools, attempting to bring child labor into the grammar schools thru the so called platoon system. They have constantly advanced the propaganda that only the "intellectual superior" should go to high school and college.

The grip of the Illinois manufacturers association is upon toiling thousands of Illinois youth. A persistent effort is made by the manufacturers to force the young boys and girls of Illinois into the factories, where because of their extreme youth they must work at lower wages than are paid men for the same work.

The Illinois manufacturers association keeps in close touch with Superintendent of Schools McAndrew, as does the Illinois chamber of commerce. McAndrew often speaks at banquets tendered him by these associations, and has more than once promised that the youth of Chicago will be brought up to serve inerests of the exploiters and factory owners.

Fight Union Labor.

Glenn admitted that one of the principal reasons the Illinois maufacturers' association is fighting child labor is because it is "In the interests of union labor." The manufacturers of the state are banded together in a powerful organization of Illinois employers, and they have sworn to do all in their power to keep the workers from organising. By trying to block the ratification of the amendment in Illinois, the manufacturers hope to keep down the standard of living of the workers.

Ten Children Killed.

Meanwhile a report has been given out by the U. S. department of labor of ten children being killed and mutilated while illegally employed in factories, grain elevators, and stores. Two of the ten children were killed, and eight were severely injured.

The Workers (Communist) Party, local Chicago, is running candidates for alderman in the coming elections. These candidates demand that the workers have control of the industries to take care of the children of the workers. They demand that the domination of the schools by the Illinois chamber of commerce and the manufacturers' association be stopped, and that the workers be given control of the education of their children. They declare that the schools must be thrown open to all the children of the workingclass of the state, and that the children of school age must be maintained by the government while securing an education.

Many Fights in Legislature.

The battle between those who are trying to abolish child labor, and the manufacturers and their bought and paid for solons, is now raging over the entire country. The lower house of Oklahoma has defeated ratification of the child labor amendment by a vote of 81 to 24. The senate postponed consideration of the amendment.

Ratification by the Arizona legislature was practically assured when the senate, sitting as a committee of the whole, unanimously recommended that the ratification resolution be passed. The house has passed the resolution ratifying the amendment by a vote of 41 to 3.

The constitutional amendment committee of the Texas senate, by a vote of five to one, voted to refuse to ratify the child labor amendment.

The resolution ratifying the amendment has been introduced in the Iowa legislature, and a hard fight is expected there.

In New York state Governor Al Smith is aiding the manufacturers who oppose the amendment, by trying to put the amendment to a referendum, which would mean a delay of many months.

Would Not Abolish Child Labor.

The Workers (Communist) Party, points out that the child labor amendment does not mean that child labor would be abolished, but would only empower congress to regulate labor of children under 18 years of age. They declare that only the establishment of the control of industry and government by the working class will abolish child labor for all time. As long as the profit system exists, child labor will continue.

Wants Indian Childhood for Whites.

NEW YORK.—"Our present system which the (child labor) amendment is aimed to remedy, permits a more brutal treatment of children than can be found anywhere in so-called savagery," declares Wilson D. Wallis, University of Minnesota, in a communication to the National Child Labor Committee, New York. "There is no oppressive child labor among American Indians, none among African Negro tribes, none in the islands of the Pacific. I would welcome a return to conditions in this country which would give to every American child as happy a life as the American Indian child could claim."

SAILORS SUE BRITISH RUM SHIP FOR $20,000 AFTER BEING SHANGHAIED IN N. Y.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 27.— Two seamen have filed suit in Newark against a vessel captured as a rum runner, asking $10,000 damages each on the ground that they were shanghaied. They want the government to sell the ship, the Dorothy M. Smart, of British registry, in order to compensate them.

The sailors allege that they were held aboard against their will outside of the 15-mile limit, treated cruelly and kept on short rations of bread and water. Their names are Albert Burgomaster and Louis Coccini.

From Church to Rum Fleet.

They allege that they were shanghaied on Oct. 8, after they had signed to ship on the American ship Enterprize, thru the Labor Bureau of the Seamen's Church Institute at 25 South Street.

With other seamen, they say, they were taken aboard a motor boat out somewhere beyond the Ambrose Lightship and did not know the name of the vessel to which they were transferred until several days afterward.

Held Nearly a Month.

When they found they were on a rum runner, they charge, they demanded that they be set ashore immediately. Then, so their complaint goes, they were threatened with death and put on bread and water. For twenty-four days they were compelled to work long hours and were roughly handled, they charge, while they were forced to shift cases of liquor from one boat to another.

The Dorothy M. Smart was seized by the coast patrol and is now at Port Newark.

Dinner Pail Epics
by Bill Lloyd

Federated Press Jingles.

BY telegraphic news I seed how Daniel Gray Gogetter Reid has left the pirate ship's wet deck and handed in his tinplate check. He's left behind the light of day, not going the Rock Island way, and gone where there's eternal ban on manna served from trust-made cans.

A lotta ailments too he took—most all that's in the doctor book. Diseases come quite thick and fast to rich old guys who have a past. A string of wives had shared his bed, but very quickly they wus dead. As soon as one wuz in the grave his safe deposit boxes gave an opportunity to sate his passions with a brand new mate.

Now Reid wuz just the kind you seen played up in pop'lar magazine. A young bank clerk he wuz at start, but being willing, bright and smart, he put his pennies under lock, and never, never, watched the clock. By this romantic tale you see how wealth doth come from industry.

Now that would be the wild perversion of some sob-sister's written version. But I am not upon the staff of those who forge an epitaph. So here the true account is told of how this old rake got his gold. He firs' got in the upper crust by organizing tinplate trust, which under Bill McKinley's bill just poured the money in his till. The steel trust took his outfit in and he took steel trust bonds for tin. Pursuing now our faithful text, he grabbed Rock Island railroad next. Under the handling of this gink its balance soon wuz in red ink. For years he milked the road bone dry. Receiver took it with a sigh. Stockholders went into their pocket to save the darned thing from the docket.

While holy angels hover near, thus ends a great success-career. But if the angels don't like shocks they better oil and fix their locks and give the big vault door a jerk—we're sending them a rising clerk.

NEW YORK Y. W. L. TRAINING SCHOOL GREAT SUCCESS

Grounds the Youth in Marxism-Leninism

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The New York District of the Young Workers League is the first unit of either the Workers Party or the Young Workers League to establish a training course, to train leaders, and functionaries in the Communist and labor movement.

The students chosen are those who show fitness for such a course of training, given below. They must also retain and must attend all of the courses their activity in the Communist and labor movement as only thru active participation in the class struggle, supplemented by training in the school, can they acquire the Leninist spirit, and the Leninist method. Students chosen from the branches are selected with a view to their taking the course without hampering the work of any of the units of the league.

The training course includes the following subjects.

JAPAN WORKERS STRUGGLE WITH THEIR MASTERS

Agitation Grows For Labor Government

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKYO, Japan, Jan. 27—Following the recognition of Soviet Russia by the imperialist government of Japan, the workers of Japan have inaugurated a mass movement for a labor government and for a workingclass party.

The government, in a attempt to beat down the growing demand for working class participation in politics and industry, is sending military officers thruout the country, and thru fascisti societies, is trying to break up the move of the workers against their exploiters.

The Japanese workers, realizing that they are likely to receive the ballot in the near future, are attempting to form a workers party. The Japanese Sailors' union, with 50,000 members, and the government employes are taking the lead in the move to form this party.

The members of the political study association, a group of intellectual, petty bourgeois socialists, has also made a move for the formation of a labor party, under the leadership of Professor Ikuwo Oyama of Waseda university, Tokyo.

Militarising Schools

The Japanese imperialist government is taking strenuous measures to stave og the growing class consciousness of the Japanese workers. The government is now placing a military officer in sympathy with the imperialist government in every public school in Japan.

Eleven educational organizations have passed resolutions condemning the military training in the public schools. They have asked the minister of education to resign. Yukio Ozaki, former minister of education, professors of universities, and other leading public intellectuals are protesting against the proposal to militarize the school children. Most of the magazines and newspapers are also condemning it.

Fascisti Fight Workers

The fascisti organizations, including the national pillar society, the society for the prevention of radicalism, the patriotic students league, and veterans associations are spreading propaganda for the measure. They held a two day demonstration in favor of militarizing the schools, and prayed to their national god to protect the emperor and his country. They held meetings in 15 different Japanese cities.

Yukio Ozaki was attacked by the fascisti and barely escaped assassination.

THE N. Y. TIMES WARNS THE COAL MINERS IN AN EDITORIAL TO HEED THE "LAW" AND A MINER REPLIES

The following letter was sent by a miner to the New York Times, in reply to an editorial carried in the Jan. 20 issue. The Times did not print the letter. We do. Read it. Did they show it to your fellow workers?

To The New York Times:

An answer to the editorial of Jan. 20, on the "Threatened Coal Strike," in which Cappellini is praised for his threat to revoke the charters of all those locals that "refuse to respect the laws and contracts" that have been foisted on the miners by the likes of traitors such as himself and John L. Lewis.

You speak of justice and warn the miners that they must "do justice if they expect justice." Will you please tell me of a single instance where a working man in America ever got the semblance of justice, without fighting like hell for it.

You warn them to observe the law, and to settle their disputes in a legal way. I fail to see the bosses breaking their necks to observe the law by putting up the safety devices in the mines that the law calls for. And I don't see the department of justice making any attempt, not even a bluff at it, to enforce that law.

You also "consider problematical" the outcome of "any strike that has not the backing of public opinion." A lot of sympathy any striker would ever get that depended on the kind of "public opinion" created by the offal that you fling out thru your columns.

Then there's your smug hypocrisy about "starving women and children" as a result of the strike. A hell of a lot you care about those same women and children. They'd be working 10 and 12 hours a day if the likes of you had your way.

O, you liars—you hypocrites—you parasites—who live off the flesh of the workers—its in the same way you deplore the "demoralizing of the young" —who will be forced to spend their leisure time on "street corners planning crimes and evil deeds" whenever an attempt is made to curb the exploitation of child labor.

There is one good thing to be extracted from your garbage, however, that is this: whenever a capitalist newspaper writes well of a union leader it is time for that union to look for another leader. And when you give your praise to Cappellini and Lewis, that means only one thing: Lewis and Capellini are traitors to the miners' cause, they have been bought out by the bosses, and the sooner the miners get rid of such rats as these, the better it will be for the United Mine Workers of America.

Your writer made a dangerous break when he penned the following: "The American people are easy going to a fault, but they will not, forever, tolerate misgovernment."

This was intended as a parting shot at the unruly miners. Evidently a threat to the miners that they must be docile, willing animals, and permit themselves to be bled to death in a quiet, unprotesting way, otherwise the "American people" will chastise them.

However, this same thing about "not forever tolerating misgovernment" lends itself to a variety of interpretations. For some day the "American people"—I mean the American workers —they comprise the bulk of the "American people"—will wake up and refuse any longer to "tolerate the misgovernment" of capitalist rule. When they do, it will be a sad day for the likes of you and the fat bourgeoisie whom you represent.

For you can rest assured that the American workers will not be "easy going to a fault" when they place the word "Soviet" before the U. S. and make it the Soviet United States of America.

This does not come from any "foreign-born Red," of whom you're so fond of prating, but a native son, who went to France and fought in "Morgan's war," and came back with a body half-crippled—and a belly full of American democracy.

A Mite for Veteran Kin as Bonus

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The bill in the New York legislature providing for a bonus for next of kin of war veterans has been reported out of committee by the senate finance committee and leaders say it will be passed. It provides for a bonus of $10 a month to be paid to veterans' kins but no one will receive more than $150.25, expressly stated in the bill.

The money will come from the original $45,000,000 bond issue for bonuses, of which there may be about $3,000,000 left, but it is said another bond issue will be made if necessary.

ONLY ONE PARTY UNITES WORKERS AND FARMERS

How Capitalists Try to Divide Them

By ALFRED KNUTSON

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 27.—Whatever misunderstanding there now is between poor working farmers and industrial workers is due to propaganda by the capitalist press, the aim of which is to keep them divided, in order that the capitalists can the more readily exploit both.

The capitalists know very well that if the two groups of workers unite against them, their rule will not last long, and their strategy, therefore, is to keep them apart by causing dissension among them.

They Never Mention Profit.

They are telling the farmers, for example, that he pays high prices for industrial products because wages are high, and the worker in the industries that farm products are dear because the farmer is trying to "hog it all." Never a word about what the capitalist himself is getting away with.

This scheme of dividing the land and the city workers is becoming less effective as the class consciousness of the workers in both groups grows. Many workers in the United States are now beginning to understand that they must get together on a revolutionary basis, in order to make any headway against the capitalists and their government.

The Only Party That Fights

The only party and organization in the United States that can unite the farmers and the workers and lead them in a successful struggle against their capitalist exploiters, is the revolutionary Workers (Communist) Party. This party is the only party in the country today that is fearlessly and uncompromisingly fighting on the side of the poor tenant, the bankrupt and mortgaged farmer.

This is the party every struggling farmer is invited to join because it alone has a real solution for this problems. It is a new party and is only beginning to have influence among the farmers of America, but the fact that it is the one political party in the country that is making a real effort to solve the agricultural problems, in a fundamental sense, is bound to make it grow swiftly and give it prestige and power.

To Castrate Trade Commission.

WASHINGTON.—Sen. Wadsworth of New York and Rep. A. B. Williams of Michigan have a bill, "prepared by attorneys who represent important business enterprises," to cut the powers of the federal trade commission. It proposes to repeal most of the authority of the board in investigating unfair trade practices, in holding public hearings, and in enforcing its decisions.

BRITISH GOV'T. TO CONSCRIPT RAIL WORKERS

Starts Official Scab Army R. R. Service

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Jan. 27.— British railworkers are up in arms against the attempt of the government to enroll railworkers in a new branch of the army known as the army supplementary reserve, transportation branch, intended as an armed strike breaking agency, subject to military discipline.

The four great railroad companies of Great Britain are collaborating with the war office in raising units for this service. Though inclined to be evasive regarding the use of these railwaymen's units, the war office admits that they would be used in "the gravest emergency" defining "emergency" thus:

A "Grave Emergency" Defined

"If we had anything like civil war or something that would hold up the essential services of the state, the reserve might be called up and these railwaymen might be called up."

Remembering how the government turned London into an armed camp in 1921, in expectation of a Triple Alliance strike (incidently luring starving unemployed workers into the army with recruiting posters on which "Plenty to Eat!" was displayed in large type), is is evident that railroad men who join these units will be used both as strikebreakers and as murderers of their fellow-workers.

The railworkers realize the sinister motive back of this move of the bosses and the war office, for they know that the bosses know that the National Union of Railwaymen is about to put forward a national demand for a wage increase, in an effort to win back something of what they have lost in the past years.

Feeling is running high among the men, and when army officers accompanied by a company representative tried to hold a recruiting meeting recently at the freight station of the London and North-Eastern Railway, the men jeered them angrily, and rushed them out to the street.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER WINS IN SOVIET GEORGIA

Lenin's Program Being Gradually Worked Out

By GERTRUDE HAESSLER.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

TIFLIS, Georgia (By Mail.)—In less than a year the city of Tiflis, the capital of Georgia, which one always remembers in connection with lazy eastern bazaars and slow-plodding donkeys and camels, will have an up-to-date government power station.

Not only will Tiflis as well as the villages for miles around be lighted by this plant, but its industries will be completely electrified.

The conditions under which the men are working on the plant 12 miles from the city are as near model as temporary construction camps can be. The men work 8 hours a day in three shifts, about 1,000 men per shift. A hospital gives free medical and surgical aid, arranged on approved sanitary lines. Daily baths are provided for all. The general laundry arrangements are adequate and convenient. In fact, bathing and general cleanlines are a striking feature of the camp.

Wages compare favorably with any part of Russia. Co-operatives run by the union furnish food cheaply. At their union clubs the men organize entertainments or read in the libraries, attend classes and have opportunities for lectures on economic and political conditions.

The new machinery for the power house is set up and everything is awaiting completion of the huge dam which will convert 36,000 horsepower from the river.

The possibilities for technical progress in modernisation which will be opened by the completion of this power plant are almost inconceiveable. Where narrow wagon ruts serve as the only roads, there will be cement highways for automobiles and truck transport. The conservation of timber alone, which is being used exclusively now for fuel for factories, lighting and tramway power, and hauled to the city from the mountains on oxcarts, will be enormous. The industries will expand, transformation facilities perfected, the railway electrified, and the rich supplies of raw materials made more accessible.

The wealthy Caucasus districts are easily accessible only around their fringes from the Black Sea on the west and the railway on the south and north. The actual riches must be carried down to the civilised centers by water, buffalo and oxen. One reaches the larger and richer mines only on horseback.

But all these riches will be easily accesible thru the power plant. Lenin's general program for the electrification of the whole Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is being gradually realised.

BALTIMORE NOTES

BALTIMORE, Jan. 27.—The Liebknecht meeting arranged by the Young Workers' League as a part of a nation-wide campaign to commemorate the deaths of Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht was a great success.

Comrade R. Baker, city secretary of Local Philadelphia, was the main speaker for the evening. Several comrades of the Young Workers' League recited and spoke. Collections were made for the Ruthenberg Defense and the DAILY WORKER. A resolution supporting the Ruthenberg Defense was carried. This resolution is a symbol of the solidarity of the workers of Baltimore. It is evidence that the workers of Baltimore are awakening to the fact that the well known leaders of the labor movement must be defended from capitalist "justice." It is evidence that the workers of Baltimore are aware of the importance of the Labor Defense Council. It is also evidence that the local comrades are on the job in attempting to organize the Labor Defense Council.

Karl Liebknecht said that he who has the youth has the army. This is very true. The Young Workers' League of Baltimore, realizing this fact, has started the organization of the Junior Young Workers' League. The prospects of having a branch in the near future are very good. We want these young comrades to become our active "army."

The English branch of the Workers' Party has been reorganized on a good working basis. A new secretary has been elected and the branch has started to function. The meetings of the English branch are to take place every Saturday, at 7:30 p. m. at the Progressive Labor Lyceum, Asquith and Lexington streets.

NEW YORK WORKERS MUST RALLY TO LABOR DEFENSE BAZAAR TO MAKE IT A ROUSING FINANCIAL SUCCESS

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—In spite of all endeavors of the Labor Defense Council to procure the release of Emanuel Vijtauer, editor of the Obrana, the Czecho-Slovakian radical labor paper, he is still detained on Ellis Island.

Well-Known Revolutionist.

Emanuel Vijtauer is a well-known revolutionist. He was very active in the revolutionary movement of Czecho-Slovakia and came to this country in December, 1923. As a matter of course he immediately joined the revolutionary movement in this country, soon becoming the editor of the Obrana. Vijtauer is an excellent speaker, and spoke at many meetings before workers of Czecho-Slovakian origin. At a meeting in Chicago, he defended the Soviet regime, and explained to the workers present the nature of the struggle that led to the overthrow of the czaristic regime and the Kerensky government. He showed the analogy between the struggle in Russia and that in other countries.

That was his "crime." On the basis of the evidence given by a spy, he was arrested and is held in Ellis Island for deportation.

The Labor Defense Council is conducting his case and also has in charge the case of John Lassen, editor of the Elore, the Hungarian labor paper. Lassen was arrested in November, 1924, for publishing a poem which he wrote. Lassen, too, is a well-known revolutionist, having been forced to flee from Hungary because of his activity. The Horthy government, which is a vassal of the French —and the American — government would like to lay hands on Lassen. The American government, it would appear, intends to do the Horthy fascist government that favor.

Horthy Hits At Workers.

Horthy's government is one of the vilest governments in existence. During his regime, Horthy has broken up all the labor organizations in the country. Workers' clubs, newspapers and trade unions have been suppressed. A campaign of terror was carried on against the labor movement, for Horthy can rule only if the workers are denied every right that even the "constitution" of Hungary "guarantees." These guarantees are the same as in Italy, Roumania and Jugoslavia. They are on paper, but the capitalist governments "interpret" them as they please.

This is similar to the "guarantees" of free speech, free assemblage and free press in the United States. One need only look at the coal fields of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, where miners' meetings are disrupted by the police, where the press is suppressed. The Lassen and Vijtauer cases are the best evidence of "free speech and free press" in the United States.

U. S. Falls in Line.

One of the glowing examples of "free assemblage" in the United States is embodied in the case of Charles E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers Party, who has been sentenced to three to 10 years in the Michigan penitentiary, for attending a convention of the now dissolved Communist Party, which was held in Bridgeman, Michigan, in August, 1922. There was no evidence produced that any "crime" was perpetrated at the convention. Ruthenberg's conviction and the intended trial of the other 32 indicted for the same "crime" will require a big fund to conduct these cases and save these revolutionary workers for the labor movemeint. The Labor Defense Council together with the International Workers' Aid, has arranged a four days' joint bazaar, which will take place at the Lyceum, 86th St. and 3rd Ave., New York City, from Feb. 11 to 14. If all prognostications prove true, a large sum of money will be raised, thus ensuring proper defense of the accused.

Open Shop is the Goal.

If these workers are sent to prison, the capitalists of this country will be encouraged to carry on their open shop campaign against the whole organized labor movement. Hence it becomes the duty of the trade unions to support the defense of these victimized workers will all energy. If there is not complete solidarity of all workers today, the entire labor movement of this country will be demoralized and crushed. The wage cuts that are being imposed on the textile workers and miners are indications of what faces the labor movement. There must be an "all-together" in defense of working class interests.

Joint Discussion on Last Elections by S. P. And W. P. in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Wisc., Jan. 27—The workers of Milwaukee will have an exceptional opportunity to attend an interesting discussion between the socialist party and Workers Party on the subject of "The Results of Last Presidential Elections."

The Workers Party will be represented by G. S. Shklar, Local Milwaukee organizer and the socialist party by L. Wolfson, associated with the Milwaukee Leader.

The discussion will take place on Friday, Feb. 5 at Labor Lyceum, corner 8th and Garfield, and will start at 8 o'clock sharp. Admission free. Everybody welcome.

Trying to Fight Dope.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A new extradition treaty with Canada, tightening the government's barriers against the illegal narcotic trade, was favorably reported today by the senate foreign relations committee.

SENATE THROWS STONE BACK AT ITS COMMITTEE

Secret Session Acts to Stop Scandal

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—In an effort to avert a public scandal over presidential appointments the senate this afternoon returned the nomination of Harlan F. Stone, as an associate justice of the supreme court, to the judiciary committee for further investigation.

Puts Over Motion in Secrecy.

This action was taken in secret session to avoid a fight on the floor of the senate over charges that Stone is persecuting Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, of Montana, by attempting to indict him in the District of Columbia while another indictment awaits trial in the Montana federal court.

Warren Waits on Stone Promotion.

The nomination of Charles B. Warren, of Detroit, as attorney general was "shelved" today by the senate judiciary committee to await the outcome of a fight against confirmation of the promotion of Attorney General Harlan F. Stone to the supreme court of the United States.

The committee "indefinitely postponed" consideration of Warren's nomination after a sub-committee headed by Senator Borah, republican of Idaho, reported it could not approve the appointment.

The Borah committee investigated Warren's record for a week and its report was filed "without recommendation."

Four Workers Die on Foundation Job for 32-Story Skyscraper

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 27—Four men were killed here today while working on the foundation of the proposed 32-story American Insurance Union skyscraper, West Broad street. They were asphyxiated. The dead include:

John Smith, home believed to be in New York.

A. Boen, address unknown.

John McCarthy, Columbus, foreman.

Unidentified man.

The tragedy occurred when two of the men fell off a ladder into a 120-foot foundation shaft. The third worker sought to rescue his companions, but died in the attempt. The fourth man then went down into the shaft, and he, too, was overcome by the deadly gas, and died.

Chicago Painters Back Labor Defense

Painters' Local Union No. 637 at its regular meeting held Jan. 23rd, 1925 discussed the "criminal syndicalism" laws in the various states of this country, and the sentence of C. E. Ruthenberg by the Michigan state supreme court. After the discussion a resolution for adoption was introduced by the following members of the local, Hans Johnson, O. A. Sandine and Harry Granat. The resolution was adopted with only one vote registered against.

DELEGATION OF SOVIET RUSSIA ENGINEERS HERE

To Study Metal Industry and Buy Machinery

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 27.—Representatives of the Soviet Union ore-mining and metal industries recently arrived in this country will spend here about three months studying methods of production with a view toward placing orders for equipment. They have established their headquarters in the offices of the Amtorg Trading Corporation at 136 Liberty street, thru which all their orders will be placed. Among the arrivals are Messrs. Alexis Smolnikoff, president and Peter Droshiloff, member of the board of directors of the Consolidated Platinum Industry known as the Uralplatina, Messers Nikolai Kuzmin and Alexander Strkhnin representing the Machinery Construction Trust of Leningrad, and Mr. Serge Podiakonoff, representative of Supreme Council of Public Economy, director of the state ore industry, and collaboration of the State Planning Commission.

Will Inspect Works Here.

The primary purpose of the arrived representatives all of whom are engineers specialized in the respective industries is to inspect some of the larger works in this country where dredges and other mining equipment are constructed which might be introduced in the platinum fields in the Urals. In addition considerable orders are contemplated for the needs of the rehabilitated heavy industries and for re-equipment of the factories. In this connection it was pointed out by the members of the delegation that during the past year the Soviet industrier have shown a gain in production of over 50 per cent above the production of the preceding year. The industries have been working at 40 per cent of the normal pre-war level. Particular gains have been made in the production of pig iron, the output in the fiscal year 1923-1924 by 110 per cent. The output of steel increased by 60 per cent over the preceding year. The industries are advancing with rapid strides toward attaining the pre-war level. The average productivity of individual factories and works has already been brought up to 90 per cent of the per-war normal. In the Ural industries the process of consolidating the works in fewer plants so as to eliminate economic waste has been practically completed and the plants working at present are constantly increasing their output. At the same time work on a large scale has begun to re-equip the existing plants along the most modern and efficient lines.

Progress in Metal Industry.

An important factor in the reconstruction of the metal industries is the increased consumption on the internal markets. Thanks to the economic measures adopted during the past year it became possible to lower considerably the prices for the finished products. On the other hand the increased prosperity of the population created a larger demand for industrial products. Large orders have been coming in from the co-operatives and individual communities. The Ural industries are now provided with orders for all their ready supplies as well as for their total output during the year 1925 which is to be increased by 50 per cent against the output of the past year.

During the three-months' stay in this country, the delegation will visit the largest centers of the metal industries and the most important ore mining centers and gold and platinum fields.

Correction to the Correction.

In the January 23 issue there appeared the following under the caption of Correction: "The vote of the New York membership meeting of the Y. W. L. was as follows: N. E. C. majority 74, statement of the district executive committee 83 (the statement of Comrade Kaplan was not presented and the vote of 83 was in support of statement drawn up by a group of the New York district executive committee.) Third position under the leadership of Comrade Glass 11. The latter votes were in favor of the N. E. C. statement dealing with organization."

I want to make the following corrections to the correction. 1. The vote was N. E. C. majority 73, and the statement of the D. E. C. 84.

2. The statement of the D. E. C. was an indorsement of the theses submitted by Comrades Ruthenberg, Bedacht and Lovestone for the minority of the C. . C. and by Comrade Kaplan for the minority of the N. E. C.

3. The statement of the New York district executive was not drawn up by a group of the D. E. C. but was accepted by all but two votes of the D. E. C. at one of its regular meetings.—Herbert Zam, secretary at the membership meeting.

Results of General Membership Meetings

KANSAS CITY.—The general membership meetings of Kansas City, Kansas, and Kansas City, Mo., voted for the majority 9 and for the minority 33. William Browder spoke for the majority and Comrade Osachets for the minority.

COMMUNIST·CHILDREN'S·COLUMN

THE JUNIOR "RED" STARS OUTSHINE ALL VOLUNTEERS

Stick on the Job Four Days at Bazaar

The first activity of the new working unit of our Labor Defence forces, "The Red Star Volunteers," proved that these active spirits are an inspiring and essential help to our cause. Recruited largely at the Lenin memorial meeting, they got on the job the very next day at the Bazaar of the Jewish Workers Relief Committee, and for four days kept the Ruthenberg appeal before the thousands of workers who attended, as well as collected substantial sums to help finance the Michigan cases.

Juniors Most Active.

Most active were the youngest "volunteers," members of the Junior Young Workers League. These boys and girls waited their turn to don the striped prisoners jackets with which our collectors were furnished, and there were few present who were overlooked in these youngsters' tireless activity. When they came to some loyal comrade who had already given and bought beyond his powers they invited participation "in spirit anyway" by suggesting that all pennies in their "customer's" pockets to put into the collection box. Party and Y. W. L. members, young and old, also took their turns at this work.

Volunteers Wear Prison Suits.

At the Bazaar run by the Lettish branch for the benefit of the DAILY WORKER, a special defense collection was taken up, amounting to $21.00. The striped suits of the "Volunteers" centered attention on the new raids made by our capitalist enemies on the Communists, as the vanguard of the militant workers. Some old-timers told stories, later, of the "red volunteers" in Latvia and Russia, who volunteered even to take the place of active revolutionary leaders who were sent to prison.

Work is Lots of Fun.

Our "Red Star Volunteers" are not called upon for such heroic service—yet. Their work is easy, and enjoyable. It consists of attending social and other affairs arranged by working class organizations, and there collecting funds and arousing sentiment on behalf of our party's and other class war prisoners. Anyone, young or old, party member or sympathiser, who offer even one night a week, or even a few hours during the day, for service in this fight to beat back the capitalist jailers, should communicate with the local Labor Defense, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago. Many more volunteers are needed, literally hundreds of them. Last Saturday at least a fifty dollar collection was lost by lack of sufficient forces to cover, simultaneously, all running affairs. The army behind the Labor Defence—the Red Star Volunteers—needs YOUR help.

Sun Yat Sen Seriously Ill.

PEKING, China, Jan. 27.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, head of the South China Republic, was taken to the hospital to be operated on for an abcess on the liver, a dispatch states. His condition is said to be serious. Dr. Sun Yat Sen was one of the leaders in the formation of the Chinese republic.

West Allis Juniors Hold Lenin Memorial

MILWAUKEE, Wisc., Jan. 27—The West Allis Junior groups held a Lenin memorial meeting, Sunday morning at their headquarters, 55th and National Aves.

Among other numbers on the program, Comrade Shklar, district organizer for the party here, spoke on Lenins' life. He pointed out to the Juniors that among the great lessons that Lenin's life taught us, the following were what the Juniors should take special care to learn:

First: To study the class struggle well.

Second: To learn to understand the people and know what the workers want.

Third: To learn to speak so that we can tell the workers the things that we have learned, in a way that they will understand.

And last but not least, devotion and love for the workers and hate for the capitalists or oppressors of the workers.

In commemoration of our great leader, the West Allis Juniors changed their name and will be known after this as "Comrade Lenin's Students."

This group has now over seventy members and each meeting sees them growing in numbers and spirit. And their slogan is "Always Ready!"

AN APPEAL.

Can anyone help the Marshfield Junior group out of their difficulty? The Marshfield Junior group is one of the most active groups in the city, tho composed mainly of children whose parents are not Communists. Only one member of this group comes from a Communist home and that home is too small and crowded to hold 15 children.

These fifteen children have been denied admission to any hall in their territory which is Paulina to Robey east-west; Roosevelt to Polk, north-south.

Does anyone know of a meeting hall or home within the above territory where this group can meet one night each week. (If meeting hall it must be rent free.)

GARY WORKERS HOLD MEMORIAL LENIN MEETING

Interesting Speaker Gets Two Encores

GARY, Ind., Jan. 27.—The Lenin memorial meeting in Gary, Indiana, didn't have many people in attendance, a half hundred or so, but it was a real meeting. Comrade Thurber Lewis, of Chicago, was the speaker. He gave a short biographical sketch of Lenin, a review of Lenin's pre-revolutionary activities, an account of Lenin's role in the revolution and a resume of the great leader's contributions to working-class thought. When he finished, the crowd didn't show any inclination to go away.

Liked His Stuff.

The embarrassing condition of indecision that pervaded the hall while the crowd sat there and the meeting was presumably over was broken by a comrade who arose and suggested that Lewis make another speech dwelling more at length with the movement in this country.

Comrade Lewis rose and made speech number two. At the conclusion of the second speech much the same disinclination to leave gripped the audience.

Third and Last.

Another comrade arose and asked that the Trotsky controversy in Russia be given a few moments of explanation by the speaker. Comrade Lewis began speech number three about the movement for a re-orientation of the policies of the Russian Communist Party of which Trotsky is the spokesman. At the conclusion of the third address the crowd finally consented to leave.

"The Beauty and the Bolshevik" is coming to Ashland Auditorium Feb. 8.

FAKERS GET AN INJUNCTION TO STOP REYNOLDS

Forbid Union Member Attending Meetings

(Special to the Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 27.—Local Union 2140 gave a ringing answer to Hutcheson and his payroll gang as to their attitude toward the expulsion of William Reynolds, president of their local. After General Organizer Botterill had spent over a half hour trying to alibi the action, the local voted that he keep his seat for the rest of the evening.

After an hour's discussion including a statement from a member in Los Angeles regarding the railroading there and a re-capitulation of the expulsion proceedings by Reynolds, the local voted unanimously to sustain Reynolds in his membership and all rights and privileges until such time as he stood convicted by his local.

Union Officials Get Injunction

At 3 o'clock next afternoon, Sharrock, renegade head of the District Council located Reynolds on the phone at the House of the Masses and 30 minutes later "Jelly" Fish, secretary of the District Council, arrived at the House and pointed Reynolds out to a deputy who served an injunction restraining Reynolds from attending any meetings of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners in the Wayne county district.

The injunction was issued by Judge Hunt of the circuit court and made returnable February 20th. After locating Reynolds for the deputy, stool pigeon Fish turned and ran down the stairs, but not before he had been spoken to by two members of Carpenters' Local Union 420.

Bankrupt Autocracy

The resort to injunction proceedings by the agents of the G. E. B. in Detroit is the best evidence of the bankruptcy of Botterill's case against Reynolds. During the past week, the sentiment against the expulsion has crystallized to such an extent that the entire carpenters' movement is seething with revolt.

Last Monday evening, Local 19, the oldest, largest, and most influential local in the district, was bitter in its denunciation of the tyrannical action of Botterill. Only the arbitrary ruling of a reactionary president prevented the local from repudiating the expulsion.

Every Local Opposes Expulsion.

On the same evening, Local 1191 adopted a resolution unanimously repudiating the expulsion. On Tuesday evening, President Sharrock of Local 1985, also president of the District Council, refused to open the meeting while Reynolds was present. The discussion was so prolonged that it occupied the meeting until 10:30.

Wednesday evening, Local 1102 unanimously adopted a motion demanding a fair trial for Reynolds in accordance with the constitution. Thursday evening, the fight at the District Council expressed itself in a fight against Botterill, which culminated in a motion to oust him from the district being adopted by a more than three to one vote.

If Hutcheson needs any further proof that he has rendered a "slightly" unpopular decision, the carpenters in this district are determined to spread the revolt thruout the entire length and breath of the Brotherhood.

TRY TO FORCE TRINITY CHURCH IN N. Y. TO DISGORGE 10 MILLION

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—A suit to force Trinity church to give up the $10,000,000 worth of property it owns and leases in downtown New York, was instituted in federal court today by Wesley J. Edwards, of Los Angeles, and Arthur J. Edwards, of Guilford county, North Carolina.

They are descendants of Robert Edwards, who died in 1667, and claim to be the rightful heirs to his estate. He died without making a will.

The descendants claim the Trinity church acquired the property thru an assignment of an unexpired lease which stopped being binding on the estate of Robert Edwards on May 1, 1866.

CALLES PROVES HIS WORTH TO WALL STREET

Gives Away Railroad and Snubs Britain

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 27.—Plutarco Calles, labor party president of Mexico, besides his suppressive measures against the workers and peasants is showing complete subservience to American capitalist imperialism in foreign affairs. This is evident in his haughty remarks against Great Britain, given in a interview yesterday.

Relations between Mexico and England have been severed since the Obregon-Calles group, acting for and in the interests of Wall Street imperialists, crushed the British oil-backed fascist counter-revolution of De la Huerta. Britain took the chance of using the murder of a British subject, Rosalie Evans, as an excuse to withdraw its consul, A. Cunard Cummins and cease all diplomatic relations.

Britain Must Act First.

"The resumption of relations with Great Britain," said President Calles, "will have to be the product of a spontaneous act on the part of that government. The Mexican government can in no manner accept conditional friendship born of the previous conditions."

To Return Railroads to Capitalists

In still another subject Calles showed his surrender of Mexican resources to the bankers of New York. That is, the handing back, under the excuse that they are not paying, the government owned railroad to private exploitation.

President Calles said that an inventory was being taken of the national railways and mines. The receipts and expenses were being studied and the condition of the railway tracks was being reported upon for comparison with their condition when the government took over the railroads in 1914.

The president did not deny that all this would probably lead to the return of the lines to private management at a not to distant date should that be convenient for the government.

The return of the railways to private management was one of the clauses of the Lamont-De la Huerta agreement.

Forbes Obtained False Bank Notes Is State's Charge

Ralph E. Potter, special assistant attorney general, in his closing spech here in the Forbes-Thompson case in the federal court, attacked exhibits offered by the defense.

Three notes obtained from the Union Trust Co. were shown the jury by Potter, who charged that they were part of the conspiracy to defraud the government on hospital contracts awarded by the veterans' bureau of which Col. Charles R. Forbes formerly was the head.

Only one of them, a note for $1,000, given to Elias H. Mortimer by A. M. McDonald, ship builder, was honest and in pay for services rendered, Potter declared.

After attorneys for the defense speak, John W. H. Crim will close for the government and the case probably will go to the jury Wednesday, after ten weeks' trial.

Wall Street Stays Cautious and Cool On French Loans

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Wall Street is not negotiating just now for loans on French industrial and municipal bonds, because of the recent French attitude towards France's debt to the U. S. The recent statement by deputy Louis Marin in France as to the desire of France to have her sacrifices during the war, considered as well as loans made to her, has caused a new view by American bankers and by the government.

There are reports, too, that the government here has declared for withholding from the market pending French loans. Bankers, who have signed contracts for new issues declared this "good business," and they say the market for French bonds has been injured and French credit impaired by the debt discussion.

They think, however, that the situation is temporary and that the discussion will be freer and lead to other and ameliorating conditions.

Bankers Work Free Propaganda.

NEW YORK.—Bankers not only monopolize credit, boom or strangle industry but they know how to work the newspapers to give free propaganda for their purposes.

The American Press, a journal that circulates among newspapers, brags of the lot of free reading matter the bankers are able to slip into the weeklies of the country.

"The American Bankers' Assn. appears to be highly successful in landing free publicity in the weekly press," the American Press writes. "Releases sent out include propaganda stories opposing government ownership of railroads. Approximately 2,000 weeklies use the publicity and so far as understood in not a single case has it been found necessary to approach the public through advertising."

U. S. SUPREME COURT BACKS RIGHT TO TAKE PROPERTY OF AN ENEMY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — The United States supreme court today sustained the right of belligerents in time of war to capture and dispose of enemy property as evidenced in duly endorsed stock certificates.

English and German authorities and the United States Steel corporation joined in a suit appealed to the United States supreme court for the decision.

More than $100,000,000 in capital stock of the steel corporation and other American industries, seized in England during war time, was said to be involved in the decision.

RUMORS REVEAL TAFT SHIELDED BOOTLEG TRADE

Gaston Means' Trial Springs Some Leaks

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—"Among the bootleg crowd it is rumored that Attorney Wickersham can reach Chief Justice Taft because of connections that he is supposed to have," was something in a letter offered in evidence here in the trial of Gaston B. Means, former government agent, and Col. Thomas B. Felder.

The letter was alleged to have been written by Elmer W. Jarnecke, who was indicted with Means and Felder on a charge of conspiring to obstruct justice. He was on the stand as a witness for the prosecution, when Hiram C. Todd, special government prosecutor, introduced the letter. Jarnecke denied having written it and said it was a fabrication.

The letter was alleged to have been sent to Col. Felder.

The matter came up in the examination of Jarnecke about an alleged arrangement by the defendants to use the mails for selling stock in a glass casket concern. It was alleged that $65,000 had been collected to be used in preventing prosecution.

Jarnecke, with Means was convicted of violation of the liquor law July 1. He was sentenced to two years in prison and to pay a fine of $5,000. He was held on $25,000 bail, pending appeal. He said he has been receiving $11 a day from the government, $7 for services and $4 for expenses.

Brookhart Threatens to Fight.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, the Iowa insurgent republican today declared himself ready for a "finish fight" with the republican state committee of Iowa, which declared his seat vacant last week.

Big Sum for Buildings.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—An omnibus public buildings bill, appropriating $150,000,000 for the construction of federal buildings thruout the country, was reported favorably to the house today by the public buildings and grounds committee.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Every day under this head you will learn not only what BUILDERS thruout the country are doing to build a greater newspaper, but also practical suggestions to accomplish more for OUR paper. Tell us what YOU are doing—and we will "tell the world."

YOUTH MUST HAVE ITS FLING— EVEN IN HARTFORD, CONN.!

To put it in other words: youth will not be denied—at least it won't when it's in the Young Workers' League. A group of these young "Johnny Reds" of Hartford, Conn. got a list of several hundred sympathizers and from then on things began to hum.

The wanted and they got: sample copies of the DAILY WORKER, Workers' Monthly, a load of tool boxes and other supplies for five couples to work with. And the they just began their good work in a house to house canvase they have already sent in about a dozen subs. We look for a substantial increase each day.

Comrade Aaron H. Wolfson, organizer of these little builders writes: "We will do all that we can to build the DAILY WORKER and started by buying a ten dollar policy from the local DAILY WORKER agent."

It's a good beginning with a promise of results for the near future. Just watch youth have its fling—yea, why not—even in Hartford, Conn. It's a pleasure when it's a fling at the bosses!

THEY ALL FOLLOW ONE GIRL IN PHILADELPHIA!

It's not a bit surprising that they do. The one girl comrade is the newly elected DAILY WORKER agent, Lena Rosenberg, and the energetic manner in which she has taken hold of things makes many willing to follow. These comrades have formed part of that following that is making sleepy Philadelphia wake up:

Stemple (Ukrainian branch) turned in 6 subs.

Jas. Shainfein (C. English) turned in 3 subs.

B. Gittleman (Strawberry Mansion Jewish Y. W. L.) turned in 2 subs.

In addition to the support Comrade Rosenberg has already managed to marshall, she begs for supplies and this includes more tool boxes and agents' books to put more workers on the job of building. We are holding our breath in anticipation and we prophecy that you will often see Philadelphia mentioned in this column. It's easy to see why they all follow only one girl in that town!

TO FIGHT BOSSES WEAVERS FIRST FIGHT OFFICIALS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 27.—United States Senator William Morgan Butler has a strike on his hands at the Butler mills where weavers and loomfixers on the night shift walked out against the ten percent wage cut. Weavers' strikes in several New Bedford mills are all supported by the weavers' local union.

The Weavers' Union will ask the textile council to revise the paralyzing two thirds rule that thwarted the wishes of the workers for a general strikes. Tho more than two thirds of all the workers voting called for a strike they were blocked by the textile council's rules requiring a two thirds vote in each local and two thirds of all the locals. The weavers, largest local in town, voted four to one for the general strike.

FALLS RIVER, Mass., Jan. 27—The Fall River textile council has sanctioned strikes in the Barnard Manufacturing company, the Lincoln Manufacturing company and the Davol mills, where 800 workers are out. The council will solict financial aid for the strikers.

Six More Negroes Jailed for Houston Riots Are Released

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK.—Six more Houston martyrs, former members of the 24th infantry, imprisoned for their alleged share in the Houston riot of 1917, are released, announces the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The total number of men still in prison is 29. The association's activities on behalf of these Negro prisoners have been responsible for the release of 26 since its petition of 125,000 names in February 1924.

Of the ten men originally sentenced to death, whose sentences were commuted to life imprisonment, six have been paroled. Warden W. I. Biddle of Leavenworth, in a letter to James Weldon, secretary N. A. A. C. P., commends the conduct of the men. There were 67 Houston martyrs in all.

Memorial Cash Wanted For Sam, Who Kept You From Raising Wages

(By The Federated Press)

MINE STRIKE ZONE IN W. VA. AN ARMED CAMP

The Anna Mine Is Destroyed by Fire

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOWSVILLE, West Va., Jan. 27.—The tipple of the Anna May mine of the Francois Coal company, near Lowsville, in the Monongalia county, was destroyed by fire. The fire had made a considerable headway before it was discovered by the stable boss, M. E. Watkins. There was no chance to check the flames. The tipple had been saturated with oil before it had been fired. It was burned down in one hour. There were 125 men employed at the mine and the production was 600 tons of coal a day.

Call Cossacks

The state police from the Lowsville headquarters are in charge of the investigation. Two men were arrested but there is no way to prove that these had anything to do with this fire. The loss is said to be between $8,000 and $10,000 fully covered by insurance.

Scab Mine

A temporary tipple will be erected and the mine will be working within a few days. It would take a month to replace the tipple that was destroyed.

This mine has been operating on a open shop basis since May 1924.

It is said that besides the mine at Anna May, near Lowsville, that the company has holdings in the Norwood section in Clarksburg.

Company Guards

New England Transportation and Fuel company is operating on open shop basis. The United Mine Workers of America have built shanties to shelter the strikers that have been evicted from the company houses at Everettsville, Lowsville and Brady, West Virginia.

Union men are situated on a hill and on the opposite hills the non-union men live. The union shanties are guarded by the union guards and the non-union shanties are guarded by the company guards.

Daugherty to Take Stand.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—William J. Burns, former chief of the department of justice bureau of investigation, took the stand for the defense today in the trial of Thomas B. Felder, a lawyer, and the latter's client, Gaston B. Means. Means at one time worked in the bureau for Burns.

Gary's Benevolence

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, announced that the employes of the trust would be allowed to subscribe to a specified number of shares of stock in the corporation during the month of February, at the rate of $125.00 per share.

The slaves of the steel trust should remember the old adage about Greeks bearing gifts. Gary's annual exhibition of generosity will be featured by the capitalist press as further evidence of the tendency on the part of American capitalists to share the profits of their businesses with their employes.

The steel trust offers one hundred thousand shares of its stock to its employes with a great flourish of benevolence. Some of the slaves may believe that they are getting something. But let us examine this gift horse in the mouth, and see what we can see.

The stock that Gary offers to his slaves for $125.00 per share could be purchased in the open market last Saturday for $104. When United States Steel was originally placed on the market it could be purchased for less than twenty-five dollars per share. So the generous Mr. Gary is actually swindling his slaves thru a stock transaction, not being satisfied with swindling them at the point of production.

The main object of the trust in selling the stock to its employes is not so much because of the profits made in swindling them thru an inflated price, but in order to give them the feeling that they are shareholders in the corporation. This idea would have a tendency to make them work harder and turn a deaf ear to the trade union organiser. Gary knows what he is about.

The steel workers must not allow themselves to be deceived by this spurious generosity. They have it in their power to force the steel trust to give them more of the product of their toil by proper organisation and ultimately to take over the mighty industrial machine which is the product of the brain and brawn of the workers. No class collaboration! No profit sharing swindles!

Outlawing War

President Coolidge, chairman of the executive committee of American capitalism, known as the United States government, in a speech delivered before a delegation of women attending the conference on the cause and cure of war, urged the women to continue the agitation for "no more" while the wounds of the last great conflict were still fresh in the minds of the people. Not so very long ago, the peace-loving Coolidge signed a bill appropriating $110,000,000 for the building of more warships to "make more war."

It is not impossible to outlaw war. But the only way to do the trick is to outlaw capitalism. War is as inseparable from capitalism as hypocrisy is from a preacher. Wars are not caused by "bad men" and peace is not maintained by "good men." The conflicting interests of capitalist groups bring about wars. All modern wars are gigantic commercial enterprises. The road to peace lies over the dead body of the capitalist system.

The capitalist class of America prefer peace to war. They do not object to punitive expeditions against weak South American republics. Neither do the pacifists, it seems. The latter did not seem to care when their idol, Ramsay MacDonald, dropped bombs on Indian villages and slaughtered the natives of Mesopotamia, all for the profit of the British capitalists. The pacifists are aghast over the prospect of another world war. As the most far-visioned of the bourgeoisie point out, another world war will most likely mean the end of capitalist rule and the coming to power of the working class. That is one very good reason why the capitalists don't want war, if they can avoid it.

But when their interests clash, they can find many pretexts for calling on the workers to put on their uniforms again as they did in 1917. And the pacifist leaders who now shout "no more war" will discover that the United States is defending some pacifist principle such as "democracy." Wall Street's man, Coolidge, is following a wise policy. His pacifist camouflage is well done.

J. H. Thomas, former colonial secretary in the MacDonald cabinet, speaking in Jamaica recently said that tho he was a free trader the labor party was not tied to any economic fetish. Least of all to socialism. A local capitalist paper, commenting on his speech, said that business had far less to fear from laborites than from the older liberals. Some compliment!

New York's Lenin Memorial

The Lenin memorial which will be held on Sunday, February 1, in Madison Square Garden, New York, promises to be one of the most impressive demonstrations ever held in the United States. It will be in commemoration of the greatest leader the revolutionary proletariat ever produced, if not indeed the most outstanding figure in human history.

Lenin was the acknowledged leader in translating into action the aims of the working class, since Marx first took the class struggle out of the clouds of Utopia and laid the theoretical basis for the world movement which today threatens the power of capitalism all over the world and which has nailed the Communist banner to the mast over territory comprising one-sixth of the earth's surface.

It is significant that, while the revolutionary workers of New York are preparing to fittingly honor the memory of the working class leader, Lenin, by filling the biggest meeting place in New York with members of the class which he lived to see on the threshold of final victory over their masters, another leader, but a traitor to his class, should be meeting with jeers and hisses whenever he attempts to address an audience of workers.

This traitor is Rafael Abramovich, once a trusted leader of the workers, but now a spy of the czarist counter-revolutionists and an enemy of the first workers' government in history.

The workers of New York have an excellent opportunity on next Sunday to show Abramovich and his yellow socialist backers that Lenin still lives in the hearts of the American working class, that Leninism is the guiding light on the road to victory for the exploited masses and that the Workers (Communist) Party is the leader of the revolutionary forces in America under the banner of the Communist International.

The Syndicalist Laws

Owing to a recent decision of the supreme court of Idaho, the criminal syndicalist law of that state is of little use to the capitalists in its present form. It was enacted in order to give the employers a weapon to use against the radicals and the unions, but evidently the framers of the statute did not know their business and the supreme court having a well-merited contempt for slovenly work, delivered a decision that freed a few members of the I. W. W. who were held under its provisions. The decision proved the law would not serve the purpose for which it was intended.

The employers decided to enact another law, with "teeth in it." Under the definition of sabotage given in this bill, a worker who makes a mistake in solving a cross word puzzle is liable to be arrested under the syndicalist law. According to the bill sabotage means "damage, injury or destruction of real or personal property, work done in an improper manner, tampering with or destruction of machinery, improper use of machinery, slowing down of production, slackening on work, scamping on work, waste of products, publishing of trade secrets if done wilfully or maliciously."

The employers declare there is an emergency and the bill is expected to be rushed thru and enacted into law.

This law is not aimed at radicals only. It is primarily directed against trade unions. The fight against the criminal syndicalist law is of the most vital concern to the workers. If they think that the capitalists are only concerned with using it against Communists, they will soon learn their mistake. It is true that the employers go after the Communists first, but the proposed syndicalist law of Idaho proves conclusively that they are out to get anybody who interferes in the slightest degree with their ability to make all the profit they can out of the exploitation of the workers.

Sabotaging a Strike

Thruout the mill districts of New England, the employes of the textile barons are fighting against the wage cuts that their masters have forced upon them as part of their reward for sending Calvin Coolidge, the favorite son of Wall Street and the mill owners, to the White House for four more years.

But, in waging this struggle the textile workers find themselves confronted with two foes. The first is the millionaire mill operators with all the power of city, state and national governments at their beck and call. This enemy is powerful enough to challenge the united power of a well organized working class. But when the workers are confronted with the task of having to fight crooked labor officials who set up every obstacle in the way of a militant struggle, it must be admitted that they are handicapped.

In the midst of this battle we find one of the unions involved, the Federation of Textile Operatives, digging up an outworn provision that requires a two-thirds vote of each local involved and a two-thirds vote of all the locals in the organization before a strike can be sanctioned. To follow such a policy during a strike is nothing short of sabotage. It may be worse. But whatever may be the motives of those responsible for seeking to prevent a united front of the textile operatives in this strike the conclusion is inescapable that the effect of such tactics is to aid the bosses and defeat the workers.

It is regrettable, but nevertheless necessary that the workers in order to win their strike must fight union fakers who insist on creating division instead of unity in the midst of a strike.

"THE Bourgeoisie Can As Yet Maltreat and Kill with Impunity. But It Cannot Stop the Inevitable and—from the Point of View of World History—Not Far Distant Triumph of the Revolutionary Proletariat."—LENIN. Memorial Meeting, Madison Square Garden, New York, Sunday Afternoon, February 1.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, FEB. 1st TO VIBRATE WITH SPIRIT OF LENIN, MOST BELOVED LEADER OF WORKERS

By ISRAEL AMTER.

"He would walk up and down in the Kremlin, with his hands behind him. Sometimes he would walk quickly, then stop short in reflection.

"Once we found him on a dark, stormy night out in the rain, walking up and down, unheeding. He was deep in thought—and then suddenly stopped. He had found a solution to the problem."

The Task Before Lenin.

This was Lenin—the man of the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia—always deep in thought on the question that ever concerned him: what could he advise for the consolidation of the power of the Soviet government; what could he propose to improve the condition of the workers and peasants.

Lenin was not a politician in the capitalist sense of the word. He did not devise ways and means that would win him votes. His was the serious task of building up the state—and thru practical results proving to the workers and peasants that only the Soviet government could benefit them. Lenin had even a more difficult task than that: he had to deal with the international situation as well. The lone Soviet government has a difficult struggle against the massed counter-revolution outside the country—it has a tremendous battle to keep off the attempted invasions by the world imperialists. Soviet Russia was and still is a primarily agrarian state—a country dependent to a great degree on the industrial countries for the supply of manufactured products. In this industrial era, when economic life depends in the main on industry, it is an almost insurmountable task to find ways and means of maintaining workers' and peasants' control, when the mainstay of the economic life of the country is agriculture.

Hence consideration of the situation in Soviet Russia was inevitably linked up with the international situation—and, above all, with the relations of Soviet Russia to the capitalist countries.

What statesman has had to face this task before? What leader has been compelled to consider such gigantic issues? What man has ever had such responsibilities resting upon his shoulders — the fate of 150,000,000 workers and peasants—the fate of the Russian proletarian revolution—the fate of the world proletarian revolution?

Life Dedicated to Workers.

When not at sessions of the Central Committee of the Communist Party, or the Executive Committee of the All-Russian Soviet, or the Executive Committee of the Communist International; when not at a meeting of workers or peasants; when not receiving a delegation of workers or peasants who came with their grievances and doubts that he had to smooth out; when not out in the garden or in the Kremlin working out his plans; when not suddenly sitting down on a doorstep to write the outline of a thesis or resolution—Lenin was to be found in his study till late in the night. When all others were asleep, the light shone in his room—out into the night.

He was sitting at his desk—thinking, writing. The word of a worker—the suggestion of a peasant—this rankled in his mind till he found the solution to the problem that they propounded. Here was a man whose ear was close to the minds of the people. Here was a man whose thoughts dwelt entirely upon the lives and welfare of the workers and peasants. Here was a man who thought only of the development of the Soviet state, the strengthening of the Communist vanguard—the growth of the world revolution.

With the weight of the revolutionary movement resting upon him, it was little wonder that his strength broke down. Lenin was a rugged man, one who could endure great hardships. But the seven years of travail tore into his vitals—till he was laid low.

Three pictures of Lenin will forever live in the minds of the workers of the world: Lenin before the factories where the workers produce; Lenin before the masses, telling them of the tasks of the revolutionary workers and peasants; and Lenin in his study elaborating the problems and the solution of the proletarian revolution.

Proletarian Revolution Still On.

Lenin lies in the mausoleum on the Red Square, on which is inscribed in bold letters the word LENIN. He lies there — while the world proletarian revolution that he led still rages. Only in Soviet Russia have the workers and peasants seized power; the workers and poor peasants in the capitalist countries are still under the oppression of the capitalist class; the colonies are still held by the armed forces of the imperialists.

Lenin is in his tomb—But LENINISM, the embodiment of his revolutionary policies and methods lives in the Communist Parties, in the lives of the revolutionary workers and peasants of the world. Leninism, Bolshevism, Revolution!

This will be the message to the hundreds of thousands of workers who will attend the memorial meetings arranged by the Workers (Communist) Party. Lenin, Soviet Russia, World Revolution with a Soviet government in the United States will be slogans to the workers who will assemble in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 1. Lenin is alive in the hearts of the Communist workers, in the ranks of the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

CZARISTS FLOCK TO AMERICA AFTER BEING REPUDIATED BY EUROPE

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—The counter-revolutionists and czarists who have been busy in Europe trying to stir up sentiment against the Russian Soviet government, are now pouring into the United States hoping to find a more friendly atmosphere for their czarist propaganda. Baroness Olga Wrangel, wife of the paid lackey of the allies who attempted to overthrow Soviet rule, has entered the United States close on the heels of the agent of the Second International, Raphael Abramovich.

Repudiated and discredited in Europe by the wholesale recognition of Russia by the European countries, Grand Duke Cyril, and Grand Duchess Feodorovna, Abramovich, and the Baroness Wrangel are flocking to the United States to reside under the protecting wing of the Coolidge government.

They declare with regret that the United States seems to be the only country in the world where a czarist can get his picture printed in the newspapers.

Another Look at Abramovich

More About Abramovich.

To the DAILY WORKER:

I was very sorry to notice the attitude of approval you have taken in regard to the riot staged upon the first public appearance of the menshevik, Abramovich.

We, who always oppose the tactics of the American legion or the ku klux klan in dealing with their opponents, should not approve of similar methods and means in dealing with our opponents or enemies.

Regardless of Abramovich's past records, which is certainly one that cannot bring anyone the least bit of credit, violent means of opposition should not be employed. Propaganda thru the press and platform, a challenge to a debate (he is willing to take that) are by far more effective to establish his wrong, than a riot and hisses to establish our right.

It is not a bourgeois tendency to attempt to infuse esthetics in dealing with opponents. Calling people "morons" just because they go to listen to a Sousa band concert, or labeling an opponent a "dog" and his opinions "vomiting" does not bring about the desired result.

I, personally, doubt whether such an extensive use of vulgar slang is necessary in order that the worker may properly understand his press. It merely creates an atmosphere of aversion instead of attention.

With best wishes,
M. Alper

Reply.—It it regrettable that the struggle between the capitalists and their chief agents on one side and the workers on the other is accompanied by so much bitterness, sometimes going beyond even explosive words and graphic epithets. But such is the case, and much tho we sympathize with the wounded feelings of our over-sensitive correspondent, because of the DAILY WORKER'S attitude towards the traitor, Abramovich, we do not intend to don the sackcloth.

Communists are not interested in free speech for the capitalists or for their servants. Whatever class has political power—so long as class rule exists—will determine how much free speech the subject classes may enjoy. In capitalist countries, the workers are allowed only as much free speech as the capitalists feel is consistent with their own security. In Russia, where the workers have political power, the capitalists and the enemies of the Soviets are limited in their powers to overthrow the workers' government and bring back the robber rule of capitalism. In fact, their ability to do harm is limited to zero.

Class rule means rule by force. The main difference between class rule in America and class rule in Russia, is that in Russia the class that now rules is the majority, the only useful class and the only producing class, while here the reverse is the truth. Furthermore, the working class dictatorship will only last until Communism is established and all classes abolished. The present dictatorship in Russia is only a transition period between capitalism and socialism.

To Be Expected.

The Communists realize that the capitalists will not grant the workers free speech, free press or the right of assemblage, the constitution notwithstanding, when they think that the exercise of this constitutional right might endanger capitalist rule. This is to be expected and the capitalists know would be very peculiar burglars if they did not do so. We know that the capitalists will not grant us free speech. Note how they cling to their unconstitutional syndicalist laws. But in free speech fights we show the workers what a sham capitalist democracy is and what a sham constitutional rights are under the rule of capitalism. The klan and the legion are tools of capitalism. They don't bother about free speech. They believe in the use of force to suppress the workers. It works just as long as the workers feel that they can emancipate themselves without a struggle. But when the workers realize that force must be met by force then the thugs of the capitalist class will have their hands full.

The class struggle is a war and nothing else. Sometimes the struggle is only over wages. Sometimes it develops political aspects. That is its status in most European countries at the present time. There the struggle is in its final stage. The leader of the workers in this struggle—and the capitalists on the other side—use whatever tactics are best suited to gain the strategic objective.

The main purpose of Communist tactics is to organise the workers for the struggle against the capitalists for the ultimate aim of overthrowing capitalist rule and establishing the rule of the workers and exploited farmers. By getting the workers to fight for free speech, against the open shop, etc., their class feeling is aroused and their class hatred intensified. The worker who sees in the revolutionary movement only a protest against the METHODS of capitalism and not a means by which to abolish capitalism, is not a revolutionist but a pacifist.

Same as Capitalists.

The Abramoviches come under the same heading as the capitalists. They are the enemies of the workers. Had their clique won in Russia, Lenin and Trotsky would meet the same fate that Liebknecht and Luxemburg did in Germany. The czar would be very much alive and the Russian workers would have no say in the running of their industries. There would be free speech in Russia for the capitalists but none for the workers. If our gentle-souled correspondent does not believe this, we invite him to study the situation in Poland, Germany, Esthonia, Hungary, and other countries where social democracy rules or ruled until their services were no longer necessary to the capitalists, for the time being.

Save Your Tears.

If our correspondent has any tears to shed he might let them run in memory of the gallant fighters who were murdered by the prototypes of Abramovich, and the thousands of Russian workers and peasants who were killed in battle or starved by [illegible] thru the plots of the menshevik conspirators acting under the instructions and in the pay of the capitalist governments of Europe. Those who can have patience with such a "dog" (yes, dog, with apologies to the canine species) and insist on using nursery rhymes in speaking of him may be material for the young women's christian association, but they do not belong in the revolutionary movement until they get more iron in their systems.

—Read Up on Lenin.

As to the use of billingsgate and "strong language" in general, I believe that M. Alper could read Lenin's "Kautsky the Renegade," with considerable benefit. Lenin was no Sunday school teacher in the use of language, but the workers understood him and so did the bourgeoisie. "Slang" is not vulgar when effective. Only a conventional pinhead whose mind is fettered by bourgeois etiquette would condemn the use of the words placed on the index expurgatorius by M. Alper, and if he knows anything about the working class, he would know that they believe in strong and forceful language and inwardly vomit at the anaemic hasheesh that comes from the pens of our holier-than-thou liberals.

If Abramovich honestly differed with the Communists as to the best means of accomplishing the overthrow of capitalism, then we would be as patient with him as we are with the working class who are still under the influence of capitalist leaders and the labor lieutenants of capitalism. But towards Abramoviches the stoolpigeons of capitalism, we have a different attitude. We have the same feeling towards him as we have towards Wrangel, Semenoff, Grand Duke Cyril and the other czarists who were or are now carrying on conspiracies against the Soviet government. Perhaps Abramovich is willing to accept a debate with the Communists. M. Alper seems to know! But there is little likelihood of a Communist debating with him as there is of a skunk being received as an honored guest at a garden party.

The DAILY WORKER is not interested in teaching the workers etiquette or "infusing esthetics in dealing with opponents." We are interested in getting them into the frame of mind to fight the capitalists, teaching them how to fight and organizing them for the struggle. Our goal is the workers' and farmers' government, and a classless society, not a perfumed vocabulary.

SOCIALISTS ALLIES OF HORTHY

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

CONSIDERABLE mystery veils the arrest of two Irish workers held by the British government on charges of espionage. One of the two, Jeremiah Joseph O'Leary, is a shipwright in a Portsmouth navy yard and the other, Cyril McGough, is a civil servant of London. They are charged by the admiralty with securing important official secrets much sought after by a certain foreign power. The suspects are reported to be agents of the "Irish republican government," which does not exist, unfortunately. The whole story looks like a typical frameup to feed the anti-Irish sentiment which has been on the wane among the working class of Great Britain.

MARGARET SLACHTA, a Hungarian christian socialist is in this country doing her bit in behalf of the bloodthirsty Horthy government. She urges the women of America to form a party of their own if they want to be of service to their country. She is a member of a catholic order and is true to the reactionary role played by the church to which she belongs. "I am a great admirer of America's achievements, and all her democratic achievements," she chirps. Perhaps the sister never heard of the ku klux klan, our record for lynchings of Negroes and the criminal syndicalist laws. But perhaps these things don't bother the lady.

THE battle over the ratification of the child labor amendment is growing in intensity with the capitalists doing most of the fighting. The organization that should take the lead in this fight is the American Federation of Labor, is doing nothing. As usual the Workers Party is leading the workers in this fight. Every capitalist paper in the country is full of reasons why the proposed law is bad for the nation and particularly for the children. One plain hireling is at least entitled to credit for bringing forward something novel when he said that the passing of this law would prevent our youth from an opportunity to develop their muscles. Evidently the author of this argument never developed the muscles of his brain.

HJALMAR BRANTING, until a few days ago premier of Sweden was unable to be present at the Rome meeting of the council of the League of Nations, because of illness. He commissioned his deputy, the foreign minister, to put a wreath on Matteotti's grave. On the streamers of this wreath was the inscription: "Matteotti, who died for the freedom of his native country.—Branting." Mark you, not for the freedom of his "class." However, when Mussolini heard it, he felt like biting Sweden off the continent of Europe and notified the Swedish embassy to that effect. The wreath remained in obscurity. This is the way social democrats honor their dead.

THERE was much dispute over the real reason for the klan outrages committed in Herrin, when Glenn Young brought his hired assassins in there, shortly after the affair with the strikebreakers. The DAILY WORKER held from the start that the klansmen were acting with the sanction of the local coal operators, bankers and business men. The story of the recent shooting which ended in the death of Glenn Young and two of his gunmen and of Ora Thomas, anti-klansman, confirms this view. Young started the hostilities when he approached the secretary of the local miners' union and threatened to kill him, charging the miner with having denounced Young and the klan at union meetings. It was during the argument between Young and the coal digger that Thomas came on the scene and put an end to Young's career.

AMONG the papers that published editorial eulogies of Samuel Gompers is the Jewish Daily Forward. It is labelled "socialist," and so it is. "He served the working class honestly and loyally in accordance with his convictions. Let us bare our heads at the bier of this man." If he had written "beer" instead of "bier," the socialist editor's prayer might have received a heartier response as it is common knowledge that Sam knew a good glass of the amber brew when he tasted it.

KLUXER DIRECTS HERRIN INQUEST FOR GOV. SMALL

Thousands of Miners at Thomas' Funeral

HERRIN, Ill., Jan. 28.—Three thousand members of the United Mine Workers of America filed past the coffin of Ora Thomas, prominent member of the miners' union in southern Illinois, and followed the body to the grave in the city cemetery.

Meanwhile State's Attorney Arlie Boswell, who has assumed entire charge of the inquest into the death of Glenn Young and Ora Thomas in the latest klan shooting affray, was revealed to be a member of the ku klux klan, elected to office on a klan ticket.

Coroner George Bell, who is conducting the questioning, is also admitted by his friends to be a member of the klan.

Galligan at Funeral.

Sheriff George Galligan dared death at the hands of the klan to attend the funeral services for Thomas, his deputy. "Thomas gave his life to the cause of the laboring man," Galligan said. "Yet we have to tread here thru the snow to get glimpse of his dead face, while that other man (Young) lies in state at the baptist church, clothed in purple and fine linen."

The thousands of miners with whom Thomas worked before he was made a deputy sheriff by Galligan attended the outdoor funeral ceremony conducted on the front porch of Thomas' home. Every protestant minister in Herrin belongs to the ku klux klan, and the Rev. John Meeker, of the presbyterian church, did not have the nerve to open his church to the funeral of Thomas.

The funeral services for Glenn Young on Thursday afternoon will be conducted officially by the ku klux klan, which has assumed full responsibility for Young's 30 murders. Fifty thousand klansmen from all over the country are expected to attend the gunman's funeral.

UTICA TEXTILE WORKERS WILL FIGHT WAGE CUT

Union Organizer Has a Big Meeting

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 28.—The Utica Steam Cotton Mills and the New York Mills, both of this city, have announced a wage cut of 10 per cent.

Mass Meeting of Workers

At a meeting in the Labor Temple, Friday evening, addressed by Joseph R. White, organizer for the United Textile Workers, affiliated with the A. F. of L., the expressions of the speaker, though lacking any militancy moved the large audience of textile workers to great enthusiasm with the mere promise that the union "would not accept the reduction."

This mild expression of resistance was, of course, for the benefit of the textile workers, who expect the union really to put up a fight. But it was modified by White's subsequent remarks that he "was not advocating any strike."

Why Not One Union And One Vote?

The Loomfixers' Union has declared unanimously, it is said, against the cut, and similar action was taken Friday by the spinners, carders and weavers in a closed meeting of their union, following the mass meeting.

It is said effort will be made today and Sunday to bring about an amicable adjustment of the matter, as all crafts affected have named committees to try to arrange a conference with the bosses.

WHEAT GAMBLERS REAP GOLDEN HARVEST IN DAY OF SPECULATION

Speculators in wheat reaped a golden harvest during trading at the Chicago board of trade yesterday. May wheat opened at the price of $2.08¼, a record breaking price with the exception of war times.

Well known wheat gamblers, including James A. Patten and Arthur Cutten have made millions in the price of wheat.

The farmers were forced to sell wheat at one dollar a bushel and less after the last harvest, wheat selling at that time for less than the cost of production.

WORKERS ON CHINESE R. R. OUT ON STRIKE

Chi, Imperialist Tool, Flees to Japan

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, Jan. 28.—Chinese engineers and firemen on the Shanghai-Nanking railroad are on strike and other classes of the line's employes are joining them.

The employes are striking against being compelled to operate trains under fire for the removal of the defeated troops of Marshal Chi Hsieh-Yuan, a hireling of British-American imperialism, after their defeat and complete rout at Wusih on Sunday and Monday in a battle lasting two days.

Troops Go Afoot.

Chi's troops which evacuated Soochow on Tuesday are now forced to proceed afoot toward Shanghai. In this city five troop trains arrived Monday night, and the soldiers, discarding their accoutrements, raced each other to the shelter of foreign settlements. A car containing 100 wounded was abandoned on a sidetrack.

Marshal Lu Yung-Hsiang, commander of the Fengtien forces that defeated Chi, has issued a statement saying that the 3,000 Russians in his army have become Chinese citizens, and that therefore the rumored international complications are visionary.

Imperialist Intrigue Also Afoot.

The chief remaining source of international complications are the insistent meddlesomeness of American and British interests whose bribed generals, one after another, have proven to be unsuccessful in holding any considerable part of China since the overthrowal of Tsao Kun and the defeat of General Wu Pei Fu.

Marshal Chi was their last bet, but turned out to be as weak as before he financed his last revolt with the money of the imperialists' agents in the foreign settlement at Shanghai. Now he is fleeing to Japan.

That "Foreign Shipping."

The American imperialists are resourceful, however, and the American minister, Jacob Schurman, a former Standard Oil lawyer, intimates that he is making such representations to Washington as may cause "serious international complications" meaning an American intervention—if the Chinese forts at Woosung do not cease firing on "foreign shipping."

The unfairness of this is the fact that this "foreign shipping" consists largely of British and American boats loaded with arms and supplies for mercenary armies waging a war of rebellion against the central Chinese government.

COMMUNISTS IN ILLINOIS DRIVE ON CHILD LABOR

Manufacturers Boast of Slavery for Children

The Young Workers League and the Workers (Communist) Party have taken the lead in demanding that the Illinois legislature abolish child labor and that children of workers be maintained by the government while attending school.

They demand that the funds for maintaining the youth while being educated be obtained by taxing the large incomes of the rich of Chicago and Illinois.

The special Child Labor Edition of the Young Worker is being distributed by the thousands of copies thruout Illinois. Speakers are being routed by the Young Workers' League to tell unions and sympathetic bodies of the program proposed by the league to fight child labor and the exploitation of the young workers of Illinois.

League Leads Fight.

The Young Workers' League calls for the establishment of permanent child labor committees, with representatives from youth organizations, labor unions, and working class fraternal organizations as well as poor farmer organizations.

The employers are marshalling their forces to protect their supply of child labor in Illinois and are making a drive to influence the vote of the Illinois legislature against ratification of the child labor amendment.

The fight for the ratification of the child labor amendment was brought to Chicago yesterday when Owen Lovejoy, secretary of the national

ELECTION CAMPAIGN MEETING TONIGHT WITH ENGDAHL AS SPEAKER

Why do Communists participate in elections? What do they propose to workers in times of elections? What program do they have? All these questions and many more will be answered by J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER, at the mass meeting to be held TONIGHT, Thursday, Jan. 29, at 8 p. m. at the Soviet School 1902 W. Division St. All workers living in the vicinity of the school are invited.

Peter M. Lucas, candidate for alderman of the 32nd ward will also speak.

Come and hear the truth about Communism! Don't wait for the enemies of the workers to tell you about Bolsheviks. Come and hear what they have to say about themselves. Admission free.

The Workers Party of Chicago has endorsed J. W. Johnstone, aldermanic candidate in the 44th ward, not only because he stands on the only practical platform which can solve the present and ultimate problems of the workers of Chicago, but also because for 22 years he has been an active and militant fighter in the American labor movement.

Johnstone, who was born in Scotland, came to America in 1902. He became a member of the socialist party of Canada in 1903. In 1906 he joined the Industrial Workers of the World and was very active in building up that organization on the Pacific coast, being one of the group that beat its way from Los Angeles to Spokane to take part in the free speech fights of 1909-10.

In 1912 he worked with William Z. Foster in organizing the Syndicalist League of America. He helped to organize the International Trade Union Educational League in 1916, which has become the present Trade Union Educational League, the fighting fraction of the militant trade unionists who are working for a better and more effective trade union movement in America.

In the winter of 1916, Johnstone organized the Mooney Defense Committee, of which he was secretary for nearly three years. During this time he got a confession of perjury from McDonald, the star witness against Mooney and accompanied him from Trenton, N. J. to San Francisco to make his confession of perjury to the grand jury.

He was one of the voluntary organizers working with Wm. Z. Foster in organizing the packing house workers, and succeeded Foster as secretary-treasurer of the Stock Yards Labor Council in 1918.

Jack Johnstone joined the Communist Party in 1920, and is a charter member of the Workers Party, having been a delegate to the convention at which the Workers Party was organized. He is a member of the National Committee of the Trade Union Educational League and was a delegate to the Second Congress of the Red International of Labor Unions.

Johnstone is a member of Painters' Union No. 147 and up to recently represented that local at the Chicago Federation of Labor.

CHARGE U. S. IS AIDING CZARISTS' MOVE ON SOVIETS

Reaction Mobilizes With U. S. Support

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 28.—All the former czarist officers here are greatly excited by a report that Grand Duke Nicholas has issued an appeal and a call for mobilization of all the Russian monarchist army officers and supporters and is preparing for a new attack on Soviet Russia, being backed by immense material aid from the United States.

Well Supplied with Money.

The report is current that agents representing Nicholas have arrived in Poland well supplied with money to prepare to send to Jugoslavia and Bulgaria such former czarist officers as are willing to join a movement to be organized in those countries.

Mobilization Cards Received.

All the officers of the old regime living in Poland are said to have received mobilization cards giving the numbers of their regiments and the names of the towns in the Balkans where they should apply when the mobilization is announced.

U. S. SENATE VOTES TO CONTINUE BLOODY DOLLAR RULE IN HAITI

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Withdrawal of American military forces from Haiti, where they have maintained a dictatorship of armed force since 1915, was defeated without a record vote by the senate.

Senator Oddie of Nevada attempted the customary eulogy of the marines' regime in the Negro republic, but Senator King replied with a scathing denunciation of the killing of thousands of patriotic Haitians by the marines under conditions of combat which left the Haitians absolutely at the mercy of the conquerors.

King asked how Latin America would ever have faith in the friendly pretensions of our state department, when before their eyes was so impressive a demonstration of the fruits of imperialism. Because the Haitians are predominantly of African blood, the southern democrats in the senate are indifferent to their fate. These southern democrats remember, too, that William Jennings Bryan and Josephus Daniels were the cabinet officers who ordered the marines to take possession of Haiti.

BLDG. TRADES SENT BACK TO SCHOOL JOBS

"Aliens" to Go, Landis Award Stays

The strike called by the Building Trades Council Monday, upon the two new school buildings, is now called off, by reason of a settlement between the unions and the supervisory architect of the board of education.

The settlement was agreed upon by the council and J. E. Byrnes, business manager of the board of education. There were two points of dispute, the first being the letting of contracts to Landis award contractors, and the second complaint made by union officials was that labor was imported from out of town to do the work and that such workers were not citizens of the United States.

The board of education agreed to remedy the second complaint, but the first one, which is more vital, has yet to be settled. But the men are going back to work. Apparently Landis award men are not so bad if only they are not aliens or from other cities.

SOCIALISTS OF HUNGARY UNIT WITH FASCIST

Sign Pact with Terr Rule of Horthy

By EUGEN LANDLER.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—The central organ of the social-democratic party of Hungary has published the text of the pact which the leaders of the party concluded with the Horthy government on Dec. 22, 1921.

The declaration of the prime minister Count Bethlen, which appeared in the Christmas number of the "Neue Freie Presse," that in the event of the resignation of the social-democratic members of parliament he would consider it necessary to publish the pact concluded with the social-democrats in 1921, compelled the party leaders of the social-democrats to publish this shameful document themselves.

When one now reads the text of the pact one perceives that only the most desperate situation could have compelled the social democratic white guardists of Bethlen to publish this document.

These Hungarian scoundrels, with the signing of this Judas treaty, not only surpassed Noske's record, but also their own openly shameful record which they gained by their participation in the last bloody government of Horthy.

In the bloody treaty which was concluded three years ago between the allied great capitalist and great agrarian government of the one part and the leaders of the social democratic party of Hungary, expressly in the name of the Hungarian working class, of the other part, the Hungarian proletariat was delivered over, in the interest of the Magyar nation to the white terror, in the strictest sense of the word.

As every social democratic program contains a statement of principles and transition demands, so is it also the case in this program, and it is difficult to decide which part of the social democratic Christmas program of 1921 constitutes the greatest crime against the Hungarian proletariat.

When one reads the 12 points of the agreement contained in the protocol and which contain the practical demands, one sees that all theory is gray. Here, among other things there is sanctioned the continuation of the interments and the compulsory police registration and control of thousands of workers; here the robbery of the right of combination of the railway men is approved in black and white; here the exceptional court is justified as against the thousands who have already been condemned and the tens of thousands who have not yet been sentenced but are in prison awaiting trial; and here it also stated that the freedom of the press is restored in Hungary.

In order to justify their shameful white guardist conduct, this treacherous gang tried to put forward three excuses: They state: that their relations with the Bethen government were such that they had no other choice; that they did not fulfill the

ALL LABOR MUST RALLY TO MICH. FIGHT OF REDS

All Workers Threatened C. E. Ruthenberg Says

The charges against the Communists in Michigan constitute a threat against the entire labor movement, C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party, told the DAILY WORKER yesterday.

Ruthenberg called on all labor organizations to rally with the Communists in a united front against the establishment of the "crime" of "assembling with" other persons.

The prosecution of the Communists arrested in Michigan is endeavoring to attack labor by trying to establish the principle that groups of workers have no right to assemble or strike against the employing class, Ruthenberg declared.

Workers Must Fight.

"The fight which the Communists are making against the prosecution in the state of Michigan is one which is of importance to the entire labor movement of the United States," says Ruthenberg.

"If the principle which the prosecution is endeavoring to establish in the Michigan case and which it has been successful in establishing in the state of Michigan is upheld by the supreme court of the United States, it will lay the basis for future attacks upon any labor organization or any other workers' organization which carries on a militant struggle against the employing class industrially thru strikes or upon the political field," he continued.

"The only charge made against the Communists is that the individuals indicted 'assemibed with' an organization which the state of Michigan claims violates the state criminal syndicalist act.

Charges Against Communists.

"The Communists are not charged with saying anything, writing anything, or doing anything in the state of Michigan except 'assembling' there. The criminal syndicalist acts of the state of Michigan as well as of some seventeen other states are so drawn that a labor union carrying on a strike and making demands upon the employing class can very easily be declared an organization violating the criminal syndicalist acts.

"If the supreme court of the United States upholds the Michigan decision and establishes the new 'crime' that 'assembling with' is punishable by ten years in prison and $10,000 fine, we may be sure that in the future these laws will be used to prevent the mere assembling of groups of workers who are carrying on strikes against the employing class.

"Today the Communists are singled out for the application of this law. But if the principle can be established, the next step will be to apply the law to other workers' organizations as a means of destroying all efforts of the workers to achieve a higher standard of life for themselves.

"It is because the establishment of the 'crime' charged against the Communists in Michigan is a threat against the whole labor movement of the United States that the Communists are calling upon labor unions and other labor organizations to unite with them by forming branches of the Labor Defense Council for the purpose of continuing the fight against the establishment of this new 'crime' thru widespread agitation and protest by labor.

"It is only if the workers rally to these united front Labor Defense Councils and carry on a militant struggle against the Michigan prosecution that the labor movement of the United States can be protected against the attack which capitalism is making under the guise of prosecution of the Communists."

RED BAITERS RAISE NUMBER OF RADICALS, LEGISLATOR WARNS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Alarmed at the rapid spread of Communism in America the red baiters are fumbling around for the cause of it and have decided that there must be a change of tactics in order to save the country from going Bolshevik.

Radical and religious intolerance are the underlying causes of the rapid spread of radicalism, declared Joseph Levenson, republican leader of the first assembly district, speaking yesterday at a meeting of the Kansas women's club at the home of Mrs. Zimmerly Bryan, 218 West 80th street. "The animosity against foreigners dates back to the revolution," said Mr. Levenson, "when Irish Roman catholics were bitterly attacked. We are now experiencing the results of this attitude. The foreign born resent the attitude toward them, and are ready to embrace any party which promises better treatment."

LOVEJOY MAKES WEAK ANTI-CHILD LABOR SPEECH

And Compliments Ill. Manufacturers

Owen R. Lovejoy, one time socialist and now secretary of the national child labor committee, made an apology for the proposed child labor amendment which is soon to be taken up for ratification by the Illinois legislature, at a luncheon given yesterday by the city club of Chicago.

Lovejoy did not make a direct attack on the manufacturers of Illinois, who admit that they are employing thousands of children. He assumed in his speech that the Illinois child labor laws are adequate. Lovejoy pleaded for ratification of the amendment not on the ground that child labor should be abolished, but that the proposed child labor amendment is so mild it will not harm the manufacturers.

Many business men and manufacturers in the audience have been actively fighting against abolition of child labor in Illinois, and yet Lovejoy assured them that he did not wish to go against their interests. Lovejoy assumed that the manufacturers are against child labor, and claimed that "no profit can be made by the manufacturers from child labor."

The states which have rejected ratification of the federal child labor amendment are also opposed to state child labor laws, Lovejoy said, and "states rights" does not enter into the problem. He said that in Massachusetts the referendum defeated the child labor amendment because all sorts of lies were spread about what the amendment would mean. Rumors were spread, he declared, that even bed-making would be prohibited children under 18 years of age if the amendment were to pass.

But Lovejoy failed to point out that it was the textile mill owners who spread the propaganda which defeated the amendment in Massachusetts, and it was because they were afraid of losing their cheap labor supply that they opposed child labor. Lovejoy did not bring out the fact that child labor is a natural and inevitable accompaniment of the profit system, and that as long as the industries are run for profit, adult and child labor will be exploited by the employers.

Lovejoy apologized for Victor Berger's vote in congress for the child labor amendment, and told the manufacturers and business men present that congress is "safe" enough to be trusted, and "will not go too far."

Lovejoy said that "all the child labor committee wishes to do is to prohibit factory work for children under 14 years of age, and the limiting of the work of those 16 to 18 years of age to eight hours per day."

Juniors Will Lead.

On Saturday those of us who stood out on the lake front here in Chicago shivering in the morning frost were treated to a disappointment. The sky was dark and covered with clouds and we could see not even a shadow of an eclipse.

The interesting feature about the little group that stood there in hopes that the clouds would lift was the number of children who went there early Saturday morning and were there watching in spite of the early hour, in spite of the biting frost.

Children predominated. Children lead. And so with the idea in our Comrade Sol Fishman's cartoon for the children's column.

Juniors will be in the lead when Communism eclipses (completely casts into refuse) capitalism and efaces it from the earth.

Dear Juniors: I am writing you this letter that I just love to read the Communist Children's Column. I have read so many good stories about Lenin and many other comrades. Maybe I will write something, too, if I put my brain to work. On January 13, 1925, was the DAILY WORKER'S birthday. One year old. Long live the DAILY WORKER! Long live the Workers (Communist) Party of America!

EXPERTS ADVISE SCHOOL BOARD ON CUTTING WAGES

Finance Committee Acts on Recommendation

The finance committee of the board of education heard a recommendation by the Griffenhagen Accountants company for the adjustment of wages of board of education employes for the 1925 budget.

The recommendation showed how nearly $100,000 could be saved by eliminating jobs and that $28,000 could be saved in reducing the staff of senior clerks. One senior clerk could direct a large number of junior clerks (unskilled labor). They estimated that the board could in this way drop 398 civil service employes from the school board.

Wherever the Griffenhagen Accountants walk in it consistently follows that hundreds of employes get a blue slip in their envelopes. They are called efficiency engineers. Their job is to teach bosses how to reduce the cost of management. Their game is showing how to get more work out of unskilled labor by reducing the process of production into small movements mechanically performed under the supervision of a driving and directing force. They name this little game "reclassifying of employes." They claim to safeguard the firm against the creation of positions for the purpose of raising salaries of favorites. What they do is eliminate higher paid employes, introduce team work and reduce wages.

The recommendation submitted to the finance committee was that two committees be appointed, one for the teaching positions and one for the non-teaching positions.

The finance committee took action upon the recommendation by appointment of a classification officer to work with the committee for the instalment of the system beginning with the 1925 budget.

Mrs. Lillian Hefferan, one of the trustees of the board and a member of the finance committee, said that this recommendation would not affect the teachers as the superintendent had full control of their positions, but a committee for the teaching staff will be appointed to sit in on this committee with a view to suggestions.

Will Not Drop the Child Labor Fight A. F. of L. Announces

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Sponsors of the constitutional amendment prohibiting child labor asserted today that the apparent failure of the amendment, thru its rejection by one-fourth of the states, would not result in their abandonment of the fight for its adoption.

The fight can and will, they said, be carried on by campaigns in the rejecting states, much after the manner that the eighteenth and nineteenth amendments were put thru state legislatures.

The legislatures that have rejected the amendment can reconsider their action at any time in the future. Constitutional amendments remain pending for years, and time and circumstances may change the complexion of a legislature.

Federation Will Fight On.

The American Federation of Labor stated at labor headquarters that there could be no change in the federation's plans, in furtherance of the amendment.

Many Amendments to Moses Postal Pay Bill Up in Senate

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 28—The Moses bill increasing the pay of post office employes, and increasing postal rates on parcel post and other classes of mail, was further amended when the senate by a vote of 51 to 23 voted to retain the present postal rate on religious publications.

Further amendments were to be introduced today cutting the rates proposed by the Moses bill to be charged to newspapers and magazines. Senator George introduced such an amendment, in spite of the fact that Coolidge has declared he will veto the bill increasing the wages of postal employes, unless that part of the Moses bill increasing postal rates is also passed by the senate.

It seems certain that Coolidge will again prevent the postal workers from securing a rise in their exceedingly small wages.

JAMES LARKIN, IRISH LEADER, IS BANKRUPT

Like Movie He's Back Home An' Broke

DUBLIN, (By Mail)—James Larkin, formerly general-secretary of the Irish Transport Workers' Union, was recently examined in the bankruptcy court. He was adjudged bankrupt on November 21, last, in respect of a debtor's summons for approximately $5,000. The petitioning creditors arv members of the Transport Workers' Union.

Larkin admitted during his examination that he had no income. The dual union which he set up as a rival to the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union has not prospered. He could not give any account of how much money passed thru his hands since April 1923.

He was not able to say how much money he received for his "sustaining fund" or thru the sale of bonds. His "documents" were missing. He admitted having brot $10,000 from America. This money was raised in the United States for the relief of Belfast workers. He did not say how the money was expended. Larkin's cash account was only about ten dollars he said.

Small Throws Sop To Union Labor in State Legislature

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 28.—A sop was thrown to organized labor in the Illinois legislature now meeting here when William Sneed of Herrin, subdistrict president of the Illinois Miners' Union, was made chairman of the committee on corporations in the state senate. The house also gave slight recognition to the organized labor movement when R. G. Sonderstrom, a trade union assemblyman, was made chairman of the committee on public utilities.

Governor Len Small, however, controls both branches of the legislatures, and if the pending child labor amendment to the federal constitution empowering congress to prohibit child labor is defeated, the defeat can be laid to Governor Small's political machine.

The Baroness Might Tell Abramovich How to Win Favors on the Gold Coast

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, it might be well for the local supporters of Soviet hating Rafael Abramovich, who still lingers in our midst, to glance thru the pages of the Chicago Hearst sheet, the Herald-Examiner, and learn just what kind of audiences czarist agents coming to these shores should cater to.

The "socialist" allies of Abramovich made the mistake of thinking that America's workers wanted to listen to a counter-revolutionary agent of czarism. One of Abramovich's co-workers, the Baroness Olga Wrangel, who took her name from the General Wrangel who brought devastation and death into southern Soviet Russia, in an attempt to overthrow the rule of the workers and peasants, doesn't make that mistake. She only seeks an audience from among the "best people"; mostly the wives of big theives, like bankers, industrialists and landlords. Abramovich should do the same. The gatherings would be very much smaller but exceedingly more peaceful.

The society editor would then write up Abramovich's speeches instead of the police reporters. "The Dowager," the non de plume assumed by the measurer of social values for the Hearst organ, declares that "Society's interest in Russia, stimulated by the charming personalities of those who have come from there to live here since the change in the country's politics, never seems to lessen".

So the Baroness Wrangel is to be given a royal welcome, as royal as can be given by the American snobocracy, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Feb. 5. on the Gold Coast. The Palmers are select Chicago aristocrats. The present Palmer is "capitalist" by birthright; while Mrs Palmer is daughter of the millionaire, Herman H. Kohlsaat, also newspaper publisher. The baroness could desire nothing better.

Palmer evidently got his viewpoint toward Soviet Russia from the brother of the baroness, Col. Ivanenko, who has been here for some time. He evidently shook the dust of Russia from his czarist boots while the shaking was good. Palmer and the colonel both belong to what is known as the exclusive Chicago Golf, Saddle and Cycle Club.

• • • •

The baroness will be asked to speak to an audience that will include the Cranes, machinery manufacturers; the McCormicks, farm implement manufacturers; the Chauncey McCormicks, of the same breed; the Stanley Fields, of a line of merchant princes; the Ryersons, financiers, and a lot of others too numerous to mention.

It is probably to the credit of the baroness that she is able to drum up an audience. Most of the local parasites usually spend this time of the year sunning themselves along the warm beaches in Florida. Some of them have no doubt already been there while other are planning to go. Abramovich had therefore better drop in while the possibilities of an audience on the Gold Coast hold good. The worst he would be subjected to would be some inane ogling thru bejewelled lorgnettes. But Hillquit, Cahan and other New York "socialists" could no doubt give him a schooling on how to behave on such occasions. They have had experience along the Riverside Drive of the metropolis and should know.

• • • •

But Abramovich will not go on Fifth Avenue or Riverside Drive, in New York, or the Gold Coast, in Chicago, He is valueless there to his masters. His only value to the ruling class consists in his ability to poison the minds of militant workers against Soviet Russia. That is why his agents sought out working class districts, and these only, like the labor centers in New York City at the New Star Casino, in Harlem; the Labor Lyceum, in Bolshevik Brownsville, and Hunt's Point Place, in the Bronx, all proletarian sections of the nation's metropolis. But Harlem, Brownsville and the Bronx have all rejected this counter-revolutionary agent. It was one, two, three, a clean score for the class integrity of the militant elements of New York's workers. Abramovich ought to consider it not only "down," but "out." Otherwise the workers will no doubt be ready to renew their invitation to him to "Get out!".

A WORKERS' ART EXHIBITION

AN unusual experiment is represented in the art exhibition just opened by Painters' Local Union No. 194 of Chicago. It promises to be successful indeed. The exhibitors are all plain workers, members of the local —union men—whose skill has become art. This exhibition compares favorably with any other to which the name art is being attached, even those which enjoy the backing of the well-to-do benefactors who exploit such events to prove their own philanthropy and incidentally satisfy their highly cultivated desires for luxury. Such affairs are generally limited to the exclusive set—the "better class" in society and what is lacking in art is made up thru generous and high priced commendable advertisement in the press.

That the workers produce everything worth while in present day society is being vividly demonstrated by this exhibition by Local 194. A fact that received as little recognition as the exhibitors themselves have received heretofore. The pictures collected cover a wide range of landscape portraying the bounties of nature in brilliant colors presented either thru the rugged but imposing Norwegian mountain scenery or the little smiling plots from Chicago parks or forest preserves. There are studies of interior settings and portraits. The motives are too numerous to mention, the executions are in many instances of a high artistic calibre.

Little or nothing is being done by present day society to promote the skill of workingmen, except insofar as profits can thereby be increased. Modern industrial requirements gradually eliminates skill and makes of the workers essential parts of one titanic machine constantly grinding out profits. Moreover, in their efforts to destroy every vestige of labor organization, the only means of protection the workers have, the owners of industry are at all times willing to accept a lower quality of workmanship to hire scabs to destroy the unions. To prove the superior workmanship of union labor is one of the underlying motives for this exhibition arranged by Local 194. And altho it has succeeded in this object, the exhibition itself powerfully suggests the need of the workers preparing themselves for the struggle to take over all the instruments of production before skill and workmanship, artistic and otherwise, can really become a means of making life more beautiful.

Youth Goes to Prison.

Twenty-six young men, ranging in age from 18 to 24, left Chicago today for indefinite stays in the reformatory at Pontiac. They constituted the grist of the criminal courts of Chicago for just a week and a half, and were convicted variously of almost every crime except murder.

THE MORTGAGE ON GERMANY

THE National City company is today offering $10,000,000 worth of bonds of the Allgemeine Elektrische Gesellschaft at $93.75 and bearing 7.70 per cent interest and refunded at $105.00.

At the same time Dillon, Reed & Co. are offering $10,000,000 credit to the Siemens group, another German company manufacturing electrical supplies, secured by an output amounting annually to 166 per cent of this loan. In this way the American electrical trust, the General Electric company, will have secured a stranglehold on the German electrical industry, thus colonizing and more theroly exploiting the workers in that industry.

SHOEWORKERS OF NEW YORK TALK AMALGAMATION

Educational Meeting Packs Big Hall

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 28.—That the workers must organize themselves as a class even as the bosses are organized as a class of exploiters was the subject of an address delivered to a packed hall of members of the Protective Shoe Workers' Union at their headquarters, 346 Washington street, by J. O. Bentall, at the educational meeting held Monday night.

Why Amalgamation?

P. P. Cosgrove, organizer, introduced the speaker by showing that the Protective Shoe Workers' Union had for its object the complete amalgamation of the entire industry into one solid phalanx of workers to fight for their rights and to gain power over the present exploiting class. He pointed out that the shoe workers are among the most exploited in the entire country. That only yesterday one of the brothers had dropped dead at his last while working, the verdict of the doctor afterward being that he had been suffering from malnutrition, too weak to perform his task, but hanging on in order to get bread for his wife and babies.

How Bosses Are Organized.

In the course of the address, Bentall showed how the master class has many organizations, such as the rotary club, kiwanis club, citizens' alliance, civic federation, local and commercial clubs, and all the smaller organizations both among the business men and among the well to do farmers, but that all these clubs are tied into the great central body of the capitalist class, the all-embracing chamber of commerce which is the great capitalist international.

"Not a strike can be pulled, not a wage adjusted or a grievance settled, not a town clerk in an obscure township elected, not a sheriff got into office, not a legislature chosen, not a governor or congressman, not a judge or a president placed in government without the dictation and approval of the chamber of commerce," said the speaker. "Banking, business in every detail, politics in every phase, policies of international intercourse, tariffs, foreign loans, imperialistic expansion, education, religion, the press, peace and war, life and death—all is under the dictatorship of the chamber of commerce capitalist international."

Workers Are the Stronger.

The speaker complimented the capitalists on their shrewdness and wisdom in protecting themselves as a class, and showed that while this tremendous organization which has all the power thru army and navy and the whole system of armed force, that they would be weak and helpless in the face of an organized working class who joined hands for the purpose of dictatorship and their own industrial and governmental system.

The Protective Shoe Workers' Union is based on the industrial principle and all workers in the industry are eligible to membership. It is in the shoe industry what the United Mine Workers are in the mining industry. Every other week the meeting is devoted to a short session of business and the remainder to education. The membership is aggressive and wide awake under the leadership of their giant organizer, Brother Cosgrove.

Gannes to Talk About "Toiling Youth" at Meeting Friday Night

Harry Gannes, of the Young Workers League will speak on Friday, Jan. 30, at Room 608, 166 West Washington St. The subject of his topic will be "The Toiling Youth."

Gannes has made an extensive study of the conditions of the young workers in America, the extent of the exploitation of youth in America, the extent to which child labor is used by American capitalists. He has written several books on the subject and is now running a serial story in the Young Worker.

This meeting is aranged under the auspices of Area Branch No. 1 of the Young Workers League. Admission is free. Everyone is invited to this meeting. This is one of the regular propaganda meetings arranged by this branch every month.

YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE DEMANDS THAT EXPLOITATION OF YOUTH AND CHILD LABOR BE ABOLISHED

The Young Workers League, American section of the Young Communist International, has issued a program for the fight against child labor.

The program demands equal wages for young and old workers, and full maintenance of all school children of workers and poor farmers by the government.

The anti-child labor program of the Young Workers League follows:

THE child labor question is one that vitally concerns every young worker in the country both as a member of the working class and as an individual. Child labor means that hundreds of thousands of future proletarian fighters are being driven into slavery that will drain them of their strength for the coming struggle. THE CAPITALIST STATE DENIES THE RIGHT OF PROLETARIAN CHILDREN TO HEALTH OR STRENGTH OR EDUCATION. It looks upon the children of workers and poor farmers as a convenient supply of cheap labor, to be exploited to the utmost, and to be used as a means for forcing down the wages of adult workers. It wants to train these children as the wage-slaves and cannon fodder of the future, and likes to get its hands on them and break them into submission at as early an age as possible.

It is of no concern to the capitalist class if hundreds of thousands of its child slaves are sick and stunted and ignorant and crippled in body and mind. But we, who look upon the proletarian youth as the builders of the new society, must unite all our forces for the struggle against the degradation and enslavement of the children of the American workers.

Program on Child Labor

The congress last spring submitted to the states for ratification a twentieth amendment to the constitution which reads as follows:

Section 1.—The congress shall have power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under eighteen years of age.

Section 2.—The power of the several states is unimpaired by this article except the operation of state laws shall be suspended to the extent necessary to give effect to legislation enacted by congress.

This amendment was passed in the house on April 26, 1924, by a vote of 297 to 69. It was passed in the senate on June 2, by a vote of 61 to 23. To adopt the amendment thirty six states must ratify. In 1924, three state legislatures have acted, Arkansas, Wisconsin, California, Arizona and several other states have ratified the amendment.

According to the statistics issued by the federal department of labor and the United States census bureau there are 1,060,000 children between the ages of 10 and 15 years at work in agricultural, manfacturing, and mining occupations. That this number does not represent the actual number of child slaves is admitted even by the department of labor which points out that no statistics were gathered on children under the age of 10, that the census (1920) was taken during January when many farm slaves go to school, and that no account was taken of employment like home industrial work, after school work, bootblacking, messenger boys, newsboys, etc. The actual number of child-laborers in this country may be more accurately guaged from a comparison of the discrepancy between the total amount of children in this country and the total that attends school during the year. From this it can be seen that the correct figure would be nearer to 3,500,000. This makes the problem of child labor a most prominent one. The following gives a good estimation on the existing legislation legalizing the employment of children

Fourteen states allow children to go to work without a common school education.

Nineteen states do not make physical fitness for work a condition of employment.

Eleven states allow children under sixteen to work from nine to eleven hours a day; one state does not regulate in any way daily hours of labor of children.

The child labor laws passed by the congress were declared unconstitutional by the supreme court. Since then child labor has increased by leaps and bounds. The twentieth amendment must go thru a long winded method of endorsements by state legislatures 13 of which are enough to kill it. There are at least 13 states where child labor forms one of the sources of big profits for important industries and as these industries control the state legislatures, this would assure the failure of the amendment's ratification. Even with the ratification of the twentieth amendment, the question of child labor would still have to be solved. Under capitalism the gainful employment of child labor will continue to exist. With the aid of technical machinery, child labor is able to produce as much as adult in many industries and this is accelerating the utilization of child labor. The child, due to his limited experience is paid less for his labor and this offers a means for the lowering of the wages of the whole working class. No amendment prohibiting the employment of children under 18 can remedy a situation of this kind. If profits are to be wrung from the labor of proletarian children, then capitalism will continue their employment. We work for the ratification of the amendment in conjunction with our broader demands, knowing that real protection of children can only be given when the working class takes political power.

Our Program

We demand the complete abolition of child labor and the substitution of the Communist vocational training (the work school), child labor being considered up to the age of 16. Our demand for the abolition of child labor and the institution of the work school differs from the demand for the abolition of child labor and the institution of vocational education made by the Consumers' League, National Child Labor Committee and various reports by the Children's Bureau, U. S. department of labor, in that the latter have in mind the abolition of child labor because they represent the bigger machine industry which requires able workers in opposition to the interests of primitive industries such as cannery, cotton picking and the like. They see that the exhaustion of children during youth produces unsatisfactory adult wage slaves and also that wage earning power and satisfaction are increased with skill.

We demand the training of children so they may be better fitted for social life. Our fundamental demands, altho we put them forward for agitational and propaganda purposes cannot be realized in the framework of capitalist society. We must, therefore carry on a campaign for the amelioration of the conditions of the child slaves, in the process of which the Young Workers' League, and the Junior Section shall participate together with the Workers Party and gain more influence and numbers.

Our immediate demands must naturally be more drastic and fundamental than those advocated by the "enlightened" bourgeoisie and the conservative trade unions. On the following demands we can secure the adherence of the large masses since they are based on the joint needs of the adult and young workers of the country which all can feel:

1. Limitation of the young workers day to a maximum of four hours with no overtime or night work, or labor in dangerous industries.
2. Equal wages for equal work for young and old.
3. Strict supervision of apprenticeship solely by the trade unions.
4. Organization of the children into the labor unions.
5. Compel the state legislature to immediately ratify the child labor amendment to the constitution.
6. Compel the state and federal legislatures to pass a law providing for full government maintenance of all school children of workers and poor farmers without which a child labor law is useless. The funds for this purpose to come from special taxes on high incomes.

The Campaign

We don't rely upon the lobbying of the legislative committees of the Gompers' machine; or upon the C. P. P. A. and LaFollette. We must organize the strength of the workers in a united front to fight for these demands and get their support for the Young Workers League and the Workers Party. The campaign is divided as follows: Literature and press, publicity agitation for our demands and organization.

Organization.

1. To issue joint call with Workers Party for local united front conferences to combat exploitation of child labor, these conferences to consist of organizations of workers and poor farmers.
2. Special efforts to be made to draw into these conferences organizations of working class youth, working class women's organizations and organizations of poor farmers.
3. A call for these conferences should be issued by the local organizations in conjunction with the Workers' Party including also sympathetic labor organizations.
4. The date of issuing call for the conferences will depend upon whether there has been sufficient agitation carried on in favor of such a campaign. We must guard against premature calling of such conferences.
5. The National Executive Committee must be kept informed regularly by weekly reports on the development of the campaign in each locality.

Duty of Press.

1. The Young Worker, the Young Comrade in co-operation with the DAILY WORKER systematically carry news, agitation articles, and editorials.
2. Leaflets shall be issued on special phases of the work.
3. We must popularize our demands as outlined in this policy and critize the child labor amendment in the light of our demands.
4. Start displaying every news item bearing on child labor.

The Junior Groups

The Junior Groups must be drawn actively into this campaign. This offers the opportunity for them to gain membership, giving them also a greater proletarian orientation, by having them participate in this phase of the class strugle. In localities where child labor is employed, efforts must be made thru the distribution of the Young Comrade to establish connections with the children. Their organization into nuclei will then be possible and its realization will mean the carrying of our campaign by and among the children themselves.

Put Labor on Record

The resolution will be sent to each unit giving expression to our policy in this campaign, to be proposed to all labor unions. This resolution to be introduced when sufficient agitation has prepared the ground for such action.

OAKLAND BOSSES GIVE 'DINNER IN WOOD YARD'

The Mystery of 800 Vanished Jobless

(Special to The Daily Worker)

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 28.—The police department, the banks and the chamber of commerce are the targets of occasional letters from the unemployed, breathing the desperation of destitution.

After All, It Is a Shame.

"It is work we want and we are going to eat if we have to do it by stealing and killing those who have it," said an anonymous writer in a letter to Chief of Police James T. Drew. "It is a shame, as much as this world has, that people are going hungry."

Dinner In a Woodyard.

The merchant's exchange gave a "dinner" to the unemployed last Sunday. And where do you think the unemployed were invited to luxuriate? In the municipal wood yard!

There were 750 workless and homeless workers present. The local capitalist press says that a similar affair was given one year ago and that 1,500 were present at that time. Meals only once a year may have caused mortality that could account for the difference.

Did 800 Starve to Death?

Certainly it is wonderful endurance that the merchant's exchange must have expected from 1,500 unemployed if they thot the jobless could keep alive with a whole year between meals.

Capitalists Suppress Local Politician's Move to Recall Hoan

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wisc., Jan. 28.—An attempt by local politicians to initiate a move for the recall of Socialist Mayor Hoan is meeting with little success. It seems that local socialists prove themselves good servants to the capitalist and the latter do not care to spend any money for the recall of Mayor Hoan.

The movement for recall started when Mayor Hoan appointed a socialist as fire chief and disregarded seniority rights in the fire dept. The local politicians initiated a movement for recall but the whole thing is rapidly fading away since the socialists are no longer feared by the capitalists.

During the last year the socialist party has rapidly declined in prestige and influence since the workers are more and more convinced that the socialist party is but another part of the capitalist class.

STAMPS MAY COME, AND STAMPS MAY GO; BUT DAILY WORKER'S LUCKY!

For lack of a nail, the shoe was lost; for lack of a shoe, the horse was lame; and the lame horse lost the race and the money was lost . . . Doesn't one of Aesop's fables read something like that?

At any rate, this didn't happen in the case of the nail in the DAILY WORKER Insurance Policy drive. DAILY WORKER Builders never lose their nails; they always drive 'em home!

One day there came to the DAILY WORKER office, a small, insignificant looking gray card. It was from the postmaster at Wilmington, Del., and it said, "There is a letter from you here. Send two cent stamp." Incidentally, as part of the day's routine, a stamp was sent.

By return mail arrived an insignificant looking envelope, with the stamp upside down. Within was a form letter, filled out as follows: Secretary, George Holgate. City, Edgemore. State, Delaware. The langugage of our branch is English. The number of members is 5. We enclose the sum of $30.00.

And, sure enough, the money was not lost, and the race was won by two lengths. Just double their quota; that's what these five militants sent. Evidently, it's a capitalist that's lost his horseshoe; for the DAILY WORKER right now has all the luck!

WHY CO-OPERATIVES WILL NEVER REMOVE THE SUFFERINGS OF THE FARMERS BEFORE A REVOLUTION

By ALFRED KNUTSON.

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 28.—During the last decades numerous farm organizations have been started for the supposed purpose of assisting the farmers, economically and politically Among such we have the American Farm Bureau Federation, the Farmers' Union, the Equity Co-operative Exchange, the Grange, the Producers' Alliance, the Nonpartisan League, and many others, as well as various local co-operative stores, elevators, creameries, lumber yards, etc.

Many farmers complain that their organisations do not succced because the leaders are crooked and for the reasons that farmers cannot stick together. While there may be some truth in this assertion it is hardly the chief reason why farm organizations are not able to deliver the goods in a way satisfactory to the farmer and in materially improving his living conditions.

Co-operation Doesn't Remove Capitalism.

The main reason why they meet with failure or much limited success is to be found in the fact that they are operating within the framework of the private business system of capitalism which is absolutely hostile to mass co-operative enterprises, and this circumstance decidedly curtails their activities. From the very beginning they are viciously fought by private business.

A striking example of how the capitalist system prevents the success of co-operative efforts is to be found in the attempt of the non-partisan league in North Dakota to promote the state mill and elevator system at Grand Forks. First, it was a difficult job to raise the funds wherewith to construct this enterprise, and now that it is completed and in running order it meets with such hostility from the capitalist business world that no success can be looked for.

Any Serious Move Is Crushed.

Whether the state government of North Dakota is friendly towards this institution or not makes little difference, because, if it seriously threatens private profits, the economic and political power of the banks, the railroads and the milling combine will surely find means of crushing it.

So also with the Bank of North Dakota. It, too, will be fought to a standstill by the private banks if it seriously attempts to help the poor farmers.

A Workers' and Farmers' Government.

The capitalist rulers do not intend that such movements shall succeed, and proof that they have not succeeded is to be found in the fact that their combined activities in behalf of the farmers down thru the decades, have not been able to stop the steadily increasing impoverishment of the farming masses.

The problems facing the farmers as well as the workers are complex and the basis for their solution lies in doing away with the whole capitalist system that robs them of the fruits of their toil and in the establishment of a farmers' and workers' government.

Real, Not Fake Co-operatives.

Of course, farmers should participate in co-operative efforts, even under the capitalist system because of the training and education it gives them in managing their own affairs but such co-operatives must be really owned and closely controlled by farmers and when so doing it must also always be kept in mind that the real evil of exploitation under which they suffer cannot be abolished in that way.

For a substantial solution of their problems they must build their own political and economic system and it is the important task of the Workers (Communist) Party to organize and perfect such a system. Every farmer should make it a point to study carefully the program and constitution of this organisation.

FIGHT CHILD LABOR IN ILLINOIS

child labor committee, made the first of a series of speeches scheduled in Illinois at the Chicago city club.

Meanwhile the Illinois manufacturers' association is spreading propaganda openly advocating the employing of children in the factories.

Employers Want Cheap Labor.

In a statement recently issued, Eric E. Matchette, a manufacturer, has declared that children should not be taken out of industry, that they thrive on it.

"In all most every pamphlet I read I find the slogan 'Industry is never justified in thriving on the children,'" said Matchette. "Let us grant this argument its full force but bear in mind that children are justified in thriving on industry. And industry should not be denied them."

Boasts of Child Slavery.

George R. Meyer cord recently stated, "I am a large employer of labor not only in Illinois but in several other states. And many of our employes are under eighteen years of age." The manufacturer frankly opposes abolition of child labor because it will take his labor supply away from him and make him pay higher wages to adult workers.

John M. Glenn, editor of the Manufacturers' News, and leader of the Illinois manufacturers' association, has organized the manufacturers for a united assault on the state assembly at Springfield. Glenn urges the factory owners to bring pressure to bear on the legislature and force them to defeat the ratification of the proposed amendment empowering congress to regulate and prohibit child labor.

"We Our Own Law-Makers."

"It is our duty," declared Glenn to the manufacturers, "To advise our state legislators as to our wishes in the matter, and it is their duty to carry out our wishes. They are not placed in the state capital to be kings over us, independent of our desires. They are there to represent us. We must advise them, by letter and telephone and word of mouth that it is our desire that the proposed twentieth amendment be rejected and stay rejected. And we must hold them, each state senator and state representative, personally acocuntable for their vote."

Glenn made it quite plain why the manufacturers are opposing ratification of the child labor amendment by the Illinois assembly when he said "The amendment is a union labor scheme being pushed for the purpose of reducing the number of employes in the factory on the farm and in commercial houses so as to make labor scarce and wages high." The Illinois manufacturers are fighting the move to abolish child labor because they want to keep wages low and cheap labor plentiful.

Ford Would Work Children.

Henry Ford has joined the other employers who are trying to assure a cheap labor supply and has opened up the columns of his magazine, "The Dearborn Independent" to the manufacturers' propaganda in favor of child labor. In the Jan. 24 issue of the Dearborn Independent is an article "Is it a crime to make boys work"? which advocates the labor of children when they reach the age of six. "Not sixteen but six is the right age to begin to teach a child to work. We need a schedule for such training. I made one of this kind, and I hope soon to attempt a better," says this article in Ford's magazine, which is being peddled on the streets of Chicago this week.

The Illinois manufacturers' association announces that it is holding a public meeting in Springfield soon in an attempt to influence the Illinois legislature against the child labor bill.

The Illinois League of Women Voters, the Illinois Federation of Labor, and the National Child Labor Committee are fighting for the passage of the resolution ratifying the child labor amendment.

Ratification Not Enough.

But the Communists are the only ones who point out that ratification of this amendment is not enough. Child labor will not be abolished as long as the profit system endures, and as long as the employers are allowed to wring profits out of the bodies of America's youth. The Communists are the only ones who demand that the workers must take over the industries and run them for their own use and that the youth of school age be maintained by the state while securing an education.

H. M. DAUGHERTY TRIES TO SPILL CAPITOL'S DIRT

Oily Harry Called, As "Character Witness"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Jan. 28. — United States Judge Walter Lindley refused this afternoon to let Harry M. Daugherty, formerly United States attorney general, testify at the conspiracy trial of Gaston B. Means, detective, and Thomas D. Elder, attorney, as to the real truth about some things that "ought to be told," about official Washington.

The court directed Daugherty, a defense witness, not to give testimony about immaterial matters after Daugherty had remarked that "There are some hell-bound and spell-bound people in Washington."

Means and Felder, accused of bribe taking in the Glass Casket company mail fraud, indictments, called Daugherty as a character witness. When the former attorney general was asked whether he could testify as to Felder's integrity he replied:

"If the court will let me take the liberty, I will state that I could not testify as to the integrity and honesty of any man, especially if he held a high government position. If he were a high public official, he would be all the more subject to attack.

"I could not testify as to my own reputation the minute I get away from this."

At another point Daugherty observed: "If the court will allow me to say this, I should be glad to testify to anything that would be for the general good of the public. There are some hell-bound and some spell-bound people in Washington. The real truth of some things ought to be told."

Asked what he could say about Means, Daugherty responded:

"I knew Gaston Means like I knew hundreds of thousands of other government employes."

Means on a number of occasions was an investigator for the bureau of investigation of the department of justice.

Daugherty said he had spoken only once to Means and that was upon entering the department building in Washington, when he said:

"How do you do?"

"I dismissed him at one time," Daugherty said of Means. "At the urgent request of William J. Burns I reemployed him in a certain capacity."

Felder followed Daugherty and contradicted previous testimony regarding names, dates and letters in his files.

TRAITORS BETRAY EACH OTHER IN SOCIALIST RANKS

Abramovich's Pals All Excel Each Other

By Max Bedacht

A report reaches here from Vienna that the executive committee of the Second International has appointed a grievance committee to sit in judgment about the fight between the social-democratic leaders of Hungary in emmigration in Vienna since the fall of the Hungarian Soviet Republic, and the social democratic leaders of Hungary in Hungary.

The emmigrant group in Vienna feels that it is being mistreated. Its members were caught in the storm of the Hungarian revolution in 1919. The tide of the proletarian revolt had risen high. The social-democrats of Hungary felt that it was impossible to stem the tide. They would have been crushed in the attempt. So they decided to play the role of Judas within the movement.

Conspired With Bloody Horthy.

A working agreement was entered into with the Communists. But secretly the social-democrats conspired with the counter-revolutionary forces of Hungary, with the emissaries of allied capital and with the military leaders of Roumania, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. Their treachery succeeded. The Soviets of Hungary were crushed.

The Hungarian social-democrats expected their reward. But their fate was different from that of their German prototypes. Victorious reaction in Hungary felt so strong that it did not need the services of the traitors. So the reward for their treacherous services was not a government position but a swift kick which landed these social-democrats in Vienna as emigrants dodging persecution by their erstwhile allies of the Hungarian revolution.

This was disapointment No. 1; but they were in for more.

In Vienna these social-democrats did not feel at home. They were on foreign ground. Betraying workers in grand style is only possible when one has workers to betray. In Vienna that job was performed by the native social-democrats. No wonder, therefore, that these exiles longed to be back in Hungary.

Disappointment Number Two.

To get back they had to rely on their fortunate social-democratic brother leaders who could remain in Hungary. But here disappointment hit them. The social-democrats of Hungary, instead of confining their betrayals to the workers of Hungary also betrayed their brother leaders in Vienna. They made an agreement with the Horthy government to support all its policies; and general amnesty did not happen to be one of Horthy's policies.

Traitors' Three Ring Circus

Now the traitors of Vienna appeal against the traitors of Budapest to the traitors of Amsterdam. And the grievance committee appointed by the executive committee of the Second International is the result. The Committee is composed of Tom Shaw for England, Karl Kautsky for Germany, Otto Bauer for Austria, and De Brouker for Holland.

Since the stage is all set the comedy can begin. It will be one that would even astonish Machiavelli in his cynical deceptiveness.

RUSSIAN ART LINEN AND HAND EMBROIDERY AT DEFENSE BAZAAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—A shipment of exquisite hand-woven linen and embroidery has been received from Soviet Russia for the joint bazaar. These articles from that "barbarous" country reveal the high stage of artistic talent which the Russian peasant has reached.

One must have seen the peasants in their homes where they weave this wonderful stuff and embroider it, to appreciate the love and enthusiasm that they put into every article—into every stitch. Old men and women, middle-aged men and women and even young girls turn the wheel and weave the cloth. And then the artful manner in which they apply the needle, and the beautiful colored thread that they pass thru the linen in most wonderful designs—all indicates the art that the Russian peasant possesses.

These linens comprise articles of great variety. There are bags, tablecovers, napkins, sashes, blouses, center-pieces, etc. The prices will be far lower than those charged by the department stores.

These articles will be at the Russian booth of the joint bazaar, arranged by the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council, which takes place at the Lyceum, 86th St. and 3rd Ave., Feb. 11, 12, 13, 14. No lover of art, no one desirous of having these precious articles should fail to attend the bazaar. At the same time, he will be performing a splendid act of solidarity by helping along the cause of relief of the political prisoners and their families in Europe and of defense of the revolutionary workers before the capitalist courts of the United States.

HERE IS CHARACTERISTIC EXAMPLE OF SOCIAL-DEMOCRATIC TREACHERY

The treaty does not contain anything which every socialist party of the world—if we disregard the Third International—would not have recognized or at least realized by its practical attitude. On the other hand, the treaty does not contain anything which would not have been the duty of every conservative bourgeois government; and a point of honor of the whole thing is that the treaty has been fully observed and that both parties have honestly fulfilled its provisions.

—Neues Pester Journal, Jan. 1, 1925.

THE social-democratic party is ready to declare that it will consider the general interests of the nation and of the country under present-day conditions and, after the experiences it has gained, as of equal importance to the interests of the working class; it must therefore fight and make sacrifices for the interests of the nation and of the country as well as for the working class.

The party will in its conduct aim at the above, and not only abstain from all propaganda injurious to the interests of Hungary, but on the contrary will carry on an active propaganda on behalf of Hungary; on the one hand, among the leaders of the foreign social democratic parties, with the foreign governments, etc., and for this purpose will co-operate with the Hungarian foreign minister, and on the other hand, will break off all connections with the emigrants; this it does openly and takes up the fight against them abroad.

A. With Regard to Foreign Policy.

The social democratic party undertakes in all disputed foreign political questions concerning the nation as a whole, expressly to adopt the Magyar standpoint to the same extent as the German majority social democrats and other moderate social democrats always do, who, in questions of this kind, never adopt the standpoint of governments of hostile states.

It shall make use of its connections with the foreign moderate social democratic circles to counteract the unfounded reports spread regarding terror in Hungary and to exert its influence in order that the foreign countries shall obtain a picture of Hungary which is in accordance with the facts.

In order that this end may be achieved, the social democratic party will, before all, in its organ, Nepsava, adopt an impartial attitude and loyally express in this paper the collaboration with the bourgeois society which will result in these actions, finding an echo in the foreign press.

It will do its utmost to inform the foreign social democratic press regarding this agreement, and especially undertakes that prominent party members shall publish articles regarding this treaty in the right wing labor press abroad, for example, in Germany, France, England, Switzerland, Sweden, Holland and the United States.

With regard to the obviously lying and malicious reports appearing in the foreign press, the Nepsava undertakes—when it is convinced of the untruth of the reports in question—upon the request of the press department of the foreign ministry, to contradict these reports.

B. With Regard to Home Policy.

1. It considers the reconstruction of the country, which is also in the interests of the workers, to be of such importance that for this purpose it is disposed to co-operate with the bourgeois classes in the economic sphere, to abstain unconditionally from political strikes, and to leave the solution of wages questions to that organization which is mentoned in the second clause of the 11th section of the present protocol. (Government intervention and arbitration court.)

2. In the sphere of home politics it breaks with the liberal bloc; it refuses to support the bourgeois demagogy and the octobrist elements. In its opposition to the government it will only employ decent weapons and will not carry on a factious demagogy. It will conduct no republican propaganda.

3. It takes note of the declaration of the prime minister, according to which the government interprets the item regarding the right of combination and assembly in such a manner that the social democratic party shall not extend its agitation among the argicultural workers, as it did in the autumn of 1918 in the provinces.

The delegates of the Hungarian social democratic party declare that they agree to the wishes expressed by the prime minister, both with regard to foreign and home policy and give assurance of fulfillment on their part. They will do this all the more as all these interests, which are bound up with the restoration of the good repute of Hungary, with its inner consolidation and economic revial, are also the interests of the Hungarian social democratic workers.

They nominate on their part a delegate who constantly maintains connections with the foreign ministry. With regard to the above interpretation by the prime minister of the right of combination and assembly, the delegates of the social democratic working class declare that the social democratic party is not in a position to forbid the union of agricultural workers to continue trade union activity in its existing organizations, but they take note of the declaration of the prime minister, according to which the government interprets the point regarding the right of combination and assembly in the sense that the social democratic party does not extend its agitation to the agricultural workers, as it did in autumn, 1918, in the provinces. Finally, it undertakes to get these interests and opinions adopted by its masses and organizations.

This protocol, after same was read in the presence of all parties, was confirmed in two original copies and certified. The one original copy is retained by his Hungarian majesty's prime minister, the other is handed over to the undersigned delegates of the Hungarian social democratic working class.

Budapest, December 22, 1921.

Signed in behalf of the government:

Stefan Bethlen, his Hungarian majestey's prime minister.

Kuno Klebelsberg, his Hungarian majesty's minister of the interior.

KUSBAS PLANT IS WINNING, ADMITS ENGINEERING ARTICLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.— The by-product coking plant which the autonomous industrial colony in the Kuznetz Basin (Kusbas) in Central Siberia is operating has aroused the attention of the American engineering world, as is shown by a display article in Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering. The article prepared by N. L. Kishor, formerly shift superintendent and H. Kweit, formerly in charge of the laboratory at the coking plant deals with its unexampled difficulties of rigorous climate and lack of native skilled workers which it is overcoming. But success is coming with the installation of modern equipment.

Forecasting a great industrial future for this region, so late a near wilderness, the article ends:

"And when one considers the tremendous reserves of coal and iron ore in the Kuznetz Basin, he can have no doubt that the Kemerovo plant is only one of the greatest metallurgical and chemical centers of the world."

Burns Not Allowed To Mention Mellon In N. Y. Graft Trial

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—William J. Burns, testifying at the trial of Gaston B. Means, formerly his lieutenant in the department of justice, was not permitted to testify regarding a deficit in the republican campaign funds.

An objection of the government cut short Burn's answer to the question of Frank P. Walsh, lawyer for Col. Thomas Felder, partner of Harry Daugherty, former attorney general, when the government prosecutor raised an objection.

Burns was asked, "Was there ever a conference at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel at which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, former Attorney General Daugherty, and you were present and at which the glass casket case was discussed." When Burns was not permitted to answer Walsh asked, "Did you ever say there was a deficit in the republican campaign fund?"

Former witnesses had testified that Burns and Daugherty were bribed, along with Means, not to indict the stock promotors of the casket company. These witnesses had implicated Mellon, Daugherty and Burns. Daugherty will testify soon.

SOCIALISTS OF HUNGARY UNITE WITH FASCISTI

pact; and finally, that they only signed it in order to obtain an amnesty for some hundred political prisoners. So many words, so many lies. It can be proved by innumerable facts that the pact has been "honorably" fulfilled on the part of the social democratic leaders. The official social democratic party organ has up to the present written nothing regarding class war, it preached class harmony, and even in August, 1924, spoke of the consolidation of Hungary. For years even Garami and Buchinger, who belong to the extreme right wing of social democracy, were not addressed as comrades and refused to publish their declarations and even their denials. One of the leaders of the name of Rothenstein wrote articles under his own name, in accordance with the treaty, in the foreign social democratic press and Peyer and Miakits, who were parties to the treaty toured the whole world and proclaimed that not Horthy, but the revolution is the cause of all the sufferings of the proletariat.

In parliament the social democratic fraction, even in 1923, voted along with Bethlen for the chief of the police who assisted in bringing about the shameful treaty. Twice they openly concluded civil peace and promoted the "restoration" which aimed at enslaving the proletariat and strengthening the counter-revolutionary apparatus. Peyer advocated in Bratislava (Pressburg), at a conference with the Czechish government socialists and leaders of the emigrants, in the name of the Hungarian social democratic party, the "unconditional" foreign loan for Bethlen. They throttled economic strikes, and when in 1924 the printers spontaneously entered on a general strike on account of the confiscation of the Nepsava, the parliamentary fraction and the party central repudiated the printers and even the central organ.

Equally futile is the excuse that these scoundrels only concluded the pact because by so doing they obtained an amnesty for some hundreds of social democrats. In paragraph six of the pact, the amnesty is limited to minor offenses which were committed between October 31, 1918 and March 21, 1919. On October 31, 1918, the bourgeois Karoly government came into office, and March 21 is the date of the proclamation of the proletarian dictatorship. But during the Karoly government it was not thousands, not even hundreds, but only a few dozen proletarians who were persecuted by the Horthy government on account of minor offenses. This amnesty could therefore in no way liberate hundreds from the dungeons of Horthy. And even among these few dozens a very careful selection was made, as the pact provided that only those would be pardoned "who are not dangerous to the public safety."

On the other hand, the many thousands of social democratic workers who honestly co-operated in the proletarian dictatorship, and were therefore threatened by the white terror, were excluded from the agreement. This fact is not altered by the clause of the pact which states: "The government is also inclined to propose from time to time to pardon all those who are recommended by the social democratic working class, and who, up to the time of the meeting of the national assembly, have been condemned on account of creating disorder or infringements of the press laws, if the minister of justice regards this justified by the circumstances." Every worker in Hungary knows that by this clause only a few are set free "from time to time" and not in any case hundreds.

But clause six of the pact which has been published only contains a part of the amnesty and does not contain the actual general amnesty of Christmas, 1921. This amnesty actually pardoned hundreds of countetrrevolutionary murderers of proletarians who had acted out of "patriotic" grounds. Without the sham amnesty contained in the pact, Bethlen would never have ventured to grant a real amnesty for the murderers of the social democrats Somogyi and Basco, for the murderers of Orgovany and Siofok. Thus, by their action, the Peyer bandits did not sanction the liberation of hundreds of proletarians but of hundreds of murderers of proletarians.

These are the naked facts regarding the pact, with the help of which the social democratic betrayers of the proletariat were able to continue their shameful existence for another three years. But neither their pact nor their lies regarding the pact will be able to save them in the long run from the court of the revolutionary proletarian masses.

TWO THOUSAND "PHILLY" WORKERS APPLAUD THE TEACHINGS OF LENIN

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 28.—Fully two thousand Philadelphia workers joined in the celebration of the Lenin Memorial meeting here which took place Sautrday night at Lulu Temple. Every seat in the large hall was taken and many were forced to stand.

The unbounded enthusiasm and revolutionary spirit manifested by the mass gathering at which Olgin, Carlson, and Rebecca Grecht spoke is a clear indication that the workers here are prepared to follow the lead of that Communist movement of which Lenin was the founder and leader.

Pledge Selves to Leninism.

Comrade R. Baker, city secretary of the Workers Party was chairman of the meeting. His opening words, "That we come here not to mourn the loss of our beloved comrade and leader but to pledge ourselves to fight on for the selfsame cause to which he gave his life" met with stormy applause. Following this the International was sung by the audience. Then came some songs by the Freiheit Singing Society, whose rendition especially of the Funeral March of a Russian revolutionist, was remarkable for its strength, depth and beauty. The International Orchestra also rendered a number of excellent selections during the course of the program.

People Mourned His Death.

Comrade Oliver Carlson, the first speaker, described the reaction of the poor and the rich in Finland to the news of Lenin's death (Carlson was passing thru that country on his way into Russia just at that time) and then he told about the pall of sorrow which hung over the whole of Russia during the next few weeks. He spoke of some of the work that Lenin had done, mentioning in particular the building of the Russian Communist Party and the Communist International.

"We can best show our respect and honor for Lenin and the ideas for which he fought" said Carlson, "by taking our place within the ranks of the American section of the Communist International—the Workers Party of America and the Young Workers' League."

"Movies" of Lenin.

Motion pictures of Lenin, the funeral procession, and the pilgrimage of the Youpng Leninists to the tomb of Lenin on the first of May were then presented. Following this came the presentation of a beautiful hand-made banner by the Young Workers' League of Philadelphia to the Workers' Party. This close spirit of co-operation between the youth and adult movement struck home upon the crowd as no speech could have done and brought forth an enthusiastic response from the audience.

Rebecca Grecht, in appealing for a collection on behalf of the Workers Party and the Labor Defense Council showed how necessary it was for the workers here to give full and complete support to the work that our party is doing, and stressed the need at this time to raise funds for conducting a vigorous fight to keep out of jail all those of our comrades who were indicted in Michigan for criminal syndicalism.

Lenin Built Party.

Comrade Olgin, the last speaker was given a remarkable ovation. For almost three-quarters of an hour he spoke of the life and works of Lenin of the trials and joys and aspirations of the Russian workers and peasants of the long years of civil war and famine and economic blockade—and how thru all this Lenin had towered above all others, leading the way to a victorious Soviet government against the counter-revolutionists, against the interventionists, and against the famine.

"The red flag which now flies over the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics will soon be waving over every country in the world. The length of time that elapses ere this takes place depends entirely upon ourselves. On to the social revolution under the banner of Leninism and the Communist International!"—these were his concluding words. The International was sung once more—and the meeting adjourned amidst thunderous applause and a rousing demonstration which showed the revolutionary spirit of Philadelphia's workers.

CHRIST AND CAPITAL AGAIN ADVANCE OVER DEAD PAGAN PEOPLE

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 28.—The Philippine constabulary, the native force used by American colonial imperialism in the islands, has a few more murders charged to its debit when they attacked a Moro tribe in Lanno province of Mindanao, the southern most island of the Philippine group.

Dispatches to Manila from Mindanao are meager, indicating only that eight Moros were killed, among them the leader of the tribe. As usual in such cases the natives are labeled as frenzied religious fanatics intent on slaughter of christians, but the cause in this case is probably the same as usual, the forcible encroachment upon the lands and lives of natives of capitalist agents seized natural resources in the name of a "higher" civilization.

How Capitalist Papers Bluff.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.— The New York Times informed us in a broad headline that "Factory Payrolls Swell." Not many workers read the N. Y. Times, otherwise they might be surprised to read in the midst of the following report that "wage rate decreases in December were more numerous than in the previous month, but the movement toward decreased rates which was gaining headway during the early summer appears to have worked itself out."

Wage rates increase by decreasing, according to the capitalist agencies. The workers who get these wages know best. If they don't get more pay in their envelopes, at least they get it in the N. Y. Times.

German Kids Leave French Foster Dads.

PARIS.—Seventy-four German children who have spent the past four and a half months in the homes of Paris workers have been returned to their parents in Berlin, Hamburg and Leipsic. They are part of two groups organized by the International Workers Aid. It is stated this work will be continued as funds permit. The German children and their French foster parents have become much attached to each other and correspondence between they will be carried on.

'CAL' TRIES TO KILL THE POSTAL PAY RAISE BILL

Substitute Bill Buried Under Amendments

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 28.—The Coolidge senators are trying to kill the bill proposing to raise the pay of postal employees, by introducing a flood of amendments. With only a month to go before the end of congress, Coolidge is trying to stave off a vote on the postal bill, and thus deprive the postal employes of their salary increase.

The Moses postal bill, which is a Coolidge substitute for the original pay raise bill, vetoed by Coolidge, was denounced in the senate today by Hiram Johnson of California. "It is a fraud and a sham", said Johnson. "Every senator knows that it is a debunking process and will not raise sufficient revenues to meet the costs of increased pay for postal employes."

Some of the amendments introduced were the Butler amendment, giving religious publication a preferential postal rate over daily newspapers. Senator Harreld also offered an amendment providing that all religious publications should enjoy preferential rate except those paying their editors a yearly salary of more than $12,000.

The Moses bill increases the pay of postal employes, but also increases postal rates in such a way that many senators declare they cannot be put into effect.

Jessica Smith Talks At West Side Branch On Russian Progress

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Graphically describing the present conditions and the rapid progress the first workers' republic is making in industry and agriculture and education, Jessica Smith, recently returned from a stay of three years in Russia, drew volleys of applause from two hundred listeners gathered at the headquarters of the West Side branch of the Workers Party.

The lecturer described the improvement in the industries. She showed how the peasants are constantly increasing their crop area by adopting as fast as possible more modern methods and by introducing machinery shipped them by advanced countries.

Of the 120,000,000 farmers in Russia, the speaker said, only a small number have any conception of farm machinery such as is now generally used in America. At first they are sceptic, but on seeing the value of modern machinery learn marvellously fast to operate and to become expert at their new methods.

The vehicle of education of both common schools and at the universities, said the lecturer, was practical studies in agriculture and industry, so that when a student went out into real life he went into the field where his studies had already made him at home. Students are given a stipend on which they can live while at school. Thus the Soviet government is caring for the future expert managers and workers while they are preparing for their tasks in the big work of the country.

Theatrical Union Business Agent Shot in Gang War

George E. Browne, business agent of the Chicago Theatrical Protective Union, Local No. 2, was led to a hospital by an unidentified man, with gun shot wounds. Browne was shot in connection with the gangland war which resulted in the shooting of John Torrio, the chief boptlegger of Chicago's underworld, police say.

The business agent was led to a hospital early yesterday by a young man who left him standing by the information desk. "I've been shot," Browne told the attendant. "Fix me up, will you?" Browne refused to give police information as to the cause of the shooting. He is being guarded by police.

SMITH BILL TO SOOTHE FARMERS! PASSES THE BUCK IN EMPTY WORDS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The senate took its final legislative step today toward enactment of the Smith bill, supposed to declare agriculture the basic industry of the nation, when it approved a conference report on the measure. This is one fake measure designed to soothe the raging farmers.

The bill authorizes the interstate commerce commission to review and revise the general structure of railroad rates and to give agricultural products, including livestock, the "lowest possible lawful rates," which doesn't mean anything but sounds "fair".

EZRA POUND WINS PRESIDENCY OF WIS. UNIVERSITY

Was Foe of Palmer's Red Raids

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MADISON, Wisc., Jan. 28.—Liberal ascendancy in the university of Wisconsin after the war years of reaction is signalized by the election of Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard law school, to the university presidency at Madison.

Pound was one of the 12 lawyers of national reputation who in 1920 called public attention to the illegal practices of the department of justice in its read raids under Mitchell Palmer.

"Under the guise of a campaign for the suppression of radical activity," said Pound and his associates, "the office of the attorney general, acting by its local agents thruout the country, and giving express instructions from Washington, has committed continued illegal acts. Wholesale arrests, both of aliens and citizens, have been made without warrant or any process of law; men and women have been jailed and held incommunicado without access of friends or counsel; homes have been entered without search warrants and property seized and removed; other property has been wantonly destroyed, working men and working women suspected of radical views have been shamefully abused and maltreated."

Spring's Invasion of Harlem to Be Met by Big Dance Festival

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Saturday evening, March 21, is Harlem evening. Everything else must be set aside. The Harlem English branch of the Workers Party will hold a spring festival and dance on that evening. Hold that date open for the great event. Tourist parties to Harlem are welcome. Fair guides will be on hand. Anyone who has never been in Harlem before should not miss this opportunity. There is no place like Harlem. The races and nationalities of the world are well represented in Harlem and they will all be at the dance. The Chinese laundrymen will let their help off early that evening. The Negroes will be at the dance from the black belt. There will be Russians, Letts, Greeks, Hungarians and what not. Interpreters will be provided.

Those who can't dance can talk. A good talker is as good as a good dancer. And there is a whole lot to talk about nowadays even tho the party discussion is closed.

The gayest, the most colorful event of the year will take place Saturday evening, March 21, at the Harlem Casino, Lenox avenue and 116th street in the heart of Harlem.

FINANCIAL WRITER CALLS ALL EUROPEANS, EXCEPT RUSS, "OUR BONDED SLAVES, SERFS"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 28.—That the Dawes' plan upon Germany and the financial talons of Americacn banks upon the rest of Europe have raised the United States to the position of the most powerful imperialism in history, is frankly admitted, and the whole population of Europe with the exception of Russia, called "America's bonded slaves"—such is the swaggering truth poured out by Edward Dakin writing in a Wall Street magazine called Commerce and Finance.

Europe "Our" Slave Colony.

Quite frankly he states that America is the ruler of the world—except Soviet Russia! That the hundreds of millions of European peoples are bond slaves, serfs, to American capitalist imperialism.

Only on one point does he deceive and distort: He claims that the wealth of gold or merchandise which will pour into America from Europe, will be used by "every one of us," and will benefit all the people of America.

Will Enrich Only the Rich.

Yet everyone knows that only the capitalist bankers and industrial overlords will become still richer, while the workers of America will become poorer and will be compelled, unless they join in an international overthrowal of capitalism, to accept lower wages and worse conditions just because they will have to compete with driven "bond slaves of Europe."

Dakin's article, in part is as follows:

"As the world slips into 1925, we have all become—every one of us—the owners of hundreds of millions of able-bodied serfs. We have a mortgage on the lives both of the living and the unborn in practically every nation of Europe except Russia.

And "Our" Merchandise Producers?

"We shall have, if not gold pouring in, then its equivalent in merchandise. We can waste it, individually, in vain and effete living, as every great empire has finally wasted its resources in the past; or else, utilizing the modern invention called capitalism, we can mass it in ways that will enable us to remake the whole human environment—to remold the entire world to the heart's desire.

"With money—and the labor of bonded slaves."

Union Can Regulate Overtime—But Why Not Abolish It?

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 28.—A limit to overtime has been set by the Full Fashioned Hosiery Knitters' Union, Local 706. No shop where the union has control may work an operative more than one hour overtime per day nor more than five hours overtime a week, with a maximum yearly overtime limit of 40 hours.

Explaining the new rules Gustav Geiges, head of the local organization, said that excessive overtime exhausts the workers, impairing their health and lowering their efficiency. At the same time the general ban on overtime regulates competition among manufacturers.

Dad Must Sweat For Baby.

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—The California supreme court has decided, in the test case of Lloyd Swiggy, that prenatal contracts relieving the father of the support of an unborn child are illegal and void. Swiggy and his wife signed an agreement exempting him of legal responsibility for the care of the child about to be born to them.

WORKERS NEED HOLIDAY AFTER FOUR WORK DAYS, SAYS NOTED SCIENTIST

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Highest industrial efficiency will not come until the four day working week prevails, Walter N. Polakov, noted industrial engineer, declared in lecturing on Wastes in Industry at the Rand School.

Polakov would revise the calendar, replacing the seven day week with one of five days of which four would be devoted to work and one to rest and recreation.

His program is based on fatigue studies which show that after the first two working days the workers' energy wanes day by day, reaching lowest levels on Friday and Saturday.

CHILD SLAVES BY THOUSANDS IN COTTON MILLS

S. C. Works Them From Cradle to Grave

By JACK METTE
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

COLUMBIA, S. C.—South Carolina's legislature has voted millions of dollars for education in the same session that saw the federal child labor amendment rejected by unanimous vote. The state spends money on schools and teachers but herds thousands of its children into the cotton fields and mills.

Nearly $10,000,000 was appropriated for state expenses, much of which went to education. The schools are in fine condition. Millions have been spent for roads on which children could go to school; but they are used instead to transport children into the factories.

A visit to some of South Carolina's large cotton mills, where children 10 and 12 years of age are employed, though claiming to be 14 shows the need of government regulation of child labor. In South Carolina, "the cotton mill state," the masses work from the cradle to the grave.

LEGION BOASTS IT WILL CONTROL PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Civic Club Members Is Told How Its Done

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Having obtained the rank of dictator to the American workers as to political opinions, and having lined up the capitalists in the matter of strikebreaking—and still having the friendliest terms with the American Federation of Labor—the American legion considers itself called upon to direct the American schools.

Civic Club Entertains Legionite.

At the Civic Club on Jan. 24, Robert G. Paterson, commander of the New York county American legion declared that the right of the American legion to know what is going on in education is unquestioned. "As good citizens who came to the aid of the country when it needed us we are bound to be interested in education, without which there can be no government. In the war we learned that the greatest killing can be done with propaganda. Since the war, some propaganda has been most inimical to the best interests of the country. It has crept into places where it can do a great deal of harm. The American legion believes in simon-pure, 100 per cent Americanism."

Capitalist Propaganda, Yes.

We agree with the commander that propaganda "has crept into places where it can do a great deal of harm." When this 100 per cent Americanism is taught to children, when enmity to the labor movement is instilled in their minds, when they are taught to hate the things that their fathers are struggling for, then it IS doing a great deal of harm.

When the movies, the press, the school and the church are used to spread the vilest propaganda against the trade unions, against the unemployed, who are depicted as "lazy bums," we agree with the commander that the "greatest killing can be done with propaganda."

"Looney Gas" Still Marketed for Profit In New York State

ALBANY, N. Y.—The state health council advertises the fact that gasoline treated with tetraethyl lead or "looney gas" may be legally sold in New York state, beginning March 1. Only the treated gasoline, not the "looney gas" itself may be sold.

Five workers were recently killed in the Standard Oil company plant at Bayway, N. J., while working with the gas and scientific opinion is divided as to the safety with which even attentuated portions of it, mixed with gasoline, can be used.

Organized labor was active in securing the banning of such treated gasoline, following the Bayway disaster.

ACTORS' EQUITY ASSOCIATION PRODUCING PLAYS BY ITSELF WITH ALL-STAR UNION CAST

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The Actors' Theatre, successor to Equity Players, sponsored by Actors' Equity Association, is presenting a delightful revival of George Bernard Shaw's comedy "Candida" at the 48th Street Theatre, New York.

Carrying out the actors' union players' policy the production is all-star and has proven so successful that it has become a regular instead of merely a matinee performance.

The growing power of English workers is in the background of this play, written over 20 years ago. There are many good lines, especially in the dialogue between Candida's husband, Rev. James Mavor Morell, and her father, a cotton manufacturer. The clergyman, interested in the cause of the workers, asks why those who produce wealth shouldn't enjoy it as much as those who spend it. The manufacturer thinks his son-in-law crazy, but admits that he has had to raise wages for his girls in order to get county councils' contracts because the workers were strong enough to use political pressure.

Clare Eames, called the "perfect Prossy" (devoted stenographer to the reverend), has been forced to leave the cast by illness but Elizabeth Patterson plays the part with just the uncertain, shrill voice and wry humor (particularly after her first champagne party) it needs. Candida (Katherine Vornell) is glowing with sympathetic understanding. The curate is fussy and foolish as he should be and the young, supersensitive peer who exaggerates all horror at the loveliness of the world is excellently portrayed by Richard Bird.

The Actors' Theatre's first production of the season, "The Habitual Husband," by Dana Burnett, was not well received by public and critics, altho well acted. It did fulfill one of the aims of the actors' union group: "giving an important native writer his first production on Broadway." "Pierrot the Prodigal," French pantomime by Michel Carre, music by Andre Wormser, will be the next play of the Actors' Theatre, to be followed by "The Subway," of Elmer Rice, author of "The Adding Machine."

Vorowsky's murderer, who was acquitted by the White Guards courts of Switzerland, has come to the fore again.

He has just been sentenced to a "nominal" sentence of one month's imprisonment for threatening a girl with a revolver, AND IMMEDIATELY RELEASED.

These degenerate and putrid agents of capitalism are protected by the capitalist courts, no matter what their crimes.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Every day under this head you will learn not only what BUILDERS thruout the country are doing to build a greater newspaper, but also practical suggestions to accomplish more for OUR paper. Tell us what YOU are doing—and we will "tell the world."

We Tell A Little Secret.

WE asked all our agents what they thought of a credit plan we initiated to make the work of sub-getting easier. They all liked it, and why shoudn't they? Most of them already had it in practice on their own responsibility. "Old stuff" they told us—and now read what Comrade Harvitt of Toledo, has to say:

"Your credit plan is on the same order as the plan I have been using for the entire past year.

"I anticipated exactly at the start about the difficulty I would experience and which I have experienced in approaching a person who was not acquainted very well with me and always extended credit to such people and others who asked.

"When I took the job as secretary of The DAILY WORKER committee to boost the paper and secure subscriptions, even before I was elected DAILY WORKER agent I started in on the credit plan at once. I had a little nest egg in a capitalist bank and drew out this egg which amounted to $150 and I have turned this money over several times until it has furnished credit to the extent of $820.00 without using the credit that was offered by the DAILY WORKER office.

"Some of this credit I carried 30 days, some 60 days and some 6 months before I was able to collect it. In quite a few instances I was not able to collect at all, however, my commissions covered my losses and my expenses attached to the office of DAILY WORKER agent such as carfare and other incidentals."

And in another letter Comrade Harvitt tells us he lost only two dollars during the year. It's easy to see our credit plan will be a great success. And now we are going to tell a little secret. We put the plan into operation simply because we learned that it already was a success—only now, we are taking the responsibility.

WORKERS OF NEW YORK WILL RENEW PLEDGE THAT THE SPIRIT OF LENIN WILL NEVER DIE

By JULIUS CODKIND.
(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Sunday, February 1, we workers of New York will gather in Madison Square Garden to pay our respects to the memory of our great leader who, tho termed dead, remains with us in spirit.

The iron will of Lenin guided the Russian masses to victory over the bourgeoisie, and during the moments of the greatest danger to the revolution, that iron will inspired its defenders to renewed struggle and ultimate victory.

Inspired World's Workers.

With the same iron will, he inspired the revolutionary workers in all corners of the world to organise against capitalist oppression, imbuing them with his own determination to carry on—on to the dictatorship of the proletariat; and when the human frame, sapped of its vitality by the assassin's poisoned bullet, crumpled and worn, left us, there yet remained instilled in our beings, the courage, the determination, the resolution, the iron will to conquer the world and its resources for the working class.

Lenin Still Lives.

Lenin, called dead, lives in us. Lenin called dead, pervades our beings, and guides us in all the cities of all of lands and climates, to gather and demonstrate our strength and solidarity.

Already, Lenin, the man, is being widely recognised as one of the handful of the greatest men of all time. To us he stands the greatest. We are the bearers of his living spirit, journeying to Madison Square Garden on Sunday, February 1, at 2 o'clock, there to give it life.

GERMAN GOVT. 'DISTURBED' BY ALLIED CHARGE

Calls Allies' Bluff on Cologne Evacuation

(Special to the Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—Conditions are being "gravely disturbed" by the action of the allies in "raising charges without detailing or proving them," Germany will reply to the allies' latest note on the subject of the Cologne occupation, it was said today in diplomatic circles. Germany's answer will go forward late today, it was stated.

The formal note which was handed to Chancellor Luther yesterday by the British ambassador has aroused what the press terms "keen resentment" among the German people. It said nothing more, it was pointed out, than that the allies would not discuss the Cologne situation with the German government until the final report of the military control commission is complete.

The German note will argue, it was said, that the failure to evacuate Cologne would be "excusable only if France was threatened with an unprovoked attack, and there is not the slightest cause to suspect this."

[illegible] The Daily Worker for [illegible]

MUSIC • LITERATURE • DRAMA

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

"BORIS GODUNOV" was the semi-wind-up performance of the season given by the Chicago Civic opera company at the Auditorium last Saturday afternoon. "Boris Godunov" is a three act opera by Modest Musorgski, based on a play by Pushkin, which in turn is a dramatization of actual facts.

The Tsar Feodor, who ruled from 1584 to 1598, was an imbecile, and his brother-in-law, Boris Godunov, acted as regent for him. Feodor had two sons, one an idiot, one a normal child. Godunov has the normal boy, Dimitri, killed by Prince Shuiski.

Boris Ascends Throne.

Musorgski's opera begins just after Feodor's death. Boris ascends the throne. He is reluctant to do so at first. The first scene of the first act shows the populace of Moscow praying for him to become czar.

The second scene of the same act is in the cell of the monk Pimen. The old monk is writing a history of the misdeeds of Boris Godunov. He tells a young man, Gregory by name, how Boris had killed Dimitri. Gregory cooks up a scheme to go to Lithuania and to Poland, attract a following, march on Moscow and depose Boris claiming to be Dimitri.

Boris Has Rivals.

The Kremlin. Boris is troubled by dreams of the murdered Dimitri. Shuiski tells him that the false Dimitri's following is growing and that the throne of the czar is unsafe if Gregory once crosses the border. Shuiski swears to Boris that the real Dimitri was actually killed. Left alone, Boris is unnerved and frightened by a noise in an adjoining room. Theodore, the tsarevitch, tells him that the servants are playing with a parrot, causing the noise.

The forest of Kromy. The peasants rise in revolt against Boris. They hang the noble of the district, a vassal of Boris. Varlaam and Missail enter singing the praises of "Dimitri." Two jesuits also sing the praises of the pretender, but the peasants will have nothing to do with jesuits. "Dimitri" himself comes by with his troops, with the enthusiastic greeting of the peasants.

The Duma has assembled in the Kremlin to depose Boris. Boris enters, and is told by Pimen how a peasant had been cured of blindness by visiting the tomb of Dimitri. Boris dismisses the Duma, sends for his son, talks to him a long while, and dies as the Duma reassembles, pointing to his son as the future Tsar.

Plot of "Macbeth" Similar.

It is strange how sometimes these happenings and plots will reappear. It is doubtful whether William Shakespeare ever heard of Boris Godunov. Yet the plot of his "Macbeth" is identical with this episode of Russian history, and to make the thing more startling, "Macbeth" was written in 1606, one year after the death of Boris Godunov.

It is a strange score to which Musorgski set this story. A strange score, and a living and stirring one. The great choruses, notably that of the first act, with their vague, mystical, thoroly Slavonic melodic lines, show clearly the effect of the liturgical choruses of the Russian church upon Musorgski. The scene between Marina and Gregory is queerly out of place. It is a page borrowed from Italian opera. It is very good Italian opera, tho, much better than anything old man Verdi could concoct. Any aria, dance tune or whatnot in "Boris Godunov," except for the one scene just referred to, is first, thoroly Russian, second thoroly Musorgski. And Musorgski, tho a military officer by profession, a drunkard by vocation and a musical genius from some interior, unexplainable compulsion, wrote music that is one with the hopeless, the defeated and the ghost ridden of the earth.

Chaliapin sang the part of Boris, which means there is nothing more to be said. The rest of the cast ranged from excellent to very bad. Gladys Swarthout as the czarevitch was an admirable second to the principal Chaliapin.

The rest of the principals were some of them good, some not good. There was excellent work on the parts of Eduard Soutreuil as Varlaam, Maria Claessens as the nurse of the czarevitch, Douglas Stanbury as the secretary of the Duma, and Virgilio Lazzari as Pimen.

Antonio Cortis as Gregory and Augusta Lenska as Marina were indifferently bad. Romeo Boscacci as the village idiot in the forest scene was very bad.

It is Chaliapin of course, who puts the opera over. His performance is the ultimate in operatic work. Only Mary Garden, in the role of Salome, can come anywhere near him.

British Terror in India

The British financial secretary to the government of Bengal reported to Downing street that an elaborate plan for the assassination of British officials in India is on foot.

The report states that two terrorist leaders are under arrest, that organizers are at work in twenty districts, that the Hindoos are being trained in the use of arms, and that bomb factories have been discovered by agents of the British government. In addition, large quantities of ammunition are reported to have been smuggled into the country.

Undoubtedly there is a movement on foot in India to drive the British invaders out of that country. It is also certain that the pernicious pacifist propaganda is relegated to the limbo of history. But the stories of attempted assassinations are merely for the purpose of preparing the ground for the inauguration of a reign of terror in India that will glut the scaffold with the blood of those best able to lead the Hindoos from the bondage in which they are now in under the rule of the British Empire.

At this moment, Britain is engaged in a world-wide conspiracy against Soviet Russia, her most dangerous enemy. Russia is looked upon by the oppressed peoples of the east as their saviour. The diplomacy of the Soviet government is not directed towards acquiring new territories as was the diplomacy of the czar, but towards the liberation of the oppressed of humanity whether they be wage slaves under the yoke of capitalism or colonial peoples doubly robbed by a foreign imperialism.

Britain has temporarily crushed the revolt in Egypt. She has succeeded in getting the Irish question off her doorstep for the moment. But another storm will break and the robber empire will go down in a hurricane when her victims all over the world and her slaves in her own industrial hells rise in revolt and sweep one of the most hateful tyrannies in the history of the world from the face of the earth.

Our French Party

The French section of the Communist International has now a dues-paying membership of 76,000 and the circulation of its mighty daily paper, Humanite, has reached 200,000.

The growth of our French party is in striking contrast to the decline of the socialist party, which was compelled to suspend its daily paper last year thru lack of finance. On the other hand, the Communist Party raised a subscription of 1,000,000 francs for organizing purposes and a party loan of 800,000. This was done between last summer and the end of the year 1924.

The growth of the Communist parties in Europe and elsewhere cannot be measured by the number of representatives sent to the bourgeois legislatures, tho that is a very important form of Communist activity. But unlike the socialist parties, he basis of Communist strength is in the mass organisations of the workers, in the trade unions and in the shops. Thus the Communist Party of France influences the political situation considerably more than its representation in parliament would indicate. It is a tremendous revolutionary force and a terrible challenge to French imperialism.

Only Eight Lynchings in 1924

Official records show that ONLY eight Negroes were lynched in 1924. We are getting more and more civilized. They don't lynch the Negroes in the south so much now, because the Negroes are migrating to the north. The Negroes are very valuable and cheap hands for the southern cotton planters and cotton manufacturers, and when they began to leave the south for the north, the southern capitalists got frightened. So they are making life a little easier for the Negro workers—they are not lynching them so much.

Let the Negroes organize and then begin to talk "white" language to the bosses, and then big fights, big strikes will begin. Then they won't lynch the Negroes; they will call out the militia and federal troops and mow them down with machine guns. That is the civilized method.

The Monarchical Dung Pile

The little town of Coburg in Germany has become a dumping ground for unemployed monarchs. The principal tin cans on this monarchical rubbish pile are Grand Duke Cyril of Russia and the ex-king Ferdinand of Bulgaria.

Ferdinand, once called the "Fox of the Balkans;" is at least foxy enough to keep his mouth shut, but Cyril is not so tight lipped. He keeps an army of literary hacks busy issuing proclamations and countering the proclamations of other pretenders to the throne of the Romanoffs. The woods are full of such.

No matter how much the bourgeoisie hate the Soviet government, they nevertheless consider the play-acting of Cyril and his competitors as so much buffonery. But Cyril has several automobiles, servants and an abiding belief that God kept him alive until now so that he could ascend to the throne which most people have forgotten in the hurly burly of modern life.

The Grand Duke Nicholaivich, another pretender, objects to Cyril's claim that God is on his side and cites marks of divine favor to himself as evidence of his standing with the deity. The Soviet government, when it has a few moments to spare, watches the antics of the crazy czarists and remembers Napoleon's phrase that God is on the side of the heaviest battalions.

Treated Worse Than Dogs

That Chippewa Indians on the Minnesota reservations are treated worse than dogs is the report brought back to Minneapolis by two women members of the Indian relief committee, after a week's visit among the unfortunate wards of the United States government.

The committee found the most appalling conditions among the Indians. Dozens of women, eighty to one hundred years old, were lying on rags with no food in the house. Scores of children could not go to school for lack of clothing. What looked like a bundle of rags lying under a canopy turned out to be an old woman who was starving with hunger.

The burglars who stole their land from the Indians now leave the unfortunate victims of their thievery to starve in the midst of their patrimony. The American capitalist class that raise their hypocritical voices in horror over the confiscation of industry by the Russian revolution, look with equanimity on the robbery committed by themselves on the people whom they drove from their lands and into starvation. But robbery is their profession, and will continue to be their profession until the workers put an end to it.

Happy Farmers

Poets are inclined to sing the praise of the vagabond who wanders from place to place, unworried and unbound. But now the farmer is getting into the same class. Only he is not unworried and unbound. On the contrary, the latest reports indicate that the farmers are being driven from ownership of the soil with great rapidity.

There are 3,000,000 tenant farmers in this country, or nearly 50 per cent. In Texas there are 150,000 tenant farmers who, with their families, total about 650,000 persons, who wander from one tenant home to another, with their possessions in their wagons.

Eighty per cent of the farmers and farm help in Illinois are over 50 years old. It looks as if farming is attractive to young fellows in Illinois—so that they let it alone.

In 1920, 38.1 per cent of the 6,500,000 farmers were tenants. In 1925, nearly 50 per cent have been turned into tenants. Happy farmers—their proletarianization solves the farming question. It links them up more closely with the working class and makes revolutionary factors of them.

Mexico Not to Be Outdone

Commissioner Enright of the police department of New York is finding an emulator of his fingerprinting plans in Mexico. Ramon Ross, governor of the Federal District of Mexico, has decided to impose fingerprinting on all the inhabitants of his district—"for the use of the police."

It is obvious against whom this is being directed. The workers and poor peasants of Mexico are beginning to see thru the hollow schemes of Calles, the president-elect of the "people." Before election, he talked of the "workers and poor peasants," now he talks about his friends in Wall Street. Hence the governor is preparing in advance for the bitter struggles that are about to come in Mexico.

President Calles gained more favor in the eyes of the capitalists when he ordered the courts to proceed against his own chauffeur who was caught violating the speed law. "Ain't we giving them hell," was the slogan of the southern planters who drank champagne on the verandas in the cool evenings while the "white thrash" and their colored slaves were facing federal bullets during the civil war. Calles is setting a worthy example in law enforcement but we would like to know how the chauffeurs like it.

Frank Duffy, treasurer of the Carpenters' Union, fears that the radicals have their eyes on the union treasuries. They will need microscopes to find anything there by the time the reactionaries get thru.

LIES OF PRESS PROMOTE WAR, EDITOR SAYS

Newspapers Falsify at Government's Behest

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 28.—The capitalist press is one of the agents which fosters war, Bruce Bliven, well known newspaper man, and former editor of the New York Globe, told the conference on the cause and cure of war meeting here today.

"The influence of the newspapers promotes war by commonly allowing tense international situations to drift toward war without trying to avert a clash," said Bliven. "Newspapers deliberately lie at the behest of governments and often encourage their governments to become bellicose. They print the propaganda of war so enthusiastic during the time of hostilities that they prevent the conclusion of sound peace at the end because of prejudices engendered."

Coolidge Promises Of Prosperity Stark Joke on Schenectady

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 28.—There are about 5,000 unemployed in Schenectady, the home of the General Electric Co. These workers are down to their last penny, and many of them are starving. The city has been called upon to extend them aid, but the men want work, not charity.

To help out the wives and daughters of the workers are taking in work, or going out as charwomen. In the midst of the greatest plenty, with profits accumulating in the pocket of the capitalists—with the wealth of the country computed to be about 320 billions, there are starving workers in a rich industrial town.

They were promised that the beginning of the new year, the opening of the first year after a presidential election, would see jobs for all. But they got it as usual "in the neck." They voted as they were told to vote—or out of fear of "losing their jobs," and now they are without jobs just the same.

Unemployment has hit the largest families hardest, families of 8 and 10 being without any means of subsistence. Somebody is getting the profits. The workers cannot even get work. They voted just as they were told by the bosses and now they face hunger.

MASSACHUSETTS BOOT AND SHOE WORKERS HAIL AMALGAMATION AND WHOLE T. U. E. L. PROGRAM

BOSTON, Jan. 28. — The following letter has been sent to the secretaries of all shoe workers' unions in Lynn. It was read at the meetings of the local shoe workers' unions and was favorably acted upon by many. The letter occasioned much comment in the capitalist press of Lynn, since they all favor the Boot and Shoe Union.

The chamber of commerce, the capitalist press, the shoe manufacturers and the agents of the bosses' Boot and Shoe Union (?) are all united to force the B. & S. down the throats of the Lynn shoe workers. The letter speaks for itself:

"Dear Sir and Brother:

"Mr. Joseph Manley, eastern district organizer of the Trade Union Educational League, is advertised to speak at a mass meeting of Lynn shoe workers at Lasters' Hall, Monday, Jan. 26, at 8 o'clock.

"The meeting is being called due to the propaganda now being carried on to force the Lynn shoe workers into the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union.

"It is the opinion of our committee that the affiliation of the Lynn unions with the Boot and Shoe would be nothng short of disastrous. The last vestige of independence and economic well-being would be wiped out.

"The Boot and Shoe is not a bona fide trade union. Wherever the B. & S. has organized the workers have lost the most elementary rights as union men. Witness the Brockton situation, where thousands of members of the B. & S. are placed in Local 'O' and are deprived of all membership rights merely because they exercised their right of criticism of the B. & S. officials or demanded militant action against their employers.

"Our committee stands for the amalgamation of all existing shoe workers' unions into one big, powerful industrial union upon the following program:

"(1.) Consolidation of all independent unions in an amalgamation convention to be called as soon as possible; (2.) Amalgamation of the independent shoe unions with the B. & S. upon the following demands which will transform the B. & S. from a company union to a genuine trade union; (a) Abolition of Local 'O'; (b) Use of stamp to be governed by local councils; (c) Abolition of company collaboration in dues collections; (d) Establishment of bona fide grievance committees; (e) Establishment of rank and file control of B. & S. locally and nationally; (f) Officials to be elected by rank and file.

"Our committee does not believe that amalgamation can be accomplished by merging with the B. & S. under its present constitution and control.

"The employers will welcome the B. & S. in Lynn because they know that under the rule of the B. & S. they would be guaranteed against wage demands and thru the class collaboration of the B. & S. officials the bosses could have complete freedom in more thoroly exploiting the shoe workers under the B. & S. stamp.

"We invite the co-operation of your organization in arranging the mass meeting and ask you to have an official representative on the platform.

"If we are to successfully preven the B. & S. from entering Lynn then we must organize a united front of all shoe unions to awaken the workers of Lynn to the menace of the B. & S. movement.

"The bosses want the B. & S. The capitalist newspapers want the B. & S.

"The bourgeois politicians want the B. & S. The chamber of commerce wants the B. & S. WHY?

"It is the policy of our committee that the shoe workers must maintain their own independent organization in Lynn until such time as they can amalgamate into one big militant industrial union of shoe and leather workers in this country.

"Fraternally yours,
"For the Massachusetts Trade Union Educational League,
"(Signed) John J. Ballam, Organizer."

HERBERT H. ASQUITH has accepted an earldom. They all fall for the blandishments of Buckingham palace sooner or later. Even Balfour had an honor thrust upon him. But H. H. Asquith was a great liberal! The story of how Asquith got the title and the emoluments that go with it, is said to be as follows: When Asquith was defeated by a labor candidate in the Paisley election, the king was deeply grieved and sent for Henry and spoke somewhat thusly: "Herbert, after your many years of loyal service to your king, I am sorry to learn that my subjects turned their thumbs down on you. However, you have found favor in my eyes and I will bestow an earldom on you, with the consent of Mr. Baldwin. But first I would be grateful if you paid a visit to my Egyptian realm where the people still have some confidence in you and subdue the rebels by word of mouth, words being much cheaper than bullets."

WHETHER this is a correct version of what took place inside the walls of Buckingham palace or not, we cannot vouch for, not having a stenographic report of the dialogue, but certain it is that Herbert and his better half, Margot of the wagging tongue, went to Egypt and the old faker Asquith will be able to sit in the house of lords on Feb. 10. David Lloyd George may begin to hammer his old target, the upper house, with renewed vim, now that his political rival is included among the antique human furniture stored there. Britain knows how to repay her servants whether they be liberal, tory or labor but it is safe to predict the king will never honor the Communists with anything more honorable than a number in one of his majesty's penal institutions.

STONE HELPED MORGAN 'ROB' MINING MAN

So Charges Senator in Public Speech

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Sweeping into the open the bitter fight against promotion of Harlan F. Stone to the supreme court of the United States, Senator Thomas Heflin, democrat, of Alabama, this afternoon denounced the attorney general from the floor of the senate for his "legal" activities on behalf of the J. Pierpont Morgan interests.

Heflin attacked Stone solely on his "record" as attorney for Morgan in a case against Colonel James A. Owenby, colored mining man. Heflin charged Owenby had been "robbed of his property" in the suit.

Heflin's speech provoked a new outburst between republicans and democrats. Senator Sterling, republican, of South Dakota, sought to defend the attorney general by reading messages from other attorneys in the Owenby case.

This action was denounced by democrats as a violation of the senate's rules and Sterling was finally halted when the presiding officer ruled him out of order.

MORE UNIONS GET BEHIND FIGHT ON SYNDICALISM LAWS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—A number of unions have gone on record protesting against the criminal syndicalist laws of this country. Since the imprisonment of Comrade Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party, several unions of New York have sent their protests to the governor of Michigan, demanding the release of Comrade Ruthenberg and the dropping of the prosecution of the other comrades arrested in connection with the convention at Bridgman, Michigan. Among these unions are the Architectural Iron, Bronze and Structural Workers' Union; the Amalgamated Food Workers' Union, Bakers' Local No. 5, the Waterproof Garment Workers' Union, Local No. 22; the Amalgamated Metal Workers' Union; the Ladies' Tailors, Theatrical Costume and Alteration Workers' Union, Local No. 38, and the Amalgamated Food Workers' Union, Bakers Local No. 2.

This spirit of solidarity should be followed by other unions. If the fighters of the working class can be sent to prison on such flimsy pretexts, then the whole American working class will face persecution and the labor organizations will be smashed up. Solidarity is the only watchword for the workers.

A Red Welcome to a White Guard

By H. GOLDY

In New York City recently there appeared on a public platform the leader of the Second (socialist) International, the active whiteguard R. Abramovich.

The meeting as well as his visit to America, was arranged by the "Jewish Socialist Verband" and the purpose of transfering his activity from Europe to this country was two-fold: First, to renew the counter-revolutionary attack on the Soviet government, secondly, to rally, if possible, about the once-influential name—Abramovich, those forces, which Morris Hillquit and Abe Cahan have shattered.

It was evidenced, however, that both, the American socialists and Abramovich, who undoubtedly, accepted their information as authoritative, were mistaken in their evaluation of the sentiment among the Jewish workers in this country.

After several weeks boom in the Forward and New Leader "about the honor bestowed upon us" by the visit of "our great" and "famous leader," it is doubtful whether the New Star Casino would have been filled to a third of its capacity. For the crowded capacity, thanks is due those class-conscious workers who came to extend a welcome to Abramovich, such as he deserved.

That the organizers of the meeting anticipated the following events, was evidenced by the warning issued by the chairman Mr. B. Vladeck (once konwn as the young Lassalle) that disturbers will be treated accordingly.

Vladeck's warning was not mere phraseology. The most conspicuous among the audience were the innumerable blue-coats and plain clothes detectives.

"Four Months Too Long!"

The first shot was fired, when Mr. Chanin secretary of the Verband, who opened the meeting, attempted to gladden the hearts of the audience by informing them that "our dear comrade Abramovich" will spend four months with "us."—"Too long" was fired from the audience. Then he introduced the chairman who dropped the famous warning mentioned above, and a few more pearls.

"Not Me, Not Me!"

When Mr. Weinberg, chairman of the Workmen's Circle and of expulsion fame, i. e., by turning all left-wingers into "members at large; greeted Abramovich in the name of 100,000 members of the Workmen's Circle, these members shouted back "Not me, not me!"

Not knowing the strength of the rebels in the audience, the committee of "clubbers" commenced to drag from their seats and beat some of the workers. Chaos followed, a number were expelled from the hall, the speaker was forced to cut short his address.

"Equity for the Workers"

When order was eventually restored, James O'Neil rose to his feet, not yet totally discouraged by the preceding scene. He disregarded entirely the occasion, i. e. the guest of honor, and delivered a "socialistic" talk, his key note was that "we will rebuild the capitalist system and bring about 'Equity for the working class,'" laughter greeted this remark.

Hillquit's Share in the Russian Revolution

Morris Hillquit deigned to leave his Riverside Drive apartment and came before the workers to claim his share in the Russian revolution "since Martov and Plekhanov, and not only the Bolsheviki"—he said—"made the revolution," therefore it behoves us to empower him, the formidable Hillquit, to democratize the Russian revolution and then we will have peace on earth.

The Warm Welcome

In introducing "the guest of honor" the chairman who sensed the sentiment of the audience, tried to prevail over them by portraying Abramovich as not only a great leader of the Second International, but also a martyr of the social revolution. Regardless of his appeal, the welcome extended to Abramovich when he arose to address the meeting sent an icy chill to one's spine. The scant applause and the overwhelming booing and hissing left no doubt as to the nature of the audience.

The guest was prepared to give an historical analysis of the role of the peasant revolts of the 18 century in the present revolution. He mustered all his counter-revolutionary knowledge to prove that the Bolshevik revolution realized the peasant revolution. This was the first signal for a spontaneous demonstration for the Bolsheviki.

"From all parts of the hall the strains of the International echoed forth, Abramovich turned pale, lost his self-possession and portrayed a pitiful sight, indeed. The chairman from seemingly nowhere, obtained a cane, apparently thinking that in that manner he will stop the surge of enthusiasm.

But even this formidable weapon was helpless.

Suddenly the fists of the gangsters, and the clubs of the policemen, showered down upon the heads of the demonstrators, dozens of them were dragged towards the exit, beaten, coats torn, and bleeding, they were thrown out."

But even the fist superiority of the attackers was not sufficient to quiet the storm. The demonstration continued for a long time, the disorder only prolonged it. Abramovich losing his trend of thought, commenced to pour forth all his venom against the Russian Communists, forgetting his historical introduction, this aroused the audience, and shouts of "liar", "traitor", "white guard" greeted him like so many missiles.

Hillquit took over the chair, and in a manner befitting a lawyer, appealed to the police not to beat the demonstrators. He apparently meant to appeal to the democratic sense of justice of the rightly-enraged workers. In fact, he became so tolerant, that he stated he would permit a question to be put to the speaker. However, when one attempted to avail himself of the privilege, he retracted his promise, stating, that only after the meeting questions will be permitted.

Audience Walks Out

Suddenly Judge Jacob Panken, appeared on the platform, simultaneously with a new squad of police. Not waiting for an introduction he ordered the committee off the floor and the police to take their places to maintain "order." This was the greeting extended by the judge to the beloved guest.

Fearing that sooner or later the meeting will be broken up, the chairman whispered to the guest of honor to "cut in short." When Abramovich resumed his address, the sentiment of the workers, incensed by the injustice of the socialists' attacks against Soviet Russia, and their maneuvering with the police and gangsters to attack anyone who dared to differ with them, was so tense, that he could not very well proceed as the assembly was on its feet, walking out en masse to the strains of the International and "Long Live Soviet Russia."

For hours the streets about the hall were flooded with enthusiastic workers, discussing the Russian revolution and its inspiring influence the world over.

PLOT NEW WAR ON SOVIET RULE

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

WHEAT shot up to two dollars a bushel last Wednesday in the Chicago pit and the gamblers went frantic. Fortunes are made and lost when things cut lose like this. Most of the men who trade in wheat never see it except in the form of muffin, but they live by betting on the crop, in this and other countries. The poor wheat crop in Russia and South America played into the hands of the grain gamblers and helped to send Calvin Coolidge back to the White House. The American farmers who raise the wheat are just as frantic as the gamblers but for different reasons. The farmers are frantically looking for money to pay their debts. Very little of the prosperity so much talked about by Herbert Hoover reaches them.

HE was not a country editor, yet he was eating a newspaper, not in punishment for what the paper contained but in an attempt to satisfy his hunger. He had come to Chicago in search of work from Norfolk, Va., where he had labored twelve hours a day for twenty cents an hour. Failing to find employment and being out of funds he applied for aid at a "charitable" institution but he was treated like a dog and was obliged to face the cold night. When found by three young men, he was without food for four days and in a state of extreme exhaustion. Yet the papers tell us that there are plenty of jobs for those willing to work. It is a splendid system! Plenty of wealth, machinery and food clothing and shelter, yet workers starving.

Another man who started at the bottom is the son of John R. Thompson, who started out as a dishwasher in his father' restaurant a few years ago. That is after he left Yale. He is now president of the biggest chain of restaurants in the world. His father gave him the job. Needless to say, this is the essence of bunk.

A Federated Press dispatch from Washington says: "President Salorzano of Nicaragua is undertaking the formation of a national constabulary force which will replace the American marines which have been ordered by President Coolidge to return home this spring or early summer. Salorzano is faced by the danger that the old reactionary leader, Chamorra, may start an armed uprising, secretly encouraged by American capital, when the marines go." One would imagine from reading this dispatch that the American marines were in Nicaragua to protect the people against American capital. Surely Lawrence Todd know who owns our army and navy!

AN army of eighteen thousand missionaries is kept in the field by the organization holding a convention in Washington this week. This group spends $40,000,000 annually in bringing the capitalist interpretation of christianity to the heathen. It is worth the money to the American ruling class. Since American capitalism is now elbowing British capital in every part of the world the American missionary is more necessary than ever. America's sky pilots and American moonshine can hold the fort against their British competitors.

UNEMPLOYED BY THE THOUSANDS WALK STREETS

Schenectady Bosses Are to Blame

(By The Federated Press)

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Appeal to the Schenectady common council for approval of a $25,000 bond issue for unemployment relief has been made by the civic committee on relief.

Raymond J. Leonard, chairman of the civic committee, is carrying on investigations of unemployment and suffering among Schenectady workers and finds family after family, he reports, without coal, food or extraclothing in their houses. Many workers or their families are ill and cannot afford treatment.

Why Not Tax These Bosses?

Early in the fall the General Electric company reduced its staff of workers 2,500. American Locomotive Works has been operating on a shorter schedule of workers than usual and building trades have reached a low point. Only the radio department of General Electric shows any need of workers at present.

Some of the departments of the company are on a part time basis. The ice harvest work paid 60 cents at first but the abundance of workers brought the rate down to 42 cents. That work is nearly over now.

Thousands Walk Streets.

Local labor union officials are assisting in the municipal employment office opened in the city hall but not many of the hundreds of applicants for jobs are given work because there is none in this vicinity. Several thousand men are out of work and walk the streets. Even men who have not missed work a day in several years are unemployed, laid off, and in few cases can their wives get housework to help eke out existence.

'YOWLS' PINCHED FOR ANTI-CHILD LABOR ACTIVITY

Released After Ride in Patrol

Three members of the Young Workers League were taken into custody by police yesterday morning as they were distributing leaflets in front of the Boston Store advertising a meeting of Area Branch No. 1, of the league.

The three girls, Valeria Meltz, Fanny Golden and one other member of the league were taken in the patrol to the police station at Chicago avenue and Wells street. The captain finally released the girls without placing any charge.

The handbills were being given to employes of the Boston Store as they were entering the building. The meeting advertised will be held Friday night, in Room 608 at 166 West Washington street. Harry Gannes, of the Young Workers League, will speak on "Child Labor." Many of the employes of the Boston Store are young girls of school age.

The policeman who arrested the girls could not find a charge on which to book them, and the captain was forced to release them.

TREMENDOUS INCREASE IN COST OF LIVING, STILL GOING UP; RENTS BOOSTED 150 PER CENT

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The cost of the average wage earners' family budget increased 1.1 per cent between September and December, 19294, according to the U. S. department of labor. This brings the official government figure to 725 per cent above the year preceding the European war.

Cities in which the increase as compared with 1914 exceeds the average include Detroit where the cost of living is 822 per cent above December of that year, Buffalo 77.8 per cent., Cleveland 78.1 per cent, New York 76.5 per cent, Philadelphia 76.1 per cent, Los Angeles 75.4 per cent, Chicago 75.3 per cent and Baltimore 74.8 per cent.

Enormous Profits.

The increases shown by the department in the budget items are food 51.5 per cent, clothing 71.3 per cent, housing 68.2 per cent, fuel and light 80.5 per cent, house furnishings 116 per cent, miscellaneous 101.7 per cent.

The failure of this government body to take full account of the increase in workers' rents has been frequently pointed out by The Federated Press. Even the employers' National Industrial Conference board reports workers' rents 84 per cent above 1914, nearly 16 points higher than the department of labor figure.

Rents Up 150 Per Cent

It shows 5 cities with rents 150 per cent above 1914 and 44 cities with rents between 100 per cent and 150 per cent above the prewar year.

An independent investigation by the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks on the New York Central found that the government was presenting a wholly false picture of the proportion of a workers' budget absorbed by rents in New York City.

Deceptive Capitalist Figures.

A corrected figure for rents would raise the increase in the total budget from the 72.5 per cent contained in the report to approximately 80 per cent. The publication of such deceptive cost of living data enables the employing class to fill its propaganda with exaggerated statements on the improvement in the average worker's standard of living.

ANOTHER STATE RATIFIES 19TH U. S. AMENDMENT

Illinois Legislature to Act Soon

The total of states to ratify the proposed amendment to the federal constitution reached four yesterday when the New Mexico and Arizona legislatures passed resolutions ratifying the amendment. The New Mexico house ratified the amendment by a vote of 46 to 8, and the Arizona senate also ratified.

It had already been aprproved by the Arizona house. The four states which have ratified the amendment are: Arkansas, Arizona, New Mexico and California.

Do Something Frank.

Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, declared yesterday that the fight for the amendment is by no means over, and expressed confidence that a sufficient number of states would eventually ratify the amendment to make it a law. The national league of women voters also issued a statement that the fight against child labor will go on.

Afraid to Fight.

Yesterday afternoon Owen Lovejoy the secretary of the national child labor committee, who has so far been afraid to fight the manufacturers who are spreading propaganda against child labor spoke at Loyola university Lovejoy's speeches favor the amendment on the ground that it is so mild it will not harm the exploiters of child workers.

A debate on child labor will be conducted tonight at St. Ignatius Auditorium, Loyola and Glenwood Aves. under the auspices of the Glenola club. Dr. John A. Lapp will speak for the amendment and Thomas James Norton, chief counsel for the Santa Fe railroad, will speak against it.

The amendment has not yet been presented to the Illinois legislature by Governor Small. He is expected to present it to the legislature next week. In the senate it will go to the committee on corporation and industry and in the house to the industrial affairs committee.

Opponents of the bill will ask that it be referred to a referendum of the voters of Illinois, as a means of delaying action on the amendment.

C. P. OF FRANCE HAS BIG GROWTH THE PAST YEAR

Humanite Has Circulation of 200,000

The following interesting article on the Communist Party of France is taken from The Workers' Weekly of Great Britain.

The present article deals with the French party from the summer of 1924. The congress of the Communist Party of France referred to in the article opened on January 17.

The new Political Bureau was for the first time in the history of the French Party a united body of comrades, absolutely at one with the Communist International, and determined to make its French Section a real Bolshevik Party, fighting unitedly under the banner of Lenin.

At District Congresses and a special national conference of all district secretaries, which was held in September, the new party lead was approved, with certain exceptions which we shall refer to later.

The party autumn campaign opened with the slogans "100,000 new party members," "403,000 circulation for L'Humanite" (our comrades' great Paris daily paper).

20,000 Recruits

Since June the party has gained 19,116 new recruits, which brings its membership up to over 76,000; last May it was 53,000.

Over 1,000,000 francs have been raised in party subscription, and 800,000 francs for a special party loan.

The re-organization of the party on the factory group basis has been taken up with a will. Paris, and its

UTICA TEXTILE WORKERS TALK OVER STRIKING

Union Officials Want Production Kept Up

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Failing to reach a satisfactory conclusion in their attempts to "adjust matters" with the textile barons who have announced a wage cut, the workers organized in various small craft unions in the New York Mills and the Utica Steam Cotton Mill, may tonight take some measure for strike action.

Tonight is the last chance according to the recommendation of a joint committee of four unions which met Monday at the Labor Temple to figure out ways of fighting the wage cut, without as it recommends, "interfering with production."

Among the weavers, especially, and in other crafts also, the feeling is growing that, if the wage cut is to be fought against, production will have to be interfered with very decidedly by a general strike.

At tonight meeting the four locals will take a strike vote and notice will then be given the bosses of the day on which final answer must be given or the mills struck. Organizer White of the United Textile Workers' Union is still hopeful that the bosses will yeild without a strike.

PHILADELPHIA.—The Central Labor union is campaigning among Philadelphia non-unionists to bring them into the ranks. Many locals are also stimulating union attendance by laying fines on absentees from local meetings.

POLICE BREAK UP LENIN MEET IN WATERBURY

Speakers and Audience Driven from Hall

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WATERBURY, Conn., Jan. 29.—The police broke up the Lenin Memorial meeting held here at 48 Green St., on the afternoon of Jan. 25, roughhandled the speaker, Balys Krasauskas, and drove the audience from the hall.

Before the police interfered the meeting was highly successful. The hall was crowded to capacity, and Krasauskas was greeted with prolonged cheering.

As long as Krasauskas spoke of the persecutions of the czar, the large squad of police stood quietly at the back of the hall. Krasauskas told how Lenin founded the Communist International after successfully leading the revolution of the Russian workers and the founding of the Soviet state.

Krasauskas then told of the attempts of the capitalist states, including the United States, to overthrow the Soviet government. He told how Lenin guided the Communist state thru the famine, the economic blockade and the bandits' civil wars.

Police Defend Employers.

But the moment Krasauskas spoke of the attempts of the American workers to gain their freedom from the yoke of the Wall Street bankers and the employers in this country, the police swung into action. Krasauskas told how the workers' revolution leading to control of the state and the industries by the workers would come to this country just as it did in Russia.

Lieutenant Matthew Balanda and Sergeant Luke Errico, one hundred per cent Americans, then stepped up on the stage and ordered Comrade Krasauskas to stop talking. Krasauskas answered that he had heard much of the Waterbury police department, and knew that they were ardent defenders of the present system, and wanted to continue the exploitation of the workers. The crowd cheered. The police began to shove Krasauskas toward the back of the stage. Krasauskas declared that Superintendent of Police Beach was a tool of the capitalist class.

Driven from Hall.

The police then searched Krasauskas, ordered him to leave town immediately. Comrade Krasauskas spoke at a Lenin meeting in Elizabeth, N. J., that evening.

The crowd was then roughly herded from the hall, the police drawing their clubs and cursing violently as they shoved the workers into the street.

Coolidge Senators Still Play with Postal Pay Bill

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29—President Coolidge informally sent word to the senate today that the Moses bill increasing the pay of post office employes will be vetoed if amended so as to reduce the postal rates proposed in the Moses Bill. The Moses bill increases the pay of the postal workers but also increases the mailing rates.

The republican senators today defeated an amendment to the Moses Bill restoring the 1920 rates to magazines and newspapers. The two farmer-labor candidates, Magnus Johnson and H. Shipstead of Minnesota voted against the amendment with the Coolidge senators.

A similar amendment proposed by Senator McKellar of Tennessee was also defeated, by a vote of 31 to 45.

Orders have been issued banning the beating of prisoners under third degree while officers responsible for the "sweat box" have been demoted.

UNION PICKETS PATROL PALACE OF GEORGE V

Strike Against Scab Electrician

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Union pickets are placed around the Buckingham Palace of King George the Fifth and by ten o'clock tonight not a man of the eight unions involved in the dispute will be working in any of the houses of parliament, government offices, museums and the Chelsea hospital, all controlled by the office of works.

The strike is called by the engineers and stokers in government employ and came because there was an electrical worker on the job in Buckingham palace who would not pay his dues. The union demanded his discharge. The government would not fire the scab.

The strike involved at first 220 men, but is spreading to 900 more. A mass meeting of the workers on strike unanimously decided not to resume work until a full settlement was reached, and other districts of their trades voted to support the strike.

The king of England, emperor of India, Ireland, etc., is by chance, at Sandringham and their majesties are personally keeping warm elsewhere. But the heating in the houses of parliamen is off and in the king's palace only a makeshift of "volunteer" firemen from the English fascist organization which was organized in the last year to break strikes.

WRANGEL'S WIFE REVEALS PLOT ON COMMUNISTS

Attack on Soviets to Be Financed in U. S.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 29.—Olga Wrangel, ex-baroness, wife of "Baron" Wrangel, in an interview with a Russian paper here, revealed that she is in America raising money to maintain the remnants of her husband's white army now stationed in Roumania.

"Baroness" Wrangel admitted that her husband's army is being maintained in part by funds that the Russian "royal" family is receiving.

The counter-revolutionary plot against Soviet Russia is to be financed by American money, Baroness Wrangell states. The recent visits of the Grand Duke Cyril and the Grand Duchess Feodorovna are thus explained as another drive against Soviet Russia.

Wrangel's Troops Ready.

"I am collecting funds for the sanitariums in Roumania and Serbia which the Russian royal family is maintaining," said Baroness Wrangell. When pressed further, Baroness Wrangell let the cat out of the bag. "My husband still has an army of twenty-five thousand men who are ready to fight at his command," she said. "Fifteen thousand of the are stationed in Roumania and the other ten thousand are spread over the various Balkan states. They are ready to shoulder their rifles at moment's notice against Soviet Russia at my husband's command."

Baroness Wrangell said that the "sanitariums" for which she is collecting money "contain the wounded and sick soldiers commanded by my husband."

Wrangel's army, after being driven from southern Russia by the Soviet Red Army in the campaign in which General Budenny, the Communist cavalry leader, took a leading part, fled with the Russian fleet to Constantinople. The fleet, until recently quartered in Tifiis, French Algiers, was turned over to the Soviet government by the French, following that country's recognition of Soviet Russia. French and British officers and money promoted Wrangel's counter-revolutionary attack on Soviet Russia.

Fights Balkan Reds.

From Constantinople, Wrangel's bandit army was scattered over the Balkans to fight the Communists in the Balkan states. Wrangel's troops took part in the fascisti violence in Bulgaria which overthrew the Stamboulisky peasant government. His troops have been at the beck and call of French and British imperialism, and are officered by the French and British.

Wrangel's troops were also used in the attacks on the Communists in Serbia, Jugo-Slavia, Roumania and Esthonia.

Socialists Help Imperialists.

The fact that the imperialist governments of Europe, in alliance with the Second International are making a concerted drive to raise American money, shows that the capitalist governments of Europe are preparing further fascisti attacks on the Communists despite recognition of Russia. At the same time that France, under the capitalist tool Herriot, and the Baldwin government of England are dickering for Russian oil and offering diplomatic recognition as quietly as possible, they are collecting their fascist armies for another onslaught on the Communists in the Balkans and Soviet Russia.

United Front Against Russia.

The socialist party of America has entered this imperialistic alliance, and is sponsoring the tour of the tool of

DAWES' PLAN BLOWS BEGIN TO HIT HOME

German Workers to Be Used to Scab on Us

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 29.—Almost simultaneously with the report of the dropping of many thousands of workers from the plants of the General Electric company in Schenectady, comes the announcement of the offer of $10,000,000 worth of bonds of the Siemens & Halske and Siemens-Schuckert Werke of Germany on the American bond market.

In this announcement these two firms are advertised as covering "the entire electrical field." They are said to employ 35,000 operatives in 26 factories. Furthermore it is significantly stated that "forty per cent of the production is exported."

More Unemployment Certain.

The unemployed electrical workers of Schenectady will do well to study and consider this announcement which is made by a group of the leading bankers in the United States. The firms mentioned above manufacture nearly every article manufactured by local electrical firms: electrical machinery and appliances for lighting, power, traction and electro-chemical purposes, dynamos, turbines, wires and cables, automatic and manual telephones, telegraph, signaling and electro-medical apparatus and radio equipment. The workers in these firms are paid a miserable wage and work at least two or more hours per day longer than the American workers. Under this low labor cost the interests which now control the German firms, and which are unquestionably the same as those behind the General Electric company and the largest electrical concerns in this country, can well afford to shut down their American works and sell at a greater profit the products of the German plants.

A Lesson in Capitalism.

This news is, no doubt, a distinct shock to the workers of Schenectady, who probably patriotically supported the war against Germany and voted for Dawes and Coolidge. Perhaps it will open their eyes to the fact that capitalism knows no national boundaries or patriotism in its ruthless exploitation of the workers and that the workers of America must fight shoulder to shoulder with the workers of Germany and the entire world not only against the Dawes plan, but also against international capitalism as well.

SUN YAT SEN IN CRITICAL STATE, MAY NOT RECOVER

PEKING, Jan. 28.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, Chinese leader, operated on for not yet undergone the major operation contemplated, physicians announced today. His condition is critical they said, and fears are held that he will not recover from the illness, the result of an abscessed liver.

PEKING, Jan. 29.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, China dictator, operated on for liver trouble at the American Rockefeller hospital here, passed a comfortable night, a hospital bulletin said today.

His pulse was 108 and his temperature almost normal. The patient was announced as free from pain and taking nourishment. The surgical wound was reported "progressing satisfacterily."

UNION OFFICERS GET INJUNCTION AGAINST MEMBER

Detroit Carpenters Repudiate Act

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 29.—The few remaining supporters of Hutcheson and the reactionaries in Carpenters' Local 19 were driven to the side of those in revolt against the expulsion policy by the injunction forbidding a member, Wm. Reynolds, from attending union meetings, secured in the name of the Brotherhood by the fakers in charge locally.

Those who disagreed on political and economic questions with Reynolds, the expelled member form No. 2140, are forced by the attitude of the reactionaries to take part in the struggle to maintain their constitutional rights and to carry on the traditional fight of the American Federation of Labor against the injunction.

Local Censures Injunction Getter.

A special meeting of Local Union No. 19 voted unanimously to censure those responsible for the injunction and to demand its immediate withdrawal. A former appointee of Hutcheson, Wm. Shipp, running for business agent, was defeated by the candidate supported by the left wing by a vote of 88 to 33.

A motion to support the action of Local Union No. 2140 in sustaining Reynolds in his membership and as president was refused recognition by Hutcheson's tool in the chair. An appeal was taken from his decision, but President Ball ruled the appeal out of order and declared the meeting adjourned. The meeting broke up in confusion.

District Council Officers Got Injunction

It was learned today that President Sharrock and Secretary Fish of the Detroit council, and stoolpigeon Botterill representing Hutcheson, signed the bill of complaint to secure the injunction. Sharrock and Fish signed the bill of complaint as individuals, also just to show that they prostitute themselves for love of it as well as for pay.

Common Labor Works Uncommonly Hard for Uncommonly Low Pay

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The highest point in the wages of common labor was reached in 1920 when the average hourly rate was 48 cents. As a result of the depression the average fell to 32 cents in 1922. In 1924 it was only 29 cents.

So says the report of the department of agriculture, based largely on road construction.

CROW OVER RAIL LOSS BY GOVT. IN WAR TIME

See Communist Failure in Capitalist Graft

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 29.—The New York press and capitalist propagandists are now busy foisting upon the people the idea that Communist control and operation of industry is doomed to failure and cite as example the loss to the railroads under government management during the war, as reported by James C. Davis in his final summary of the transportation mess that began with the war period and is not showing any signs of disentanglement even after the official statement has been made.

They Hang Onto a Straw.

The report of Davis is harped on as industriously as Helingfors harps upon the daily downfall of the Bolshevik government and with as much basis in fact.

Claiming that private ownership is the only method of securing efficient operation the propagandists are taking the reported loss to the government of about $1,674,500,000, as conclusive evidence that any economic scheme that has the least in common with Communism must result in loss to the people.

The Communists have been active pointing out that managers of public utilities who hate Communism and who are staunch defenders of private ownership heart and soul are able to make any public utility run by the capitalist government a complete failure. And not only that: these managers are given much support by the big interests, if not actually bribed, to so mismanage that it will appear that public ownership cannot succeed.

Russia Communist Example.

As an example to the contrary the Communists point to Russia, where all the large public utilities are in the hands of the workers' government and where all who have anything to do with the management of industry are in accord with the principles of Communism, resulting in a constant improvement and development such as cannot be found in capitalist countries.

When the defenders of private ownership bob up among the workers the Communists are quick to give them facts that show how foolish it would be for a capitalist government that is owned and controlled by private interets to make government operation a success and thus undermine the very system that fatten these private interests and their government.

This expose of the hypocrisy of the capitalists is making inroads among the workers, who have been used to take all reports as bona fide expressions of unprejudiced declarations of facts, leaving the henchmen of big capital weak and despised as a result of attempted attacks on the workers and their interests.

"Pittsburgh Plus Makes No Difference," Says Judge E. H. Gary

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 29.—Abolition of so-called "Pittsburgh plus" practice should have little effect on the steel industry in Pittsburgh or any other city, Judge Elbert H. Gary, chief executive of the United States Steel corporation, said here in an interview in which he reiterated his ten year old forecast that the Pittsburgh district will continue to hold its supremacy in the steel business.

Commenting directly on the effect of the "Pittsburgh plus" elimination, Gary explained that "regardless of the rules of business conduct, established by trade and government administration, the law of supply and demand fixes the price of all commodities at all places."

"The United States Steel corporation thru its subsidiaries is spending immense sums in improvement of iron and steel manufacturing facilities here," Gary continued.

"This is the best evidence and the most convincing argument as to what proprietors and their representatives in charge think of Pittsburgh as a permanent manufacturing point."

WILLING FOR HERRIOT TO BE CAPITALIST, BUT NOT POINCARIST

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Jan. 29.—Discussion of the Franco-American and other debts in the chamber of deputies this afternoon brought from Premier Herriot the declaration that he would resign if socialist deputies refused to vote for the placarding on public buildings of his speech of yesterday on the debt situation.

A special meeting was called to persuade Herriot not to resign.

The socialists objected to Herriot's speech on the grounds that it was "too Poincarist." They met in an ante-room and voted, 27 to 24 not to vote for the placarding of the speech.

The chamber voted for the placarding 541 against 32. This was considered equivalent to a vote of confidence in the government.

The threat of Herriot to resign was quickly followed by a second meeting of the socialists. At this meeting they voted 50 against 15 in favor of the placarding.

WHEAT GAMBLERS WITHDRAW FROM ANY BIG DEALS

Public Is Expected to Get "Stung"

May wheat sold at a new high mark of 2.05⅞ a bushel yesterday, reaching the bigest price on record for peace times. Reasons given for the jump in the wheat price were the world shortage of the crop of bread grains, which includes rye as well as wheat, and rumors of a corner in wheat.

Speculation in wheat is being carried on mainly by the public now. The big wheat gamblers, including Arthur Cutten and James A. Patten, have withdrawn from the speculative market and are confining their activities principally to marketing a heavy line of cash grain. The professional gamblers are withdrawing from the wheat futures buying.

Russia Buys Flour.

The wheat crop has now been sold over six times, showing the extent of the speculation in wheat. It is now learned that the Argentine wheat crop is much larger than was expected, and this fact will eventually lower the price of wheat. The big wheat gamblers, having withdrawn from the market with their millions in profits, will lose nothing, and the public which is dealing in wheat will get "stung."

Russia, usually a wheat exporting country, is importing some wheat this year, altho not heavily. It was reported that Russia bought 15,000 barrels of flour in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Scott Durand, of the Lake Shore Drive hotel, is said to have made $1,500,000 speculating in wheat.

Famine in Ireland.

European experts in wheat declare that the price of wheat will continue to rise until Russia stops buying. The potato crop of West Ireland has failed, causing a famine which has created a demand for wheat in Ireland.

The price of flour in London has jumped 24 cents a sack in 24 hours. The price of bread has gone up.

Press Yells Bravo For System When One Servant Gets $50,000

YORK, Pa., Jan. 29.—That one out of ten million workers may get by the merest chance a few dollars after a lifetime of faithful service is made the basis of featured news thruout all America and used to fool the workers wherever the capitalist press is spilling its propaganda to blind the people. Thus the item runs: "Faithful services have won $50,000 for Elmer S. Geesey. The will of Joseph H. Stiles, a tobacco dealer, which was probated today, provides 'that $50,000 is to go to Mr. Geesey for faithful services given as manager' of his tobacco business.

Silent as the Sphinx the same press says not a word about the millions of faithful workers who after having given their entire life to the boss are turned out to starve when their services no longer suit the master.

Actors Fight the Radio As the Printers Once Fought the Linotype

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, there is quite a panic among theatrical employes and theater owners over the possibilities of the radio. The workers fear for their jobs and the owners for their profits. The immediate result is an alliance, a sort of class-collaboration between workers and exploiters, against this new device that reaches millions.

• • • •

The fear of the theater workers only repeats the alarm of labor every time some new invention appears. The backward workers has always been the enemy of the developing machine age. The classic example is always pointed out of the hostility of printers to the introduction of the linotype. The terror of the printer arose from the fear that the introduction of this labor saving device would rob him of a chance to work.

To be sure, there is unemployment among the printing trades workers today. But the number of printers employed is greater than ever. The eagerness to read permeates the masses more and more, in spite of the numerous drawbacks under capitalism, and the need of the printed word grows steadily.

Profit rule in the printing industry, however, still holds to the long workday. It introduces child labor wherever it can. The struggle, however, between the owners and the workers has resulted in the building of strong labor unions in this industry, and the fight goes on.

• • • •

The workers in and around theaters, whether actors or stage employes, make their first mistake by building an alliance with their employers. They must learn that their interests are entirely separate from and opposed to those of their bosses. Dollars are not invested in the theater business out of pure philanthrophy. They are put there to make more dollars. If the radio business, or the building of flying machines, or some other enterprise, becomes much more profitable, then these dollars can readily be shifted elsewhere by their owners.

This situation clearly revealed itself when most of the big theatrical managers in New York City failed to attend the anti-radio meeting called by the Actors' Equity Association, the actor's organization, as close an approach to a union as these workers have.

The actors in this country have a difficult time getting over the idea that they ought to be the petted darlings of the rich; which accounts for their present attempt to lean on the managers, whom they will again be called on to fight in the future.

Theatrical workers should have no more fear for their jobs than printers. The theater will grow and develop as this medium of entertainment and education is made more available for the masses. This will never happen under capitalism.

Only recently I was in the big steel town of Lackawanna, in New York. Here is an industrial center of tens of thousands of workers. It is one the most bedraggled spots I have ever seen. The main street boasted only the smallest and cheapest "movies." Everything just hovered in the shadow of the steel mills. The only reason for the existence of Lackawanna is that the workers may make profits for "Charley" Schwab and his millionaire friends of the Bethlehem Steel company. Lackawanna is typical of the nation. It shows how the theater has not yet been made available for the tens of millions. The desire of the great masses for the theater has not yet even been tapped. It is a great demand that needs only to be touched with life.

This will only be completely achieved under Communism; just as Communism is the only real foe of illiteracy that is even fostered under capitalism.

All workers must fight for jobs under the present profit system, the theatrical employes along with the rest. But there is only one way for workers to protect their jobs under capitalism and that is thru the building of class organizations against the employers. Trying to combat new scientific discoveries is fighting windmills.

In their struggle, the actors, in common with other workers, will finally discover that their only real salvation lies in the complete abolition of capitalism. Thus the radio like all other inventions, helps turn even these workers toward the struggle for Communism.

Butchers' Union Celebrated Its 25th Anniversary

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The Butchers' Union No. 174 celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary with an excellent entertainment at the Labor Temple which was well attended by all members and friends.

These workers are a class conscious bunch who from the very beginning built their union on an industrial basis. They have for twenty-five years conducted a vigilant fight for better conditions in their trade with the result that from the abominable low wages of $12 a week for 10 hours a day including Sunday work, they now receive the minimum wage of $41 for a 48-hour week with no Sunday work. They have also established a free school and have aided substantially in the foundation of a workers' press.

JUDGE HELPS DAUGHERTY KEEP QUIET ON GRAFT

Harry Cannot Recommend His Partner

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 29.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney-general of the United States in the Harding and Coolidge cabinets, who was asked to resign by Coolidge after an investigation of the department of justice by a senate committee, was prevented from telling some truths in the federal court here.

He said "It is time to tell the truth about some things that ought to be told" but Judge Lindley refused to let him, declaring his testimony extraneous to the issue.

Judge Shields Grafters.

Daugherty was called as a witness in the defense on the trial of Col. Thomas B. Felder and Gaston B. Means on an indictment alleging conspiracy to obstruct justice. The charge developed out of the federal prosecution of the Crager System, Inc., a stock-selling concern for a glass casket company. It is contended by the government that a group of the glass casket defendants formed a $65,000 pool to prevent federal indictments.

Frank P. Walsh, directing the defense, asked Daugherty: "Did you ever say to Means, General, that $65,000 was too little to collect from these defendants, that it ought to be $165,000?"

But Judge Lindley sustained the objection of Hiram C. Todd, special prosecutor for the government and Daugherty did not answer.

Mr. Walsh asked Daugherty if he knew Col. Felder as a man of general good reputation for honesty and integrity.

Cannot Recommend Partner.

Walsh tried hard to get something out of Daugherty but the government prosecutor's objections were sustained. At one time Daugherty said: "I should be very glad to testify in regard to anything in this matter, in order that the facts might be known for the general good of the public at any rate. For, considering this period we were going thru when there was this upheaval in Washington, and on one side certain people were hellbound and on the other side spellbound, it is time that the truth about some things ought to be told.

"Considering what we have gone thru with in this country in the last three or four years especially, I could not testify to the reputation for integrity and honesty of hardly any man, especially if he held high public position, because the higher and more efficient he is, probably, the more he is subject to attack, and I could not testify that I would have anything like a good reputation when I get home the day after tomorrow, until I read the newspapers in the morning, at any rate."

blasts of an Armenian winter, unshod and unfed, he was actually living in comfort in the Lux Hotel, Moscow. The editor of the Weekly People echoes the rubbish published in the capitalist press that Haywood was coming back to take his stretch in Leavenworth and had turned against Soviet Russia. The wish is father to the thought.

THE piffle monger whose writings in the Weekly People during the war was one sickening apology would like to see Haywood back in Leavenworth. Her weekly typographical monstrosity plays the role of felon setter in calling the attention of the government to the "illegal" concept of revolutionary activity entertained by the Workers' Party. When the Michigan supreme court recently confirmed Comrade Ruthenberg's conviction by a Berrien county jury, this volunteer government agent humorously twitted the capitalist court for taking the revolutionists too seriously.

THERE is very little difference between the Abramoviches who openly come out and attack Soviet Russia and the type represented by the editor of the Weekly People, except that Abramovich has more courage. The S. L. P. editor and the unknow secretary of the same organization have not the moral courage to do what Abramovich is doing. But between them there is a strong bond, in their mutual hate of the Russian Bolsheviki who insited in making a successful revolution and holding their power despite the predictions of the fake Marxists of the S. P.; S. L. P., P. P. and the anarcho-syndicalists of the I. W. W.

MRS. SNOWDEN, ANTI-SOVIETIST, LIKE ABRAMOVITCH IN THE U. S. A.; HAS VERY BAD LUCK IN CANADA

By SYDNEY WARREN

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

VANCOUVER, Canada, Jan. 29.—Mrs. Phillip Snowden, wife of the ex-chancellor of the exchequer in the MacDonald labor government, is meeting with a very cool reception among Canadian workers of all shades of opinion, because of her fanatic hostility towards the Russian Soviet government.

Her public appearances thruout the dominion have been almost exclusively before organizations hostile towards labor's aim and Mrs. Snowden has taken every opportunity to knock the Russian workers' republic.

Her charges mainly are a repetition of the attitude held by those who favor an "orderly revolution" conducted in strict conformity with the amenities of polite society.

The federated labor party, comprising the most conservative elements in the Vancouver labor movement, voiced its disapproval of Mrs. Snowden's attacks on Russia thru the party's weekly organ, the B. C. Federationist, as follows:

"Apparently Mrs. Snowden, like a few others from across the waters, seem to think they can worship at the shrine of both god and mammon. If Mrs. Snowden thinks that she in any way represents labor—other than being the wife of Philip Snowden—we would advise her to adhere a little closer to the principles of labor. We do not care for individuals who choose compromise, whether they be at home or abroad. Her statement of the attitude of British labor towards Russia and towards the crown are, in our judgment, simply her own opinions. Since she is under the wing of the national institute for education, we would advise her to leave labor matters alone."

KLAN TERROR STILL HANGS OVER HERRIN

Young Officer Is in the "Constabulary"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HERRIN, Ill., Jan. 29.—The terror of the ku klux klan killers still hung over Herrin today. The inquest into the death of S. Glenn Young, the klan gunman, and Ora Thomas, miner deputy sheriff, has proved to be a farce, with two klansmen, Arlie Boswell, state's attorney, and George Bell, coroner, in charge. Eye witnesses have been terrorised into keeping silence as to the truth of the killing of Ora Thomas by the klansmen.

Elias Green, secretary of the Herrin Miners' Union, testified how Glenn Young had entered the cigar store where he was buying cigarettes, and pushed a gun in his stomach. Green told how Young had cursed him and threatened to kill him. Green had shown up Glenn Young's scab activities, and Young was cursing him when Thomas walked into the store. Young was the first to fire, Green declared.

Belonged to "Constabulary."

Klansmen are pouring into Herrin from all parts of the country to attend the funeral of Young to take place this afternoon. Young was the Herrin "inspector" of the Illinois constabulary department, a private corporation with offices in Chicago, composed of klansmen and gunmen, and having as its officers prominent Chicago politicians and capitalist newspaper editors. It was admitted at State's Attorney Crowe's office that the "constabulary department" has been investigated by Crowe, and found to conduct a traffic in gun permits.

Herrin miners declare that Young never entered a battle unless the odds were heavily on his side. They point to the fact that Young kept his wife beside him on all his trips in order to shield himself from attack.

Auto Death Total at 44.

Chicago's death toll from automobiles since Jan. 1 this year was increased to 44 today with the death of Arthur Hughes, 55, art collector and dealer in antiques. He was struck and injured by an automobile on Michigan boulevard last night. The driver was held pending an inquest.

TEXTILE INDUSTRY IS AMONG THE MOST PROSPEROUS IN RUSSIA; COTTON PRODUCTION GROWING

(By Rosta News Agency.)

MOSCOW. (By Mail.)—The textile industry of Soviet Russia belongs to those branches of industry which, at the present time, are most prosperous. The increase of the buying power of the peasant population, combined with the lower prices for industrial goods, especially for textile articles, and higher prices for agricultural produce have been powerful factors in producing this satisfactory result.

In October, 1923, the sale of cotton goods amounted to 56.5 per cent of the output, and in March, 1924, to 129 per cent. More striking still is the increase in the turnover, especially of cotton goods, of the principal organization in the textile industry—the All Russian Textile Syndicate. The turnover of the syndicate in January amounted to 216.5 per cent of that of October, that of May to 338 per cent, and June to 435 per cent.

In the summer of 1924 the output of textile fabrics in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics increased to 30 per cent, and a further increase of production by another 25 per cent was considered. At the same time demands exceed the supply, and the sale of the whole output of cotton fabrics is therefore guaranteed.

Home Grown Production Increases.

The Soviet cotton industry used for this year's production a total of seven and a half million poods of cotton, of which 3,200,000 poods were home grown, and about four and a half million poods were bought abroad. Next year this industry will need about 8,000,000 poods of cotton, but in virtue of the rapid restoration of culture in Turkestan a considerable amount of the raw material needed will be covered by home grown cotton.

The figures given below show how cotton growing has increased in Soviet Russia. The area under cotton in the various cotton areas was as follows:

Area Under Cotton (in Dessiatines).

Region	1923	1924
Turkestan Republic	177,022	285,200
Bokharan Republic	30,000	40,000
Khorezm Republic	10,000	9,000
Azerbaijan	14,265	88,300
Armenia	4,070	17,300

The total for the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in 1923 was 195,357 dessiatines, in 1924, 436,900 dessiatines. The area under cotton was therefore more than doubled in one year.

Expect Increased Demand.

Tho the purchasing power of the peasant population in some districts may slightly decrease on account of this year's poor harvest, the comparatively high grain prices will almost certainly result on the whole in an increased demand for manufactured goods, and at the present moment there is not only no superabundance of goods but on the contrary, the supply is less than the demand.

Measures have been taken to cope with the demand, and the output is continually increasing as shown in the following table:

Month	Yarn in thousand poods	Unbleached fabric in thousand metres
May	518	76,913
June	517	76,731
July	364	53,267
August	633	94,282
September	723	107,047
October	802	113,467
Aver. Monthly estimate 1923	4,471	65,825

Thus already in May and June the production of unbleached goods amounted to 76 million metres a month and exceeded the estimated monthly output of 1923-24 by 17 per cent. The decrease in July was due to the sumem rholidays. In October the production of unbleached goods was to amount to 113 millions metres—70 per cent more than the estimates and that of white bleached goods to 108 million metres, or 60 per cent above the estimates.

Altogether the output of the cotton industry has grown during the last few years very rapidly. In 1922-23, the production of cotton goods amounted to 40 million metres monthly, i. e., not more than 24 per cent of the entire manufacturing capacity of the mills, but by October the output will have risen to 113 million metres, nearly 53 per cent of the manufacturing capacity.

Interests British Market.

This continuous growth of the Soviet cotton industry is of particular interest to the British market.

Britain has always been a big, if not the only, supplier of spindles, weaving machines, implements, sprinklers, and various technical and other articles which are necessary for the Russian cotton mills.

Most British firms formerly had their branches and agents in the principal centers of Russian cotton industry, and this year's notable growth in the activity of the Russian cotton mills means, providing the necessary capital is forthcoming, a continuous and steady growth of the demand for all kinds of machinery, looms, implements, technical materials, etc., necessary for the successful development of this branch of industry.

IT'S A DULL DAY IF NO POLICY IS BOUGHT BY FINNS!

From Fort Bragg, Cal., came a letter from "Mother" Ella Reeve Bloor in which she told that the Finnish branch there had just bought $60.00 worth of policies, besides having remitted $30.00 previously.

"Altho the only nationality here, the Finnish branch is devoted to our cause," writes "Mother" Bloor. "They are doing fine work, despite their isolation."

And from the other side of the continent, Buffalo, N. Y., came a call for none less than five books of policies for the Finnish branch. This branch has pledged $300.00 and in raising it, have run out of policies. Needless to say, they are doing their part to help district 4 fill its quota.

HARVARD GLORIES IN "AD" BUNK

HARVARD University, the supreme snob educational institution of America, is pushing bourgeois ethics and business and has just given $10,500 in prizes to this end for advertising matter. It is significant that the awards are made thru Edward W. Bok, the Philadelphia dean of bourgeois editors, from a fund he donated.

About 5,000 advertisements were submitted by 175 agencies anxious to show Harvard students and Americans how best to make money by gulling the public with dope phraseology. Just what kind of ads they wrote the capitalist papers do not state. Perhaps it was something of the nature of a New York college staff member who wrote of advertising some time ago, recommending for South American countries ads of nudes. The prizes by Harvard and Bok were mostly of $1,500 each.

HAIL INSURANCE BY STATE ASKED FOR N. D. FARMERS

Communist Proposes Aid to Poor by Rich

By ALFRED KNUTSON.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 29.—A. C. Miller, Communist legislator, has introduced a bill providing for compulsory state hail insurance and the levying of a tax on all tillable land in the state, and they have been read for the first time in the house of representatives.

These bills embody the ideas of farmers generally on the question of state hail insurance and represent what the farmers have wanted ever since the nonpartisan league was started in North Dakota. From the beginning, league organizers and speakers as well as the league press emphasized this feature of the hail insurance plan—a plan which league leaders have now largely ignored.

The present law does not function. The percentages of cropped land insured and the withdrawals since the year 1918 are as follows:

Year	Cropped land insured	Withdrawals
1919	67 per cent	33 per cent
1920	63 per cent	37 per cent
1921	61 per cent	39 per cent
1922	49 per cent	51 per cent
1923	42 per cent	58 per cent
1924	29 per cent	71 per cent

This state of affairs is unsatisfactory to the farmer. He does not want to insure his crop because he feels that the hail tax is too big for him to pay. His condition under the capitalist system is such that he must save all he can and so, in order to escape paying taxes, he refuses to insure his crop. This means that he is without hail insurance protection and when hail strikes down his crop he sustains a total loss.

A tax levied upon every acre of tillable land in the state will mean a low hail tax to the farmer—about an average of 10 cents per acre for $7 per acre insurance spread over a period of five or six years. In this way the crops of all farmers can be insured. The majority of farmers are able to pay from $15 to $25 for hail-insurance, but cannot pay from $40 to $75 and even more as asked by private companies.

According to the department of agriculture, the total land area of the state of North Dakota is 44,917,000 acres; improved land is 24,563,178 acres and unimproved 11,651,573 acres. The total tillable land, therefore, is 36,214,751 acres, and approximately this number of acres in the state would be available for taxable purposes.

This compulsory state hail insurance system will immediately simplify the operation of the state hail insurance department because all cropped land is automatically insured and there will be no withdrawals.

Investment companies, real estate men, bankers and speculators will, of course, object strenuously against such a law, but Communists are mainly concerned with the farmer who does the important work of raising the crops. If it were not for the working farmers the land of the bankers and speculators would not have any value whatever.

The working farmers create the land values and make it possible for the speculators and absentee land owners to sell their land at a profit. For this reason, those who are not engaged in the work of producing crops, but living off the labor of the farmers should at least bear the burden of paying part of the hail tax.

This hail insurance arrangement will not, of course, solve any of the underlying problems of the poor farmer, serving merely to give the capitalists a little jolt. Ultimately the principle, that the land belongs to those who toil upon it, must be established, and both the national and state governments, as well as all the industries of the country must be in direct possession of the farmers and workers before they can free themselves completely from capitalist exploitation. Farmers should join the only party that stands for the abolition of all robbery by private interests, namely, the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

SUPPORT OUR RUSSIAN DAILY!

THE Russian Communist daily, Novy Mir has a new editorial board and new management, appointed by the central executive committee of the Workers Party after the old management announced that it was ready to give up the fight and turn the daily into a weekly. Comrade Moissaye Olgin was appointed editor in chief and Comrades Brailowski anu Burgin on the editorial board.

The paper has been invigorated with the best journalists that the party has in the Russian language.

The Novy Mir is one of the oldest Communist newspapers in the country. It was established about 12 years ago by the Russian federation of the old socialist party. With the party split the paper went with the Communists. At the time of the raids in 1921 the paper was forced under ground and was turned into a monthly magazine under the same name, being the official organ of the Communist Party in the Russian language. Later on it resumed publication under the name Iskra but was forced to suspend mostly on account of the internal struggles in the federation. After unity was achieved the paper again has been resumed under the old name, Novy Mir.

At present the Novy Mir has the best editorial staff since the time when Trotsky and Bucharin were on the editorial staff. The paper is receiving congratulations from individual comrades and from branches. It is believed that the paper will soon be out of its present financial difficulties and will become one of the strongest weapons of our party.

A convention of the Russian section of the Workers Party is called where measures will be taken to insure the existence of the Novy Mir.

By ONE NOT YET EXPELLED.

"Whom the Gods would destroy they first make mad," is one of three proverbs that headed the leaflet issued by F. W. Burgess, member of the Carpenters' Union of Philadelphia and campaign manager for Willis K. Brown of Peoria, candidate for General President of the U. B. of C. & J. of A. This proverb was directed against Wm. L Hutcheson and was followed by the statement, "These three proverbs can be aptly applied to General President, Bro. William L. Hutcheson, from the beginning to the end of the recent general convention of the Brotherhood of Carpenters.

"He started with a tirade against Communists and the necessity of kicking them out of the U. B." "There were only three Communists at the convention."

"It reminds us of the tactics of A. Mitchell Palmer and Harry M. Daugherty, both U. S. attorney generals, who, to cover their own corruption in office, threw the dust of 'Communism' and 'Reds' in the face of the public.

"The spirit of men whose consciences are not deadened by desire for profit or graft rise in resentment against unfair conduct of all persons and more especially, against unfairness on the part of those who have executive authority."

Burgess in Line for Expulsion.

For these and other statements supposed to have been made by Burgess he now finds himself on the eve of being kicked out of the organization along with the Communists, adherents of the T. U. E. L., and other progressive carpenters.

So far Willis K. Brown, the silent candidate for general president, has remained silent on the expulsion cases. He was silent in the convention. He said nothing during his campaign. He has said nothing since. However, there is still time for action, and we call upon Willis K. Brown to definitely state his position on the expulsion policy of Hutcheson, on the signing of "open shop" agreements without the consent of the membership, such as the Chicago agreement. What is his position on the corruption of the Hutcheson machine as pointed out in the document, of which he is supposed to have a copy, issued by Burgess, according to Hutcheson, and for which Burgess will undoubtedly be expelled without a trial? To remain silent means to endorse the present policy of the Hutcheson administration.

Hutcheson has a long list of names compiled before and added to since the convention of those slated for expulsion, with or without trial, depending entirely upon his control of the local machinery. Up to date 17 members have been expelled without trial, in flagrant violation of Section 55 of the general constitution, and many others are slated to go.

The 11 members in Los Angeles, all of them members of the brotherhood for from five to 30 years, were the first to be expelled. This was done prior to the convention, to stop a progressive group of delegates from coming to the convention.

Five members have been expelled in Chicago because they opposed the signing of the Chicago "open shop" agreement. One member in Detroit is expelled because he was active in the election campaign in support of Morris Rosen, the left wing candidate for general president, which resulted in Detroit casting a majority vote for Rosen.

Now F. W. Burgess is slated to go. His "crime" is being too active in the Labor Defense Council prior to the convention, and since then he has been guilty of the unforgivable "crime" of digging too deeply into the record of the Hutcheson administration.

His support of Willis K. Brown would have been forgiven, only he was not as silent as Brown. He went far beyond the candidate he was supporting. He laid his finger on too many sore spots, such as the falsification of the ballots cast for the old-age home. He pointed out that the general president had expelled 68 local unions because they refused to accept a cut in wages, and that Brotherhood men were brought in from all over the country to act as strikebreakers.

This, and many other things, Burgess is being accused of saying, by Wm. L. Hutcheson, who has sent in a special sub-committee of the general executive board to Philadelphia, composed of 1st Vice-President Cosgrove General Secretary Duffy, General Treasurer Neall, G. E. B. members Williams and Martell, with a special stenographer. They have documents which they say Burgess was responsible for, which tell of some of the corruption of the Hutcheson administration.

Burgess rightfuly refused to recognize the authority of this committee and is demanding a trial according to the rights which are supposed to be guaranteed him by the constitution. Thousands of dollars are being spent to expel members from the organisation, but not a cent to bring new members in. Philadelphia is a good example of how the money of the Brotherhood is being wasted. Five high salaried officials and a special stenographer spending thousands of dolars making an investigation that could have been done by mail from Indianapolis, that is, if there was any sincerity in the investigation.

If Hutcheson is honest why is he afraid to prefer charges against Burgess according to the constitution? which states that charges shall be made in writing, specifying the offense and the section of the constitution so violated, and that they shall be read at one meeting of the local union and laid over till the next meeting. The constitution also states that the defendant shall be notified of the charges; that 11 members shall be nominated by the local, the names placed in a ballot box and the first five drawn shall constitute the committee to investigate the charges. The defendant, accuser, and witnesses shall be notified of the trial. The accused and the accuser shall have the right to state their case to the local. The fact is, Hutcheson is afraid of an honest investigation.

Injunction Used to Frame Up Reynolds.

This constitutional guarantee against frameups has been completely ignored by Hutcheson in all of the expulsion cases. Burgess is not alone. The entire 17 are in the same boat.

Take the case of Wm. Reyonlds of Detroit. He did not even know that he was being investigated until a letter was read to the district council of Detroit, of which he is the vice-president, stating that he had been expelled. Now Hutcheson's contemptible stool pigeon, Botterill, has gone into the capitalist courts and gotten out an injunction to keep Reynolds from attending his local union meetings.

Of course, the left wing does not go into capitalist courts, nor do they recognize injunctions issued against labor. They are always ready to lay their case before the membership. This is a thing that labor fakers like Hutcheson are always afraid to do.

They will use all of the dirty, underhanded, unscrupulous, and dishonest means at hand to enforce their will, and if this is not enough they will then step further into the muck and appeal to the capitalist courts to support them. Reynolds, the militant, will fight the injunction but never will he bring the case before a capitalist court of his own volition.

Every carpenter, be he a Communist, an adherent of the T. U. E. L., a progressive, yes, every member of the rank and file must rally to the support of the 'expelled" members. They must force Hutcheson to give an account of his stewardship.

A Few Questions for Hutcheson.

Why is he afraid to allow these men a fair trial? Why cannot he explain the signing of the Chicago agreement if it is not a scab agreement? Why does he send in a committee to Philadelphia to railroad Burgess out of the Brotherhood, if what he says Burgess said is not true?

The constitution protects Hutcheson just as it is supposed to protect all members, and would protect them if it were lived up to. If Hutcheson is the honest man he says he is, why has he annulled Section 55 of the general constitution?

These are some of the questions the membership must ask from the czar. But, do not stop at asking questions, demand the immediate re-instatement of those declared expelled the abolition of the expulsion policy the right of free speech. Take this up in your local union. Now is the time to act.

SECRET SESSION IS HELD TO HEAR STONE EXPLAIN

Senate Then Holds Open One to Kid Public

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Attorney-general Harlan F. Stone, named to the supreme court by President Coolidge, took the witness stand in his own defense today before the senate judiciary committee to defend his professional record against senatorial criticism.

Stone appeared first at a secret session to explain his former legal activities for J. Pierpont Morgan and his reported intention as attorney-general to re-indict Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

Opposition to these two phases of Stone's legal record has blocked confirmation of his appointment to the supreme court.

Stone revealed that the indictment which he would seek against Senator Wheeler involved a "conspiracy to defraud the United States of its oil lands." He said that it was a new case and not a repetition of the Montana indictment against Wheeler.

SCHOOL BOARD TO CHARGE RENT FOR PUBLIC MEETINGS

Cal Coolidge's economy has nothing on the Chicago board of education. At its last meeting it leaked out that for the use of schools for public meetings the business manager of the board has ordered a charge for rent.

A committee headed by A. B. Halet and George McGowan, from the public affairs association, which is conducting a series of meetings on the drainage flow problem, a serious matter of water sanitation for Chicago, came before the board of education meeting to complain against a fee of $25 charged by Business Manager Byrne of the school board for the use of the schools for meetings. The matter was referred to the committee of building and grounds of which Trustee Fellows is chairman.

The committee said it had arranged for a series of meetings in schools in every ward for next Monday night to explain the seriousness of the water drainage question to the people of Chicago. "This action by the board retards our work" said George McGowan.

YOUNG WORKERS JOIN WORKERS PARTY AT OMAHA LENIN MEETING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 29.—Omaha held a rousing Lenin celebration Sunday afternoon, with a crowd which filled the Labor Lyceum to capacity.

The quality of the program, addresses and singing, caused much favorable comment

Snyder Makes Strong Address.

J. E. Snyder, national organizer for the Workers Party, made the principal address of the day. He appealed to the workers and young workers to join either the Workers Party or the Young Workers' League and help carry on the message of Leninsm in America.

Cards bearing the words of the "Internationale" and "Workers Memorial Song" proved so popular that only one or two could be found after the meeting. Those songs were rendered by the "Red Quartet." Their work produced round after round of applause.

As one comrade remarked: "This meeting proved the value of organizing party activity systematically."

A Big Program.

The program arranged for this meeting was as follows:

International—Red Quartet; Coutts, Jonisch, Matthews, Forman. Accompanist, Anne Jonisch.

Opening Remarks—Chairman A. P Kramer.

Address—in Russian, "Lenin and Russia," B. M. Mishkis.

NEWARK PAINTERS' UNION REPUDIATES THE SPY ABRAMOVICH

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 29.—Painters Local No. 777, of Newark repudiated Rapfael Abramovich, spy of world imperialism and the Second International, at its last meeting here.

By a vote of 50 to 45 the painters voted down the socialist party's request that the Newark painters send delegates to welcome Abramovich when he speaks here. Several speakers exposed Abramovichs' record in the interests of the world capitalists.

North Side English Notice.

Comrade John W. Johnstone, who attended the Pan-American and A. F. of L. conventions, will have an interesting account to give us of this gathering at the next meeting of our branch on Monday, at 8 p. m., at the Imperial Hall, 2406 N. Halsted St. Comrades come early so that we can finish our business quickly and give the speaker plenty of time.

WHAT IS YOUR SHARE IN IT?

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—According to census bureau estimate, the wealth of the United States in 1922 was $320,000,000,000, having increased ten times in fifty years. What is your share in these 320 billions?

How Taxes Are Dodged

Sixty-seven persons in 1922 paid income taxes amounting to $48,000,000. These individuals had an income of more than $1,000,000 a year. Their tax exceeded that of 5,000,000 taxpayers with incomes of less than $5,000. There is a reason—for the 5,000,000 have not enough to be taxed, while the wealthy with "tax-exempt" securities manage to escape taxation on a large part of their wealth and capital. Thus John D. Rockefeller is reputed to be worth at least $1,400,000,000, but pays taxes on income from wealth estimated at $500,000,000 and then he pretends that his income amounts to only $5,000,000.

There were a number of other interesting items in the census bureau report. The following table reveals noteworthy increases in values:

	1922	1912
Real property and improvements taxed	$155,908,000,000	$96,923,000,000
Manufacturing machinery, tools and implements	15,783,000,000	6,091,000,000
Manufactured products	28,422,000,000	14,693,000,000
Livestock	5,807,000,000	6,238,000,000
Farm implements and machinery	2,604,000,000	1,368,000,000
Agricultural products	5,465,000,000	5,240,000,000

A Lesson in Mathematics

Every wrker should note the increase in the value of property, machinery and manufactured products. And then he should ask himself what share he has received. Every farmer should compare the decrease in the value of livestock, the small increase in the value of agricultural products and the somewhat larger one in farm implements, and then should ask how it happens that the capitalists increase their capital and wealth so much more rapidly.

Plenty of wealth and capital—but what is your share in it?

War of Words Halts While Coolidge Men Fix Up Committee

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—An armistice in the fake war of words was declared in the senate today in the fight against promotion of Attorney General Harlan F. Stone, to the United States supreme court.

Altho democratic leaders declared the fight "not ended" administration spokesmen were confident of obtaining confirmation for Stone's appointment as soon as the judiciary committee again submits his name to the full senate. The committee will meet next Monday for final action on the appointment.

LENIN MEETING IN MILWAUKEE DRAWS OVERFLOW

Kruse and Bedacht Were the Speakers

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 29.—The Lenin memorial meeting held in Milwaukee Auditorium was well attended. The hall holding approximately 1,000 people was filled to capacity and over 200 people were turned away for lack of space.

The program of the evening opened with the Junior group of forty children standing before the large star thru which in glaring red letters was seen a sign, "Lenin is Dead, But Leninism Lives." The pageant was accompanied by a Russian choir singing the funeral march and the Freiheit Singing Society singing the International.

In addition to this the Socialist Maennerchor and the German Socialist Liedertafel choir sang revolutionary songs in the German language. The South Slavic choir "Buduchnost" also contributed two very fine numbers.

Bedacht Spoke.

The first speaker of the evening was Comrade Max Bedacht, who spoke in the German language and made a masterful speech. His speech on the achievement of Lenin and his life and work was well received by the audience.

Life Work of Lenin.

Wm. F. Kruse was the principal speaker in the English language. He spoke on the work of Nicolai Lenin and his achievements. He stated that the greatest monument that was built up by Lenin was the existence of a powerful Soviet republic, and the building up of the Third (Communist) International with parties thruout the world. He also outlined the work of Lenin as theoretician and strategist of the revolutionary movement. He laid particular stress on Lenin's struggle against reformists and his work in building up a powerful and centralized Communist movement. The great part played by Comrade Lenin in the Russian revolution of 1905 and 1917 in leading the armed insurrection of Russian workers was emphasized by Comrade Kruse. He also pointed out to the marvelous strategy displayed by Comrade Lenin in signing the Brest-Litovsk treaty and the introduction of the new economic policy.

Build the Party.

Comrade Kruse concluded his speech by calling upon the audience to build up a real monument to Comrade Lenin by building up the party of Lenin in this country—the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

TOKIO FACES WATER FAMINE UNLESS RAIN WILL ARRIVE SOON

TOKIO, Jan. 29.—Tokio today faced a great water famine. A lightess city was forecast within the near future unless heavy rains were received.

Authorities declared a water famine was inevitable unless rains were received within a fortnight. Right water economies have been ordered.

The last rain of any consequence fell here October 27, and the weather bureau has predicted no further rain until after Feb. 10.

Our Candidate in the 34th Ward.

HARRY BROOKER, candidate endorsed by the Workers (Communist) Party for alderman in the 34th ward, has a long history of service to the labor and revolutionary movements of Russia and America. Comrade Brooker is a printer, working at the trade, and a member of the Typographical Union, Local 16, Chicago.

Comrade Brooker is forty years old. He started to work for his living at the age of eighteen. In 1903, he became a member of the social democratic party of Russia and six months later he joined the social revolutionary party. He remained active in the left wing of this party up to 1908, when he left Russia for the United States.

During the period of his activity in Russia he was arrested ten times once for working in an underground print shop, and in 1907 he was exiled to the province of Viatka.

When he came to the United States he made New York his home. There he joined the Workmen's Circle, then the socialist labor party, and in 1918 the socialist party. In 1919 he joined the Communist Party and has been a member of the Communist movement ever since. He has been very active in the Communist movement, having held various responsible party positions, including that of sub-district organizer.

He joined Local 83, New York, of the Typographical Union in 1912 and has always been an active and loyal union man. He assisted in establishing the six-hour day for Jewish printers in Chicago, was secretary of the United Hebrew Chapels, and shop chairman in the print shop of the Jewish Daily Courier in 1920.

The life story of Harry Brooker is a tale of unswerving devotion and sacrifice to the working class movement—a tale of hard work, unflinching bravery in the face of czarist oppression, and patient striving to serve his fellow workers. His record is one that wins the respect and confidence of every working man and woman, one that assures them that he will faithfully fight for their interests at all times and in all places.

Prison Yawns Little For Gary, Ind., Tools Of the Steel Trust

HAMMOND, Ind., Jan. 29—Petitions for an appeal to the United States supreme court were filed today by attorneys of Hammond, representing Mayor R. O. Johnson of Gary, and a number of others of the fifty-five defendants sentenced to the federal penitentiary for conspiracy several months ago. They were found guilty of trafficing in illegal liquor and vice deals.

The sentences were imposed by the federal court at Indianapolis, and the decision of that court was recently upheld by the United States circuit court of appeals, sitting in Chicago.

Other defendants have filed motion for a new trial with the court of appeals.

Johnson and the other Gary officials were elected to office with the backing of the U. S. Steel corporation, and have always obeyed the orders of Elbert H. Gary. During a recent accident in Gary Mayor Johnson refused to investigate reports that 13 workers had been killed in the steel mills. The deaths were suppressed, only one being reported killed.

G. O. P. OF HOUSE EXCOMMUNICATES LA FOLLETTE MEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—LaFollette insurgents were officially read out of the republican party today by leaders of the house.

Representative Will R. Wood, republican of Indiana, chairman of the republican congressional committee, notified all republicans of the conference to be held here on Feb. 27 to choose a new speaker and floor leader but pointedly omitted the entire Wisconsin delegation. Keller of Minnesota, Sinclair of North Dakota, and La Guardia of New York.

This action by the house leaders, followed similar disciplinary method recently taken by senate leaders against LaFollette's supporters in the senate.

Socialist in Chop Suey.

Wisconsin has a delegation of eleven members in congress, all of whom are a part of the LaFollette organization. Ten of them, Representatives Cooper, Voigt, Nelson, Schafer, Lampert, Beck, Broene, Schneider, Frear, and Peavy are republicans, and one, Berger, is listed as a socialist though indistinguishable from any other LaFollette supporter.

All the congressmen thus dropped from the republican party rolls supported the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket in the recent campaign.

Hold Committee Positions.

Most of the Wisconsin delegation hold responsible positions in the present house republican organization. John M. Nelson, who was LaFollette's presidential campaign manager, is chairman of an elections committee, and a member of the rules committee.

How their exclusion from the republican organization will affect their committee status in the next congress, could not be determined.

NATIONAL OFFICE TERRITORY IS N. O. T. ONLY IN INITIAL; ITS MIDDLE NAME IS "RED"

THERE'S a small group of comrades away out in Wyoming that have sprinkled the sands with the fresh waters of Communism and made the desert bloom like a garden with red insurance policies for the DAILY WORKER.

They are the Finnish branch of Hanna, topnotchers in the national office territory with a total remittance of $72.00. This one branch has given almost a sixth of the entire sum raised in the national office district.

Just a little over a dollar a member average has been forthcoming so far from the national office territory branches. With an estimated membership of 360, the amount of $461.00 has been sent in. Among the pledges, however, is one for $100.00 from Jacksonville, Fla., which will no doubt be filled very shortly.

Twenty branches have been militant, while 18 have yet remained inactive. But the national office territory is N. O. T. in initial only; in action it has a reputation for being R. E. D. Is it going to come thru this "test of fire" with its colors still flying and with the DAILY WORKER insured? There isn't much time left in which to answer this question, right or wrong . . . .

COMMUNISTS DEFY FASCISTI AT LENIN MEMORIAL CELEBRATION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan 29.—With cries of "Viva Lenin," "Viva Soviet Russia" and "Viva the social revolution," the Italian Communists defied the iron dictatorship of Mussolini during the Lenin Memorial celebration thruout Italy recently. Dispatches received here speak of tremendous celebrations in Milan, Greco-Milanese, Trieste, Messina and Rome.

In Greco-Milanese, the Communists raised the red flag over the important buildings of the city. The Communists were fiercely attacked by the police and a number of them were arrested.

In Trieste the red flag was raised upon the telegraph poles of the city. Strenuous efforts were made by the fascisti to suppress any form of demonstration in honor of the first anniversary of the death of Lenin.

New York Will Be Heard Too.

Just as the workers of New York are inspired by the brave example of their brothers and comrades in Italy, so too will the Italian workers take heart when they hear of the formidable demonstration which the workers of New York will make next Sunday, Feb. 1 at 2 p. m. at Madison Square Garden. To the workers of the world, the fact that the American workers show a real spirit of revolutionary enthusiasm, right at the heart of the dictatorship of Morgan, Gary, et al, this fact to them is of tremendous importance. While they feel the iron heel of this dictatorship in Italy under Mussolini, in Germany under the Dawes plan, they are reconciled by the fact that ardent and energetic workers are striving industriously to undermine and overthrow that dictatorship, and that they liberation will come soon.

Tickets for this international demonstration, are now on sale at 208 East 12th street and at all Workers Party newspapers and branch party offices. For further details see the columns of this paper.

"SOCIALIST" JUDASES OF LABOR

FOR more than ten years the social-democrats, the mensheviks, have been active as the rear guard of retreating capitalism. Fighting desperately for the bankrupt cause of their capitalist masters these social-democrats have elevated treason to the working class to the fundamental principle of the Second International.

At present Raphael Abramovich, a member of the executive committee of the Second International and a member of the central committee of the Russian mensheviks is touring the United States as part of the counter-revolutionary activities of the "socialists." The Workers Party, the representative and leader of the revolutionary workers of America throws all the treacherous acts of the Second International into the face of its American representatives, the Abramoviches, the Hillquits, the Bergers, the Cahans and Pankens, and calls upon all red blooded workers of this country to show to this coterie of traitors their contempt.

Comrade Max Bedacht has written a little pamphlet for the Workers Party about the "Social Judases of Labor." The pamphlet is one great indictment of the role that international menshevism played in the continuous struggles of the exploited for their emancipation. The pamphlet will be sold for 5 cents a copy in retail. Hundreds of thousands of copies of this pamphlet ought to be circulated and sold by our party thruout the country.

The pamphlet supplies ammunition against the "socialisits" and can be used by our comrades in their activities and propaganda among their fellow workers. But the little booklet is also of great propaganda value in itself. Distributed among the workers in general, and especially among workers still influenced by the social traitors, the pamphlet can speak for the Communists and strengthen our ranks in the struggle against the shock troops of capitalist reaction: the "Socialist Judases of Labor."

Don't Miss Y. W. L. Entertainment to Be Held in Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. Jan. 29—The Springfield branch of the Young Workers League will entertain at a "sociable evening" given Feb. 15, at the White Dental Parlor, Hall, at 223 1-3, South Fifth Street, Springfield.

Comrade Margaret Sungail will appear in a selection entitled "Impersonations of a Busy Body" and the German Singing Society will render songs and recitals. The Young Workers League Orchestra, an organization that the Young Workers are justly proud of will be present and furnish select numbers of "jazz" music for the "hop" that will take place immediately after the other entertainments are over.

ORGANIZATION OF IOWA STATE IS NOW UNDER WAY

Unions Pledge Support in Child Labor Fight

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Jan. 29.—The campaign to organise Iowa state has gotten off to a good start. Comrade David Coutts arranged for a meeting on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 2, at the Sioux City Labor Temple, and also addressed the Machinists' Local and Women's Label League on the question of organizing a conference for a united front on the child labor amendment ratification. He interested two of the business agents of the Sioux City unions who promised to take it up at once.

W. P. Branch Certain.

Sioux City has no English branch of the party but from the way this proposition was received by a few of the old time radicals there is very good prospects for a branch when Comrade Snyder arrives for the meeting at Labor Temple.

The unemployment problem in Sioux City is acute. The glamour of the LaFollette fiasco has passed and there is now a seeking after new avenues for expression of discontent. The question mark is uppermost in the minds of the workers there and our future success will depend upon how practical our methods are in putting our party aims and program before them.

Iowa, in spite of its reactionary past, offers a fertile field for party work today and the comrades of that district are pushing the work to the limit.

Comrades Get Busy.

Comrades close to the eastern line of Iowa are urged to co-operate in that territory with the comrades from the west. Comrade David Coutts will be in Dubuque on Saturday, Jan. 31; Clinton, Monday, Feb. 2; Davenport, Wednesday, Feb. 4; Muscatine, Friday, Feb. 6. Address him General Delivery at any of these places so he can get in touch with those willing to help with the work.

Injured Fighting Fire

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Jan. 29—Two firemen, Wilbur Brotherton and Frank Moelter, were painfully injured fighting the fire which destroyed machine shops, store rooms and offices at the car barn of the Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Eastern traction line here today.

COMMUNISM IN FRANCE GROWS

great industrial suburbs, is by now almost completely re-organized. There are 500 factory groups organized in nearly 50 industrial locals (Rayons). Some 200 factory newspapers are being published. The party membership has increased from 8,000 in the middle of last year to nearly 15,000.

Work in the North

In the very important industrial area of Northern France, including the chief coalfields of France and the big textile industry centred on Lille, 196 factory groups have been set up and are working, and another 37 are in course of foundation. Of these groups about 80 are in collieries, and as many again in textile factories and mills. The factory groups are organized in 19 rayons, 20 factory newspapers are published, and the circulation of the local party weekly, L'Enchaine du Nord, has increased from 14,000 to 18,000.

This progress is the more remarkable in that the northern district is the chief stronghold of social democracy in France, the place where the French socialist party is still powerful.

Other parts of the country where the party is not so strong, have naturally made less progress in the work of re-organization.

Side by side with the formation of the factory groups has gone the re-organisation of the party districts (federations). Formerly these simply corresponded with the departments, the French local government divisions. Now the old federations have been re-grouped in new "regions"—each comprising several of the old federations—corresponding to the economic and industrial characteristics of the area.

For the work of party training "Leninist schools" have been set up. It was the Central Leninist school at Bobigny, a proletarian suburb of Paris, which was raided by the police of M. Herriot's "liberal" government last December.

L'Humanite has been improved by the introduction of a section for "Workers' Life" letters, and by the regular publication of a section for party news. The net increase in the circulation over last year is 11,000; the total remains at about 200,000.

Party Campaigns

A committee of action has been set up by the party and the C. G. T. U. (the Left Wing Trade Union Congress), and this committee has been carrying on campaigns against the Dawes plan, for national and international trade union unity, against the high cost of living, and against the fascist danger.

Many demonstrations and meetings have been held, with great success; particularly the magnificent demonstration when Jaures' remaines were transferred to the Pantheon. On this occasion 200,000 Parisian workers came on to the streets behind the banners of the committee of action; the capitalist press shrieked alarm for days and weeks afterwards.

The party has intensified its campaign against the infamous French "socialist" leaders whose shameful betrayal of every principle of socialism becomes every day more glaring. They have supported the Herriot government all the time, voting for the budget, including the secret police funds, sabotaging a complete amnesty for all political prisoners, always meanly attacking the Communist Party and the Russian revolution—to the great joy of the capitalist press.

Monatte-Rosmer "Right"

But while our brother party has been putting its shoulder to the wheel in such fine style, it has, unhappily, been faced with an attack from within. Certain comrads in leading circles in the party who had been closely associated with Souvarine were dissatisfied with the latter's exclusion, and with the new "left" party lead. Chief among these comrades were Monatte, the well-known left wing trade unionist, and Rosmer (former foreign editor and chief sub-editor of L'Humanite). They were also members of the party executive.

These comrades supported Trotsky against the Russian C. P. and the International; and Rosmer made the serious mistake, when the MacDonald "labor" government was formed, of hailing it as if it were only one step removed from the proletarian revolution. He also drafted a letter for the French party to send to the labor party, greeting the labor government and offering it support—without any fundamental criticism or any indication of a revolutionary and Bolshevik line on this question. It is only fair to say, by the way, that this opportunist attitude was prevalent in our own party at the time.

After the Souvarine affair had been settled, Monatte and Rosmer, with one or two others, formed a little discontented "cave" within the party. In party conferences and meetings they occasionaly defended their view-point, and criticized the party lead, but were voted down by overwhelming majorities. It was absolutely clear that the mass of the proletarian membership was dead against them.

An "Open Letter"

For a while they lay low. Then, quite suddenly, in November, they drew up an open letter to the members of the party, which they had distributed as far as possible throughout the party. The letter was signed Monatte, Rosmer, and Delagarde, another member of the party executive. It contained violent personal attacks on the party leadership, notably on comrades Albert Treint and Suzanne Girault, who were declared to be "autocrats" with whom any team work was impossible. The letter attacked the "barrack-room" discipline of the party, and said that its "bureaucracy" would soon be worse than that of the French bourgeois state itself.

As soon as the letter became known throughout the party resolutions began to pour in from factory groups and aggregate meetings condemning its authors and demanding their expulsion from the party. The seriously anti-communist character of the action of Monatte, Rosmer, and Delagarde is shown by the enthusiasm with which the publication of their letter was greeted by the capitalist and social-democratic press and party leaders. Both these enemies of Communism and the revolutionary workclass gleefully made use of the Monatte-Rosmer letter as a weapon to injure the Communist party.

Expulsion Voted

A special and urgent national party council was held on December 5, which voted unanimously (less two abstentions) for the expulsion of Monatte, Rosmer, and Souvarine from the party. This remains to be confirmed by the forth-coming congress.

We in England have had to deal with our right wing opportunists, such as Newbold and Ellen Wilkinson. Our sympathies must be with our French comrads in their fight to make their party solidly Bolshevik, which involves a remorseless struggle against the right deviations represented by Monatte and Rosmer.

CITY OF PLUTES HEARS MESSAGE OF LENINISM

Washington Crowd Fills Theatre

By H. O. WATT.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29.—Washingtonians filled the auditorium of the Play House Sunday evening on the occasion of the memorial to our Comrade Lenin. When this may be accomplished in the stronghold of the bourgeoisie, at the high seat of mediocrity, our members thruout the country should feel encouraged to fight on, in their more fortunate proletarian environment.

Knew American Conditions.

Oliver Carlson, fresh from inspiring gatherings in Philadelphia and in Baltimore, held his audience in close attention as he described his pilgrimages to Soviet Russia and of his interview with Lenin, who showed himself to be more familiar with American conditions than was Carlson himself. The speaker told of the vast improvement in the conditions under which the workers now live in Russia as compared with conditions three years ago, at the time of his first visit to that country.

Lenin's great work in building up a real Communist Party so that the party has carried on his work efficiently and effectively was eloquently and impressively stated by Comrade Carlson. The reverence with which almost the entire population of Russia grieved at the news of Lenin's death was cited as the reply to the lackeys of capitalism who assert that the workers and peasants of the Soviet government are subjects, against their will, to red domination.

Lenin Conquered Enemies.

The skillful manner with which Lenin guided the fortunes of the Russian people thru the dark years of famine and pestilence and blockade to the successful obliteration of all their enemies so that the Russians today enjoy the highest standard of living of any European country was described in Comrade Carlson's masterful, sincere and direct manner.

The speaker repeated several instances of his experiences with the natives of Russia as evidence of the great love which they held for their devoted and loyal leader. In reply to those who believe that Communism is a cut and dried theory Comrade Carlson called attention to the fact that this theory of managing the affairs of the human race must be carried on thru human agencies and that human feelings are a factor in the struggle which must be kept in mind. And Lenin was one of the noblest of men.

Collection For Defense.

Comrade Carlson in speaking of American conditions mentioned the Michigan persecution to which Communists have been subjected. The speaker appealed to the audience to assist us in raising funds with which to employ the best possible legal aid for our imprisoned comrades. The sum of $31.19 was collected.

Musical Genius Plays.

If Washington is unfortunate in having no real working class conscious population it is at least fortunate in another respect. The eleven year old daughter of Comrades Altman is a musical genius, in the real sense of the term, and is recognized as such by the music lovers of the Capitol. Our Lenin memorial meeting was opened by our little comrade, Sylvia Altman, at the piano. Her brother, Julius, nine years of age, accompanied her on the violin, in playing "The International." Other selections were played both at the opening and at the close of the evening, and were deeply appreciated.

Daily Worker Praised.

Comrade O'Hara McIntosh presided and spoke of the good work which is being done by the DAILY WORKER in carrying Comrade Lenin's message to the workers of America. He said in part:

"In the United States this evening scores of meetings similar to this gathering are being held. The sentiment which is expressed by these meetings is the reply of the class conscious workers of America to the falsehoods which are continually being published in the yellow press of the capitalist class. Perhaps some of those in the audience may not be aware of the fact that the mental prostitutes who work under the aliases of 'foreign correspondents' have been excluded from Russia because dishonest men are not wanted in that country.

Vultures of Capitalism.

"Thes vultures of capitalism have gone across the border to the city of Riga where they have established an immense lie factory, for the purpose of defaming the Soviet government. From that factory are cabled flights of fancy to all of the so-called civilized nations of the world. The chief recipient of these canards in America is the Chicago Tribune.

Chicago Tribune Lie Factory.

"From Chicago the stories are telegraphed to various cities and Washington receives its share of them. You have all seen these stories and perhaps some of you have seen the official denials tucked away in some obscure corner a few weeks after the publication of the original story. It may interest this audience to know that there is a daily paper published in this country which is devoted to the interests of the working class and in which these capitalist lies are exposed.

The Workers' Daily.

"This paper is the DAILY WORKER and is delivered in Washington the day following its publication. We urge upon all of you the necessity of reading this paper if you wish to be correctly informed concerning the struggle between capital and labor which is daily becoming more and more acute in every capitalist country.

Repaid by Russia.

Responding to urgent appeals made immediately after the war, English co-operators lent nearly a million pounds to co-operative societies in eastern Europe, and particularly Russia.

Russia has now practically wiped off her share of this debt, tho it would seem that the other countries in which loans were made have been by no means so prompt in payment. This shows the hollowness of the outcry which has been raised in some quarters against the proposed guarantee of a loan to Russia under the recent treaty. Where Russia recognizes a debt she has shown that she is quite willing to honor her obligations.—Labor Press Service.

Mississippi Wants Scandinavians.

BILOXI, Miss.—Believing that Scandinavians will do more work for less money, the Mississippi chamber of commerce and the development board has, through Oscar Hellstrom, combed Canada and the northern section of the United States to secure them to be employed on farms and canning factories in the southern part of the state.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Every day under this head you will learn not only what BUILDERS thruout the country are doing to build a greater newspaper, but also practical suggestions to accomplish more for OUR paper. Tell us what YOU are doing—and we will "tell the world."

From the Senate of the State of Montana.

ON stationery of the state of Montana, Senator Charles E. Taylor, of Sheridan county, editor of the Producers' News, of Plentywood, sends another subscription for himself on a blank from the Tool Box. It is very natural for a Communist, in the state senate, to carry a Tool Box even there. A Builder carries a Tool Box with him everywhere! But read what he writes:

> Comrades: Here I am in the senate of the state of Montana. I have been two weeks without a copy of the DAILY WORKER and I feel that I have been in the mountains for that length of time. So please put me on the list for the enclosed $1.00 and send me three or four back numbers.
> I am getting the paper at Plentywood, Montana, but I want it here also and I do not care to have the paper changed for so short a time.
> Best wishes to you pioneers of the better day,
> CHARLES E. TAYLOR.

The Tool Box is a handy thing. Builders thruout the country are learning the trick of having one in their pockets no matter where they go—to the shop or the senate. But we frankly admit, altho we are glad to see the Tool Box taken to a state senate, we are much more pleased to see it go to the shop. Be sure to take yours there—it's a great place to "Build the DAILY WORKER."

A Strange Agent From Duluth.

Comrade Lund, DAILY WORKER agent for Duluth, asks us in his letter to cut his earnings from the DAILY WORKER sub sales in half. He says he is also agent for the Finnish paper "Tyomies" and can manage to "get by" with just half of what he gets. A strange agent indeed, but one who appreciates the hard task of existing that the DAILY WORKER has. We are cutting his earnings in half, but we wish we could double them.

In addition to his plea he sends us the news that he has secured the support of two live wires, R. F. Rooney and Arnold Arnio of the English branch, to devote two evenings a week to sub getting in order to build their branch. He is arranging such support from the local Y. W. L. as well. That is sure to bring results in "building." Have you comrades in other locals, a little live wire in the branches? Send him (or her) to the local DAILY WORKER agent.

OMAHA COMRADES SEND GREETINGS TO C. E. RUTHENBERG

The City Central Committee of the Omaha branch, Workers (Communist) Party of America, has sent the following letter to Comrade Ruthenberg, pledging support to the Labor Defense Council, and congratulating the Communist movement on the release of Comrade Ruthenberg:

"C. E. Ruthenberg,
1113 W. Washington Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.
Dear Comrade:

"The City Central Committee, representing the Omaha branches of the Workers Party, congratulates you on your release from the clutches of the capitalist jailers, who wish to imprison you because of your service to the toilers of this country, and we welcome your return to activity in the Communist movement in America.

"Whom the capitalists cannot buy they try to destroy or place behind iron bars. These exploiters know that you cannot be bought or flattered into betraying the cause of the oppressed, and so they try to remove you from the field of the class war by sentencing you to prison.

Workers Support Communists.

"Regardless of what action the supreme court may take on your case, you will know that the militant workers and farmers of the country are behind you to a man.

"May life grant you long years in which to serve the movement of the real people, the workers. That movement is the Communist International—your movement and ours—the movement of all the oppressed everywhere.

Fraternally yours,
City Central Committee,
Omaha, Nebr.

Friends of the child labor amendment must have rubbed their eyes in wonder to see the Chicago Tribune stand for a proposed law that would if enacted, and honestly enforced, throw some protection around the youth of this country who are exploited in the slave pens of the nation before they have grown to manhood and womanhood.

Not that the law was adequate or anything like it. Not that we expect a capitalist government to enforce a law that would injure the system of which it is the executive committee. But the vigorous and united opposition that the capitalists organized against it showed very clearly that they recognized its implications and its damaging effect on their profit making industrial machine.

The Chicago Tribune was one of the very few capitalist papers to support the proposed amendment. But on January 28, the Tribune changed its position and attacked the amendment, tho declaring that the principle back of it was right. "There has been vacillation and uncertainty in this office," declared the editorial. What actually happened in the Tribune office, we do not know, but it is quite likely that the chief editorial writer got away with his own ideas on the question until the organized opposition to the amendment brought the necessary pressure to bear on the owner, who may be enjoying himself in Florida, in Paris or at the gambling tables of Monte Carlo with the result that the editorial-writer-in-chief was instructed to switch his lights.

The Tribune now howls with the pack. This is as it should be. Those who talk about a free press under class rule are talking thru their hats. The DAILY WORKER does not wave the white banner of impartiality as does the hypocritical capitalist press. We are partial towards the working-class. We admit that our paper is concerned only with the welfare of the workers and with the interests of the workers' revolution. We support the child labor amendment or any other proposition that we believe will aid the workers. We avail ourselves of every opportunity to advance and strengthen the revolutionary movement. We are one sided.

So is the Tribune. When a capitalist paper happens to support the workers it is only by mistake. The press is one of the most valuable weapons in the arsenals of the ruling class. It serves a double function, to make profit for its individual owners and to defend the system on which it lives. On trivial questions, the capitalist papers may differ but on some issue that strikes at a fundamental capitalist principle, they bark in unison.

Against the class press of the capitalists we pit the class press of the workers—the Communist press.

The Fight Must Go On

The temporary defeat administered to the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution is about as damaging an indictment as could possibly be made against the fatuous non-partisan political policy of the American Federation of Labor. Despite the support of the A. F. of L. twelve states have taken unfavorable action on the amendment and another state has voted to postpone action, which in this case means the equivalent of defeat, ratification by three-fourths of the 48 states being necessary.

This does not mean that the proposed amendment is dead, tho there is little liklihood of its passing over the opposition of the organized power of the capitalists in the near future unless the supporters of the proposed law follow the lead given by the Workers (Communist) Party and rally the masses for the fight to put it over. Nothing can be accomplished by the pussy-footing policy followed by the A. F. of L. and the other liberal associations who are interested in the amendment for humanitarian reasons.

But where are the "friends of labor" that we heard so much about from the reactionary braggarts at the last A. F. of L. convention? According to the labor fakers the state legislatures were full of them. And yet this law on which Sam Gompers was supposed to have set his heart has been ignominously defeated in the state legislatures before it got really started.

The Workers (Communist) Party has issued a call for a united front against child labor. All that is militant in the working-class movement will answer that call. The A. F. of L. bureaucracy has again proven its incompetency. It is lacking in energy, generalship and even ordinary sincerity. The petrified and putrified bureaucracy must be shovelled out of the way and replaced by a fighting leadership that will make the capitalist class sit up and take notice. Until the American workers do this, a fate similar to that met by the child labor amendment will be the rule and not the exception, in all their struggles.

"B. & O." Plan Repudiated

William H. Johnston, former drummer in the salvation army and now president of the International Association of Machinists, earned a reputation as a sensible labor leader, among the bosses, when he initiated the class collaborationist policy known as the B. & O. Plan in the Glenwood shops of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

This plan was broached to the president of the B. & O. by Johnston, a few weeks before the shopmens' strike of 1922. It has proven a good system for the bosses and is gaining in popularity among railroad officials. But it is a vicious system for the workers.

Johnston has heralded the B. & O. plan far and wide as an example of what can be accomplished by the "new" methods of solving the difficulties that arise between employers and employes. He boasted that it was a success and that the workers in the Glenwood shops where it was initiated were heartily in favor of it. But it appears that the reverse is the truth.

But at a special meeting called by Lodge 401 of the I. A. M., the originators of the B. & O. plan were repudiated as well as the plan itself, even tho Johnston's henchman Vice-President Conlon warned the members of the lodge, that if they did not endorse the Johnston slate, such action would be taken all over the conutry as a repudiation of the B. & O. Plan.

The repudiation of the B. & O. Plan by the members on whom it was first tried kicks the props from underneath the Johnston scheme. This was the first time the employes of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad had an opportunity to declare themselves on the question and their verdict is decisive.

The fight against the B. & O. Plan in the I. A. of M. has been inaugurated and led by the left wing under the leadership of the Trade Union Educational League. That fight is now beginning to show tangible results. It will not end with killing the B. & O. Plan but will retire from office the labor fakers who are responsible for it.

A Liar Tells the Truth—Once

It is not very often that a capitalist editor tells the truth. But something must have exploded in the editorial sanctum of the Chicago Tribune on January 27, because we find two strange editorials in the Tribune of January 28. One was a slam at the Civic Opera company, which is subsidized by Samuel Insull, and another was a reversal of position on the child labor amendment. Formerly the Tribune was for the amendment but it changed its mind. Perhaps the editorial writer was sore because he was forced to write in support of the exploitation of children tho his conscience urged him to follow the opposite course.

What he has to say about the opera is interesting not because of his attitude towards that much puffed art, but for the light it sheds on capitalism. Evidently the Tribune opera critic believed that the performances at the Auditorium were bunk but the Tribune dared not offend Insull, tho the movie and dramatic critics could say what they pleased about the productions they covered.

The following is an excerpt from an editorial entitled: "Now it can be told": "It wasn't civic opera and it wasn't grand. If our Mr. Moore in his accounts of what was given at the auditorium had felt at liberty to speak his piece as Mr. Donaghey does of the stage and as Mae Tines does of the movies he would have said that most of it was mediocre and some of it worse than that. You can't speak your mind about opera. This is the first time it has been done and it may be the last. You can't even whisper around about it. If it's awful, the critic must find an aria to praise. If it is mediocre he must say it was good and if it happens to be good it must be superlative . . . We'll see what we get from this bit of plain speaking which we have not dared to attempt before."

This is plain speaking with a vengeance. A cyclone must have hit the Tribune editorial room. Perhaps the principal owner of the paper blew in and asked why in the blankety blank the child labor amendment was being supported editorially and perhaps the poor editorial writer after being obliged to crawfish on that issue took it out on the civic opera. Anyhow we are grateful to the hack who proved our contention that capitalist editors and journalistic hacks are paid liars.

Steel Trust "Earnings"

The United States Steel company "earned" over $150,000,000 during 1924. Wall Street congratulated this wolfish industry on its continued milking of the workers, tho it earned less during the last quarter of 1924 than in 1923, when the "earnings" were $40,000,000, this quarter's amounting to $30,762,231. The actual total of "earnings" for 1924 were $152,937,130.

When the capitalist wolves declare a dividend on one of their exploitation schemes, they call dividing up the spoils "cutting a mellon," and this time U. S. Steel gave up an extra dividend besides the regular ones, doling out 50 cents a share more for those who feed on the workers. The dividends amounted to $1.75 a share.

INTERNATIONAL WORKERS' RELIEF HEADS ARRESTED

German Government Begins Persecution

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—"Monstrous action against the Workers' International Relief."

Under this title the Berlin Communist paper Rote Fahne is publishing the following report:

"The Berlin police presidency, the leading officials of which were involved in vast affairs of corruption and have been in the center of public discussion and press polemics during the last weeks, will avenge the insults caused by the Bartels scandal. For this reason all members of the central committee of the Workers' International Relief were summoned to the bureau of the political police in order to be submitted to a rigorous trial.

"During the last few days Comrades Ledebour, Bachmann, Alexander and Arendsee were summoned to the police. The trial is based on an appeal which the central committee of the Workers' International Relief launched this summer in favor of the German proletariat, surrendered by the London convention to the international big capital appealing to the proletarian solidarity in order to save the German workers from ruin.

Use War Law.

"The political department of the German police will utilize in this action the well-known war decree against collections and charity fetes of swindle enterprises, organized during the war to exploit war relief. It is quite evident that there is no legal reason for the persecution of the W. I. R. The jury verdicts in Hamburg and in other cities prove that the old decrees issued in pursuance of other purposes cannot be utilized against proletarian aid—actions and collections in favor of strikers and for support of economic fights and political prisoners, etc. The monstrous action will involve nearly 20 members of the Workers' International Relief headquarters.

"The intention of the reaction is clear: They will deprive the poorest of the poor from all hopes in order to subdue him to the exploitation of the London treaty without any resistance. It is the duty of the whole German working class to fight against these police persecutions in order to prevent a restriction of the W. I. R. activity by police maneuvers."

MOTHER OF SLAIN COMMUNIST MINER CONTRIBUTES TO DAILY WORKER FUND IN SON'S NAME

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MADISON, Ill., Jan. 29.—Netta Popovsky, mother of Boris Popovsky, member of the Young Workers League who was brutally murdered by a policeman at West Frankfort, Illinois, last July, has taken out a ten dollar insurance policy to build the DAILY WORKER for 1925.

The policeman who murdered Popovsky under the eyes of the judge in an open courtroom, is still on the West Frankfort police force. The policeman had arrested Popovsky, a well known Communist in Southern Illinois, charging him with speeding in a laundry truck. When Popovsky was brought into the courtroom the policeman clubbed him to death with the butt of his revolver, without provocation.

In sending her contribution, the slain Young Communist's mother writes:

"Dear Comrades:

"Enclosed herewith you will find a check for $10.00 in payment of an insurance policy which I wish to be issued in memory of my deceased son Boris Popovsky, who was killed most brutally, as you know, last July at West Frankfort, Ill., by an uncautious tool of the capitalist class, namely an officer of the law.

"While my son is dead, it is a great satisfaction to my heart to see the great ideal for which he has spent his short and youthful life spread throughout the world. He has struggled for the achievement of Communism and died with his last words for that ideal. It is not only on finished undertakings that we honor useful labor. Although he no longer is with us, his death, however, did not take away the spirit for which he fought, for he left behind him an army of comrades constituting a mightier power which eventually will bring for the goal for which he strived.

"It is with these thoughts in mind that I am sending you this small financial support in my son's memory, so that the efficiency of the offensive weapon may be made stronger against our enemy in 1925.

"Yours fraternally,
"Netta Popovsky."

FIGHT ON CHILD SLAVERY TO GO ON IN ILLINOIS

Gov. Small Now Has Amendment

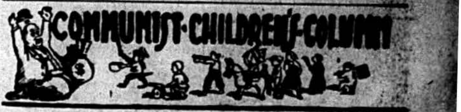
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 29. — The twentieth amendment to the federal constitution, giving congress power to regulate and prohibit child labor, is in the hands of Governor Len Small here. Small said he may introduce the amendment into the legislature next week.

Altho twelve state legislatures have defeated the ratification of the proposed amendment, and one state has postponed action, the fight will continue for ratification in Illinois, it was declared by child labor advocates today. It was pointed out that there is no time limit for securing ratification, and that the amendment may be re-introduced into the legislatures where it met defeat at a later date.

The five state legislatures defeating the amendment yesterday were: Ohio, Kansas, North Dakota, Washington and Oklahoma. The amendment so far has been adopted by two state legislatures—those of Arkansas and California.

Tribune Wants Child Labor.

The Chicago Tribune, in an editorial this morning, apologized for having ever favored the anti-child labor amendment, and declared that from now on it will oppose the amendment. The Tribune, as always, has lined up with the Illinois chamber of commerce and the Illinois manufacturers' association, against the workers of Illinois.



A Junior Tells of Communist Hungary.

When I lived in Hungary in 1919, we had a Communist government led by Comrade Bela Kun. All the poor working people were in favor of this government because it stood for them.

In the school where I went they used to teach us to fight for the working class along with Bela Kun and the rest of the Communists. when the capitalist class ruled, she was afraid to tell us the truth. But when the Communists took over the government she was very glad and she always used to explain to us why we should support them.

Each classroom was organized into a Soviet, with officers and everything. I was elected delegate to the school Soviet. When the school Soviet met, the teachers could not tell us what to do or order us around, because outside of the school there were two of our dear Red Soldiers on guard. All of us used to love these two Red Soldiers because they used to play with us and tell us stories about Comrade Lenin and how the workers were trying to get rid of the cruel capitalists all over the world and how the Russian and Hungarian workers have already done so.

But after a while the Roumanian soldiers came and killed the workers and Communists. All the children in our school missed the two Red Soldiers very very much and we never saw them again. I hope the cruel Roumanian soldiers did not hurt them.

All the people were sorry because the Communist government was overthrown. And we were not allowed to have our school councils any more and our good teachers were sent away.

I hope the Communists in Hungary will soon come back and take over the government again and make the working people and children happy.

MUSIC · LITERATURE · DRAMA

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

GEORGES ENESCO, Roumanian composer, conductor and violinist, was soloist and guest director with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra last Friday and Saturday. He played the Bruch second concerto. The concerto itself is an old fashioned, rather longish work, but on the whole quite worth hearing. Enesco made it seem four times longer that it is. The reason for that is that Enesco is a sentimentalist in his playing, and too often in his composition. He loves to linger over one tone, drawing all the sensuousness out of it. Smetimes he carries ths trait of his to such an extent that he seems dead and listless.

He directed two of his own compositions as well, a suite for orchestra and the first Roumanian rhapsody. Of the four movements of the suite two are good. The prelude in unison, orchestrated only for violins, violas, 'cellos and kettledrums, has a peculiarly nude, vigorous effect arising from the simplicity of the theme and of its treatment. There is a clever fast movement closing the suite. The two inside sections, a slow minuet and a slow intermezzo, suffer from the same excessive weight of sentimentality that so affects Enesco's style as a violinist.

The rhapsody, if not a setting of actual Roumanian folk tunes, is made of melodies akin to Roumanian folk tunes. It is both Roumanian and rhapsodic. (That is a bromide one must use every now and then). Some day I should like to make up an orchestral program of rhapsodies. I should not put on it the second Hungarian of Liszt, but htis first Roumanian of Enesco would take its place.

Another modernist of Southern Europe, the Hungarian Bela Bartok, was represented on this program by a suite for orchestra, which, tho written twenty years ago, when Bartok was only twenty-four, was given its first Chicago presentation. The suite is a bad imitation of Liszt. Bartok has gone much farther than this suite in the years following its composition.

The program opened with the well known and rightfully popular overture to Weber's "Abu Hassan."

Student Orchestra Concert.

THE Civic orchestra of Chicago, Frederick Stock's student orchestra, gave its first Orchestra Hall concert of this season last Sunday afternoon. Part of the program was directed by Stock, part by his assistant, Eric Delamarter.

The program opened with one of the great overtures of the world, the Beethoven "Egmont". This was followed by two movements of the same composer's seventh symphony. The slow section of this work, played on the Civic program, is said by some to represent a procession of mourners in the catacombs of Rome. Perhaps this interpretation is a bit extreme, but the theme is a queer and exotic one.

This was followed by the orchestral scherzo "The Sorcerer's Apprentic," by the Belgian, Paul Dukas. The literary basis of the scherzo is a ballad by Goethe, telling how a sorcerer had a magic formula that would turn a stick of wood into an animate servant. His apprentice picked up this formula, and one day, when the magician was gone, commanded a stic to bring him water for a bath. The stick brings water until the tub is full, but the apprentice does not know ho to break the charm. The stick continues bringing water. The apprentice finally picks up a hatchet and breaks the stick. Now both sections bring twice the amount of water, and the sorcerer's house is flooded. Finally the magician himself arrives and the sticks cease.

Florence School, a young pianiste, played the fifth Saint-Saens concerto. Miss Scholl has has a fine, firm technical equipment, and understanding and appreciation of what Dunsany calls "The meaning of music." The concerto she played is one of the best of the not always divinely inspired Camille.

Mr. Stock closed with the Spanish rhapsody of Emmanuel Chabrier. Anything by Chabrier can be predicted as being crackling fireworks in tone, and "Espana" is one of the crackliest.

FOO GAMBLERS REAP GOLD HARVEST

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

PROFESSOR TIMOTHY A. SMIDDY, is the Irish Free State minister plenipotentiary at Washington. What he does besides drawing his salary, I don't know. The British ambassador takes care of Ireland, it being one of John Bull's other islands. The Irish, like most people, like to be tickled around the gills with a feather, and England having goaded them into a state of chronic obstreperousness, finally decided to present them with a bauble in the shape of the Irish Free State. The next thing was to allow them to send a "plenipotentiary" to Washington.

IF anybody thinks Ireland is satisfied with a few concessions, that somebody is greatly mistaken. Politically speaking, Ireland is as temperamental as Ganna Walska. The British government is about as popular in the Emerald Isle as a prohibition agent "back o' the yards," in Chicago. When the Prince of Wales announced recently that he would like to honor Ireland with his presence, the happy populace began to shine up its artillery and foxes, hares and rabbits grew so bold that they jostled the people off the city sidewalks. Their natural enemies were waiting for the prince. David P. changed his mind.

THE king of England would be as safe in that part of his dominions as a catholic missionary in the palace of the imperial wizard of the ku klux klan. The Irish took all the titles and are hungry for more. But to get back to Smiddy. This country has spoiled a good many Irishmen and Smiddy is now on the casualty list. There is an organization in existence known as the George Washington Sulgrave institution. Its object is to clear up the air relative to the little unpleasantness between the colonies and the "mother" country in 1776 and since, and to prove that Britain freed the United States from German tyranny, because prithee, was not the commander of the American armies of English descent, and the then King George a German?

THIS movement is very popular on Long Island, New York, on Beacon Hill, Boston and in Picaddilly, London, but the people on the banks of the Liffey and the Shannon are not enthusiastic about it. Professor Smiddy, having existed in this country for some time, knew no better than to accept an invitation to be guest of honor of the Sulgrave institute. As soon as the news reached Dublin, Smiddy was advised that he had better go to a one arm lunch, instead. That's how the situation stands at present.

AS long as Ireland is under the hammer, we might as well devote the rest of this column to it. The trade union movement has gone thru a very severe crisis within the past two years. From 1916 to 1921 the membership of the Irish Transport and General Workers increased from a few thousand to over one hundred thousand. Because of favorable economic conditions it was able to secure some wage increases and owing to the glamor lent to its name by James Connolly, the leader of the Easter week revolution, it was looked upon as a revolutionary organization. In fact its official organ, the Voice of Labor, talked glibly of the forming of Soviets and the organization of Red guards.

AFTER the war there was a revolutionary sentiment thruout the ranks of the organization and in several places the workers seized factories and hoisted the red flag. These incidents were frowned upon from headquarters. But some time prior to the advent of the British labor party to office, a wave of industrial depression hit Ireland and the bosses opened an offensive against the Transport Union. Severe losses in membership and wage cuts resulted.

• • •

THERE was a considerable left wing sentiment in the Transport Union but it had no leadership. The Commun-

RUTHENBERG IS FREED IN TIME TO SPEAK IN N. Y.

Appears on Program at Big Lenin Memorial

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 30.—C. E. Ruthenberg, national executive secretary of the Workers Party, has just been released from prison at Jackson, Mich., under bail of $7,500.

His release comes just in time for him to address the gigantic demonstration which has been arranged for the first anniversary of the death of Nicolai Lenin Sunday, Feb. 1, at 2 p. m., at Madison Square Garden.

List of Other Speakers.

Besides C. E. Ruthenberg, Comrades Charles Krumbein and Ben Gitlow who are awaiting the sentence of the capitalist courts, will also speak at the Lenin meeting. Comrade M. J. Olgin who has recently returned from Russia will be one of the speakers. The other speakers will be Jack Stachel of the Young Workers' League K. Radzi, in Russian, and an Oriental speaker, Y. Nishimura.

This is not the first time that Ruthenberg has spoken in Madison Square Garden before masses of New York workers. It will be remembered that he was the principal speaker on the occasion of the wonderful demonstration given Comrade Martens, the first envoy from Soviet Russia to America. Then again last year the record-breaking meeting on the occasion of the death of Lenin. This year again his voice will resound thru the old rafters of the historic Garden.

Tickets Going Fast.

In addition to the speakers, there will be a splendid musical program with the Freiheit Chorus with hundreds of well-trained voices under the direction of Lazar Weiner, symphony orchestra of 100, and Mme. Nina Gusieva, dramatic soprano who will render fine vocal selections at the Garden.

It is reported that tickets are going fast. It is advisable that all those who want to be assured of getting into the Garden get their tickets in advance.

ATTACKS RULE OF COOLIDGE AS AN OUTRAGE

Senator Says Cal Knifes Postal Pay

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—President Coolidge's influence on legislation was condemned from the floor of the senate this afternoon, by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, in an attack on the Moses compromise potal rate bill.

Copeland declared the postal measure was "unfair" and "outrageous." He urged his colleagues to shake off the White House influence in voting for the bill and declared he hoped the president's yacht Mayflower would soon be used exclusively for pleasure

Copeland declared the postal bill did not please a dozen members of the senate.

"A large majority favors increased pay for the postal employes. A majority opposes the increased rates on newspapers. There can be no doubt that the parcel post increase would be defeated by an overwhelming vote if it could be considered separate."

Copeland charged postal rate increases were unnecessary "in the face of treasury returns showing a vast surplus." The bill, he added, was "an outrage on legislative decency"

RAISING COST OF BREAD IN NEW YORK

SMALL bakeries in New York City have raised the price of bread 2 cents a loaf and the price of rolls 4 cents a dozen.

In some districts where there is much competition instead of a raise in the price, the weight of the loaf and rolls has been decreased.

In the course of the last three weeks the price of wheat has risen 23 cents a bushel for rye 22 cents.

Many of the large bakeries declare they will raise the price of bread in the course of a few weeks. The big bakers are also preparing to lift the price, perhaps in a couple of weeks.

GERMAN ORGANIZATIONS AND LARGE UNIONS VERY ACTIVE IN SUPPORT OF BIG BAZAAR FOR LABOR DEFENSE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—All the nationalities are participating in the joint bazaar arranged by the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council. There will be German, Russian, Hungarian, Ukrainian, Finnish, Lithuanian, Greek, Armenian, Indian, Japanese and other booths. This is REAL internationalism as only the workers can express it.

A Glass Blowing Booth.

The German organizations are taking a lively part in making the bazaar a success. The German branches of the Workers Party and the German agitation committee are mobilising all the comrades and sympathizers of the movement. In addition, the Queens County Labor Lyceum is arranging for a booth and also contributed $50 to the cause. Locals 1, 3 and 164 of the Amalgamated Foodworkers also are giving active support. Comrade Pellegrini will have a glass-blowing booth and will turn out fancy glassblown articles right at the bazaar.

Receipts Must Be Big.

With the co-operation of all the comrades in like measure, there is not the slightest doubt that the bazaar will net a fine sum of money for the relief of the political prisoners in Europe and Asia for the defense of our comrades before the capitalist courts of this country.

Don't forget the place and dates: Lyceum, 86th St. and 3rd Ave., Feb. 11, 12, 13 and 14. And don't fail to tell all the children about "Junior Day." This is the day of and for the little kiddies. They will show that they are just as good revolutionists—if not better ones—as their elders. The children will come enmasse.

SOVIET MINING EXPERTS STUDY U. S. METHODS

May Order Machinery for Heavy Industry

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 30.—Ore-mining and metal industries experts representing Russia are making a three months study of production in the United States preparatory to ordering equipment for Russia.

The engineers' headquarters are in the offices of Amtorg Trading Corporation, 136 Liberty street, New York.

Alexis Smolnikov and Peter Droshilov of the group are president and member, respectively, board of directors, Consolidated Platinum Industry (Uralplatina). Nikolai Kuzmin and Alexander Strikhnin represent the Machinery Construction Trust of Leningrad. Serge Podiakonov represents the supreme council of pulic economy, director state ore industry, and collaboration of the state planning commission.

May Order Machinery.

The Russian delegation will inspect larger works in this country where dredges and other mining equipment are constructed which might be used in Ural platinum mines. The Russian engineers will probably place orders for machinery to rehabilitate heavy industries and for re-equipment of factories.

The men state that Russian industries have shown a gain in production of over 50 per cent in 1924 over 1923. The Ural industries have gained by concentrating production in a few plants.

General Conditions Much Better.

Increasing prosperity of the Russian population is creating a larger demand for industrial products and because of economic measures adopted prices are lower for finishing goods, the delegation says.

MOVE TO DEPORT SEVERINO, UNITED STATES CITIZEN

Naturalized Italian Is Active Trade Unionist

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Jan. 30.—Max Burger, "red expert" for the department of justice, slipped into St. Joseph yesterday and is quietly at work collecting documents and evidence from the Berrien county court records of the trial of the thirty-two Communists to be used in deportation proceedings against Joseph Severino, one of the Michigan defendants.

These proceedings against Severino who is a naturalized Italian are not new. They have a history. It began back in 1923 when Severino ran as a non partisan candidate for the city council of Cleveland, O. He had the endorsement of the Workers Party. An attempt to shut the Workers Party out of local politics in Cleveland was directed against Severino.

Scraps of Paper.

A publicity campaign was started about Severino's connection with the Michigan cases. When this failed to serve its purpose activites were begun to take Severino's citizenship papers away. A number of hearings were held but when the councilmanic campaign came to an end the matter was dropped. Severino, by the way, is an active trade unionist in Cleveland, and has been an influential member of the Bricklayer's Union for years. Max Burger was the government agent who handled this affair in Cleveland in 1923. He is busy again. The case against Severino has been revived—this time with the intention of deporting him.

Plan to Cut Cases.

It is no secret in St. Joseph that the case against Severino is being brot back to life for only one purpose: to make a beginning for deportation proceedings against all the Michigan defendants who can be placed under the jurisdiction of the labor department. The purpose is plainly to cut down the number of cases before the Michigan courts so that the remainder of the defendants who are not deported can be rushed thru their trials.

Several Finks Testify.

Max Burger has been assigned this job. Last week he held a deposition hearing in Chicago on the Severino case. The first goal is to take Severino's citizenship papers away from him. Depositions were made by a number of department of justice agents among whom were several well known red-baiters, Louis Loebel, James Pgyronnin and August Loula. This part of the hearing consisted merely of one fink asking other finks questions.

I. E. Ferguson was called in as expert on Communism. He was asked to identify documents, one of which was the first manifesto of the Communist International. Ferguson answered that since several documents of that nature were brot to the country in various languages he could not identify "exhibit No. 5," the manifesto.

Other Workers on List.

Burger is diligently taking photostatic copies of the documents used in the Michigan trial to be used in proceedings against Severino in the United States district court at Cleveland to take Severino's citizenship away. After that Burger will turn the case over to the department of labor which has always been liberal in deporting any alien against which there is the least scrap of evidence.

Similar action against other defendants in the Michigan cases is certain to come if the present move against Severino succeeds.

SECRECY AND EXPULSIONS THE RULE IN MPLS.

Communists and T. U. E. L. for Open Assembly

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 30.—Meeting behind carefully guarded doors, in an executive session, the Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly Wednesday night voted non-concurrence in a resolution presented by Painters' Union No. 186, demanding that Dan W. Stevens, twice unseated as a delegate to the central labor body, be given a fair and impartial trial on the charges that in a speech before the assembly Stevens had slandered the officialdom of the American Federation of Labor.

Despite the fact that a large number of rank and file members of the trade union movement had gathered to listen to the proceedings, the reactionary chairman ordered the galleries cleared.

Immediately progressive delegates launched a fight against the move to exclude the sympathetic visitors, contending that labor union members have the right to know what is taking place in their central body.

J. O. Johnson, Communist, and a delegate from the Carpenters' local, took an appeal from the decision of the chair, demanding a roll call vote, but the move was finally defeated and the visitors ordered from the meeting.

More Expulsions.

Continuing their onslaught against delegates who hold membership in the Workers (Communist) Party, the reactionary element challenged the credentials presented by Lathers' Union No. 190 for Walter Frank. A committee composed of Franklin W. Hynes, Arthur Axsen and Leonert Boerbeck, was appointed to hear the charges against Comrade Frank.

The complaint insists that "as a member of an organization opposed to the principles of the A. F. of L., Frank is not entitled to a seat as delegate to the Trades and Labor Assembly." Upon the demand of Comrade Frank the complaint was changed specifying the Workers Party as the organization in question. The committee's report is to be presented to the next meeting of the assembly.

Honest Delegate Fired From Job.

Delegate A. D. Harris, Boilermakers' Union, who opposed the wave of reaction at the last meeting has been dismissed from his position, according to rumors in circulation here. According to reports, Harris' wife and family have had to appeal for assistance to the commissary fund of the labor assembly.

Delegate Harris had charged that Robley D. Cramer and Budd L. McKillipps had called at his home demanding that he line up with the fakers against the Communists in the local fight.

Mass Meeting Called.

Undaunted by attempts on the part of the labor fakers to keep the truth from the rank and file of the Minneapolis trade union movement, the Trade Union Educational League called a general mass meeting Friday evening at the Unitarian church, 8th street and La Salle avenue.

The three Communists who have been denied seats in the Trades and Labor Assembly, have been named as speakers for the occasion. They are: Dan W. Stevens, Painters' Union No. 186; C. A. Hathaway, Machinists' Local No. 91, and Walter Frank, Lathers' Union No. 190. Jack Bradon, Machinists' Local No. 91, will act as chairman of the meeting. At this meeting the program of the T. U. E. L. will be fully explained, as well as the reasons why the reactionaries

SPLIT LOCAL NO. 5, AMALAGMATED IN WAR ON LEFT

War on Militants in New York City

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 30.—The war against the left wing in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America is on in the New York organization.

The board of directors of the New York joint board has decided to break up Operators' Local No. 5.

This local, one of the largest in the New York organization, is led by the left wing. The decision of the board of directors proposes that Local No 5 be divided into two locals. One a Brooklyn local made up the members who live in Brooklyn and the other the old local to include the members who live in Manhattan and the Bronx.

Such a move is against the constitution of the Amalgamated which strictly provides that there can be only one local for a given branch of the industry in the city. The board of directors thru this move hopes to create a local of Brooklyn members, the leaders of which will be loyal to the controlling group in the New York joint board. A leadership that the New York joint board can be assured will carry out its orders particularly against the rank and file and the left wing. The splitting of Local No. 5 by the organization of another operator's local is only a move to substitute in the near future Local No. 5 with the new local so that the left wing leadership over the operators can be exterminated by this organization maneuver and a conservative right wing leadership put in its place.

This move by the board of directors will greatly demoralize the organization. This move is directly in the interests of the manufacturers. It not only splits the local but the whole organization as well.

First because it gives the bosses an opportunity to defy the will of the rank and file as expressed thru their legitimate organization Local No. 5.

Second, it sets into motion one of the bitterest factional struggles on the part of the rank and file against the disruptive tactics of the officialdom of the New York organization.

Third, it nullifies the constitution and opens the way to organization maneuvers for political purposes that splits the organization and divides the membership.

The rank and file of the whole Amalgamated when they learn of this action on the part of the board of directors will show their resentment. However whether the rank and file will be able to thwart the disruptive tactics of the officialdom will be seen. One thing is certain and that is that not a thing will be left undone to stop this vicious and disruptive decision being enforced.

At this time it is interesting to knwo what led up to this action against Local No. 5. Local No. 5 for some time was carrying on a fight against the leaders of the New York joint board for their action in the J. Friedman case. The firm of J. Friedman without cause discharged two workers from the shop. Local No. 5 demanded that the workers should be immediately taken back to work. When the firm refused to take the discharged workers back the men working in the shop went out on strike demanding that the union rules in reference to the rights of workers against discharge be lived up to. David Wolf, the manager of the New York joint board ordered the workers back to work with the threat that if they did not obey his orders that a

BREAD PRICE TO SOAR THO GRAIN RESERVE IS BIG

Gamblers Reap Millions in Speculations

The price of bread is expected to be raised thruout America as a result of the speculation of grain gamblers in wheat which boosted the price of May wheat over two dollars a bushel.

The price of bread and flour has already soared in London. Flour has gone up in price in America and is expected to go higher next week.

At noon yesterday wheat was $2.05 a bushel on the Chicago board of trade.

May Wheat at $2.05.

The wheat now selling at $2.05 a bushel left the farms at 65 cents and more less than it is now selling for, grain speculators here say. Most of the farmers were forced to sell their last harvests of grain immediately and could not hold it for high prices, because of their bankrupt conditions. The farmers did not profit in the wheat advance which made millions for the grain speculators, nor will they profit in selling their summer wheat.

The future price of wheat, (July and September wheat) is 35 to 40 cents less per bushel than the price of May wheat, indicating that to a large extent the present price of May wheat has been artificially brought about by grain speculators. The price of wheat after the summer harvest, when the farmers will again sell immediately to secure much needed ready cash, will again be lower.

The Workers Must Pay.

Thus the world price of bread and flour has been boosted by gamblers, and the public will have to pay the millions of profits made by the wheat gamblers. While the Baltimore and other warehouses are bulging with grain, the price of wheat continues to rise.

According to E. F. Rosenbaum, one of Chicago's biggest grain dealers and in charge of the exporting business of the Grain Marketing corporation, which is backed by Barney Baruch and a clique of Wall Street bankers, Russia is not buying wheat in America. He declared that such rumors were being spread by wheat gamblers to influence the market. Up until November, the demand for wheat was unstimulated, Rosenbaum said, but since then the speculators artificially advanced the price of wheat.

Flour Price Goes Up.

In Chicago flour has increased in price from $12.25 to $11.80 per barrel while 24 pound sacks went up three cents in price. Flour is expected to reach $1.50 per 24 pound sack in the near future. In August flour was only $7.70 per barrel.

From Italy comes the report that the crop is sixteen million quintall of wheat short on its wheat needs for the coming year. A quintall is approximately 200 pounds.

Rosenbaum pointed out that the price of wheat on the Antwerp and other foreign exchanges is much below the price of wheat in Chicago. "Unless the wheat prices recede to the world level, so that we can dispose of our surpluses," Rosenbaum said, "the price of the crops that are harvested in May to September will be depressed, causing the farmer more suffering."

Another shilling per sack has been added to the price of flour in London. Thruout the rest of England the increase was two shillings per sack.

"Socialist" Now Prussian Minister, But First a Prussian

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—The "Socialist" Braun, was re-elected today as premier of Prussia. He received 221 votes and his nationalist opponent, Kries, received 175. There is small difference between them in practice, except for the fact that the "socialist" pretends to act in the interest of the working class, while the nationalist has no such pretensions.

CARPENTERS LOCALS SCORE EXPULSIONS

Demand Justice for the Ousted Militants

Two Chicago locals of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters, this week, went unanimously on record for a square deal for the five members expelled from Local No. 181, in defiance of the union laws and constitution. The locals taking such action are: Local No. 1 and No. 13.

During the week the expelled members visited other local unions and were everywhere received in a most friendly manner. It is quite evident that the rank and file are overwhelmingly in opposition to the railroading policy of Hutcheson and Jensen. Those who took the floor at the local unions where the expelled members appeared, were vigorous in condemning the autocracy of the "czar" at Indianapolis and his local tool, Harry Jensen. These officials were charged with making a mockery of the constitution and the laws of the brotherhood.

Establishing Precedent.

One of the officials of Local No. 1, made a plea for the defendants saying that if such illegal action against them can go unchallenged similar punishment can be meted out to any other member of the organization who happens to disagree with those in office. Locals Nos. 1 and 13 voted unanimously to send a communication to the general president asking for a speedy decision on the ruling of the president of Local 181, which declared the five members expelled without complying with the forms of the constitution.

Morris Rosen, Communist candidate for president of the carpenters' union, on the left wing ticket, was given credit for 9,014 votes by the Hutcheson tellers. Candidate Brown got over 24,306 votes and Hutcheson counted 17,965 for himself. The vote indicates that there is a strong Communist nucleus inside the powerful Carpenters' Union.

RESIDENTS OF GLASS HOUSES THROW STONE

And His Confirmation Breaks Many Panes

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—The embarrassment of the fight over the confirmation of Attorney General Stone's appointment to the supreme court is evidenced by the long conference at the White House among the republican leaders, the attorney general and President Coolidge.

This embarrassment is not limited to the White House, for a majority of the senators who must be depended on to put thru the confirmation adopted Senator Borah's report absolving Wheeler on the same evidence on which it is now sought to indict him for conspiracy to defraud the government—the central point of which appears to be a letter from a Montana client to one of the land office officials offering him a share in certain oil lands if the client received certain permits he was after, a letter written while Wheeler was in Europe.

Crookedness Is Quite Usual.

In addition, the very charge brot against Wheeler—the charge of bringing the claims of constituents to the attention of one or another of the government departments and introducing these constituents to the officials with whom they have to deal—has been the regular practice of senators and representatives, particularly those from the west.

Wheeler's employment by Gordon Campbell dated from before his advent as a senator, and his declaration has always been that it was for cases in the Montana courts on which practice there is no bar, even for a senator.

Charge Republican Scheme.

When the charge was made that the indictment was framed up by the republican national committee, Borah said that if Wheeler was guilty on the evidence produced before the Montana grand jury two-thirds of the senate ought to be in jail.

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 30. — This diphtheria stricken city appealed to the world for aid today. Conditions are serious and anti-toxin rushed here by airplane is essential to save hundreds of lives, Mayor George Maynard declared.

Conditions in Nome were regarded as critical by Maynard and dispatching of serum by airplane was regarded by him as the only course to be taken to save the sufferers.

"We are advocating that action be taken immediately," declared Maynard, "and want antitoxin from Nenana sent by airplane. Conditions are very serious."

CHURCHES EXTOL KLAN MURDER AT YOUNG'S BURIAL

Nine K. K. K. Ministers Call Gunman 'Martyr'

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HERRIN, Ill., Jan. 30.—The protestant church took the ku klux klan to its bosom here yesterday, when nine prominent southern Illinois ministers preached the funeral services for S. Glenn Young, slain klan gunman.

The ministers, all members of the klan, extolled Young as a martyr, and accepted in the name of the klan responsibility for Young's thirty murders, and pledged that the lawlessness began by Young would be carried on by the klan.

"We want peace in Williamson county," shouted the Rev. I. E. Lee, the Baptist pastor here. "But not peace at the cost of compromise of our convictions."

"As Glenn Young marched into the last battle of his life he carried in his heart the sacred precepts of the klan," said the Rev. William Carlton of Marion.

It was a klan funeral, one hundred robed and masked klansmen preceding the body of Young to the Herrin cemetery, and twenty-five thousand klansmen marching behind the coffin.

Rev. P. R. Glotfelty, of the Herrin methodist church, led the services a member of the klan, always carries a gun ready for use, and his son has been mixed up in several shooting affairs in Herrin. The troops have left Herrin.

Reactionary Intrigue at Work.

A previous hall had been engaged for the meeting, but at the last minute the management broke the agreement and refused to allow the gathering to take place. It is thought that pressure had been brought to bear by elements opposed to progress, as no action was taken until after advertising had been printed and distributed thruout the city.

The fact that the radicals have made arrangements to stage the meeting, despite all opposition, caused much consternation among the fakers here.

Supreme Court for Monopoly for Power And Light Companies

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 30.—The Tennessee supreme court has decided in favor of a monopoly of the big power and light companies in the state and the smaller bourgeois companies will now find themselves forced to see what a workingman's life is as they'll soon be working for a monopolizing trust.

The state tried to smash the combination of the Nashville Railway and Light company, Chattanooga Railway and Light company, Tennessee Power company and Tennessee River Power company, but the supreme court decided that the monopoly in the control and distribution of electric power in the state was legal and authorized under the state laws.

Record Snowfall in Japan.

TOKIO, Jan. 30.—All Japan was covered today by a record snowfall, one of the heaviest in many years. All communication was temporarily blocked by the storm. Telegraph and telephone lines were put out of commission and train service into Tokio was blocked. Service by tram cars and busses in the city was at a standstill.

PALS OF BURNS AND DAUGHERTY FOUND GUILTY

Chief Grafters and Red Baiters Escape

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 30.—Gaston B. Means, trusted agent of William J. Burns, when Burns was head of the bureau of investigation of the U. S. department of justice, was today found guilty of conspiracy to bribe government officials.

Are Associates of Daugherty.

Col. Thomas Felder, lawyer for Means, and for many years close personal associate and partner of Harry Daugherty, formerly attorney general of the United States, was also found guilty. The sealed verdict, returned in the United States district court here today, recommended "extreme clemency" for Daugherty's friend.

The testimony at the trial revealed that Means was a friend of Secretary of the Treasurer Andrew Mellon, and was a frequent guest at the white house in 1922. Means, according to the testimony, was especially friendly with George B. Christian, then President Harding's secretary.

Means and Felder were convicted of accepting a $65,000 bribe from stock swindlers which they declared would be used to "fix" Daugherty, Burns, Secretary Mellon, United States Attorney Hayward and others, so that they would not bring in indictments against the swindlers.

Burns in Crooked Deals.

Daugherty and Burns both took the stand in behalf of Means and Felder, Daugherty acting as "character witness." Felder was characterised by Senator Wheeler, as "The New York attorney who could be found in one or both sides of nearly every crooked deal that came to light in Washington."

Judge Lindley sentenced Means to serve two years in the Atlanta, Ga., penitentiary, but let Felder, Daugherty's friend, off with a $10,000 fine, and no prison sentence. Means was fined ten thousand dollars in addition to the prison sentence.

The government had charged in the trial that Felder, Means, and Means' stool pigeon, Elmer Jarnecke, "conspired to bribe former attorney general Harry M. Daugherty, once Felder's law partner, United States District Attorney Hayward, his assistant, John Holley Clark, and W. J. Burns." The defendants told the stock swindlers they could obtain dismissal of the indictments against them, the government charged. Jarnecke pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence against Means and Felder.

Only the First Conviction.

The conviction of Means and Felder is the first conviction growing out of the Teapot Dome oil scandal, the bootleg, war veterans, salmon, and other exposures of corruption and graft practiced by the heads of the United States government.

As usual, the tools of the big men have been convicted, and the government heads have escaped. Former secretary of the interior, Fall, President Coolidge, Hoover, Daugherty, Denby, Doheny, Sinclair, and many others who were directly implicated in many graft conspiracies, have not yet been punished.

Means has had a notorious career as the servant of Daugherty and Burns as red-baiter, Germany spy, and handy man for bootleg gangs. In the senate investigation of government graft, Means repudiated his testimony before the senate committee, and later repudiated his repudiation.

WEST IRELAND VERY SEVERELY HIT BY FAMINE

DUBLIN, Jan. 30.—The west of Ireland is suffering all the horrors of famine. Not since the crop failure of 1881 have the people living along the the western seaboard suffered so severely.

Children go to school without breakfast. In addition to the failure of the potato crop, the continuous rain has destroyed the fuel supply which in the west of Ireland consists of dried peat.

Banks Prosper.

Despite the prevailing distress the banks show unprecedented profits and pay high dividends while the people starve.

The west of Ireland is sparsely populated, and contains enough fertile soil to support four times the population, but the people have been driven off the fertile sections to make room for cattle and are compelled to eke out a pitiful existence on barren land.

Wants Report on Famine.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Timothy Smiddy, Irish minister to the United, today cabled his government for information on the famine in West Ireland. He said he had received no reports on conditions except thru press dispatches.

$4,369,739 IS YEAR'S PROFITS OF NOTORIOUS WARD SCAB BAKERIES

The company has eighteen plants and will build the nineteenth in Detroit, to cost $1,000,000. The company expects to begin its scab business and fliching of the public in Detroit on July 1st.

IRISH LABOR LECTURE THEME SUNDAY NIGHT

O'Flaherty Speaks at Open Forum

For many years the question of Irish freedom has agitated the entire world. The Irish in America have made of it a question of great political importance, and upon all such questions the Communists have a program, an attitude.

What should be the attitude of revolutionary workers and their organizations toward this question of "Irish Freedom" which does not seem to have been settled at all by the establishment of the Irish "Free State"?

There is a labor movement in Ireland, and the Communists within it and the Communists within the Irish population in America consider the question of the political position of the Irish workers as distinct from the Irish capitalists of as great an importance as the political question of national independence.

Thomas J. O'Flaherty, a recognized authority on the Irish question, and one who has a record of struggle for the Irish workers, the former editor of two Irish publications and editor of the Voice of Labor previous to its amalgamation with the DAILY WORKER, in which he conducts his famous column "As We See It"—will lecture to the open forum of the Workers Party tomorrow evening upon the subject of "The Labor Movement of Ireland."

Comrade O'Flaherty is an able speaker and thoroly acquainted with the nature and importance of the question of Ireland and its relation to the world labor movement. The lecture will be held at the lodge room of the Ashland Auditorium, Van Buren street and Ashland Boulevard and will begin at 8 o'clock tomorrow (Sunday) evening. Take surface cars on Van Buren or Metropolitan "L" to Marshfield station.

Militarizing America.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 30.—Twelve new military training camps, to teach Americans how properly to bayonet their fellow workers, will be opened by the war department, under Coolidge's administration, this year. Over $2,500,000 will be spent on these new camps, it has been announced.

The A. F of L. indorsed the militarization of America at its recent convention in El Paso.

FIFTEEN FAMILIES FLEE FLAMES IN BROOKLYN TENEMENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Fifteen families were turned out of their fire trap homes into the bitter cold, and three girls almost burned to death by a fire that destroyed the tenement house at 176 Nostrand ave., Brooklyn, yesterday

The firemen worked for hours before quenching the flames. The houses, made of wood, and without adequate fire escapes, were built over twenty five years ago. They were occupied by workers, most of whom had large families.

Wheat, Flour and Bread Go Up in Price as the Thieves Take Winnings

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, the wheat market is going thru its annual pyrotechnics. Not only grain prices are going up; the price of flour and the cost of bread follow. It is the heyday of the food speculators. The board of trade apes the stock exchange. The gamblers in the necessities of life are in their glory.

• • • •

The mounting prices do not benefit the poor farmer. His wheat was taken from him long ago to satisfy some mortgage, to pay the interest on his numerous debts, or to meet the rent if he happened to be a tenant. Most of the wheat crop went off the land last year at prices at least 65 cents below present quotations. It went into the hands of the bankers, the landlords and the great grain companies that make their biggest money thru speculation.

The millions of toil worn farmers who sweated in agony to produce the golden harvest of grain, that they were compelled to sell at prices that hardly covered their expenses, now see the board of tradesmen, at ease in their swivel chairs in sumptuous offices reap another golden harvest, the harvest of millions upon millions of dollars.

• • • •

American wheat is "protected.". A high tariff keeps out foreign wheat. This means that today American wheat is selling in Antwerp at lower prices than in Chicago. American wheat can be bought in Antwerp and shipped back to New York and sold cheaper than wheat purchased on the Chicago board of trade and sent on to the metropolis. In Antwerp the American wheat in the hands of the big speculators must still compete with the grain from Russia, India and the Argentine. The difference in prices in Chicago and Antwerp is hardly explained by the "world shortage".

The Chicago price is one that works both way. It gives the speculator his big profit over the low price at which he purchased the grain from the farmer. It gives the flour miller and the bread maker an excuse for increasing the price on the products they sell. This in spite of the fact that grain companies, mills and bakeries are often controlled by the same individuals, making new profits for themselves at every transaction. The city worker commisserates with the plundered farmer and then finds that he is also being robbed. Cheap wheat prices for the farmer and high bread prices for the city worker go hand in hand under the clever workings of the capitalist system, that spells "get richer quick" for the few, and "get poorer quick" for the many.

Most of the speculation is being done in May wheat. May will be the last big chance to get rid of the old crop. The figures for July and September wheat, when the new crop comes on the market, tell a different story. July wheat is even now selling 31 7-8 cents under May wheat, and September wheat is 47 cents under the figures for May. In other words, when the grain grower, the farmer, must sell his crops to meet new debts, to cover the interest due on mortgages pending or farm implements purchased, or pay the rent, then the prices will be down to rock bottom again.

• • • •

That is the vicious cycle in wheat prices one year after another. Be his crop large or small, the farmer is hit just the same. Prices are low when the farmer must sell; they are high when the grain gambler wants to cash in on his stealings. It is the way of capitalism. It will continue just as long as the city workers and poor farmers stand for it. That shouldn't be very much longer.

BURLINGTON R. R. MAKES 20 PCT. ON CAPITAL STOCK

Men Force Better Pay Than Rail Board

CHICAGO.—The ability of the Chicago Burlington & Quincy railroad to pay the wage increases won by engineers and firemen in recent negotiations is indicated in the preliminary statement of the carrier showing 1924 profits of $22,000,000 after taxes and interest on its bonds and notes. This means a profit of $12.80 on every share of the $170,839,100 capital stock.

The 1924 profits really mean a return of nearly 20 per cent on the capital stock as it existed before the $60,000,000 stock dividend issued in 1921. The road is paying regular cash dividends of 10 per cent which means 15 per cent on the original stock.

The Burlington now joins the list of western carriers on which the engine service brotherhoods thru their economic strength have obtained a better settlement than that awarded by the railroad labor board.

Strikers Provide Free Buses.

DAYTON, O.—Four thousand Dayton passengers each day are guests of the striking streetcar men who have provided free bus transportation to fight the Dayton Railway Co. All passengers are insured against injury So great have been the inroads into the company's business that many cars have been laid up, while strikers are preparing to handle 30,000 passengers a week.

By a vote of 224 to 2, the Typographical Union donated $100 to the streetcar men's union to carry on the fight.

U. S. GOLD MOVES TO GERMANY TO REAP BIG PROFIT

Competitive Power In World Trade Feared

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. — Germany's economic comeback is undergoing a close study by several government departments, chiefly to determine the permanency of her newly established credit rating and the competitive power of the nation in world commerce.

This was made known today in connection with the information that in addition to $110,000,000 loaned to the government by American bankers, private industrial and commercial corporations in Germany have borrowed in excess of $200,000,000 in New York during the last six months.

A number of important industrial loans are contemplated within the next few months. It was agreed that confidence has been restored in Germany's ability to resume her place in the economic world.

Officials said that conditions in Germany with the 8-hour day destroyed by the Dawes plan and the unions crushed by socialists, have warranted the export of a considerable volume of wealth to that country and that as long as Germany is in the hands of the capitalists who promise to observe all international agreements capitalists of the United States will continue to furnish a liberal supply of cash for further exploitation.

WANTS TO GRAB SHARE OF GOLD STOLEN IN WAR

Senate to Pounce on French Debt

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Emile Daeschner, the new French ambassador, presented his credentials to President Coolidge today.

This routine bit of formality attracted unusual interest in Washington because of the understanding prevailing in administration circles that Daeschner will speedily follow it up by undertaking some serious negotiations with this government for the funding of the $4,000,000,000 French war debt.

The Insistent Senate.

Unless he does do so, it appears certain that the senate will take formal and brusque notice of the French palicy of delay before it goes out of business on March 4, and pass a resolution directing the state department to undertake immediate negotiations.

There has been a marking of time in the whole situation until Daeschner, fresh from Paris, presents his credentials. The interim has been filled with assurances from Premier Herriot and other French officials that France does not intend to "repudiate" her signature.

Want Part of Stolen Money.

The insistence in the senate over collecting from abroad was further exemplified today by a resolution introduced by Senator King, democrat, of Utah, instructing the president to make immediate representations to the allied governments for a share of the $28,000,000 Turkish gold seized by the allies during the war and subsequently split up by them in the Lausanne treaty of violence.

It is Senator King's contention that the money really belongs to Armenia, having been taken from that country by the Turks. Consequently, King contends that the money, being Armenian, should go to discharge the debt of $20,000,000 Armenia owes the United States. If this claim is disallowed, then King contends the United States should share equally with the allies in its division anyway, for the United States is a party of the Lausanne treaty.

complete new staff of workers would be sent into the shop to take their places. This treacherous action against the rights and interests of the rank and file was deeply resented by the executive of Local No. 5. The local published a leaflet explaining its action, that of the New York joint board and the manager, David Wolf in this case. For publishing and distributing this leaflet charges were preferred at the meeting of the New York joint board against Local No. 5.

In the attack upon Local No. 5 Sidney Hilman, the president of the Amalgamated, supported David Wolf and the New York joint board. He was present at the meeting of the joint board and bitterly attacked the left wing movement, the Communists and the Workers Party in particular. At that meeting of the joint board the five delegates of Local No. 5 were expelled from the New York joint board. Following the expulsion of the Local No. 5 delegates an investigation committee was elected to find out who was responsible for the publication and distribution of the leaflet. The recent action of the board of directors in splitting Local No. 5 follows as a result.

For fighting in the interests of the toilers against the bosses who now want to reduce their staffs, further speed up production and aggravate the inhuman conditions in the shops, the officialdom of the New York joint board wants to punish those who would protect the rights of the workers. The board of directors is certainly serving the interests of the bosses when it proceeds against the champions of the workers in Local No. 5 by attempting to dislodge them from the local and eventually from the organization.

Klan To Start Murderous Raids In Philadelphia

Director of public safety, Butler, himself a "man-eating dictator," announces that he will not tolerate klan interference.

LEGAL BUREAUS TO HELP UNIONS FORMED IN WEST

Seattle Idea Spreads to Other Cities

By Harold R. Johnson.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

TACOMA, Wash.—More cases are being won for workers in Tacoma since the legal bureau was established last June. It is operated by the Central Labor Council. The bureau is at the disposal of all affiliated unions, whose individual members may secure for a small fee a card which entitles them to service.

System Reduces Cost.

Minor advice is given free. Matters requiring more attention and court action are handled for unions and members at cost. The bureau renders its service to unionists not only in adjusting industrial matters, but wherever legal aid is needed.

The bureau with its salaried staff has proved a great economy to the unions. Uniform systems are used to deal with injunctions and workmen's compensation disputes.

Lawyer Trust Nicked.

Corporations naturally oppose this new labor instrument. Private lawyers also dislike the plan since their fees and practice are injured. The original office in Seattle, which is doing a tremendous business was established in 1920, by George F. Vanderveer, labor lawyer.

Bureaus in Everett, Bellingham, Bremerton, Spokane and Aberdeen are sure to follow. It is expected that in a few years the Pacific coast will see labor's legal arm well developed.

Vanderveer, at one time county prosecutor, still heads the Seattle office. The Tacoma bureau is conducted by Leslie B. Sulgrove, a former Montana prosecuting attorney.

AUSTRALIAN MARINE WORKERS WIN SWEEPING VICTORY OVER SHIPOWNERS, NOT ONE SCAB

By W. FRANCIS AHERN
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 30.—After a fight lasting several weeks over the union shop on the waterfront at Australian ports, the Waterside Workers Federation has forced the shipowners to throw the non-unionists out of their jobs and employ only union labor supplied by the federation.

It was a magnificent victory for the waterside workers, due entirely to wonderful solidarity. Of the 49 branches of the Waterside Workers Federation, all obeyed the strike call. Not one unionist scabbed. In some cases the ports were completely closed and steamers ceased calling during the strike.

Solidarity Beat Bosses.

Coastal shipping was not affected, as these vessels always employ union labor. The fight was against the overseas shipping companies who set up an agency for engaging non-union labor to break the federation. Ships were held at every port.

When it was seen that the union could not be beaten, the prime minister, Bruce, called a conference of the union and the shipowners. After two days' haggling the shipowners admitted defeat and signed as requested.

Capitalist Press Raves.

The capitalist press shrieked its head off about direct action, and bitterly commented on the fact that direct actionists were strong enough to break the power of the shipowners. Meanwhile the strikebreakers have been rooted off the waterfront and the agency has been abolished.

The scabs are very angry at being turned adrift by the shipowners. They complain that the shipowners solemnly undertook to stand by them thru thick and thin and have now thrown them aside.

Island Still Safe.

LISBON, Portugal, Jan. 30.—Reports of the Port Alexander Island disaster have been officially denied by the government. A sandbank 4,000 meters square, and which was close to the port suddenly submerged, but there was no loss of life and no damage, it was announced.

LABOR PARTY IN AUSTRALIA FIGHTS IMMIGRANT LABOR

SYDNEY, Australia.—Because of the inrush of foreign labor from Europe to Australia, the Australian labor party is against immigration under present conditions. It demands that the large estates should be made available to the people and work should be found for the workers already in Australia.

Particular objection is taken to immigrants from southern Europe. These are largely of the peasant class but as there is no land for them they are soon thrown into the ranks of the unemployed. In desperation they are forced to accept work at low wages, and this throws Australians out of work.

COOLIDGE HANDS OUT PATRONAGE TO LABOR'S FOES

It's Fine Collection of Gifted Thieves

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—All power to the corporations!

That's the Coolidge slogan and program, unfolded in an amazingly logical series of appointments to high office and the president's latest attacks upon the morale of the organized civil service. What he is doing today is consistent with what he tried to do a year ago, but the voters and congress itself forgot his purpose in the excitement of the campaign to elect him for another term.

Stone, a former Morgan lawyer, is moved from attorney general to the supreme court bench.

Warren, sugar trust lawyer and manipulator, with a finer touch than Harry Daugherty, is named as attorney general.

Thomas M. Woodlock, former editor of the Wall Street Journal, is named for the interstate commerce commission, where Wall Stret pity for the poor railroad companies may become more fully effective than even now is the case.

Big Capital Favored.

William F. Humphrey, the most reactionary politician in the state of Washington, is dug up from his political tomb of some years' sodding to throw the majority in the federal trade commission safely to the side of non-interference. Humphrey was one of the boldest and bitterest foes of the federal trade commission when it was exposing the lawlessness of the Chicago meat packers' monopoly. Laterly he has represented shipping corporations in their dealings with the government.

Coolidge has beaten the postal workers' demand for a living wage and has followed this with a warning to all department and bureau chiefs that they must cut down the number of their workers. None but a fool will fail to guess that reductions will affect the work of the bureaus that inquire into what monopoly capitalism is doing to the workers. Civil servants will keep their mouths shut and hold onto their jobs.

A Real Christian.

Last winter Coolidge nominated George Christian, former secretary to President Harding, to the federal trade vacancy. Chairman Huston Thompson testified that Christian when secretary had tried to talk with him about a pending case, apparently as a friend of the accused corporation. The senate forced Coolidge to drop Christian, as the committee on interstate commerce recognized him as a man chosen to wreck the work of that body.

The same committee will consider the nomination of Humphrey for federal trade and Woodlock for the I. C. C., and there is a fair chance that it will recommend against them both. However, Coolidge can give them recess appointments, trusting to the incoming senate to be more reactionary.

Means Lower Railroad Wages.

Woodlock is needed to boost the rairoad valuations; Warren is needed for official opinions approving the the good work; Stone is needed on the supreme court, where the railroad valuation steal will finally come for judgment. If the railroad valuation is fixed at twenty or twenty-five billions instead of at twelve billions, railroad workers will draw lower wages and stockholders and bankers will get fatter, in the coming years.

North Side Branch Notice.

Jack Johnstone, assistant secretary of the Trade Union Educational League will speak at the North Side English branch meeting, Monday, Feb 2 at Imperial Hall, 2409 N. Halstead St., 8 p. m. sharp.

Comrade Johnstone attended the Pan-American and A. F. of L. conventions and he will talk on the lessons to be drawn from these conventions. Come early—bring your friends and neighbors to hear Johnstone who is also our candidate for alderman of the 44th ward.

Every day under this head you will learn not only what BUILDERS thruout the country are doing to build a greater newspaper, but also practical suggestions to accomplish more for OUR paper. Tell us what YOU are doing—and we will "tell the world."

Do You Do It?

LOCAL Chicago has an efficient literature distribution system that could well be copied the country over. Even the Chicago system is only beginning to reach perfection, but the North Side English branch in it, is already "hitting on all six." Under the leadership of Branch DAILY WORKER Agent Gertrude Welsh, a large committee, composed of girls, has been given regular meeting nights to "cover." This committee has apportioned two nights a week to couples, where they go regularly, and where the union members get accustomed to buy from them.

Naturally, the literature sales of this branch are mounting regularly, and the profits have proven a valuable addition to the branch treasury for the promotion of further branch activities. The propaganda work among trade unions, where it is particularly valuable, brings splendid benefits to the party and it was proven in one instance where a union member who was a steady buyer of literature from the girls, also secured for them a list of signatures on a petition for a candidate of the party in the local aldermanic elections.

The organizational value is soon very evident. New members are secured this way and from every angle the literature sales at union meetings, covered regularly, are bound to bring results.

The committee of this branch is always ready to help on special occasions as well, and City DAILY WORKER Agent Thurber Lewis, has often sent emergency calls to them to assist at large and special meetings. Other branches are being taught the system and hundreds of unions are already being "covered" monthly. Do You Do It?

Workers Take 5 Weeks' Vacation For Study Class

By OUNI SALMI.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 30.—The courses of lectures which have been carried on under the Finnish federation at Worcester for three weeks now and which will continue five more weeks are becoming more and more interesting as we progress. We start at nine in the morning and continue until five with an hour for lunch. The subjects so far discussed are the following: Ancient society, the progress of humanity from savagery thru barbarism to civilization, development of private property and with it the birth and development of the state, the rise of Greece and Rome and their decay, the development of feudal society up to the growth of different trades and their concentration in towns and cities the origin of the world and of species and their development to the highest forms, also the subject of co-operation, its history, practical knowledge, its possibilities and limitations and working principles that must be maintained.

The student body is drawn from a wide circle—Ohio, New York, and all parts of New England are represented by the 25 students attending the courses. Most of them are partly financed by their locals or district committees, but many are on their own hook. A spirit of comradeship prevails among the students and teachers and everyone does his or her best to get the most out of every study.

The hours spent on elocution and essays are the most interesting. In these studies questions are brought before the students by the students themselves and are discussed by them from all angles. In this way new light is thrown on subjects which is of great help to the students in every way.

Stir Connecticut Workers Against Child Slavery

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 30.—Local New Haven, Workers Party, has called a conference for the abolition of child labor for Tuesday, Feb. 10, at 8 p. m., at the Trades Council Hall, 215 Meadow St. Invitations have gone out to all local labor unions and many other working class organizations.

The child labor amendment has been sent to the state legislature by Governor Trumbull, and referred to a committee. Connecticut is republican ruled, and the amendment will probably be defeated. Governor Bingham, who took the oath of office one day and immediately resigned to become United States senator, declared against the amendment at the republican convention which nominated him.

Labor Stirred.

The aim of this conference is to get the rank and file of the local unions into action. At present, everything is left to the legislative agent of the state branch of the Federation of Labor, and the tactics pursued are to get liberal elements to exert personal influence on members of the legislature. This conference will, however, mobilize the working class elements for the fight, since they are the only dependable ones. Furthermore, the issue will be injected of support of school children with the proposal that the rich incomes be taxed for this purpose.

$40,000,000 A YEAR TO BOOST THE ALMIGHTY S

But Asia and Africa Are Morgan's Loot

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—American foreign missions represented in convention in the capital this week support more than 18,000 missionaries in Asia, Africa, the islands of the seas and in Latin America, and spend on this enterprise more than $40,000,000 a year.

Dr. James L. Barton of Boston, presiding at the opening session, welcomed the spokesman of more than 100 foreign mission boards, societies and other groups from all parts of the country.

Barton, as foreign secretary of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, and as chairman of the near east relief, has been an active consultant of the White House and state department with reference to the Lausanne treaty with Turkey. He has induced President Coolidge to talk to the 4,000 delegates.

Carpenter Officials Charge Slander.

PHILADELPHIA.—F. W. Burgess, business agent of Carpenters' Local 8, faces expulsion on charges of circulating "scandalous or scurrilous" literature about candidates for general offices in the recent elections that resulted in the victory of Gen. Pres. W. L. Hutcheson and his slate. Burgess is not a radical, but favored the moderate candidate Willis Brown of Peoria. The scurrilous matter is alleged to be in a letter to union carpenters in which Burgess stated that Hutcheson "has proved by his arbitrary methods, domineering temperament, injudicial decisions that he is totally unfitted for the office."

Still at the Same Task

Nothing more amusing to the political observer has appeared in the daily press for quite some time, than an editorial in a recent issue of the Milwaukee Leader, on the problem of peace in Europe. According to the scribe, the Geneva protocol, of Ramsay MacDonald and Edouard Herriot, is anything but lucky.

At the time this famous document was framed, there was a socialist government in England, and a semi-socialist government in Germany. Herriot, the radical-socialist premier of France felt somewhat cocky in such goodly company.

But thanks to the bourgeois democracy at whose shrine our capitalistic socialists worship, Ramsay is now in Bermuda doing his little bit for the Empire as if nothing had happened, and Herriot is more or less left in the soup. The Kaiser is getting out his clean shirt preparatory to marching back to his throne.

Peace in Europe is in desperate straits. Therefore the executive committee of the Socialist and Labor International met in Brussels recently to see what they could do about it. But instead of having a peace conference, the socialists of the French capitalist government began to blame his British majesty's socialists for their attitude towards the peace protocol. Leon Blum declared that Herriot had done his share for peace by appointing the socialist Paul Boncour a member of the league of nations council, to work for the protocol. If the other governments refused to accept this pact, Herriot would have to fall back on military alliances.

A British representative said that it was impossible at this time to get British public opinion interested in saving France from attack. England is not threatened with war and is not anxious to be drawn into another war to protect another nation. The British navy would never again be used to enforce a blockade for the benefit of another warring country.

The British labor party, declared John Bull's socialist, is averse to having England play the role of international policeman unless the United States shared the cost.

The British and French socialists argued in favor of the policy of their respective governments, and the Socialist and Labor International is today as it was during the war, torn to pieces by the conflicting interests of the capitalists of the various nations having representation on the councils of the fake international.

The debate showed Blum, the French socialist, defending the acts of the French capitalist premier Herriot, while Josiah Wedgwood, the Briton stood up for the anti-French policy of the tory government. Back in London he might criticise Stanley Baldwin, for factional reasons but in Brussels he was the staunch imperialist.

The Socialist and Labor International is but the creature of the capitalists. It is not an instrument of peace. It will do whatever its owners command. There is only one international political party in the world today that is making for peace. It is the Communist International which points out the road to peace over the dead body of capitalism.

They Want the Cossacks

The Chicago Tribune sees in the recent shootings at Herrin, another argument for a state constabulary. The state militia is not enough. It gets on the job only after the shooting is done. What is needed, declares the esteemed Trib., is a mobile force, of motorized state police, that could rush hither and thither and hold up the warning hand of the law before those bent on murder could get out their guns.

The agitation for the state constabulary is reviving. The chamberce of commerce and their newspapers will keep at it until they are successful in instituting the cossack system in this state, which has been so useful to the capitalists of Pennsylvania and oher states in crushing strikes. That is what the Illinois bosses want the state police for.

There are several thousand police here in Chicago. They are on foot, on horse and in automobiles. Yet they are not able to prohibit crimes of violence.

The workers of Illinois must vigorously combat the effort to put over the state constabulary bill during the present session of the legislature. The enemy never sleeps. His myriad agents are constantly on the job, planning to strengthen the grip of capitalism on the workers. Eternal vigilance is the price of the little liberty the workers have so far succeeded in wrenching from the ruling class, thru struggle. Only by struggle will they be able to hold what they have gained, make new gains and finally emancipate themselves from the thraldom of wage slavery.

Social-Democratic Grafters

Berlin is now convulsed with one of the biggest scandals in the history of Germany. It exceeds in magnitude even our own Teapot Dome.

Prominent members of the social democratic party are involved. The Barmat brothers, entrepreneurs, obtained, during the last year, from public institutions and the Prussian State Bank, credits amounting to $10,000,000. They made tremendous profits during and after the war supplying Germany with fats. Several members of the social democratic party were made members of the company. Thus the social democratic associates of the Barmats had a material interest in seeing that the enterprising businessmen secured credits.

The Barmat brothers are now in jail, but some of the social democrats are defending them in the columns of the Vorwarts. Heilman, for instance, a prominent socialist politician said that he was proud of his connection with the grafters. He is a member of their board of directors.

Herr Richter, Berlin's police president, a former member of the Metal Workers' Union but long since expelled from that organization is also involved. He is not too rotten however for the social democratic party. Nobody could be. Richter is a frequent guest at the palace of the eldest of the Barmat brothers or at any of the luxuriously furnished habitations of their official and unofficial tools. Richter is so crooked that the chief prosecutor warned the police against giving him any information which they might secure in their investigations of the Barmats.

The social democratic minister of the interior, Severing, is supporting Herr Richter, while among the other prominent socialists involved in the graft orgy are former-Chancellor Bauer and Herr Wells, both close friends of President Ebert.

Vorwarts, official organ of the social-democracy, excuses Barmat on the ground that he supported a dockers' strike in Rotterdam in 1920, with 60,000 guilders under the conditions that the dockers agreed to handle a large consignment of American bacon destined for Germany.

The social democrats are now urging that the Barmats be released on the ground of their patriotic pro-fatherland attitude during and after the war.

This is social democracy in action. The contemptible grafters sold out the workers in 1919 and today the Kaiser is getting ready for a comeback. Contrast their conduct with that of the Russian Communists. The latter could have hundreds of millions in return for treachery to the working class but after seven years of the most severe tests that any organization ever went thru the banner of the Communist Party of Russia is stainless and not even its worst enemies dares question the honesty of its leaders. It is a striking contrast to the general character of the German social democrats.

Disappointed!

Smiling, jovial, back slapping, handshaking, Alfred Smith, governor of the state of New York, has disappointed the labor fakers of his own state and even the optimistic and trusting editor of Labor, official organ of the sixteen standard railway unions, because "Al" has trimmed on the child labor amendment.

Smith received the wholehearted support of the trade unions in the last election, even the officials of the garment workers' unions known as socialistic, deserting Dr. Norman Thomas in favor of Tammany's champion.

One of the labor planks endorsed by Smith prior to his election was one calling for ratification of the child labor amendment. "When the devil was sick, the devil a saint would be, when the devil was well the devil a saint was he." The pre-election "Al" Smith and the "Al" of today are two entirely different characters. Another "friend of labor" fallen by the wayside!

When asked to vote for the Workers Party candidate, many sympathizers say it would be "throwing away a vote." But voting for any other candidate than a Communist, is certainly a waste of votes. Not that we believe the social revolution can be accomplished by voting. Revolutions don't happen that way. The most important feature of election campaigns is not the actual voting but the propaganda that is put forth during the fight. The labor leaders will not look upon the desertion of Alfred Smith, Gompers' close friend, as an indictment of their non-partisan political policy. They will simply pick on some other "friend of labor" who is on the make. They will not endorse independent working class political action, regardless of how many times their present policy is exposed. That is up to the masses and they also will learn that there is only one political party in America, whose political action is truly working class and that is the Workers (Communist) Party.

Big Woolworth Sales

The exploitation machine known as the Woolworth 5 and 10 cent stores, cleaned up only $215,501,187 last year, nearly every penny made out of the working class, who are forced to deal with this company. Its sales for 1923 were $193,000,000. The the workers in these stores.

This is a highest record for the F. W. Woolworth Compnay. Its sales for 1923 were 193,000,000. The company reported that of these sales, $20,669,397 were profits. It also says that each dollar earned 9.59. So is the working class exploited.

Mahoney—Agent of Minnesota Bankers

By EARL R. BROWDER.

WHEN "progressive" leaders in the labor movement lose their nerve, when they get tired of the battle and begin to think longingly of the quiet and remunerative life of those who conform to the ruling powers, when they finally quit the struggle for progressive measures—they always outdo the old reactionary bureaucrats in the depths of their treachery and the viciousness of their attacks upon their erstwhile comrades. They seem to feel a necessity to prove thir complete severance with the past which proved unprofitable to them, by glorying in the depths of infamy.

One year and a half ago Mahoney set out to do battle with the enemies of labor by fighting for the formation of a national farmer-labor party. Finding the Communists the only dependable fighting element he accepted the proposition of (and financial assistance from) the Workers Party for a joint effort to this end that resulted in the June 17 convention. Before that gathering occurred, already Mahoney had gotten cold feet and tried to back out, but under pressure and perhaps with the horrible example of Fitzpatrick before his mind, he did not break at the convention. He found out something about himself, in the course of that fight, that he had not realized before, namely, that Mahoney didn't give a damn for a farmer-labor party but was interested only in rolling up votes for LaFollette and making Mahoney a big frog in the Minnesota puddle. The Communists found out early in the game, and spent many weary hours furnishing the missing backbone to Mahoney during the battles that occurred before June 17.

After LaFollette had knifed the farmer-labor party, and had publicly spanked Mahoney, the latter crawled abjectly to him and promised to be a good boy hereafter. Mahoney denounced the candidacy of Foster, altho Foster was upholding the program of a farmer-labor party, which LaFollette had betrayed.

In all of this, it is possible that many honest workingmen, themselves blinded by the LaFollette illusion may have thot that Mahoney was correct. But Mahoney's latest performance should open their eyes to the meaning of the events of the past year, and make it clear to every worker, that Mahoney has become the agent of the forces of capitalist exploitation in Minnesota, that Mahoney is now the agent of the bankers. For he is now engaged in completing the work of destruction of the farmer-labor party movement, which LaFollette carried out nationally, by liquidating the farmer-labor party of Minnesota.

The facts are clear. Mahoney, as chairman of the Farmer-Labor Federation (organization of the trade union wing of the farmer-labor party), has signed a call, jointly with the appointed "legal" charman of the F. L. P., for a convention on March 20, to which the trade unions are not invited.

Not only are the trade unions shut out from representation in the convention, but those trade unionists who happen to get elected from the county mass conventions are expressly forbidden to hold any kind of caucus in connection with the convention.

This is nothing else but treason to the workers and farmers of Minnesota. This is liquidation of the farmer-labor federation and the delivering of the Minnesota farmer-labor party into the hands of the professional politicians, merchants, and bankers of the state.

Workers and working farmers can only attend conventions if they have organizations that send them and pay their expenses. This convention call which shuts out such representation forces the farmers to elect the local banker, or merchant, or petty elected official, as their delegate to the convention; because these are the only ones who quite generally can afford the time and expense of such gatherings.

If Mahoney succeeds with his latest trick, then the workers and farmers of Minnesota will have not even the shadow of control of the farmer-labor party. That organization will become a simple duplicate on a local scale of the republican and democratic parties on a national scale. The trade unions and the farmers' organizations will quickly find themselves begging for favors from the "farmer-labor party" as they used to beg at the doors of the older capitalist parties.

The Communists of Minnesota will call upon every honest worker to denounce and defeat this treason of William Mahoney.

Every time the enemies of the labor movement want to put over some especially dirty piece of work, they begin by a smoke-screen of denunciation of the Communists. Then they make an attack upon the Communists by arresting them (in the case of labor fakers by expelling them from the unions) and then, with the best fighters out of the way, they proceed to issue injunctions, to cut wages, or (in this latest case) to destroy a labor party.

Workers of Minnesota should now begin to understand why such extreme measures have been taken lately to expel the Communists from the central labor bodies.

The Communists will rise up and denounce this surrender to the Minnesota bankers.

Therefore the Communists must be expelled.

But the Mahoneys, the Sinclairs, the Paul Smiths, the Cramers, et al, have overreached themselves. By this, their latest blow against the workers and farmers of Minnesota, they will expose to tens of thousands of toilers the true nature of all their other acts.

Mahoney and company, acting in the interests of the wealthy exploiters of Minnesota, are liquidating the farmer-labor party and the farmer labor federation. That is the big fact for the workers to begin to understand.

AS WE SEE IT - -

By T. J. O'Flaherty

ist Party was small, weak and inexperienced. When Jim Larkin was released from Sing Sing in 1923, thru a pardon, the Irish left wingers were happy in the thought that they now had a leader who would organize the scattered radical forces and give them a program. On his return to Ireland he was greeted by thousands of workers. He still had his old place on the executive committee of the Transport Union, the office of general secretary. It was a powerful, strategic position. But Larkin as usual muffed the ball.

AS was the case in America he was surrounded by a group of place hunters and sycophants who were discredited in both the labor and nationalist movements. They were not radicals. Outside of the Communist fraction, his cronies were disappointed leaders who had no principles and no aims except to gain office. Instead of using his position as general secretary to win over the masses to his views (what they are nobody has yet been able to learn), he decided to make a frontal attack on the old executive committee and charged them with using the funds of the union for political purposes and for the organization and sustenance of a workers' citizen army. It was quite true that the funds were used for this purpose. It is also true that such use of union funds was in violation of English law but English law was not always all powerful in Ireland.

THE charges were threshed out in court and Larkin lost, the executive committee taking care to appear in the role of revolutionists, while Larkin, who talked revolution brought the union into court for having violated an English law. It is bad enough for a trade unionist to resort to a capitalist court anyhow, but this action of Larkin's was extremely stupid. Even if he could get his hands on the $180,000 which he accused the officials of misappropriating for political purposes, putting up labor candidates, he would have nevertheless suffered a moral defeat before the masses in playing the role of law enforcement agent.

HIS expulsion from the union followed the trial and he then organized a dual union, called the Workers' Union of Ireland. He launched a weekly paper called the Irish Worker. Those who knew Larkin's methods did not expect the venture to be anything more than shortlived, particularly in face of the competition of the powerful Transport Union. After several jurisdictional quarrels between the two unions, lawsuits instituted by Larkin on Larkin's friends, he was adjudged bankrupt by the Dublin courts in November and his examination showed that his assets amounted to something like ten dollars, while he owed five thousand. He should know by now that capitalist courts are dangerous playthings for workers.

IN one of the latest issues of his paper to reach here, Larkin threatens to quit unless his supporters came across with money, automobiles, jewelry or anything else that could satisfy a printer. It was something like what Grand Duke Cyril would issue. Whether his paper has given up the ghost or not I do not know, but there is no doubt that his experiment in dual unionism is a fizzle.

LARKIN has a reputation of being a revolutionist, but the reputation is not founded on any basis more substantial than a loud voice. His first act on returning to Ireland was to instigate the liquidation of the Communist Party, so that he could hold the center of the stage as the only "revolutionist" in Ireland. He does not believe in organization, unless it takes orders from him. An incurable egomaniac, he refuses to accept advice from anybody. Larkin attended the latest congress of the Red Intetrnational of Labor Unions, but since his return he never mentioned the Profintern or made any effort to carry out its decisions.

LARKIN'S failure, in view of the particularly rosy opportunity that awaited him on his return from the United States, is an object lesson in trade union tactics that should be taken to heart by Communists everywhere. By splitting the union, taking the officials into a capitalist court on the sordid charge that they had used union funds for political purposes calling strikes of members of his dual union against members of the Transport Workers, engaging in business ventures thus laying himself open to suspicion, and in general his all around buffoonery, is a spelndid lesson in the wrong way to fight reactionaries in the trade unions.

IN addition to those colossal blunders Larkin had no program, neither did he show by word or act that he was more revolutionary than the officials in power. As it was, the workers were confronted with a choice between two evils. Whether the Irish labor movement, which looked so promising during the dark days when the trade union movement on the continent was dragged at the heels of the capitalist war chariot, will soon again play a progressive role, in Europe, is hard to predict. Perhaps the negotiations now taking place between the Russian and British unions may have some beneficial effect in Ireland. The Irish Trade Union Congress is neither affiliated with the R. I. L. U., or with Amsterdam. A Trade Union Educational League is badly needed there. What is needed is organization and discipline and not a Barnum or a Marcus Garvey.

WAS LENIN A RUSSIAN?

By ISRAEL AMTER.

CALVIN COOLIDGE is an American. The kaiser and Hindenburg are Germans. Clemenceau and Briand are Frenchmen. De Rivera and Alfonso are Spaniards. Lloyd George and MacDonald are Englishmen.

Was Lenin a Russian? No, Lenin was the greatest internationalist that the world has ever known. By accident he was born in Russia, but he was an internationalist not only in spirit, but in understanding.

Morgan and Rockefeller, Rothschild and Stinnes, Armstrong and Baldwin, Loucheur and de Wendel are also internationalists. They are capitalist internationalists, who know their own interests all over the world. But their interests are the interests of a small group of imperialists whose aim it is to conquer the world in theier own interests. Their capital is invested in every part of the world, enslaving races and peoples to make profits for them.

Lenin was an internationalist in the interest of the working masses of the world. He showed that he understood not only the Russian workers and poor peasants, but also mastered the situation in all the capitalist and colonial countries of the world. He formulated the methods that the Russian workers and peasants should use in order to get power. He also formulated the methods that the colonial peoples—India, Java, China, Korea, Africa—should employ to throw off the dominion of the Morgans, Rockefellers and their sort. He showed to the workers of ALL countries what they must do to put an end to exploitation.

The imperialists of the world hate and fear Lenin, Soviet Russia, the Communist parties that grew up under his inspiration, and the Communist International, the fighter against world imperialism. They hate and fear the revolutionary movement of the capitalist countries and of the colonies. Hence they are conducting a vicious campaign not only against Soviet Russia, but also against the Communist International, the creation of that greatest of internationalists, Lenin. The colonies together with the masses in the capitalist countries must rise against the capitalists. That is the watchword of the day: Solidarity of all oppressed against the oppressors. Lenin, the internationalist, calls to the revolution.

Today, February 1, at Madison Square Garden, we will commemorate the death not of Lenin, the Russian leader, but Lenin, the leader of the world proletariat and oppressed peoples. They call all revolutionist Russians, because Lenin was a Russian. Let us fill ourselves with the spirit of this Russian internationalist, Lenin, and follow in his steps.

INDIAN MAGICIAN WILL PERFORM MAGIC TRICKS AT JOINT BAZAAR OF LABOR DEFENSE AND I. W. A.

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The most famous Indian magician, whose name we will keep secret for the time being, will participate in the Joint Bazaar of the International Workers' And and the Labor Defense Council at the Lyceum, 86th St. and 3rd Ave.

Has World Reputation.

This magician will appear in the Keith circuit later in the season. He has already appeared in the theaters in this country and has produced a sensation. The professor, as he is called, tho still a young man, has been doing magic and tricks of the east for many years. He began to do this work when a child and came to this country a few years ago to interest the American public in the high magic of which he is capable.

The professor will appear in person on all four evenings of the bazaar, performing the most unusual tricks His burning trick is one of the most astonishing achievements of modern magic. This is an original trick of the professor's which is a great strain on his nervous powers.

Feels Kinship with Victims.

The professor became interested in the bazaar owing to the fact that there are 25,000 revolutionary workers and peasants in the prisons of India. He knows that the International Red Aid sent financial assistance to India to relieve the sad plight of these prisoners. Many of them have been in prison for years without receiving any aid whatever. Conditions in India are very bad—and the prisons are among the worst in the world. When the professor learned that the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council are organizations performing work of relief, he was only too pleased to offer his co-operation.

Will Be Assisted by Troupe.

He has promised to do some of his most original tricks and will be assisted by others of his troupe. The joint bazaar committee counts it one of its main successes in having procured the professor. Anybody who wishes to leave the everday struggle for a short excursion in to the field of magic should not fail to attend the bazaar. At the same time, he will be helping along the cause for which the professor donates his services.

Bring the Children.

Tell your friends to meet you at the Indiana booth at the bazaar. Take along your children either in the evening or Saturday afternoon, Feb. 14, which is "Junior Day."

By KARL RADEK

THE election victory of the republican party in America was the result of the improvement in the economic situation which took place last summer and autumn. This victory in turn cause a further improvement in the economic situation. An American journalist who belongs to the democratic, that is to the defeated party, wrote: "Our generation knows no other president in whom the financial circles had such great confidence as they have in Coolidge."

The capitalist world is assured of a government which will be its blind tool.

In order to gain an idea as to the industrial situation in America, we will quote the most important statistical figures. About 2 million shares of 555 industrial and commercial concerns change hands every day on the stock exchange. These are the highest figures since 1896. The clearing house figures in October reached 40 milliard dollars. This again is the highest sum since March 1920 We see along the whole line a reduction in the number of bankruptcies and an increased trade turn-over. The steel industry, which on the 1st of July was working forty-six per cent under its normal capacity, has reduced this difference to fourteen per cent. The price of steel is rising.

High Price of Corn a Factor

The cause for this revival is to be seen in the high price of corn, which in turn is due to the bad harvest in Canada and in Russia. The price of wheat has reached 1.62 dollars. The question has even been discussed in some newspapers, whether we are here confronted with a temporary overcoming of economic depression or with the commencement of a great industrial boom.

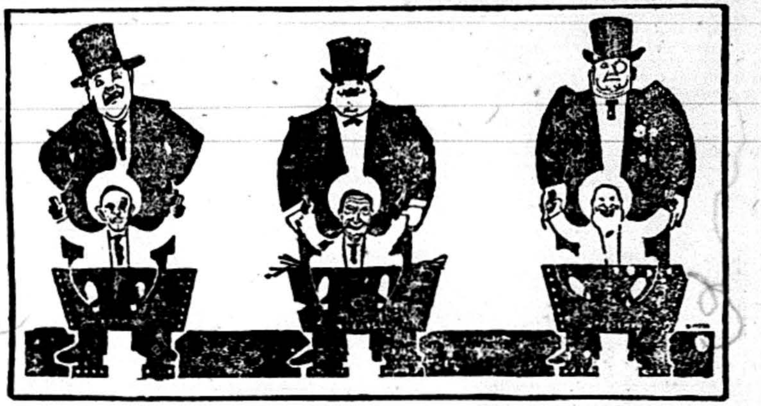
A great quantity of the capital accumulated in America is not only seeking for new markets for the products of American industry, but also for markets for the direct export of capital. In the year 1923 London issued securities to the value of 2 million gold roubles; thirty-eight per cent English, forty-one per cent colonial and twenty-one per cent foreign. During the year 1923 the United States exported capital to the value of 1200 million gold roubles. In the first ten months of 1924 London issued securities to the value of 1400 million gold roubles; of these, 300 million went abroad. During the same period New York issued securities to the value of 5 milliard roubles, of which more than 2 million went abroad. In the search for markets for the export of capital American finance capital has already left English capital behind.

American Capital in Europe

Another very import fact is that this exported capital is not only in the hands of a few bankers or financiers, but that the loans find subscribers among the ranks of the petty and middle bourgeoisie. The Austrian loan, amounting to 50 million gold roubles, found 9,000 subscribers, the Japanese loan, amounting to 300 million gold roubles, 44,000 subscribers. The low rate of discount of the American banks has overcome the "fear of the unknown" existing among the middle and petty bourgeoisie; the latter are investing larger sums of money abroad every year.

It is interesting to cast even a fleeting glance at the places to where American capital is being exported. During the first ten months of 1924 the United States lent (reckoned in gold roubles): 80 millions to Argentina, 300 millions to Japan, 60 millions to Switzerland, 80 millions to Holland, to Czecho-Slovakia about 20 millions, to Hungary 18 millions, to Norway 50 millions, to Belgium 60 millions, to Canada 280 millions, to Germany 220 millions, to France 200 millions,—besides a whole number of municipal and private loans. It is not surprising, therefore, that Coolidge, after his re-election, declared: "We cannot hope that we shall always remain an island of the blest which will live apart from the rest of humanity. If we were unable to avoid participation in the war, with the causes of which we had nothing to do (!) how could we think of avoiding responsibility for other world questions which are to be solved in the atmosphere of peace and goodwill?"

EVERY IMPERIALISM HAS ITS OWN PUPPET



(By Moore in Moscow Pravda.)

The U. S. Has Coolidge; England Its Baldwin; Germany Its Stresemann.

We will leave the "peace and goodwill" of Mr. Coolidge aside. The president of America, who was returned to power with the aid of a party which in the year 1920 defeated Wilson under the slogan of isolation from the rest of the world, expresses in these words the fact that American capital has already penetrated into all countries of the world to such an extent, that today it has become one of the most important factors in world politics. The American newspapers are full of articles dealing with the trade of America with the whole world, with the question of the export of capital and with all the conflicting questions of world politics. This is a complete change of front which only becomes intelligible when one has studied the attitude of America to world questions in the period from 1919 to 1922. The United States, after having protected her industries by enormously high tariff walls, is now competing to an ever greater extent with all the other countries of the world, and for this purpose is employing her enormous accumulated capital, the export of which constitutes nothing else than the powerful weapon of long term credits, which America had very unwillingly granted hitherto.

England Exports Goods

If the question of capital export at present occupies the forefront position in America, in England it is the question of the export of goods which is engaging the greatest attention. The statistician, Edgar Crammond, calculates in his recent work that, as a result of the war, the national income of England has become considerably reduced and that from 1914 to the present day—if we take into consideration the reduced purchasing power of money—it has fallen from 24 to 21 milliards (reckoned in roubles). The present national income is about equal to that of 1907. It is upon this reduced national income that there lies the heavy burden of the enormously increased national debts, with the result that the budget has to be increased fourfold. In consequence of this England, who in the year 1907 was able to devote about twenty-four per cent of her national income for the extension of the influence of her capital at home and abroad, is now only, able to employ about ten per cent for this purpose.

As English capital is not in a position to compete with America as regards the export of capital for the purpose of capturing markets, and as it does not possess such a big home market as America as would permit it to reduce the cost of production, and in addition is suffering from the industrializing of its own colonies, English capitalism is faced with far more serious difficulites than is American capitalism. The above mentioned Mr. Crammond calculates that the share of England in the trade of the world increased in the period from 1912 to 1922 from 13.8 to 17.3 per cent. This increase in the share of England in the world's trade (in the first place at the cost of Germany) does not, however, correspond to the increase in the total sum of English trade. In 1922 it was 25 per cent lower than in 1912. The necessity for creating the pre-conditions for normal trade was the driving force which caused England to participate in the attempts to solve the reparation question. It is this also which is causing England to strive to restore a firm regime at all costs in her colonies, to "pacify" China and to open the Russian markets. And as the consolidation of the capitalist order in the whole world is equally necessary for the export of capital as for the export of goods, the whole of the year 1924 was characterized by the co-operation of England and America.

Competition Between Both Countries

The relative weakness of England in the sphere of capital-export, her close relations with the European markets, is rousing great uneasiness among the English capitalists with regard to the difficulties which English capitalism will encounter in the event of the strengthening of German industry. Hence a number of vital questions regarding the reconstruction of capitalism assume another form to the United States than to England. These differences show the varying degree of interest which England and America have in the colonial questions. The Anglo-American co-operation, in spite of all the compliments of the English statesmen to the United States, has not led to the disappearance of the profound antagonisms between these two powers. One must, however, for the time being reckon that the efforts—arising from the greater strength of American capital and from the deep crisis of English capitalism—to create favorable conditions in shattered Europe, in the colonies and in the semi-colonial countries for the absorption of goods and for the investment of capital, will not only lead for the time being to the solidarity of these powers against the Soviet Union, as well as against the colonial and semi-colonial peoples, but also to the attempt to create favorable pre-conditions as quickly as possible for the penetration of English and American capital into these countries.

American imperialism is striving to conquer the world; English imperialism is striving to maintain its conquests. A collision between these two will take place in the future. Today, however, they both require at all costs an extension of the world market. These efforts of the two imperialist powers constitute the most characteristic feature of the international situation at the opening of the new year.

Communist Work Among Women

By MARGARET UNDJUS

THERE are many comrades who cannot conceive of special work among women by a Communist Party. Many women comrades do not take part in this special work, because they fear that they will be considered feminists. Comrades would not take this attitude, if they really did understand what this kind of work means for the party. It is true that our knowledge and experience in Communist work among women here in America is very limited and we must look for guidance to our comrades abroad with their mature knowledge in this kind of work.

The reasons which compelled the Communist International to give special attention to work among women are easy to find. The contrasted experience of the two revolutions in Russia and Hungary of themselves give reasons. In Russia the active support of the women helped to save the revolution, in Hungary their passive resistance helped to destroy the revolution. Capitalism has perfected its machinery so, as to make women in the mass a bulwark of conservatism and reaction.

Situation Among Women.

First, the women are mentally and emotionally separated from the men; then their isolation is used to intensify the economic subjection which they share with the men; their inferior position is used as a means of setting them into antagonism against the men; finally their separation as a sex is used to make them active for reaction against the workingmen active in the class struggle.

The weakness of the mass of women from the point of organization makes them a serious menace in almost every fight, as the capitalist ideology imparted to them from the school, pulpit and press fosters a parasitical outlook which leads to the acceptance of low wages. The woman tramping in search of work is threatened with danger from which men are free and more easily submit to exploitation. The thought of her children going hungry also compells the mother to accept low wages. Add to this the jealousies and dislikes arising from their sex competition with each other for marriage mates—itself a by product of their economic conditions, the comparative inactivity of women in the trade unions and their easy delusion by bourgeois agencies is all too terribly explained. The maternal functions of women place them in a position of utter dependence and very often into humiliation unspeakable.

Women are very susceptible to influence by the bourgeois feminist organizations. These feminist organizations are a machine for manufacturing a counter-revolutionary psychology which the women in turn impose upon their children and men folks. The bourgeoisie see the importance of special work among women. The bourgeoisie are exerting much effort to divert the proletarian women from their class interests thru these feminist organizations. We, the Workers (Communist) Party are only now waking up to the realization of this important work. The workingclass possesses in its women powerful forces which are not yet mobilized. These forces if systematically employed, would be capable of exercising a decisive influence on the issue of the class struggle. It is the duty of our party to start this work.

Destroy Feminist Ideas.

The constant worsening of the position of the working women creates favorable conditions for work among them. The task of the party is to give Communist direction to the discontent among women if the workingclass study the prejudices and traditions that still shackle her, bring home to her the lesson that she is one with the world's workers. We must raise slogans that will appeal to the working women. We must destroy the feminist ideology and win them over to the side of the workers in the class struggle. Special means must be devised to win the attention of the women to the significance of the Communist message to them. We must get the women to understand how suicidal it is for them to tolerate a miserable rate of pay because they hope to escape from the factory by the door of marriage. She must be made to understand that by acting as strikebreaker, she is helping those who are fighting against the workingclass for the preservation of the bourgeois social system. The Workers (Communist) Party must do its utmost to overcome the sluggishness, the individualistic psychology of the working women and to awaken feelings of class solidarity among them.

Because of the peculiar situation of women, because of their political backwardness, a special means of approach must be used. We have a special department of youth (the Y. W. L.) because we know that in this way our Communist work will be more effective among the young workers. The Y. W. L. constantly brings before the party special plans for more effective work among the youth of the country. We organize unemployment councils during acute unemployment periods; we organize protection of foreign-born councils, etc. Acute unemployment comes with the re-occurring capitalist crisis, but the problem of the women of the working class is continual. It is necessary to have a special apparatus in this work. In Russia, after the overthrow of the bourgeoise, we see the important and effective work carried on by the special women's departments of the Russian C. P. The fact that the C. I. has instructed all of its sections to create an apparatus for work among women, in itself is evidence enough to prove the necessity for special work among women. The women's department in the party will take the initiative in pressing for action on questions relating to Communist work amobg women.

Do We Need a Separate Women's Organization?

Some of us believe that the Communist message applies to women in a very peculiar way. "The women of the workingclass will not enter a Communist Party, but they will become members of a separate women's organization independent of the party," say some of our comrades, "therefore, it is necessary to carry on our Communist work among women thru such a separate women's organization." First, a separate women's organization cannot have the will to action, the centralized organization as that of a Communist Party. Second, how can we expect to win the sympathies of the women of the workingclass for our party, if we (the party) work with these women on issues related to their very life in the name of an organization other than the Workers (Communist) Party? This separate organization will absorb all the sympathies and gain all the influence of these women, because it will take up the issues related to their very life. It has been the experience of our comrads in other countries, that women become the ardent advocates of Communism, once they realize that the Communist Party is with them in their daily needs. The Comintern is opposed to the formation of separate women's organizations. The following is an extract from the theses of the Third Congress of the C. I. on women's work: "Being earnestly opposed to the separate organization of women into all sorts of parties, unions, or any other special women's organizations. . . ." Also from the theses of the third conference of Communist women: "In Holland and Norway the remaining separate organizations of Communist women were successfully liquidated."

Forms and Methods of Work.

The C. E. C. of the party made a decision that all political work among women be carried on in the name of the Workers (Communist) Party: that every unit of the party beginning with the branch up to the C. E. C. immediately appoint a committee for work among women. This is the correct policy. It is in spirit with the decisions of the C. I. The comrades in these women's committees must acquaint themselves with the latest theses of the C. I. on work among women, as our work must be based on these theses.

Work among women in industry. This must be the most important phase of our work among women. "The experience of the revolutionary struggle of the workingclass shows the mightiest form of organization to be the centralized organization closely bound with the working masses and having its basis in production, that is in the workshops and factories." Our party is starting out to make this the laboratory for mass work of the party—we are beginning to reorganize the party on the shop nuclei basis. The starting for mass work among women should also be in the factory and shop. Our shop nuclei where ever organized, should have an organizer for work among women. Our trade union groups must have a comrade responsible for work among women—to get the women into the left wing in the trade unions, etc. Women workers' committees may be organized in the shops and factories. Where there are existing shop committees, the women must be organized into such committees and no separate committee must be organized. All this work must be carried on in collaboration with the general party women's departments having jurisdiction. Some of the slogans for work among the women in the shops and factories may be: Equal wages for equal work in every branch of industry; abolition of piece work; employment of women in all branches of industry except where it is detrimental to their health; abolition of night work and overtime; protection for women workers, mothers and infants; working wages to be paid in full during absence because of confinement; against dismissal during pregnancy and nursing; against the dismissal of married women, etc.

Work among the housewives. The housewife is an important factor in the class struggle. The housewives are not in the trade unions, nor are they organized politically. The co-operative is the organization capable of comprising these masses of women of the workingclass, it will also bring the women in the factories and shops into organization with the housewives. The co-operative movement will draw the proletarian women into the whirlpool of political and economic activity. It is the task of the party to direct the proletarian women, to make it their endeavor to make the co-operatives a weapon for the interests of the working class. The party should stand for carrying out initiative proceeding from the women organized in co-operatives and aiming at a Communization of daily life. As for instance, the establishment of dining halls, kindergartens, nurseries, etc. We shall work for the realization of the active participation of the co-operatives in class warfare by means of opening of dining halls for strikers, unemployed, provision for their wives and children, etc. Our women comrades in Coney Island are preparing to carry on work of this kind. Care must be taken that this kind of work is not given a humanitarian character. As for instance, the feeding of the unemployed must be dealt with in relation to the general question of unemployment.

Fight for Everyday Needs.

The party will not limit its work to the factory and the home. We must carry on propaganda by written word and by personal contact. The party must take the initiative in raising slogans on burning issues that will appeal to the working women. Mass meetings must be arranged for on these issues. Local councils may be formed when the situation demands. (Such as the control councils in Germany during the economic crisis). We must establish united fronts by calling local conferences with delegates from existing women's organizations, shop committees, trade unions, co-operatives, local councils, Workers Party, etc. We must have these conferences take up questions that will appeal to the working women generally, such as unemployment, high food prices, high rent, child labor, etc. All these questions must be taken up at the time the Workers Party launches united front campaigns on these issues. It is the duty of the W. P. members in these conferences to see that work on these issues is based on the W. P. program for that specific issue. We must always have a comrade deliver a Communist talk at these conferences. We must acquaint the women attending these conferences with what the Soviet governmnt of Russia has done to improve the conditions of the working women in Russia and compare same with their own conditions both in the factory and home. We must see that these conferences accept resolutions of greeting to the women in Soviet Russia. We must always keep before these women the fact that all the improved conditions for women in Russia came about thru the work of the Communist Party of Russia. The work of relief for the workers and their children in other countries and for relief of political prisoners should be taken up at these conferences. Where appropriate, we must have women representatives at these conferences from the farms. These conferences are called when ever necessary. They must be representative conferences. By no means must we allow these conferences to develop into a separate individual membership organization. These local conferences will be under the leadership of the Workers Party.

Simultanebusly with this work, we must immediately start building the party machinery for work among women. Every unit of the party must establish its own women's department. The C. E. C. of the party is preparing a special program for this work. We must be ready to give life and flesh to this program. It is very important that the women comrades be fully aware of the fact that it is they who will have to play the role of intermediaries and interpreters between the Workers (Communist) Party and the masses of working women. To give these women's committees a non-feminist character, men comrades must be appointed on these committees. To carry on this work more effectively, our women comrades must be drawn more into the general party work. In the course of our work new methods of work must be elaborated. Account must be taken of our experiences. Our progress will be slower than we wish, but it will be sure. We will gain influence and members for the Workers (Communist) Party.

Our Party's Press and Literature

By N. LENIN.

The socialist proletariat has got to consider the basic principles of the literature of the workers' party, in order to develop these principle and express them in their most complete form. These principles are in contrast with bourgeois customs, with the commercialized bourgeois press, with the individualism of the ambitious adventurers of bourgeois literature and their "splendid freedom," and with the scramble for profits.

What do these principles consist of? Not only that the literature of the proletariat should no longer be a means of enriching groups or individual character nor be independent of proletarian control. No more "non-party" writers; no more literary supermen!

Literary activity should be a part of the whole work of the proletariat. It should be a cog in the great machine which will be put in motion by the whole vanguard of the working class. Literature should become one part of the work of the party, organized, thought out, unified, and revolutionary.

"All comparisons limp," says a German proverb. It is so of my comparison of literature with a cog in the machine of the movement. There will be no lack of hysterical intellectuals to yelp in distress at this conception, which, according to them, will debase, will destroy, will "bureaucratize" and make mechanical the free "struggle of minds," free criticism, free "literary endeavor," etc. Their laments will be nothing but an expression of bourgeois intellectual individualism.

Obviously, literature is the last thing to be treated mechanically; it cannot easily be graded by, or submit to, the decisions of the majority. In this matter, one ought, undoubtedly, to allow a great deal of scope for individual initiative, for personal inclination, for inspiration and imagination, in form and content.

All this is indisputable, but it proves only one thing; that the literary side of the party's work cannot be mechanically identified with the other sides of proletarian activity.

This by no means destroys the truth—incomprehensible and strange as it may seem to intellectuals and bourgeois democrats—that literary work ought to be most strictly bound to the rest of the socialist work of the party. Writers ought to enter the party without making any stipulations. Publishing establishments, bookshops, reading-rooms, libraries, everything to do with literature ought to be placed under the control of the party.

The organized socialist proletariat ought to supervise and control all this work; it should infuse into it the vital spirit of the workers, and in this sphere, should throw off the outlook of the mercenary bourgeoisie, who see in the writer only the man who sells his writings to earn his living, and in the reader simply a customer who brings in money.

Naturally we do not imagine that this change in literature can be brought about at one swoop; in this Russian literature, which has for so long been crippled by an "Asiatic" censorship, and corrupted by a Europeanised bourgeoisie. We are far from expecting any panacea whatever in the shape of decisions and resolutions settling the whole thing in an arbitrary manner. That is not the point. What concerns us, is that our class-conscious proletariat should understand that here is a new problem that has to be faced frankly, and everything possible done to solve it.

After having delivered ourselves from the chains of censorship, we do not want to be the captives of bourgeois commerce and its relationships. We want to create a press that is freed not only from police control, but also from the influence of capital and from private ambitions, and above all freed from anarchist-bourgeois individualism.

These last words will be an object of derision to the reading public. "Good heavens!" some burning apostle of "intellectual freedom" will doubtless exclaim; "Good heavens! You want to submit to the masses a thing so subtle and so personal as literary workmanship. . . . You want workmen to decide, by the majority of votes, high questions of philosophy, science, and taste. That is the way you suppress the spirit's freedom to work, which is essentially individual. . . ."

Don't be alarmed, my friends!

First of all, this concerns the literature of the party, and its place in the party, of control of the party. Every one is free to write and say what he wants to without the least restriction. But every voluntary association—and the party is one of them—is free to expel from its ranks members who use its organization to preach opinionsagainst the party. Freedom to write and to speak should be as complete as possible. In the name of free speech, I should give you the whole right of shouting, lying and saying all that you want to. But in virtue of the freedom of association, you must concede me the right to maintain or to break my alliance with people who write in such and such a fashion.

The party is a voluntary organization, that will inevitably fall in ruins, first spiritually, and then materially, if it does not take care to decide the position of those people who propagate opinions against it. And to fix what is for and what is against the party we have the program of the party as a criterion, its tactical resolutions, its statutes, and finally the experiences of international socialism, the whole experience of voluntary associations of the proletariat.

Our party is becoming a party of the masses; we are in an epoch of rapid transition towards open legal organization, and at this period many useless people (from a Marxist point of view) and perhaps a few who are Christians or mystics as well, join us. But we have a strong digestion: we are Marxists hard as adamant. We shall assimilate all the confusionists. Partisans of the freedom of association we still fight unmercifully to purge the party of confusionist elements.

Furthermore, may we inform our friends the bourgeois individualists that their talk about "absolute liberty" is nothing less than pure hypocrisy?

In a society which maintains itself by the power of money, and where the mass of the workers lack the necessities of life, there is no real liberty. Are you free in relation to your bourgeois publisher, my writer friend? Again, are you free in relation to your bourgeois public, which demands from you pornography and prostitution as a supplement to "sacred dramatic art"?

Absolute freedom is a bourgeois or anarchist fiction (for anarchism is a bourgeois theory the wrong way round). One cannot live in society and be free towards society. The freedom of the bourgeois writer, or artist, or actress, is a mask of independence concealing a real dependence on the money of parasites and souteneurs.

We socialists tear aside this hypocrisy and unmask their false standards, not to arrive at a literature "above class" (that will only be possible in a socialist society, in a society without classes), but to oppose to this so-called free literature, which is really allied with the bourgeoisie, a literature bound openly to the proletariat.

This will be a literature truly free, because corruption and ambition will have no place there, and socialist ideals and sympathy with the oppressed will continually bring into it new forces and new groupings.

This will be a free literature, for it will not depend on the blase heroine nor the tenthousand bored and fattened high-brows, but on the millions and millions of workers who are the pick of the country, its power and its future.

This will be a free literature, which will enrich itself with the latest creations of revolutionary thought, with the experience and living work of the socialist proletariat.

Get down to the job then, comrades . . . We have before us a great and difficult problem: we must create a rich proletarian literature, narrowly and indissolubly bound to the socialist workers' movement.

All the journals, all the periodicals, all the bookshops should immediately harness themselves to the task of reorganizing in order to become the organ of one or other of the organizations affiliated to our party.

It is only after this work that socialist literature will deserve the name; it is only then that it will be capable of carrying out its tasks; it is only then that even within the framework of the bourgeois society, it will be able to free itself from bourgeois bondage and bind itself to the movement of the truly revolutionary class.

MUSIC • LITERATURE • DRAMA

Drama in the New World

By T. F. MEADE.

IN New York there are about one thousand theaters or places of amusement coming under the head of drama in the new world. Probably seven million people avail themselves of opportunities to visit these theaters to find diversion and food for thought in the portrayal of life buzzing all around them. Yet, in these thousand theaters where is represented as decisively as in any capitol of any nation, the level of culture of the nation there are scarcely half a dozen plays, which may really be considered as representing any serious thought or phase of life.

Music is the most emotional of the arts and the drama the most animating perhaps, and probably, many agree the supreme form of cultural development in its presentation of actual life in its multitudiously varied tones and forms.

In James O'Neill's dramas we know we'll see gripping life that disturbs us. His "Desire under the Elms" and "S. S. Glencairn" are now playing here and many people are visiting and studying them.

Shaw always inspires thought and often drives us right alongside a raging fire, scorching the soul, where we must act, where we must take sides—either by boldly pushing forward, affirmatively, or negatively, by cowardly retreating. Shaw's "Candida" and "Man of Destiny" may now be seen. Both are well given.

"What Price Glory" is one of those accidental dramas given at times which 100 per cent "cultural" and patriotic America considers too strong, useless and even effronting. But the innate fineness of human nature prompts them to accept such works as part of the philosophy of life, even tho it hurts and they become students of psychology for a time, tho soon off on something else. But the leaven has worked a little and this is what counts much, for the drama, in every phase of life, among all peoples, is destined to prove, is proving a mighty psychical force in attaining that desired, destined end toward which the work-a-day world is striving.

These are about all the serious drama representing culture in the great metropolis. But there is another and perhaps the profoundly grave side of the drama—that which utters the joy of life. On this side "Peter Pan" tells us merrily, and appealing strongly to our imagination of that splendor of child life of which we feel so little in America. Here is a play world and if there is some sombre coloring in the pirates and in the usual bourgeois attitude towards animal life, they are enlivened and the gloom is dissipated by the fun all around them which continually keeps us in the humor of brightness and keen appreciation of life being worth living.

How many children and women and men have not even the opportunity to see such a play? The struggle for a living is so sharp and oppressive, money is so hard to get, time is so devoured by daily essential routine that many of the working class cannot possibly take advantage of such plays, even if they lived near or in a city where they may be given.

Little, often no effort is made to bring the true drama to the people, with adequate presentation, or even with poor equipment. Bourgeois culture is conventional. It has no place for that breadth of thought which might tempt the imagination to roam afield, or out of those limits set by the powers that be, with Sunday school ethics and standards. New York forces on one, very quickly, its provinciality. It is not possible to live in it long without seeing the obvious narrowness of its life in the vast majority of its forms. It, therefore, expresses itself in its art; necessarily in reflections of that life and its drama takes on the same dull hues.

The hopeful signs are the demand for better drama. It is always evident among the people but the production of drama is in the hands of those who follow the American ideal of progress, to make money.

A few are making splendid efforts to get such pictures of life to the people as will satisfy, in part at any rate, this demand for better drama so that the producers will soon be forced to accept such plays.

It will be a remarkable step for drama presented in our cities. The Communist has a magnificent phase of propaganda in such portrayals of life. We shall take advantage of it.

Czarists in Chicago Rape Truth

By M. A. SKROMNY.

THE local Russian counter-revolutionary sheet pretends not to understand why Communists are against militarism in the capitalist countries and at the same time in favor of arming the workers in Soviet Russia. In an editorial attacking the DAILY WORKER and the Communists in general, the emigre czarist officer who is editing the sheet exclaims: "We are also against militarism, but why not protest against the militarism of Moscow? A Communist should preach peace and brotherhood among nations. He should protest against militarism always and everywhere."

Thus we are getting a lesson in Communism from a counter-revolutionist. There is one thing certain about it. This former officer of the czar's army has learned a lesson from the Communists and that is the reason why he keeps at such a distance from Russia. An armed class conscious proletariat is quite a dangerous thing for capitalists and their tools and henchmen. Therefore this editor "is also against militarism, and everywhere."

But this kind of bunk will not fool the workers. They know too well from the lessons received in Germany, Hungary, Finland and other countries that as soon as they are disarmed the capitalists will crush them. And that is exactly what this "lover of peace" wants to see in Russia.

But we are not a peace society for darning socks, in times of war. It is true that we are for peace and brotherhood among nations, but we are also for war against the capitalists, always and everywhere! That is why we are for the armed forces defending the revolution in Soviet Russia and against the armed forces defending capitalism in the United States, Japan and other bourgeois countries. We are for the arming of the proletariat and for the disarming of the bourgeoisie.

The counter-revolutionary editor claims he does not understand this, even after receiving a practical lesson from the Russian revolution! This isn't the first lie printed in that paper, and the Russian workers know it. So does the editor himself. It is just one of many devious forms of anti-Communist propaganda.

In another editorial this newspaper deliberately misquotes the DAILY WORKER as stating: "All power in Soviet Russia belongs ONLY to the Communist Party," and goes on to tell the readers that the DAILY WORKER is spilling the beans by telling what the Russian Communists are denying.

In the issue of last Monday, Comrade Engdahl in an editorial ridiculing the capitalist journalists, stated:

"The ruling power today in Soviet Russia is not lodged with any individual, or even group of individuals.

"The dominant power in Soviet Russia today is the Russian Communist Party. It rules thru its hundreds of thousands of members directly affiliated with it.

"Neither Trotsky, nor any other individual, at any time, ruled the Red Army. It was ruled at all times by the Communist Party; especially thru the Communists who were the leading and most self-sacrificing spirits in the Red Army.

"The Communist Party rules in industry thru its members in the shops, the mills, the mines and the factories. That was the strength of the Russian Communists, even before the revolution; that they were able everywhere that labor toiled to create their nuclei, and keep in the closest touch with the everyday aspirations of the workers at their work places, leading them to victory.

"Just as the kept press picures Trotsky as usurping power without the aid of the Communist Party, so it claims that the Communist Party maintains a dictatorship over the workers and peasants in spite of their opposition. This is also a phatastic dream. The Communist Party rules thru the dictatorship of the workers and peasants, and it maintains its ruling position because the masses of workers and peasants support its policies."

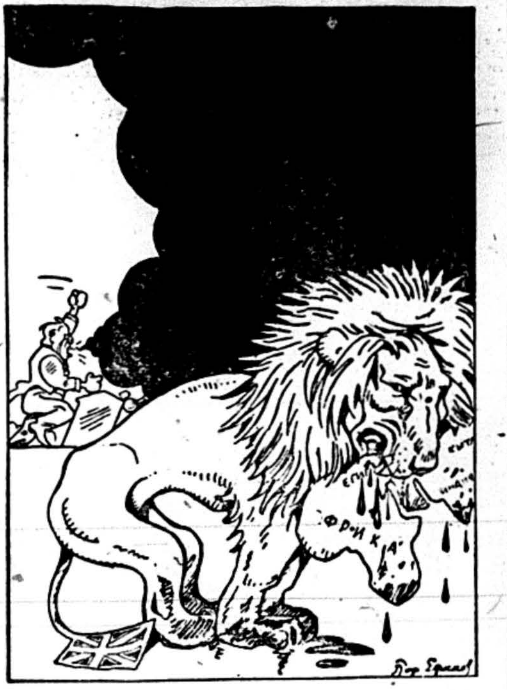
By deliberately misquoting these paragraphs and cutting them up in such a manner as to suit the purpose of the counter-revolutionists, the editor of the white guard sheet is trying to create hatred against the Soviet government and the Communists in general.

But again the czarist editor knows perfectly well that he is lying. It is not only a habit, it is in the nature of these blackguards of journalism to lie.

When we caught him with the goods in connection with the "quoting" of a non-existing editorial from the Odessa Izvestia the editor retreated coving himself with another fib: he claimed that we promised to send him the copy of the Odessa Izvestia, but we did not do it, therefore he is not able to convince himself that he was lying. The thousands of readers of the DAILY WORKER know that there isn't a word of truth in this statement. We never promised to send him this or any other copy. Neither do we intend to prove anything to him or his kind. One may attempt to prove something or convince one who is honest but mistaken. But to try to prove anything to an editor who is covered with lies as a solider in the trenches with cooties, is an utter waste of time.

Those Terrible Bolsheviks!



(By Boris Efimov, in Moscow Izvestia.)

Under the smoke-screen of attacking Bolshevism the British imperialists are crushing the subject nations of Affica and Asia.

A Letter from an Egyptian Worker in Moscow.

WITH hasty steps I go on my way to the factory. It is early, and the stillness of the streets is seldom broken by the rattling of a tram-car carrying the workers to their work.

When I get into the tram-car, which is already crowded with workpeople hurrying to their work, I look out of the window. The tram-car runs its usual course thru the old familiar streets with the same old houses and innumerable Moscow churches, which I pass on my way to work every day. Yet this particular morning my thoughts are somehow carried far away from these sights that have become so familiar to me. My mind wanders back to far-away Egypt, and in my fancy I behold the sights of Egyptian buildings and mosques, and instead of the Muscovite women going to the market, I dream of seeing Egyptian women with veiled faces.

From my lips involuntarily the words escape: Lee Stake . . . ultimatum . . . Zaghul Pasha . . . Sudan . . . Revolt. My neighbor stares at me in surprise, thinking, no doubt, that I am raving mad.

At last I arrive at the factory. I am working at a big aeroplane factory the "Duxe", which employes fifteen hundred workers. It is a factory of great renown throughout Russia. I have been working here already for some time, and have become quite skilled in my work. Here I am met by the friendly welcome of my mates, who are already gathered in groups, waiting for the whistle. In a corner I see a group of young Communists of the Young Communist League, and the girls with the red kerchiefs, talking gaily and smiling, seem to breathe the very vigor of life. Suddenly the whistle blew. Everyone rushed to the place of work. Yet I am still a prey to my involuntary musings, and I go about my work in a somewhat absent minded manner, which is altogether unusual for me. Instead of saying to my mate: "Hand me over that hammer," I say: "Hand me over that ultimatum."

The whistle blew again for dinner, and before taking my meal I rushed to our club, where I eagerly read today's Pravda which announced in big headlines: Anglo-Egyptian Conflict. Revolt in Sudan. Five hundred thousand pounds sterling fine. Demonstration at Alexandria; and so on. A cold sweat covered my face, and with bated breath I read again and again the telegraphic news from my far away home.

In the adjoining rooms one could hear an amateur play on the piano, and the clatter of hundreds of workers enjoying their meal.

A light touch on my arm called me back to reality. I turned round and saw Volodya, a general favorite of the place. He asked me: "What is the matter with you today?" In reply I showed him the paper containing the news which had disturbed me. At first he looked quite cursorily through the news, but after a while his face flushed and assumed an angry expression.

A few minutes later an improvised meeting was organized by Volodya. With the newspaper in his hand, he told the audience about the stirring events in Egypt. As soon as he finished his speech I got up on the platform where I was met by a storm of applause, which betokened everybody's sympathy for the Egyptian workers. In broken Russian I described the untold sufferings of my Egyptian brothers, the terrible oppression of the hard working felahs (the agricultural laborers) the severe distress of the Egyptian working class, the brutal oppression by British imperialism, the mockery of the so-called "Independence of Egypt" the importance of the Suez Canal, the Nile and the Sudan to the British imperialists and so on.

The meeting ended in loud cheers and cries: Down with British imperialism! Hands off Egypt! Long live the Egyptian workers and felahs!

In a happy mood I leave the place. I feel that the whole of my fellow workers here are in hearty sympathy with the cause of the people of Egypt, which has no friend elsewhere in the world, not even in the so-called League of Nations. And I turn to the workers of western Europe, particularly of England, with the question: "What was your response to the news of the latest events in Egypt?"

Bolshevism or Trotskyism?

By G. Zinoviev

V.

Whither is the Present Development of Trotsky Leading?

Comrade Trotsky, as an obvious individualist, has of course many features of character which are only characteristic for him personally. Comrade Trotsky often sets up such a political platform that only one person can stand on it: Comrade Trotsky himself, as upon this platform there is no room for anybody else. It would be a mistake, however, to see in this standpoint of Trotsky only the individual. There is no doubt that he represents a fairly broad section of the factor of our situation.

Since 1922, but even more since 1923, there has been an indisputable increase in the prosperity of the country, an indisputable improvement in the material situation and the mood of the workers. At the same time we see from all the expressions of Comrade Trotsky that precisely during these years his political mood has become worse. The curve of the political mood of the broad masses of the workers of our country is in an upward direction, the political mood of Comrade Trotsky is in a downward direction.

Comrade Trotsky is beginning to see things in ever darker colors. He prophesies the decline of the country on the eve of an indisputable improvement in the economic situation, he makes false diagnoses and proposes wrong remedies, he loses more and more of his followers, etc. Let us call to mind that Comrade Trotsky, at the time of his first encounter with Comrade Lenin and the Leninst C. C., at the time of the dispute over the Brest peace, still had a considerable portion of the party on his side. At the time of the second encounter with Lenin, in 1921 (trade union discussion), Comrade Trotsky still had about a fifth of the delegates to the party conference on his side, and this in the presence of Lenin. During last year's discussion Trotsky's following was already much smaller, but nevertheless there were still hundreds of comrades who were prepared consistently to defend his platform. In the present attack of Comrade Trotsky against the C. C. the comrades defending the platform of Comrade Trotsky can be counted on the fingers. And this is not a mere chance.

This fact alone shows that Comrade Trotsky in recent years, of course without wishing it himself, has given expression, not to the mood of the proletarian masses, but often involuntarily to the mood of other sections of the population.

If we pursue the line of development of Comrade Trotsky, if we test his latest political evolution in all its details during the last two or three years, it is not difficult to encounter apparent contradictions; and sometimes it may seem as if Comrade Trotsky were criticising the C. C., not from the right but from the left. Was it not Comrade Trotsky who accused the C. C. and its representatives in the Comintern that they had "missed" the German revolution? Is that then not a "left" criticism? But when we bear in mind that along with the "left" phrases of Comrade Trotsky there stands the fact that Trotsky, during the whole of 1923, supported the right wing of the C. P. of Germany, and on the other hand the fact that the right elements of all sections of the Comintern during last year's discussion supported the standpoint of Trotsky then the question is seen in quite another light. When we remember that even in January, 1924, the draft resolution of Comrade Trotsky, Radek and Piatakov contained passages, according to which if the C. P. of Germany in October, 1923 had entered upon a revolt it would today be a heap of ruins, then it becomes clear that Comrade Trotsky here, as in all the other questions which he deals with in the "Lessons of October", has not been in any way consistent.

In the activity of Comrade Trotsky there is much that is individual, much that is the mere reflection of passing moods, much that is brilliant. His platform is not yet finally settled. His political standpoint shimmers in all the colors of the rainbow. Our task consists in understanding what substance there is in all this, what is the basis of all this; and we maintain that the basis consists of something which is not Bolshevist and not Leninist.

From whence comes this variety of form? It has its basis in the fact that Comrade Trotsky's political development is not yet ended, and that it is taking place in a time of transition, in the period of the new Economic Policy.

Through all the variety, through all the improvisations of Comrade Trotsky there comes to light one definite tendency.

Let us imagine for a moment what would be the state of our country if our party, instead of energetically resisting the proposals of Comrade Trotsky, had accepted his most important proposals since 1921. This would have meant:

1 The trade unions would have become state institutions, there would have taken place the notorious "fusion" of the trade unions with official state and economic organs. The trade unions, which today constitute our broadest basis and embrace 6 million workers and employees, would have been converted into a bureaucratic appendage of the official machine. In other words, we would have created a basis for menshevism and undermined with our own hands the dictatorship of the proletariat.

2. The party would have become excluded from the immediate leadership of the economic and state organs. The Soviet apparatus would have become more independent. "The emancipation of the Soviets from the party" would not merely have remained on paper, in the writings of the emigrants, but would have been partly realized. It is hardly necessary to point out to a Bolshevik that such a tendency would have had innumerable fatal consequences.

64-PAGE PAMPHLET ON LENINISM OR TROTSKYISM NOW IN PREPARATION

This installment is part of a pamphlet "Leninism or Trotzkyism" now in preparation. It includes articles by three outstanding figures in the Russian Communist Party: G. Zinoviev, I. Stalin and C. Kamenev, to form a most timely and important contribution to a discussion of world interest. The pamphlet will be of 64 pages, selling at 20 cents and will be ready at the conclusion of this serial publication.

3. The bourgeois specialists would have won a far greater influence in all branches of our work, and not only on the military field. It is almost superfluous to point out that that was one of the most important features of the political platform of Comrade Trotsky, and one of the most important points of his differences with our party.

Of course it is absolutely necessary that we attract honest specialists into our work, and that we create such an atmosphere as will enable them to render useful service for our cause. If, however, the question of specialists had been solved, not according to Lenin but according to Trotsky, it would have meant the greatest political concession to the new bourgeoisie

4. In the questions of the inner life of the party we would have had to recognize that, not the workers at the benches but the youths in the high schools constitute the barometer of the party; the youths in the high schools, among whom there are excellent proletarian elements, but among whom there are not a few people who are connected by a thousand social ties to the petty bourgeoisie and, through them, to the Nep and the new bourgeoisie.

5. We should not have carried out the currency reform because, according to Trotsky, "first" industry had to be restored, and then the currency reform was to be taken in hand. It is not necessary to mention that if we had accepted this "ingenious" proposal, the weight of the socialist element upon the economy of our country would only have been reduced and the new bourgeoisie would have thereby become stronger.

6. As regards the question of our relation to the peasantry, we should have committed the greatest errors. Instead of the beginning of an alliance with the peasantry, we should be altogether estranged from them. The peasantry, alienated by our errors, would have sought another political leader, and of course would have found it in the new bourgeoisie.

No comrade will be able to say that we have invented the above six points. Every serious Bolshevik will have to admit that the struggle between the Leninist C. C. and Comrade Trotsky turns precisely upon these points, and not upon the question of "personal prestige", as the philistines think.

What would be the state of affairs in our country if, in these six questions, we had followed the road urged by Trotsky? It would have become a Russia of the Nep, in the sense and to the extent which the ideology of the new bourgeoisie reckoned upon. And the prospects of the transformation of Russia of the new economic policy into a socialist Russia would have been very remote, and would even have entirely vanished.

If we add to all this the opportunist errors of Comrade Trotsky in the questions of international politics, (over-estimation of the democratic-pacifist era, over-estimation of the miraculous peace-making quality of American super-imperialism, underestimation of the counter-revolutionary nature of social democracy, underestimation of the duration of fascism) and the fact that he supported all right, semi-social democratic elements in the various sections of the Comintern, then it is clear in what direction Comrade Trotsky is drawing our party.

In this heaping up of one error upon another Comrade Trotsky has his own "system". As a whole that system is: right deviation.

The new bourgeoisie of our country is precisely a new and not the old bourgeoisie. It has seen a variety of things and has also learned something from the "Lessons of October". It saw the masses in action. It saw the ruthless handling of the bourgeoisie by the Bolsheviki in the first period of the October revolution, and the concessions of the Bolsheviki to the bourgeoisie in 1921, when these same ruthless Bolsheviki were compelled to introduce the new economic policy. It now knows the value of the real relation of forces which, among others consists in the international bourgeois environment of the first Soviet country. It has its new intelligenzia, educated for the most part in our educational establishments. It has learned to penetrate into the struggle of tendencies within our own party, it has learned to take advantage of Soviet legality.

It is a bourgeoisie which has passed through the fire of the greatest revolution; a bourgeoisie which understands how to bring about its alliance with the leaders of the international bourgeoisie. In one word, it is a bourgeoisie with a keen class-consciousness; an adaptable bourgeoisie, which has become more clever through the experiences of the revolution and better understands the importance of the workers' party and the currents within this party.

We must not disguise the fact: the social composition of our state apparatus is such, that an important part of the personnel of this apparatus must be considered as an agency of this new bourgeoisie. The same must be said regarding a certain section of the students and of the intelligenzia in general.

To demand from the Bolshevist Party in the years 1921 to 1924, in the period of transition, the before mentioned six points, means nothing less than to help, even if unwillingly, the new bourgeoisie.

Comrade Trotsky has taken a wrong turning. He wants to fight against the exaggerated "sectarianism" of the old Bolsheviki, which appears to him as "narrow-mindedness", and in reality he is fighting against the bases of Bolshevism. As a matter of fact, of course without wishing it, he is rendering the class enemy an invaluable service.

We ask the former and present followers of Comrade Trotsky, whether they are aware that every attack of Comrade Trotsky against the Bolshevik C. C. since 1921 has been hailed throughout the whole of the non-bolshevik camp with ever-increasing joy?

Marx has already said that one can express the feeling of the petty bourgeoisie without oneself being a small shop-keeper. Of course, Comrade Trotsky has the best intentions. But the way to hell is paved with good intentions. Comrade Trotsky must once and for all give up "saving" our party from alleged errors. He must understand and admit his own political errors, which for the greater part arise from the remants of his political ideology of the time from 1903 to 1917, when Comrade Trotsky was an open opponent of Bolshevism. He must cease from stirring up periodical "crises", with the regularity and the punctuality of a calendar, every year, and recently every six months. He must understand that nobody will succeed in crushing Leninism by force under Trotskyism. In one word, it must be understood that Bolshevism remains Bolshevism.

What is to be done? Split? Nonsense! There can be no talk of such a thing! Our party is more united than it ever was.

Disciplinary measures? That is also absurd! Nobody needs this; something else is necessary at present.

It is necessary that the party secure itself against a repetition of the "attacks" upon Leninism. Serious party guarantees are necessary that the decisions of the party shall be binding for Comrade Trotsky. The party is not a debating society, but a party, which moreover is in a very complicated situation. The slogan of the present day is:

And before all: enlightenment, enlightenment and again enlightenment!

Our party consists for the greater part of relatively new members. It is necessary that the party study the question of Leninism and Trotskyism. It is necessary that the party clearly see that here it is a question of two fundamentally different systems of tactics:

It is not merely a question of the past history of the party. It is here a question of two methods of dealing with present-day politics, which are closely connected with such cardinal questions as the question of the relation between the working class and the peasantry. And we cannot avoid thanking Comrade Trotsky that he has at any rate provided the party with a good opportunity of analysing a deviation from Leninism and, thinking more deeply into the fundamentals of Leninism.

Of course, the party must insist that party discipline is also binding for Comrade Trotsky; and we are convinced that the party will be able to insist on this. The more clearness there is in the party regarding the question of Leninism and of Trotskyism, the less ground there will be for such an attempt as Comrade Trotsky has undertaken. The less response there is in the party to this attempt, the less desire he will have to repeat it. And the response this time is very small. Comrade Trotsky has so changed the form of his "platform" that there is only room for one man upon it—Comrade Trotsky himself.

During the last discussion Comrade Trotsky declared the student youth to be the reliable "barometer". We did not agree with him then and we do not agree with him now. But it must be stated that even this, not entirely ideal, barometer has not responded this time as in recent years, which proves that the student youth do not wish to replace Leninism by Trotskyism.

The best means to hold Comrade Trotsky back from further errors, which will estrange him still further from Bolshevism, is for the whole party as one man to repudiate his deviation, and then we hope he will soon retrieve his errors.

It is to be hoped that Comrade Trotsky, when he perceives the harmfulness of this tendency and the unanimity of the party against his enormous errors, will turn back from his wrong path.

Comrade Lenin more than once formulated the "law" of the political evolution of Comrade Trotsky. If things are going well, Comrade Trotsky approaches the Bolshevist line; when things are going bad, then Comrade Trotsky inclines to the right. In order to keep him back from turning to the right, the ideological defense of the whole party is necessary.

The party will say its final word, and once again the premature hopes of the enemy will be disappointed. The Bolshevist party will receive a new and more powerful steeling, and true Leninism will become the ideological equipment of the whole party down to the last member.

The Anarchists and the Left Militants

By ROSA LUX.

THE first session of the Jewish Federated Anarchist Convention took place at the Forward building, with Yonofsky as the first speaker, who among others stated, "The masses are not interested in our (anarchist) activities, do not read our literature and do not come to our conventions." This was well known to the delegates and Yanofsky could safely have omitted this part of the speech. He continued as follows: "As anarchists, we do not oppose order and leadership, on the contrary, the way to achieve anarchism will be possible only thru the leadership of capable and trustworthy persons." But, he added, it is not the rank and file that can assume leadership, for that must come from "above" and not from "below."

To mention all his empty and high-sounding phrases is useless; the essence of his speech was, that it is the labor movement which offers the anarchists the most important and advantageous field to work in. Most of the delegates did not understand what he was driving at. Some were innocent, others were naive and therefore could not read between the lines of the treacherous speech delivered by Yanofsky. Especially the cloak of anarchistic idealism in which he tried to wrap himself was misleading. But those who were not as foxy and clever as Yanofsky and partly because they could not do otherwise, showed themselves in their true color which is yellow.

Some of the delegates felt they were misled and after listening for three days to hollow phrases of this kind began to protest vigorously against all this "speechifying." One for example, asked: "Will this convention concern itself with the problem of working class conditions? It does not seem so to me for no one as yet has mentioned a word about the miserable lot of the workers." He pointed out, "The labor leaders are not interested in the life the workers are compelled to lead, therefore it is up to us to take matters in our own hands." This delegate was looked upon as a "left," and consequently as a dangerous element. The chairman, on some technical ground or other cut him short and prevented him from concluding his remarks.

But when Mr. Loy, the former manager of Local 2 of the I. L. G. W. U., took the floor not as a delegate, but as a mere visitor only he was given the privilege to speak as long as he pleased. He was, of course, in agreement with the policy of the corrupt union officials and labor fakers, and also with the officers of the anarchist federation. He stated, "The rank and file members are not capable of taking care of their own affairs, they must entrust the leadership to the officialdom."

Another delegate rose and criticised the Freie Arbeiter Stimme. He had proofs that the above mentioned paper, "does not represent the working class, especially during strikes does it ignore the battle field of the workers. It ignores the class struggle altogether."

This critical delegate was the subject of a vicious attack by the representative of the Freie Arbeiter Stimme. He spoke heatedly and among other things said, "We have noticed long ago that this delegate has a 'touch' of 'leftism.'" But he did not have the audacity to deny the facts, he could only say, "Such matters are not supposed to be brot up at a convention." Then he attacked the delegate who was in favor that the workers shall look after their own affairs and was therefore considered a real left. He gave this excellent "educational" advice to the ignorant workers by stating, "It is not for workers to participate in union affairs; to do so one must graduate first from Brookwood College.". His attitude was like an open book which everyone could read. It was evident that the Freie Arbeiter Stimme is supported largely by bureaucratic union officials, especially by those of the I. L. G. W. U.

Yanofsky, the former editor of the Freie Arbeiter Stimme, is today editor of Justice, the official organ of the I. L. G. W. U. Thus they all work hand in hand to betray the workers in every way.

To sum up the convention in brief one can say that it consisted of the adoption of a meaningless "resolution." This "resolution" contained the usual formal praises of the officials and their organ, stated vaguely as to the future growth of the federation and in a hidden manner attacked the left elements. Absolutely nothing of a constructive nature was recommended to this convention. Some one suggested that those who want the floor should speak on the resolution only. "That is exactly what I want to do," replied a delegate and he began there and then in the following manner: "This resolution is a meaningless scrap of paper; it does not contain anything that we can accept or reject; it would mean to accept nothing or reject nothing."

This convention had some purpose though, and the careful observer was able to recognize the agents of the "labor" wing of American imperialism, who were making a bold pretence of representing the anarchist ideal.

It was the militant workers or the "lefts" and progressives who realise that the well paid leaders and officials cannot represent the interests of the workers. The corrupt leaders on the other hand are aware of the fact that labor all over the world is awakening. This awakening they try to prevent. The main purpose of this convention was to propagandise the workers so that they do not turn "left."

As to the definition of leftism, we need no go into details, for the representative of the Freie Arbeiter Stimme made it clear to us that those who were critical minded were the ones who turned left.

But who are the lefts and what do they want? Why are all reactionary union officials and the anarchists so much against them? It is the left and militant workers who favor the new type of organization, the shop-delegate system, who tries to infuse new life into demoralized trade unions, which are ideologically bankrupt, organizationally stagnant. The lefts cannot expect that someone besides themselves will bring about the liberation of the workers, the militants alone are determined to take the inititative for their emancipation. This the anarchists were fully aware of, and hence stifled every and any attempt on the part of the few militants in their ranks to give expression to the cause of the working class.

Slowly but surely does the militant worker realise who are his enemies. And he discovered that among the greatest are the leaders of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and their allies and lackeys, the leaders of the anarchist federation.

What a Negro Says of Russia

WE print in full a letter from a Negro Communist to the Workers' Weekly, a London Communist paper. —Ed. Note.

Dear Comrade Campbell,—With the greatest pleasure and warm greetings, I am writing to you these few lines to say that there are many folks who would stand by your side always.

I want to express my wishes and desires fully and boldly, but I am not such a grand writer. But some day as the times go by, I might be able to address a few gatherings in our Communist fashion in some odd corner in the East End or Manchester.

I am a regular reader of the Workers' Weekly, which reaches us in our independent libraries, in all Russia, and everybody is eagerly wishing you great success in your endeavours to bring the working classes of all nationalities in the heart of the British Empire to learn who are their common enemies.

I am a born Communist, a negro from British Guiana. I was born in a lonely forest, but the English exploiters forced me to leave my home and country. Others who are not fortunate enough to run away must die under the yoke of the sugar planters, the rubber collectors, gold grabbers, and all sorts of foreign exploiters.

During the War

In the 1914 war, I refused to go to sea, and was contented with a job in Manchester, but they grabbed me by conscription to the army where I thought my career was ended, but I came back alive and damned poorer than I went in, with a pension for a week or so. I could not get an old or new job, and I visited every institute in England, from the lodging houses to the Poplar Farm Colony, touching the workhouse for a few weeks.

I was then promoted to Brixton prison, and when released, went to the colonial officer for a breakfast. He refused me one, and we had a fight, and I was recommended to the Bromley padded cells for examination. How I got rid of the asylum it is not easy to say, but I found myself in the railway riding to Cardiff, where I was put in prison for not paying for my ticket. Then they kept me for two weeks in Oxford (the prison not the college). I tramped to Gloucestershire and had to work a few days sawing timber, and go to church compulsory. Then I tramped to Cardiff without any money, and got to Barry Dock, where I managed to get on a Greek ship.

Heart's Desire

At last, with lots of other adventures, I came to Russia, and now I have found a home, and my heart's desire, and a working man's paradise.

No more to remember the Liverpool riot, where the coloured men were stoned to death with bricks in the River Mersey, swimming from an angry mob. But I was just sorry until tears came to my eyes, that the working class people who caused the riots follow still the very capitalists who brought the niggers for cheap labour during the war.

May Not Go Home

They will not allow Negroes who have lived in England to land in their respective native lands, for fear that they might preach propaganda, and open the eyes of their darker brethern, and there will be no one to plant rice and sugar, hunt for elephant tusks, dig gold, or gather monkey nuts.

I can remember when I was a soldier we landed at Cape Town from a troopship in order to embark in another for India. But they would not let us pay a visit to the museum, and they told us that the Zulus, Kaffirs, and the various tribes of our nation might us up.

But thanks to Russia, the famous Soviet Republic, for trying to bring the world's unity together, where all men and all tribes shall have peace and prosperity. Dear Comrade Campbell, I cannot express my feelings so fully, but you may judge I am one of your comrades, and a true Russian black bolshievickoo; and the quicker England does away with capitalism the better the world will be, with peace and unity.—Yours fraternally, M. K. (Kerson, Russia).

(P. S.—Long live the Red International and the Soviet Republics!)

To the Teachers of the World!

Comrades, Colleagues!

THE Congress of the Teachers' International which was held at Brussels is now over. We have consolidated our organization and have become clear as regards the way which lies before us.

We now send out to you the appeal: Join your national Teachers' Trade Union organisations!

See to it that your organisations affiliate to our Internationale des travailleurs de l'Enseignement (International of Educational Workers) the only Teachers' International Trade Union organisation in the world!

Is it necessary for us again to say why this joining of forces is necessary and will become more so with every day?

In all countries we teachers are experiencing more and more the pressure upon us, upon the youth and upon the school, of international combined capital, which rules the world according to its will and is now endeavouring, by means of the Dawes Plan and of the London pact, to convert the world into a gigantic trust for the exploitation of all workers. Against this international power it is necessary to set up an international organisation for the maintenance and improvement of our material and social position.

We are an autonomous organisation, independent of the two trade union centres of Amsterdam and Moscow. We are autonomous because the conditions in the international labor movement still compel us to be so. We wish nothing better—and we will fight for it, not only by our example—than the setting up the unity of the international trade union movement.

But in spite of this independence, our International is not lacking a firm ideological basis. As teachers of the people and as employees, we see our natural allies in the organised working class, which fights as a class against exploitation and suppression and for the socialist order of society. Only prejudice and the intrigues of the ruling class separate us today from these our fellow class-fighters.

Our patience does not extend so far that we accept in our international organisation those who reject the class struggle: for then we should be incapable of fighting both as a trade union and as pioneers for a new ideal of school and education.

The main pillars of our international were set up in 1922. Today ten countries are affiliated to us, comprising about 600,000 teachers. We ask the comrades of those teachers' organizations who are still waiting for instructions from the Amsterdam Trade Union International: How long will you stand aside?

Where is there room for another International beside us?

What basis shall it have if not ours?

But there is a place for you in our ranks:

Follow the example of the Belgian comrades, who have broken the ban!

Show that the teachers are capable of creating the International which is desired by all workers, and which is absolutely necessary for the prosecution of class struggle!

Show that it is possible to combine organisations which are affiliated by their national centers either to the I. T. U. F. or to the R. I. L. U. in one united organisation.

Comrades, Colleagues!

Recognize the dangers which threaten you from the forces of capitalism and of reaction! Join us and strengthen the front of the fighting teachers and workers!

Long live the Teachers' International labor movement!

Long live the International of the Educational Workers!

The International of the Educational Workers.

Purcell Replies to Abramovich

By MAX BEDACHT.

RAFAEL ABRAMOVICH, the menshevik emissary, who is at present rehashing all the old lies about Soviet Russia in order to show the dangers of American recognition of Soviet Russia, has as one of his pet subjects the "Bolshevik outrage" committed in Georgia.

He pictures the Georgian workers and peasants as ardent adherents of the menshevik brand of socialism, for which the Georgian masses are persecuted by the Bolshevist authorities. A regime of blood and iron alone can keep the workers and peasants of the Soviet Republic of Georgia from overthrowing the Bolshevist yoke and embracing the blessings of menshevist rule for English oil capital.

Altho these lies have been dealt with repeatedly we take them up again and again. The paid scribes and socialist mercenaries of capitalism, such as Abramovich, insist on rehashing old lies in the hope of reaching a new audience that has not yet been made immune against their poison by a knowledge of the truth.

To meet these campaigns we have no choice but must repeat again and again that the "reports" of Abramovich and his menshevist disciples are poisoned arrows directed against the first workers' and peasants' government; that these reports are no less damnable attacks on the existence of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics than the poisoned bullet was, that a disciple of the Abramoviches fired into the body of Lenin in the Soviet Republic's darkest hour.

As against the lies of the Abramoviches it is interesting to learn what unbiased observers have to say about the Soviet Republic of Georgia.

At the session of the Enlarged Trade Union Council of Georgia, held on Dec. 2, last year, Comrade A. A. Purcell, on behalf of the English trade union delegation in Georgia, conveyed the fraternal greetings of the English proletariat and said:

"It is our task to annihiliate that abominable campaign of lies against the Soviet Union and that net of lies which entangles the working class of the whole world. The working class demands a final solution of the question of the unity of the labor movement. I believe that the self-sacrifice, the discipline and the steadfastness of the working class of the Soviet Union will help to realize this unity in order to conduct the fight against world capitalism with united forces."

Comrade Ben Tillet declared:

"When the delegation set out for Georgia, some of my nearest friends said that Georgia at present presents a picture of anarchy and murder, that 500,000 members of the Red Army are suppressing the liberty of Georgia threatening women and children with the bayonet, and that as a result al Georgia is seething with discontent.

"After having become acquainted with the situation in Georgia on the spot, we became convinced that the bourgeois lies emanate from white guardist sources.

"For Curzon and Churchill the Russian revolution is an outrage. They represent the Bolsheviki as brute beasts. But we found them to be human beings. Instead of the 'nationalization of women,' we find that nowhere is the woman so protected and nowhere does she enjoy such rights as in the Soviet Union. The Russian proletariat is engaged in such a work of reconstruction as we have never been able to find outside the frontiers of the Red republics. The Russian trade union movement is full of life and energy. The great solidarity upon which your work is based will conquer the whole world."

On Dec. 3, the English tsade union delegation had an interview with a group of former mensheviki, among them being: Farinv, Ruchadez, and Dzamanashvilli.

The members of the delegation questioned them regarding the cause of their leaving the menshevik party. To the question of Comrade Bromley as to who had promised them support from abroad, Dzamanashvilli replied; "MacDonald, Snowden, Tom Shaw, Vandervelde and others in 1920, and afterwards." Thereupon Bromley declared:

"Neither MacDonald, nor Snowden nor Shaw were representatives of the English workers, they were representatives of the Second International. Therefore the English workers cannot accept any responsibity for what they said. We, however, are the representatives of these workers, representatives of their trade unions, and declare that we are for supporting the Soviet power."

To the question of Comrade Purcelh Farinev replied that in 1920 the Georgian mensheviki paid their last membership contribution to the Second International. In 1918, Zeretelli and two other mensheviki were elected as representatives to the Second International. It is clear that their mandates have long since expired. Jordania was only sent to the league of nations by a small group of members of the central committee.

The English comrades still showed interest for a number of economic and political questions. The interview made a profound impression upon the delegation. Bromley declared:

"I bow to your courage. You have perceived your errors and have courageously and honestly come over to the side of the working class."

After his departure from Georgia, Purcell sent the following telegram to the Tiflis paper, Sarja Wostoka (The Dawn of the East):

"We are tremendously sorry to have to leave Georgia, but at the same time we greatly rejoice that we are able to express our exceedingly great and enthusiastic satisfaction over the Soviet discipline and over the great devotion of the population to Soviet Georgia which we have witnessed. The efforts of Soviet Georgia for economic reconstruction testify to a profound belief in the final victory of the Soviet system. The result of these efforts also proves the great capability of the working class to administer the state, when it has succeeded in capturing state power.

"With fraternal greeting in the name of the delegation,

"A. A. Purcell,
"Chairman of the Delegation."

As against the fictitious fabrications of the Abramoviches, concocted in Paris, London and Berlin, here is the testimony of non-bolshevist representatives of the English workers, who investigated the conditions in Georgia not in London, but in the Soviet Republic of Georgia itself. Their testimony belies statements of Abramovich. The American workers will let Abramovich know what they think of him and the likes of him.

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note:—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

THE NEW BIG INITIATIVE.

THE delegates had come to the conference from all parts of Russia; from sunny Georgia with its eternal summer, from far-off Siberia, from the Caucasus, from the Ural and Taschkent,—over 300 men, the representatives of 50,000 workers' and village correspondents.

"Last year only a few dozen were assembled here," said Maria Illynitchna in her speech of welcome.

And comrade Katayama, as if he wished to continue her line of thought, added in the name of the young revolutionary journalists of Japan: "You indicate the way and we follow."

Comrade Hesse, the representative of the C. P. of Germany hastened to rejoice our workers' correspondents with the successes of their brothers in this time of black social democratic reaction.

"I am glad to be able to inform you," he said, "that we already possess 600 factory nuclei which already issue a kind of wall newspaper; with us, however, they are newspapers which are passed from hand to hand."

All speeches of welcome were short but they came from sincere and warm hearts and were full of revolutionary zeal, full of fighting spirit, full of profound belief in victory. They all form to a certain extent a continuous record of the past days, of the days of struggle and of the strengthening of the proletariat, and with the revolutionary Pravda. It seems as if there would be no end to the greetings and congratulations—from the capital city up to the farthest corner of Russia, from Germany, Japan, France, England, from the east and the west, they are all endeared to the proletarian Pravda of Lenin.

A pile of letters—a heap of presents which have been lovingly fashioned by the workers in the various factories and workshops in their leisure hours.

The conference of the workers and village correspondents which was convened by the Pravda undoubtedly constitutes a very important stage in the development of the workers and village correspondents movement. A whole year has elapsed since the first conference. But in this year the movement has grown and has obtained a sure and firm foothold. It has created the basis of its organization, attained international importance and found a response in a whole number of countries.

There has not only begun an exchange of information between our workers and their comrades abroad, some parties are already following our footsteps.

In this way the movement is already capturing international positions."

The experiences of a whole year have, before all, fully and completely justified the attitude of the first conference regarding organizatory questions. The non-binding character of the decisions, the fact that the correspondents must not be elected or appointed, the non-recognition of the correspondents, the peculiarity of the organizatory form as the best guarantee against officialism and bureaucracy—all these principles have stood the severe test of practice.

The conference has now continued the line laid down: organizatory connection with the newspapers, leadership of the workers' correspondents movement by the party newspapers and by the editors; immediate specific party political education (history of the party, program and statutes, tactics, Leninism, etc.); exact definition of the functions of party political work, and of the work by the newspapers; detailing of the organizatory mutual relations in the direction indicated by the first conference.

The situation is different with the village correspondents. Here the first steps have yet to be taken. All the participants in the conference, all comrades have thoroughly understood what enormous and general political importance the village correspondents will have in the future. All have recognized the general political importance of the problem at the present moment. And therefore they have proceeded with such deliberation and such caution to the laying of foundation stones for the village correspondents' organization.

Beside the question of the workers, the village and the army correspondents, the question of the youth correspondents was also dealt with. The new form of organization, which has proved itself to be sufficiently elastic in order to serve new cultural aims, is proceeding to victory.

The I. W. W.'s Highest Official--Pro Tem!

By HARRISON GEORGE

IT is said, and it is probably true, that "It takes all kinds of people to make a world." But that appears to be no good reason for the 16th general convention of the I. W. W. having picked out a poor fish to be the general secretary-treasurer pro tempore of the organization.

Unless, of course (and I have some suspicion that 'tis true), the fellow workers who placed him in the seats of the mighty, expected that said poor fish would, in his anxiety to make the most of his little "brief authority," swell up with a desire to hear himself talk as the REAL THING IN WISE GUYS, and, naturally, while talking, expose to all the world that he has too little sense to advise the workers to come in out of the rain, and a confused idea of utopian dogmas which he grandiosely imagines is a revolutionary theory.

Expectation Realized

If the fellow workers expected this, they were not mistaken, nor disappointed. The poor fish has not ceased to be a poor fish because he became a big fish, and in a lecture upon the subject of "Dictatorship or Liberation" recently reviewed in the DAILY WORKER, completely expose his theoretical nakedness.

This horrible example of anarcho-syndicalism is probably wholly unaware that he made a fool of himself and doubtlessly thinks that his evasion of logical points, his distortion of both the facts and the theories of the Russian revolution, and his pompous fulminations agains "politicians," served well enough as a substitute of sense, proletarian truth and a desire to clarify and inform. But there were many good wobblies in the audience who were not so sure of that, in fact some say so.

For the benefit of those who could not attend the painful affair, and as a faithful characterization of what anarcho-syndicalist ideas are, whoever speaks them and whenever or wherever they are spoken, I have translated from the official organ of Local No. 1, of the Carpenters' and Helpers' Union of the Railway Workers' Confederation of Mexico, the following dialogue between a syndicalist and a sensible worker.

The Muddle-Head International

Some will cavil, I presume, that a "foreign" argument should be brought in to explain the lecture at the I. W. W. forum in Chicago on "Dictatorship or Liberation," but anarcho-syndicalist theory is the same the world over and foolishness is foolishness regardless of geography. There is, it will be seen, an internationalism even among muddle-heads. And as this little dialogue illuminates so precisely the foolish arguments of the lecture against dictatorship, which took no account of what class may hold the dictatorship, I give it to the reader with the explanation that opens with the sensible worker asking the syndicalis the following question:

"So, then, you are a syndicalist, and a libertarian?

"Exactly.

"Both at once or successively?

"Both at once.

"And how is that possible?

"Simply. That explains itself: I am a syndicalist because all power must go to the unions; I am a libertarian because I am against all power. It is very clear.

"Do you think so? I, on the contrary, have to confess that I have understood nothing.

"Because you lack intelligence. Ah, if you were only capable of understanding individualized unionism! . . .

"Really, that is too much for my poor intelligence. But let us return to libertarian syndicalism, that, now, is very hard . . .

"No, it is very simple. I am against dictatorship, it matters not of what party. I think that syndicalism or unionism is enough of itself.

"Let us . . . Let us see . . . Each time I comprehend less.

"How so? Are you a dumbbell?

"Perhaps . . . We are just going to see . . . Meanwhile, answer me this question: Are you with the revolution?

"Surely! Do you doubt it?

"By no means. But, what would this revolution consist of?

"The suppression of the wage system, of the bosses and of the state.

"Very good. And who will suppress all that?

"We, the workers, the unions.

"Perfectly. And while all that is going on, the bourgeoisie will, doubtless, be reading the "Arabian Nights?"

"They will exist, naturally. But we are not cripples, and they will have somebody to deal with them. . . .

"Very good. And who will direct the action against them?

"The unions, that is clear.

"Perfectly. That is to say that the unions will then exercise the power?

"Just as I said before—'All power to the unions.' Don't you hear me, then, when I speak?

"I hear all I am able. And from as much as I hear, it appears to me that I heard you say that you were against all power . . .

"That's a tough head you have. I am against all po-lit-i-cal power, because I am against all politics, against the tricky politicians. But the power of the unions means e-co-no-mic power. Do you begin to understand?

"All that you tell me I understand! . . . And what would you do with the bourgeoisie, who will murder your fellow workers and try to hang you all?

"What a question! We will have them forget the taste of bread.

"And what do you call that? Is that not politics?

"It is revolution!

"There is nothing better than to first understand the meaning of words. And while you will be beating the dirt out of the bourgeoisie, will not your position be—pardon my gall—a dictatorship?

"Nothing of the kind. That will be direct action!

"Fine! After all we are . . . almost . . . agreed. But I am one who yet does not dominate the vocabulary and I do not know the value of words . . .

"By no means do we agree, because you want a dictatorship of a minority over a majority. While we want the contrary.

"We are going to see about that shortly.

"It is seen already.

"One moment. How many are there of you syndicalists?

"Somewhere around 30,000. When we get all the other organized workers to leave their unions and come to us, we would have three or four million. But, naturally, when the proletariat understands better, we will be more numerous. There are twenty millions of wage workers in this country. A day will come when these workers understand their rights better, and that day . . .

"Meanwhile, you will not expect that all the workers will be organized in unions in order to make the revolution?

"Of course not. With a good active minority . . .

"You admit, then, that for a long time yet, the unions will embrace but a minority of the workers?

"There are so many ignorant, egoistic, servile and cowardly workers! . . .

"Agreed. But, now you are advocating a dictatorship of a minority of organized workers over a majority of unorganized, and over all the unorganizable: small farmers, petty bourgeoisie . . .

"It isn't possible to work any other way! Whose fault is it if . . . ?

"Certainly. But you are an advocate of the dictatorship of a minority. However, you were saying just the opposite a minute ago.

"At least that minority is formed of a majority of class conscious producers . . .

"One minute . . . Suppose you take a union of one hundred members which has to make an important decision. General assembly. In the voting, there are fifty votes in favor, forty-nine opposed and one abstension. Which opinion has the force of law?

"The one of the fifty, naturally.

"And why will those fifty impose their will on the forty-nine?

"Well . . . because . . . there has to be a majority that decides. How would you want it . . .

"I want nothing. I am only proving that you are an advocate, not only of the dictatorship of a minority, but also of a fraction of that minority.

"But is there any other way of . . . ?

"And that consequently you arrive in some cases to delivering dictatorship to only one man, whose vote may swing the balance to one side or another, according . . .

"But, what do you propose, then?

"I propose nothing. I am asking questions. And I am not finished with that, yet. Suppose that among the hundred organized workers, the result of the vote might be as follows: forty in favor, thirty-nine opposed, and twenty-one abstensions. Which makes the effective decision?

"Naturally, the forty.

"That is to say, the minority of the minority. You are, then, an advocate of the dictatorship of the minority of the minority!

"The twenty-one have no right to abstain. What kind of poor dubbs are those who abstain in the present moment, that is, the moment of decisions! . . .

"I don't deny that. But listen to two words more. Suppose the hundred might all be decided, resolved. Only we must admit that many times there are not only two opinions present. There may be, and let us suppose there are, three. Then the vote gives some result like: thirty-five in favor of one proposal, thirty-three in favor of another, and thirty-two in favor of a third. Which opinion prevails?

"That of the thirty-five, evidently.

"However, those who oppose that opinion number sixty-five . . . And you impose upon them the will of the other thirty-five . . .

"They can do nothing else but agree! Well, it needs somebody to decide!

"All right. But—pardon my gall—I note that you are for a dictatorship of a minority.

"Well, what of it?

"You have poor reason to say—'Well, what of it?'—because a little while ago you were condemning the dictatorship of a party, of a minority, even of a majority. And now! . . .

"You make me tired!

"How so? How so?

"And I'm going to bust your nose!

"Go easy, go easy, friend . . . Don't forget that you are a libertarian! . . .

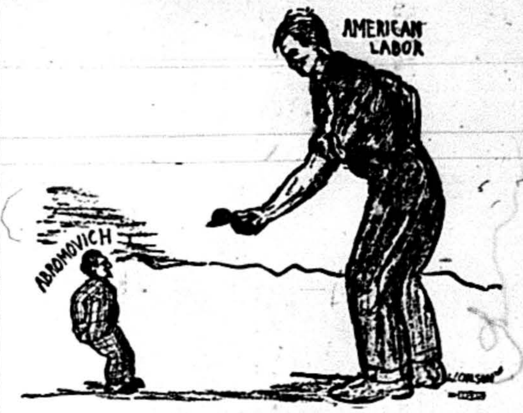
HERE'S YOUR HAT



What's Your Hurry?

LENIN.

By Freda Ellman, Age 12.

This is to every reader,
About our dead beloyed leader,
Lenin! who for all the workers fought
Oh! beloved one you have not died for naught.

Lenin! your duty you have done;
Some day our victory shall be won
Let us get our enemies even with a rope
The world victery is our best hope.

A dear and brave leader was he,
This every Junior worker can see,
Your name in the workers' history shall run
And our victory some day will be won.

From a Fellow Worker.

My dear Comrades: I am not a subscriber of the DAILY WORKER, but I read it every day.

As soon as spring comes, I am going from house to house and get customers for the DAILY WORKER, and I hope all the other young comrades and Juniors will do the same thing. I am only ten years old, and I hope you comrades will find a little space for these few words in the DAILY WORKER. On January 19 I read the Communist Children's Column about Johnny and Billie. Hurrah for you; Johnny! You did good work on capitalist Billie!

My father received some kind of a membership card from the DAILY WORKER. My father is a member of the I. W. W., too.

On November 4 my father was put in jail. I will never forget the time when they came into the house after him and handcuffed him and with the handcuffs on his arms lead him thru the streets.

Yours fraternally,
Rudolph Bronesky,
Chicago, Ill.

I forget something. My father is out of jail now. The Industrial Fellow Workers got him out. R. B.

THRIFTY France refuses to return the rajah's aid to London on an extradition warrant. You don't know who the rajah is. Well, well, how forgetful people are! The rajah, of some place or other in India, but very rich was the victim of an amorous plot conceived, hatched and executed by an attractive female with the aid of her [illegible] husband. When the rajah [illegible] he was entirely surrounded by [illegible], the door burst open, the husband appeared, the lady screamed and said in the time honored way to the rajah: "You big brute, etc." Business of producing check book to soothe wounded pride of irate husband.

NOW, this rajah had an aid de camp, who, instead of siding the rajah, aided the blackmailers in separating the Hindoo prince from $700,000. When the blackmailers were placed on trial in London and the rajah was dragged into the limelight the British government insisted that the rajah should be known as "Mr. A." The British feared the effect of the scandal on its loyal subjects in India. Getting back to Captain Arthur. He is an Irishman, and recollecting that Ireland was now more or less independent, threw himself on the protection of the Free State and informed France to that effect.

HE did not want to be extradited to England. It happens that at this moment France needs cash very badly and her creditors are parked on her doorstep. AN army lecturer gloats over the various kinds of poison gas available for the next capitalist slaughter feast. There are many kinds, some so deadly that even a few whiffs of it would destroy whole armies. Unfortunately, however, it is impossible to manufacture this extremely deadly gas in large quanitities. Pehaps if the militant preachers of the church prayed patriotically to their God, he would perform the necessary miracle and permit the nation with the most dollars to manufacture the ideal gas. The workers can rest assured however that their demise will be nicely arranged for, tho it is a shame they must depend on mustard gas which is not near so deadly as others. But then, there are explosive shells, dum dum bullets, liquid fire and other refinements of civilization. Yes, and lots of preachers to sign your credentials on your way to the great beyond. If the capitalists do not sit up nights worrying about providing us with the means of existence they don't miss anything in their efforts to look after our exit.

A HOBOKEN butcher recently celebrated his 105th birthday. When such an event takes place it is customary for reporters and dieticians to inquire of the victor in the struggle against the grim reaper how he did it. Sometimes one of these tough customers, as if they were on the payroll of a physical culture or "health" school spins a yarn of life devoted to good works, plenty of exercise and abstention from spirituous liquors, indulgence in tobacco and polygamy. But the Hoboken butcher was an old sinner and gave as the reason for his immortality, the fact that he always did the opposite of what his doctor advised him. When told to quit smoking on penalty of death, he selected a stronger brand of tobacco.

British Minister Lies to Russian Envoy

That a fresh military attack against Soviet Russia is in the course of preparation, is the view of the diplomatic correspondent of the London Daily Herald.

According to the Herald, Wrangel's troops, now in Bulgaria, are being reorganized and equipped for a fresh assault on the Soviet government in the spring.

That an attempt to organise such an attack is contemplated, can be gathered from the recent flock of counter-revolutionists who have arrived in America. These include the wives of white guard generals as well as the notorious yellow socialist Abramovich. The object of the aristocratic visitors is to raise funds for the white forces, while the yellow socialists aim to poison the minds of the American workers against the Soviet regime.

At the same time Emma Goldman is given columns of publicity in the London press, for her tirades against the workers' government. The effusions of this parasite are cabled to America, from which she was deported a few years ago.

The following article throws light on the part played by British diplomacy in the new combination designed to [illegible] the workers' and [illegible]

[illegible] definite.

It seems now beyond doubt that the two governments had agreed to allow and assist the formation of two Wrangel armies—one in each country. They will be under the control of their own officers. General Wrangel himself will command in Serbia. General Skogro in Bulgaria. The headquarters will probably be at Pirot.

In Russian "white" circles here, in Paris, and in Berlin, no secret is made of the belief that these new armies are destined to take part in an attack on Soviet Russia in the spring. April or May is mentioned as the month in which operations are to begin.

Reported British Moves.

That in itself is serious enough. But even more serious for us is the persistent report that British diplomacy has played, and is still playing, an active part in this new war intrigue.

It is said that it was at the instance of Great Britain that the Serb

PREMIER CAB CO. ORGANIZES FOR KU KLUX KLAN

Letter to Its Employes Says Join or Quit

The officials of the Premier Cab company, which is technically a union taxi-cab concern, are members of the ku klux klan and are making a drive to force every employe to either join the klan or lose his job, letters sent to employes of the company admit.

The letter, which are unsigned, with the sentence, "This letter is to be regarded as strictly confidential," typed across the bottom, are presumably sent out by officials of the Premier company. They are dated Indianapolis, Indiana, where the national headquarters of the company is located. The letters declare that "niggers, foreigners, catholics and jews will not be employed by the company." They urge the employes to join the klan threatening to dismiss all employes who do not comply.

The letter, a copy which was brought in to the DAILY WORKER by an employe of the Premier Cab company, states in full:—

IT COSTS TWO CENTS TO PRODUCE A LOAF OF BREAD FOR SALE

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 1.—Bread has been selling at two cents a loaf in a part of Boston. It is baked at Fort Strong and a sixteen-ounce loaf sells at the quartermaster's sales stores at two cents. This price, according to the quartermaster's department is what it costs to make the bread.

But—this not for the public. The bread is sold to members of the military, naval and coast guard services.

Besides this cheap cost of bread, potatoes are selling at 15 cents a peck. With an organized Soviet government we could make and sell bread for even less than this and everyone could get it.

WORKER BEATEN AND ARRESTED FOR UNION WORK

Organized Shoe Factory in Brooklyn

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Feb. 1.—Bernard Olenberg, a member of Branch 12 of the Young Workers [illegible] Shoe Co., 108 Clifton [illegible] up, and arrested for trying to organize the shop. He is now under $[illegible] bail.

Olenberg joined the Protective Shoe Workers' Union, and tried to get the rest of the workers in the shop to join. Somehow the foreman of the shop caught wind of this and informed Olenberg that he was fired.

When he asked for explanation the foreman began to abuse, him. Olenberg as a militant naturally would not allow himself to be bulldozed, and answered back. At this point the foreman, knowing that he had the "law" and "order" of the city to protect him, began to beat Olenberg. But Olenberg proved too much for the bosses tool, and the foreman did not get the best of it. The foreman naturally fell back on the "representative of law and order" and called a policeman who arrested Olenberg.

The campaign to organize the shop will now be carried on with redoubled activity, and what is more as a result of the action of the foreman, many of the young workers have had a chance to see the whole system of capitalist exploitation in all its nakedness, and will not be fooled any longer by the sweet phrases of capitalist "democracy."

The Y. W. L. will have a good shop nuclei in this factory in a shortime, Olenberg stated, as the League is at present very popular among the young workers, who saw the League member in action.

FIRETRAP TAKES SIX LIVES; CITY LAWS ARE JOKE

Reveals Housing Plight of Chicago Workers

The six members of working-class families who died in the firetrap blaze at 5830 Blackstone Ave., were sacrificed to the greed of the landlord and the neglect of the administration of Mayor Dever to take care for the lives of Chicago's working people.

The loss of life in the blaze is the latest example of deaths of workers all over the country in firetraps that violate city, state and national fire laws.

Law Violated.

The back doors were locked, in violation of the law, questioning prior to the inquest that begins this morning revealed. There was only a thin ladder fire escape in the front, no fire escape being supplied in the rear. After the fire started, the occupants of the overcrowded house choked the fire escape and six died before they could force their way out of the bilding.

Thirty-two Years Old.

The wooden interior, dried for thirty-two years, was so much tinder acting fire chief, Marshal Seyferlich stated. The building was erected in 1893, during the [illegible] [illegible] It was also found by [illegible] [illegible] violation of the law. "Lack of proper fire escapes made the building a death trap" Seyferlich said.

City Neglects Inspection.

No inspection of the building had been made by the city fire inspectors for four years, and buildings commissioner, Frank Doherty, frankly admitted that the city is not safeguarding the lives of the millions of Chicago's workers.

The fire inspection in this city is wholly inadequate he admitted. Doherty tried to lay the blame to the city council saying, "We have only twenty inspectors to cover the entire city. We recently warned the city council of the danger of attempting to make inspection with this small force and asked for 50 more men, but were refused."

Dever Does Nothing.

Mayor Dever has promised the usual "investigation," but it is being recalled that only a few months ago a fire on Blue Island Ave. snuffed out the lives of ten men, and altho an investigation was conducted at that time no action was taken.

Today, as always, hundreds of thousands of Chicago's workers, forced to live in the worst of tenements because of their small wages, are constantly in danger of a fiery death because the over lords of the city care nothing for the safety, comfort or lives of the workers of this city.

Had No Chance.

CAMPAIGN, BEGUN BY COMMUNIST UNIONS, TO RAISE PAY OF ALL WORKERS, STIRS FRENCH NATION

By CARL BRANNIN

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, Jan. 21 (By Mail.)—After a long and bitterly contested struggle of more than six weeks the sardine cannery workers at Douarnenez on the coast of Brittany have their wage increase of 25 per cent. The women return to work without any discrimination against the strikers. For night work they will receive double pay. The gain secured brings wages up to about 5.2 cents an hour or 52 cents for a day of 10 hours.

The men relatives of the women cannery workers have gone back to their boats. Practically no fish were brought in during the strike. A gang of French fascists brought by the bosses from Paris provoked a quarrel with men of the village and shot six of them. Thus far no arrests have been made for this crime.

Communist Mayor Active.

The mayor of the village gave every support to the workers even to granting relief funds. He was suspended from office by the government authorities. Then he threw himself actively into the leadership of the strike. Workers of Paris contributed funds.

This contest suggests the problem of inadequate wages and high prices facing the French worker. The average wage for a skilled railway worker (the best organised group) is $1.10 to $1.35 per day. Some highly skilled piece workers in automobile factories make as high as $1.65 a day of 8 hours but the average for all workers is 82½c to $1.10 a day. Bank clerks and employes in insurance offices get about $30 a month.

Eight Hours On Paper

The 8-hour day is provided by law but seldom enforced, since 9, 10 and longer hours are required to provide a bare living at the current rate of wages, with food and clothing high in price. Bread is 6½c a pound, sugar 7¾c, pork chops 35c, steak 55c, mutton 42c a pound, work shoes $2.35 a pair.

Rents are kept down by regulation and are relatively low, but the congention is very bad. The average bedroom is used by several people. The cost of living is not fluctuating much.

One of the last acts of the chamber of deputies and the senate before adjournment late in December was an amnesty bill permitting a large number of political exiles to return to the country. Communists in the chamber attempted unsucessfully to have the bill provide for the restoration of jobs to railwaymen who took part in the strike of 1920.

Since the recent roundup and deportation of radical foreigners by the Herriot government there is considerable agitation in the capitalist press

FIRST TEXTILE STRIKE ARREST MADE AS STRIKES CLOSE MILLS

(By The Federated Press)

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 1.—The first arrest of a striker in the fight of the fine goods weavers and loom fixers of the Lincoln, Davol and Barnard mills against recently announced wage cuts is that of Charles Sahad for "disturbing the peace."

Picketing strikers threw snowballs at automobiles carrying strikebreaking workers away from the Lincoln mill. The strike is in its third week and more than 700 workers are striking at the two Lincoln mills alone.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 1. — A shutdown of the Elizabeth mills is the result of the strike of 20 doffers. The cotton yarns plant employs 400 workers.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 1. — Weavers of the Dwight Manufacturing Co. in the Chicopee mill are striking against 10 per cent wage reductions affecting the entire plant. The factory, employing 1,200 workers, is closed as a result of the 150 weavers' action. A union organizer from New Bedford is reported on his way to organise the non-union weavers.

Farmer-Labor Group Enter Communist in Minneapolis Election

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 1.—At a meeting of the farmer-labor federation held January 27, L. A. Roseland, Communist, was endorsed as candidate for alderman of the tenth ward. The municipal election will be held in April of this year. Roseland will be running against George Guider, a reactionary, the present alderman.

WORLD DAWES PLAN TO CHAIN ALL EUROPE TO WALL STREET BEING DRAWN UP AT PARIS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Feb. 1.—An international Dawes plan to take care of allied debts is in prospect for Europe. The same experts who drafted the Dawes plan, whereby Germany is made into a colony of American imperialism, are likely to formulate the "Dawes Debt Program," according to Willis H. Booth, president of the international chamber of commerce and vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York.

One International Busy.

Action to formulate a Dawes' plan will be taken this summer, Booth says, and would be the outcome of negotiations which the international chamber of commerce is now carrying on, he said.

Lively comment in financial circles followed the newspaper announcement that Booth was in France on a semi-official debt mission.

Booth made clear that he had not been sent to France by the American government for the specific purpose of negotiating a settlement of the Franco-American debt.

Not Concerned With "Any Isolated Debt."

"The assumption in the newspapers that I am in Paris to negotiate the Franco-American debt is a regrettable mistake," said Booth. "I have absolutely no official mission here to perform. I am here only for the international chamber of commerce. The chamber will take up the entire inter-allied debt question as a whole, but I have no intention of entering into any discussion of any isolated

SYNDICALIST LAWS SCORED BY CHICAGO LABOR

Delegates Vote Against Resolutions Committee

The delegates to the Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday overruled the recommendation of the resolutions committee and almost unanimously reaffirmed the attitude of the federation towards the criminal syndicalist laws and the workers indicted and convicted under their provisions, including the Communists arrested by agents of the department of justice for attending a convention in Bridgeman, Michigan, in 1922.

The resolutions committee which is a creature of Fitzpatrick and Nockels recommended that a resolution from Local No. 337 of the International Association of Machinists be "received and filed." It protested against the action of the supreme court of the state of Michigan in upholding the conviction of C. E. Ruthenberg, urging opposition to the criminal syndicalist laws, which are directed against the entire labor movement and calling on the workers to demand pardon for Ruthenberg and his comrades who may be convicted later, in case the United States supreme court upholds the decision of the Michigan courts.

Shows Resolution Important.

HEAD OF KLAN SUED BY PITTSBURGH PAPER AS THIEVES FALL OUT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 1.—The Daily Dispatch Publishing company, owner of the New Daily Dispatch here, today filed suit in the United States district court against Sam D. Rich, head of the K. K. K. in Pennsylvania, for at least $620,000 for alleged breach of contract in connection with a stock selling arrangement concluded between the newspaper and Rich and damages suffered by the newspaper in connection with Rich's alleged breach of contract.

ENVOY SPEAKS OF MATERIAL FRENCH DEBTS

Little Matter of Four Billion Dollars

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The hope and expectation prevailed among administration officials today that France shortly will approach the United States with a definite, concrete proposition for the discharge of her $4,000,000,000 war debt.

No other interpretation, they said, could be placed on the first official statement made in this country by the new ambassador from France, Emile Daeschner. In this statement, made to President Coolidge in person, the ambassador said France was "deeply solicitous of paying her material debt."

The acuteness of the Franco-American debt controversy could hardly have been more strikingly illustrated for it is unusual, if not unprecedented, for an ambassador to refer thus pointedly to an existing diplomatic problem at the moment he is presenting his credentials.

France's "material debt" consists of slightly in excess of $4,000,000,000, representing $2,900,000,000 cash advanced by the United States treasury together with interest at the rate of 5 per cent for approximately seven years.

FORMER STOOL PIGEON IN POSE OF "TIRED RED"

Returns and Resumes His Dirty Work

By M. A. SKROMNY.

The Chicago Herald-Examiner is out to beat the "scoop" of the Chicago Daily News in running wild stories about Bolsheviks.

Yesterday's edition carried a full-page story of a stool-pigeon who is heralded as a "U. S. Soldier and University Graduate" who went to Russia as a convinced Communist but came back entirely disgusted with the Soviets.

Has a Stoolpigeon Record.

As a matter of fact this "gent" was acting as a stoolpigeon in the United States as far back as the middle of the summer of 1919.

At that time the Communist movement in the United States was in two groups—the Communist Party and the Communist Labor Party. The stoolpigeon, Morris Gordin, was active about the party headquarters on Blue Island avenue.

When Ludwig C. K. Martens, representative of the Soviet government in this country, proposed to a group of Chicago comrades to organize a Society of Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, a meeting was called for that purpose.

Queer Behavior at Meetings.

A representative of the Soviet bureau gave a report on the economic situation in Russia and urged the organization of a society for technical aid. Gordin, who was present, demanded the floor. He was granted the floor and at once launched itno an attack against Comrade Martens. "Why does Martens appoint spies to organize this society?" he cried. Another member of the Jewish Douglas Park branch, who was since expelled from the party, supported this attack. The chairman stopped them. They started a discussion, but the great majority of those present became so indignant that they drove the intruders off the stage. Later on the society was organized.

After the meeting was over some Russian workers who had been drafted into the army, came over to the chairman of the meeting and, pointing out Gordin, claimed that he was a stoolpigeon, and that, while they were in the army at Camp Grant, Gordin questioned them when they refused to serve because they were Russian citizens. The chairman who was at that time a member of the "C. L. P." at once started an investigation. Gordin claimed that he was acting only as a translator. The whole thing was dismissed as "a factional squabble." The members of the "C. L. P." were not satisfied and kept aloof from Gordin.

Figured in Raids.

In January, 1921, at the time of the Palmer raids, Gordin was also arrested but at the Cook county jail party members were warned to keep away from him. Almost all the arrested politicals shunned him. He was soon released.

His present "revelations" do not surprise those that knew him. He was not a Communist when he left, as he claims. He was and still is a stoolpigeon.

Fire Raging in Three Eastern Ohio Coal Mines

TORONTO, Ohio, Feb. 1.—A fire that has assumed serious proportions is raging in three connected mines of the Toronto Fire Clay company here today. The LaBelle mine rescue crew from Steubenville arrived here to fight the flames but were handicapped by roof falls.

Chicago Labor Hits Syndicalist Laws

several delegates were on their feet at once demanding the floor. The chair recognized Delegate Schussler, who delivered a telling speech that was listened to with close attention.

Schussler declared that the resolution was one of vital importange to the entire labor movement and not the Communists only. He felt that the capitalists were not going to confine the penalties of this law to the Communists but that they were designed for the trade union movement also. He appealed to the delegates not to allow their prejudices or their political differences to cloud their better judgment.

Against Any Recantation.

The central body he pointed out had previously gone on record against criminal syndicalism laws, and against the Michigan law in particular, and it would look rather strange for us to repudiate our former position. Would this mean that we had recanted in our opposition to the criminal syndicalist laws, he asked.

Schussler pointed out that the Structural Iron Workers in New York condemned the syndicalist laws and supported a resolution similar to the one proposed here today. The federation would be establishing a very dangerous precedent if it accepted the recommendation of the resolutions committee.

Delegate John C. Flora, a reactionary, but a cautious, "socialist" politician, then moved as an amendment that the C. F. of L. reaffirm its previous attitude on the syndicalist laws. He made it quite clear that he was doing this as a matter of political strategy, fearing that the rank and file would bombard the federation with resolutions if they repudited their former position.

"We cannot afford to let the Communists make monkeys out of us as they have done before," said Delegate Flora. He was opposed to syndicalist laws in general but it appears that he is as much opposed to the Communists as the department of justice and for the same reasons.

A delegate from Painters' Local No 637, said that the attack on the Communists was but a prelude to an attack on the entire labor movement. He also asked Fitzpatrick to state the previous attitude of the federal government towards the syndicalist laws.

Fitzpatrick seized this opportunity to deliver a brief tirade against the Communists, referring to them as "soldiers of fortune" and "adventurers." He said that the federation was opposed to the criminal syndicalist laws, and yet his committee took the cowardly position of hiding behind a "receive and file" recommendation rather than for or against.

Must Be S. L. P. Etc.

Then a delegate, who must be either a member of the socialist labor party or a reader of that party's official organ, delivered an attack on the DAILY WORKER for its statement on the death of Sam Gompers. He favored informing the Michigan supreme court that it made a mistake in upholding Ruthenberg's conviction, because it would give Ruthenberg an opportunity to pose as a martyr. His speech was almost word for word an editorial that appeared recently in the Weekly People on the same question. This reactionary, also felt that the federation would be in a bad position by repudiating its former policy. He hated the Communists so thoroly however that he would vote "no" on the amendment against his better judgment.

They Closed Debate.

A lively discussion appeared to be inevitable but these was too much talk of Communism and the inevitable delegate moved the previous question. Enough reactionaries rose to be counted for this motion. Only the Communist delegates and the genuine progressives voting against. The vote was approximately 80 to close debate and 29 for further discussion. The so-called progressives of the defunct farmer-labor party remained sitting. The amendment was then put to vote and carried overwhelmingly.

The business manager of the official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, reported that his paper was the best weekly in the United States and proved his point by pointing to his statement. This small weekly costs almost $4,000 a month to run it, despite the fact that it gets most of its news from the A. F. of L. press service free of charge.

Rival Grafters.

It was also stated that some other fake labor sheet was competing with the federation paper for graft from business men, holding them up for advertising and contributions for a tomb for Sam Gompers. The delegates did not take any action against the unnamed competitors, thinking perhaps that if a tomb is going to be built for Sam, the business men and not the workers should defray the cost. He served the former much better than the latter.

EIGHT SWITCHMEN HURT IN COLLISION DUE TO OBSOLETE EQUIPMENT

Eight switchmen were injured, two seriously, in an accident at the switching yard at Clearing, caused by the obsolete method used by the railroads in handling the freight cars.

The freight cars which are backed up one side of a hill are sent down the other side by gravity. The accident occurred when a freight, speeding down the hill, collided with a motor speeder which was climbing to the top of the hill. The switchmen, who were riding the cars to put on the brakes when the train neared the foot of the hill, were hurled from the cars by the collision.

debt, including the Franco-American debt."

Outlining what is being done, Booth said:

Owen D. Young Again at It.

"Owen Young, of New York, Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles, and most of the other Dawes' experts, including Pirelli, of Italy, Josiah Stamp of Great Britain and the French experts, are co-operating with the chamber in drawing up the preliminary plan. This draft provides a method of settlement for the international debts.

"At a meeting of the directors of the chamber Friday, the draft will be gone over and then referred to the chamber's economic restoration committee. This committee will meet within the next two weeks.

Plan Ready in April.

"We hope to have a definite, concrete plan by April. This plan then will be presented at the chamber's annual meeting at Brussels in June.

"Our plan will have the advantage of being drawn up with regard for economic principles and not influenced by politics."

Finance Minister Clementel of France, will have an active part in drafting the debt plan, Booth said.

"I will see M. Clementel frequently," he continued, "because Clementel was my predecessor as president of the international chamber of commerce. We probably will discuss the subject of international debts as affecting the economic situation of the world."

Everything in its Proper Time for America.

Booth was hailed cordially in front page interviews in Paris newspapers, which quoted him as saying America was in no hurry to collect the French debt.

"Let's not talk of inter-allied debts now. Americans have no intention of demanding money immediately from your country. Everything in its proper time," the American banker was quoted as saying.

"The most important question of the hour is Germany's ability to pay," the interviews continue. "We should first make Germany pay. Then we'll see."

The morning papers gave prominence to Booth's remarks.

But the American Gov't, Represents Booth.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Willis H. Booth, president of the international chamber of commerce, and vice-president of the Guaranty Trust company, does not represent the American government abroad, and his views anent the French debt are purely his own, and not the administration's, it was said here today, when attention of government officials was called to his interviews in the Paris press.

FORBES STOLE FROM HOSPITALS IS NEW CHARGE

The government spent over one million dollars in expenses securing the verdict of "guilty" against Charles Forbes, former head of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, and John W. Thompson, contractor, who conspired with Forbes to defraud the ex-soldiers out of millions of dollars compensation money.

Forbes still faces charges brought in an indictment at Baltimore. Forbes is charged with selling three millions dollars worth of hospital supplies to the firm of Thompson and Kelly of Boston for half a million dollars. Forbes sold these great quantities of hospital supplies while the ex-soldiers were suffering in badly equipped hospitals for lack of them. He represented the supplies as "used" in order to defraud the government and the ex-soldiers.

The trial in Baltimore had been set for this month, but may be postponed at the request of Forbes' counsel.

John W. Crim, special prosecutor selected by Coolidge, told the jury in summing up the government's case, "It is time to call a halt to skullduggery and rascality in Washington. O, the sins that the friends of Warren Harding visited on him," said Crim almost weeping. "O, that they had stayed away from Washington. O that he might be alive today to tell how he wad pued by his friends." Crim told how Mortimer, who was in league with Forbes in stealing money from the ex-soldiers, visited Harding in Marion in 1920.

"Mortimer moved among fixers and crooked employes of the government," Crim said.

BREAD PRICE UP, FARMS ASK AID, CAL IS SILENT

Gamblers' Millions Paid for by Workers

The price of bread went up in Chicago yesterday from one to three cents a loaf. Flour continues to increase in price, and bread is expected to go still higher as the result of speculation in the wheat market which has boosted May wheat to $2.00 per bushel on the Chicago board of trade.

The workers are paying for the millions of dollars in profits reaped by gamblers in wheat. As soon as the smaller bakeries run out of their old stocks of flour, they are advancing the price of bread.

While the wheat gamblers were making millions of dollars at the expense of the workers thru speculation, the farmers, who were forced to sell their wheat crop below the cost of production, were waiting to see what farm relief legislation would be passed by congress.

Coolidge Refuses Farm Aid.

Public hearing will begin today in the senate and house agricultural committees. The consideration of the recommendations of President Coolidge's agricultural commmision is now before these committees.

The recommendations were vague and indefinite, and even these recommendations, it is known, do not have Coolidge's support, as he has repeatedly declared it in violation of his campaign pledges that he will oppose any farme relief legislation.

Cal's Dope is Good.

Members of the house and senate declare that the "recommendation of Coolidge's commission fall short of proposing necessary farm relief." Rep. Jones, of Texas, declared that the report is, "one of hazy generalities." Senator Norris, chairman of the senate committee on agriculture, said that the report "does not go far enough in its recommendations." Several bills have been introduced providing for various forms of farm relief, but Coolidge will oppose all these bills.

POSTAL WORKERS' BILL LOST IN HOUSE RED TAPE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1.—With only 28 days remaining before the present congress is adjourned, likelihood that the postal workers will receive salary increases faded. The Moses bill, increasing the pay of postal employes but also increasing the postal rates, what passed the senate has met opposition in the house.

The ways and means committee of the house has challenged the authority of the senate to enact legislation increasing postal rates. The committee adopted a resolution to that effect, and decided to pigeon-hole the senate bill when it reaches the house today. The house postal committee will be asked to bring out a similar bill independent of that passed by the senate.

Thus bill to increase the pay of the postal workers which was devoted last year by President Coolidge, appears to have been lost in the wilderness of congressional red tape.

Show City Laws Are Jokes as Firetrap Takes Six Lives

Lane arrived the building was already an inferno, and the screams of dying tenants mingled with the roar of the flames. Firemen said the victims' lives were lost from the start, the victims being trapped on the third and fourth floor.

The twenty-eight working class families that were jammed into the tenement lost all their possessions.

Make Negro the Goat.

Mrs. Beulah Fritz, owner of the firetrap, told the coroner she had bought the building eight years ago. She said she received as high as $11.50 per week for the dingy rooms. An attempt is being made to lay the blame on Noteby Applyeby, the Negro janitor. Those who are trying to shield the city and the landlords who pack the workers into this city's thousands of firetraps are seeking frantically for a "goat," and it is believed they have picked on the Negro. Rumors are also being spread that a mysterious "dope fiend" was a tenant in the building and might have caused the blaze. There is no dodging the responsibility of the landlord, however, for the deplorable condition of Chicago's tenements.

The city has failed to provide adequate housing for its workers.

Regulate Bus Business.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 1—That the public service commission shall regulate the bus industry of Indiana was indicated today as the sentiment of a majority report from the senate roads committee. The bus regulatory measure is slated for consideration Monday. A minority report of three committee members is expected.

Berger's Socialists Are Worse Off Than the Bat Aesop Wrote About

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, Victor L. Berger, the lone socialist congressman in Washington, gets his picture in the papers. Not that he has wounded capitalism, by any attack made upon it.

Berger is not given this attention because of any fear he has aroused in the ranks of the class enemy of labor. His picture is not published as that of a capitalist foe. He is only being rewarded by the kept press for tickling its humorous side, in a speech that he made trying to tantalize the LaFollette "progressives" in the house of representatives in congress for professing themselves "good republicans."

• • • •

But the funniest slant at Berger's utterance is that it can be used against Berger himself better than it fits the bed-fellows of the socialists in the recent presidential campaign.

Representative Frear, one of the LaFollette "republicans" from Wisconsin, who joined the badger senator in the little badger game of fooling the petty bourgeois into believing they were going to have a nice middle class third party, made his speech defending the right of the LaFollette "progressives" to play on the private preserves of the republicans. He argued for the right of the LaFollette following to remain in the republican party, when these same LaFollette politicians are supposed to meet in Chicago this month to form a "new party," so they said. In reply to Frear, Berger came to bat with a bat story as follows:

> "Aesop tells a fable of the bat, who in a war between the quadrupeds and the birds, posed as a quadruped or as a bird, according to which side was victorious. But the bat was found out and shunned by both sides ever after.
> "My colleague from Wisconsin, Mr. Frear, reminds me of that fable and of that bat. Mr. Frear posed as a great LaFollette man last summer, when the more or less socialistic LaFollette campaign loomed up big on the political horizon.
> "And lo! Mr. Frear has humbly kissed the flag—no, kissed the elephant's tail—and begged for permission to crawl into the hole and pull the hole in after him.
> "Any man who claims to be a progressive, who claims to stand for reform, ought to be willing to pay the price. If not, then he is a weakling. Especially, in this case, the price these gentlemen are asked to pay is so insignificant as to be almost ridiculous—the loss of position on committees. The republicans have a right to control their own organizations."

• • • •

But where does that let Berger off? Berger quit the revolutionary struggle for socialism when he decided to remain with the Second (socialist) International and fight the Communist International and the Russian revolution. Like the bat, Berger a part of the Second (socialist) International had merely worn the cloak of socialist principles, casting it aside in the hour of the open struggle with capitalism.

Instead Berger, with the American socialists, counterparts of the social-democrats in all lands, puts on the cloak of capitalist reforms, and runs with the middle class following of LaFollette, in the vain hope it will break with the two Wall Street parties. Now LaFollette is going to cheat the socialists out of even the liberal third party, not to mention a fake labor party. Berger is surely the one who is shunned on the one hand by working class revolutionists and on the other by liberal reformers who find it comfortable to remain in the republican and democratic parties.

• • • •

Frear and the rest of the LaFollette following have this compensation. They at least have a hole to crawl into, as Berger admits. "Nick" Longworth, son-in-law of the late Roosevelt, who controls the house of representatives, says the LaFollette outfit can come back into Wall Street's G. O. P. any time they pledge themselves to behave. Which they are no doubt, prepared to do as "good republicans."

Berger, on the other hand, hasn't even a hole to crawl into. He is isolated completely; gaining attention only when he plays the clown and makes funny speeches in congress to provoke a smile from his fellow political agents of Wall Street. Berger is even worse off than the bat. Another fable should be added to the Aesop collection to treat of the special case of Berger's socialists.

A. F. OF L. CALLS OFF LONG STRIKE OF R. R. SHOPMEN

MOBERLY, Mo., Feb. 1.—The railroad shopmen's strike two and a half years old, will end on February 1, according to an official statement given out this morning by F. R. Lee, chairman of the Federated Shop Crafts of the Wabash Railway company, with headquarters in Moberly.

Lee bases his statement on a letter received from B. M. Jewell, president of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, advising him that the executive committee has decided "to terminate the strike."

The letter calling off the strike follows:

"As advance information, to be used as you may decide best in the interest of your membership, the executive council has just voted to terminate the strike now in effect on all roads, excepting one, on February 1, 1925."

The fact that these workers, chiefly Italians and Poles, were guilty only of being active in labor organization among their compatriots was sufficient ground for their expulsion. Fortunately they were not compelled to re-enter their respective "fatherlands."

Red Unions Lead Fight.

There appears to be nothing to distinguish the Herriot socialist government from an avowedly capitalist government in dealing with labor problems.

The United French Federation of Labor (Communist) comprising about half of the organized workers of France (500,000) is launching a campaign for a general increase in wages. The slogan is "20 francs ($1.10) a day for every worker."

The leaders of the movement are alive to the tendency of the big employers to develop a labor aristocracy of better-paid workers as in the United States and are beginning to combat this tendency.

Despite Sun's inability to attend, the Chinese reorganization conference will open here tomorrow.

ARMED KLUXERS THREATEN MORE HERRIN DEATHS

'Disarm 500 Klansmen,' Sheriff Tells Small

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HERRIN, Ill., Feb. 1.—Sheriff George Galligan of Williamson county is in Springfield today, personally putting before Governor Len Small his request that the 500 klansmen in Herrin who are armed to the teeth and ready to cause more bloodshed, be immediately disarmed.

Galligan has appealed to Small that martial law be declared, stating that Herrin will be torn with strife until the klan is made to disarm.

Small Helps Klan.

Governor Small has frequently been asked for troops by Williamson county's sheriff, and has invariably shown reluctance to supply them. Small relied on klan support during his November election campaign, and is sabotaging the efforts of Galligan to bring peace in Herrin.

"There are 500 armed klansmen in Herrin," said Galligan yesterday. "The police and my forces are powerless. I want 100 soldiers sent here to disarm every klansman in Herrin. Then, maybe, between the police and my men, we can take care of them."

Klan Lawlessness.

"I regret to state that some citizens seem to think that the prohibition law is the law to be enforced, and some have violated other laws in their zeal to enforce the prohibition law."

In reply to Galligan's plea for martial law, Small again showed his reluctance to clean up klan lawlessness in Herrin by stating he would not declare martial law "unless absolutely necessary."

John Smith, garage owner, has been made head of the klan to replace the slain gunman, Glenn Young. Smith immediately tried to start further trouble by threatening to kill Chief of Police Matt Walker. Walker, a former klansman, who became disgusted at the klan's crimes, discharged one of his constables, Harold Crain, for beating people up who were peaceably walking the streets. Crain was the only klansman on the police force, and he was using his office to beat up and terrorize miners who were against the klan.

Smith Threatens to Shoot.

Smith took the side of the discharged policeman, and threatened to shoot Walker. Walker swore out a warrant against Smith for disturbing the peace.

Smith was one of the leaders in the attack on Galligan and his deputy sheriffs last August, in which seven men were killed. Witnesses who were uncovered by the DAILY WORKER reporter covering the shooting, testified at the coroner's inquest that they had seen Smith standing over one of the slain deputies with a smoking shotgun in his hand. Smith was indicted but has never been brought to trial.

Klan Mob Attacks.

Speaking of the attack on him by Smith, Walker said, "It would have been suicide for me to draw a gun. I was surrounded by an angry mob of gun toting klansmen."

Walker and his police force left the klan last August, following the attack of the klansmen on the deputy sheriffs.

BREAD FOLLOWS WHEAT IN HIGH PRICE FLIGHT

Food Soars Beyond the Reach of the Poor

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 1.—Food prices have gone up. The gambling in wheat, which the farmers had sold in the Fall for $1.16 per bushel and which the board of trade is using for a football kicking it over the two dollar mark, is affording the robber class an excuse for raising the price of bread to unheard of levels and at the same time bringing other articles of food with it.

Blinding the people with the artificial raising of the price of wheat after all the wheat has been hauled to market by the farmers, the masses grope about arguing that as wheat has gone up there is no reason why bread should not go up.

Parrot Lingo of Press.

On the streets everywhere groups of women going to and coming from stores and bakeries defend the rise in price, parroting the lingo of the press that it could not be possible for bakers to sell bread at the same price as when the wheat was only $1.16, the masses thus becoming the staunchest supporters of the robber class, because of the daily output of camouflage that they read and absorbs.

Thinking workers in New York tell of the yearly experience of the same kind as this year. They relate how every year wheat is low in the fall till it has been hauled to the market to pay interest to the bankers, who are in cahoots with the grain gamblers to force the farmers to sell early on threat of foreclosure, putting all the grain into the storehouses where the barons can corner the whole supply and raise the price up to the breaking point.

Workers Feel the Sting.

New York's working class is feeling the sting of this latest outrage, and in the face of increased unemployment and a constant cut in wages, with waves of subzero weather freezing them stiff in the dingy tenements, suffering is taking on serious form

Ku Klux Klan Asks Supreme Court for Rehearing on Ouster

TOPEKA, Kans., Feb. 1.—The ku klux klan today filed a petition for a rehearing in Kansas supreme court of the ouster order instituted against the organization.

The court held in denying the klan the right to function in Kansas, that a foreign social and benevolent order without capital stock or charter, had no power to engage in business or for profit, was not legal unless it obtained a charter from the state charter biard, allowing it to engage in business.

The klan petitions states that an "organization operating as it does for benevolent purposes, is not doing business as is the meaning of the Kansas statute."

Davis Pleads Not Guilty.

TOPEKA, Kans., Feb. 1.—Former governor, Jonathan M. Davis, pleaded not guilty to charges of conspiracy in connection with efforts to obtain a parole of Walter Grundy, Hutchinson Kansas banker, and gave $1,000 bond in the court of Topeka. His preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 6.

to any King, Prince, Potentate or Church Dignatary.

"We believe it is our duty to the company that furnishes you with the means of earning your BREAD AND BUTTER to give further proof of your loyalty to our company by making known your desire to become naturalised as a 100 PER CENT AMERICAN and knighted as a full fledged member of the Ku Klux Klan. By doing this you comply with the wishes of your employers. You protect your position, you improve your standing with the company to such an extent that when contemplated changes are made you will receive the consideration that is due all 100 PER CENT AMERICANS and especially KLANSMEN. You perhaps realize as we do that there is in our company a number of foreigners and dishonorable men who are backed by an outside influence. Our organization will take precedence over these aliens and the outside influence will be wiped out. Please give this serious thought. Realize what this will mean to you and your company. Get in touch with the Kleagle in charge or any one of the Klan representatives with the Premier Company."

"This letter is to be regarded as strictly confidential."

Hostile to Negroes

Employes of the Premier Co., interviewed by the DAILY WORKER, admitted they had received copies of this letter. They declared that the Premier company does not employ Negroes as taxi-cab drivers and the officials of the company in Chicago are hostile to the Negroes.

The chauffers of the company are bitter against the union, which they declare does nothing to help them better their condition. The drivers receive $4.00 per day which is the union scale. The commission is paid only above $80.00 receipts, which is never reached, the drivers state.

One worker said he brought in bookings for a day's work, and the company paid him only $2.50 commission. The driver went to the union headquarters, he said, and asked the business agent to take the matter up with the company. The agent refused to do anything for the driver telling him to do it himself.

Must Watch His Job

The driver then saw Stanley Steubner, the Chicago general manager of the Premier company. "Take your four dollars this time, but watch out for your job in the future," Steubner told the driver.

The head of the Chicago organization of the Premier co. if Charles Mortinson, formerly head of the Chicago board of education.

The Premier company has dunned Chicago unions to buy stock in the concern, and to lend the company moral support, on the strength of being a union corporation.

MAY DAY PARADE MAY BE HELD ON 5TH AVENUE NOW

Workers May Walk on World's Richest Street

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 1.—The ban on parades in 5th Ave., richest street in the world, where merchants claim they lose $10,000,000 every time there is a parade, has been lifted and the Workers (Communist) Party is going to take advantage of the new ruling and hold the May Day parade through this thoroughfare this year, according to plans now in the making.

Veto Meets Loud Protest.

The mayor's veto of the ordinance to prevent parades on this avenue has met with loud protests from the sensitive merchants who do not like to see men and women in workpeople's clothing pass by their guilded business places.

Remarking that the mayor "did not have a clear understanding of the elements of this very important piece of legislation," the statement said:

"The ordinance proposed by the Fifth Avenue association and passed by the board of aldermen would limit parades on Fifth Avenue to those parades which have marched annually upon the street for more than ten years, such as the St. Patrick's Day parade and other well known annual events. It would permit the ordinary and necessary movements of the United States army, navy, national guard, the police department, fire department, etc., and would give the mayor authority to issue special permits for occasions of extraordinary public interest."

Just Preparatory.

The workers will hold that their parades are of "extraordinary public interest" and preparatory to the time when the workers themselves will decide where they shall walk.

Other buildings in the city have sunk from four to eighteen inches.

WRANGEL READY TO LEAD NEW WAR ON SOVIET

and Bulgar governments have given their consent to the formation of foreign armies in their territories; that the necessary funds are being advanced from this country; that the munitions are also, in part, being supplied here; and that Wrangel himself is in the closest contact with confidential British agents.

Those are serious statements. But they are being made so definitely and in so many quarters which should be well informed that they call for close inquiry when parliament reassembles.

It is true that Mr. Chamberlain has just assured Mr. Rakovsky that Great Britain has had no share in the projected formation of an anti-Soviet Balkan bloc. But such an assurance is not in itself adequately convincing. For the necessities of diplomatic decorum would in any case have demanded that it should be given when questions were put.

'British Officers?

One may note further that it is reported from Athens that the new "gendarmerie" which is to replace the existing Albanian army is to be commanded and officered by Englishmen. Whether it is to comprise in its ranks those Wrangel troops who were reported to have formed part of Ahmed Bey Zagu's forces is not specified. But it would not be surprising to find them functioning for the time being as Albanian gendarmerie.

Last, though by no means least disquieting, is the report that M. Oromulu, the governor of the Rumanian National Bank, who is in Paris for the financial conference, is coming on to London in order to negotiate a loan of 30,000,000 or 40,000,000 pounds for the Rumanian government.

FACTORY WORKERS' AVERAGE PAY BELOW LIVING STANDARD, HAVING CHILDREN MEANS DESTITUTION

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The failure of the wages of factory workers in a relatively high-wage state to meet the requirements of a decent healthful life is apparent upon a review of the 12 monthly reports of the industrial commissioner of New York for 1924.

The average wage paid all employes in the manufacturing establishments of the state in December, according to the report for that month, was $28.26 compared with $27.66 in November and $27.99 in December, 1923. The average wage paid men workers, employed in production as distinct from office forces, was $31.52 and that of women shop employes $17.13.

A review of 1924 based on the monthly reports issued by the commissioner shows the average weekly earnings of men and women shop employes month by month as follows:

Weekly Earnings	Men	Women
1924 Jan.	$31.53	$16.70
Feb.	31.36	16.69
Mar.	31.67	17.12
Apr.	31.22	16.83
May	31.04	16.56
June	30.39	16.15
July	30.01	15.80
Aug.	30.52	16.05
Sept.	31.14	17.10
Oct.	30.66	16.69
Nov.	31.01	17.13
Dec.	31.52	17.13
Weekly Average	31.01	16.65

A full year at the average shown would give the men workers total earnings of $1,612.52 and the women $865.80. But the best studies available show that the average employment which a wage earner can expect under normal conditions is not above 90 per cent of a full working year. The average annual earnings of workers employed in the productive department of New York manufactories must have been about $1,451.27 for men $778.22 for women.

The average for men employes represents just about the figure set by the California civil service commission study as the minimum upon which a common laborer and his wife can live in health and decency. To have children on such a wage would mean an immediate lack of some of the real necessities of life.

With one child the minimum budget would rise to $1,642, with two children to $1,835 and with 3 to $2,021. A similar contrast appears when we compare the average woman's wage with the $1,289 necessary for a single woman to live with any decency and comfort.

kind of food he liked. He took particular delight in sinking his teeth into a chunk of tenderloin, flanked with a small mountain of mashed potatoes turnips and squash. To further irritate the health scientists, he insisted on going on a drunk occasionally which turned out to be whenever the opportunity came his way. It never knocked on his door twice. Some enterprising health specialist may patent the Hoboken butcher's experience and make a fortune prescribing it to others. But the fact that he is from Hoboken and a butcher should be taken into consideration.

GASTON B. MEANS, the versatile crook, stoolpigeon and confidence man, pal of Harry M. Daugherty Warren G. Harding, William J. Burns and other celebrities was found guilty in New York a few days ago of seeking to bribe government officers, and sentenced to two years in a federal prison. There is another sentence of two years to his credit for violating the prohibition law. Among those who came to Means' defense were William J. Burns and Harry M. Daugherty Frank P. Walsh, noted attorney, defended Means and in his appeal to the jury pictured the stoolpigeon as one of the most lovable of mortals. "He is such a sweet character that people call him Gaston," declared Mr. Walsh who must have bitten off a piece of the blarney stone when he went to kiss it. Of Daugherty he said that tho he disagreed with him politically, he was the most maligned man in public life. William J. Burns missed a pretty compliment, for some reason or other. Had he been around while Walsh was in the mood, he surely would have received a bouquet.

FILIPINO TALKS AT COMMUNIST MEET IN CAPITAL

Bunuan Tells About the Conditions in Islands

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1—The local branch of the Workers Party is holding a series of educational meetings. The last speaker was Vincente G. Bunuan, director of the Philippine press bureau. Mr. Bunuan's subject was "The Labor Movement in the Philippines."

Bunuan delivered a strong and vitrolic attack against those predatory capitalist interest in America which have subjected the Filipino people to exploitation. The workers of the Philippines were goaded into a bitter strike against American owners of the trolley car systems, indicating that the "blessings" of civilization have reached the tropical islands.

Appreciates Communist Aid.

The speaker began by expressing his appreciation of the efforts which have been made by the Worker (Communist) Party, to secure independence for the Philippines. He stated that he has been officially requested to say to all locals of the Workers Party that the hearts of all the Filipino people are grateful to the Communists of America because of the action taken in endorsing Philippine independence.

Bunuan stated that four million Filipino workers felt great satisfaction at this evidence of interest in their struggles and that the action of the Workers Party was as tho the hand of friendship had been extended across the Pacific, 10,000 miles away, to a people striving for land and liberty, with the same human aspirations that move human beings thruout the world.

When New York Local of the Workers Party passed a resolution favoring Philippine independence every labor union in the Philippines joined in sending a cablegram to this country appreciating that action. The labor unions adopted a manifesto opposing exploitation of the Philippines by foreign capitalists, (these capitalists are mostly Americans,) and thanked the Workers Party for espousing their cause.

Gives Lie to Propaganda.

American capitalist interests have broadcasted the statement that the working people of the Philippnes do not want independence; that only demagogues make these demands. The Federation of Labor, in Manila combined with other laboring organizations in denouncing these canards. The laborers do want independence. The greatest opposition to independence comes from vested American interests in the islands. Such Americans are interested only in the potential economic value of the islands and for that reason wish to maintain American control permanently. If valuable at the present time the value of the islands in the future can easily be imagined. The natural resources of the island are unlimited. The speaker stated that foreign capital comes to the Philippines to drown the aspirations of the Filipino people. He said that every dollar means a nail in the coffin of Philippine hopes. American presidents have all promised independence to the Philippines but the promises have not been kept. American capitalists have become so powerful that they now take the position that no such promise was ever made. The speaker quoted President McKinley who said that a commission which he sent to the islands was a liberating commission. Bunuan said that Americans have violated their moral obligations, which should be more binding than legal obligations.

The tactics of the chamber of commerce in the United States have been adopted in the islands by the organization of a chamber of commerce in Manila, with a branch in New York This organisation has been so bold as to show sympathy with the Mayo syndicated articles which defamed the Filipino people.

In speaking of what has been done by labor in the Philippines the speaker mentioned a child labor law; a law limiting the hours of labor for working men and a law regulating conditions under which women are employed. The pregnant woman receive her regular wages three months prior to, and three months after giving birth to child.

Balmori Leads Fight.

An interesting discussion followed the address, several speakers pointing out that the American workers are exploited by the same grasping interests which have subjected the Filipinos to a state which resembles Great Britain's tyranny over India.

Comrade Dr. Pearlman presided. He called attention to the international aspect of the labor movement and read excerpts from the platform of the Workers (Communist) Party platform in the municipal campaign in Chicago.

GOVT. OPERATION OF RAILWAYS CHEAPER THAN PRIVATE, AND COOLIDGE REPORT SHOWN FALSE

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Government operation of railroads in 1918-1 cost considerably less than private operation would have cost the country during that period, says Walker D. Hines, former director-general. This economy was effected by better use of terminals, thru consolidations, etc.

If the railroads had remained in private control during the war, rates would have had to be raised, and the investment in the properties would have been endangered by vastly increased operating and maintaing costs. Instead of being a failure, government operation was a distinct success and it resulted in turning back to the private owners a system of rail transportation in good condition, with a record of exceptional performance.

Catho'ics Call Coolidge

This judgement by Hines is quoted by the social action department of the national catholic welfare conference in an analysis of the report given out by the Coolidge administration to the effect that the government lost $1,647,500,000 on the experiment.

It shows that the facts are that congress agreed to pay the private companies a rental of $945,000,000 a year, which was assumed to be the average annual profit of the companies for 1915-17. The government profits were $1,133,500,000 short of the rental, or an average monthly shortage of $42,788,461 during public operation.

No Mention of This Before

However, during the first six months of private operation after the government handed them back, the roads showed an average monthly deficit of $89,333.33 under the guaranty. Hence the first six months of private operation in 1920 gave a deficit of twice as great as under government operation.

This bad showing was made by fact that they had an increase in freight and passenger rates during the whole time, while the government had had the increase during only three-fourths of its period of operation.

Dinner Pail Epics
by Bill Lloyd

By all the papers I now see how Cal does preach economy. On that point Cal is never fickle; he's strong for pinching of a nickel.

Since we fought war of sum large size, we now must all economise. We lost the horse while shedding gore; so now we'll lock and bar the door. The profiteers got lots of swage; and we must wear our clothes to rags. Instead of jailing those what rob, we gotta cut down on the job. Officials must get out their dirks and cut off heads of lots of clerks.

Some played at making bum airplanes, and they got gold that fell in rains. The raincoat contracts yielded tin to all who got the first look in. Each cuss who had a thing to sell found pickings good and profits swell. They sold steam engines, bottle corks, Hog Island fleets and salad forks, ten ton trucks and pocket flasks, knitting needles, poison masks.

And when the so-called peace arrived, the profiteering still survived. For cancelled contracts paid much better than those they filled out to the letter.

Then bonds were sold to foot the bill, instead of tapping rich men's tills, and generations still unborn must pay for blast played on Mars' horn. We gotta foot an interest bill that's higher than old Bunker Hill.

Us poor must pinch until we die— for Calvin says: "Economize."

SOVIET RUSSIA AND MEXICO HAVE MUCH IN COMMON

So Says the Mexican Minister to Moscow

(By Rosta News Agency)

MOSCOW, Feb. 1.—"The same causes lie at the root of the Russian and the Mexican revolutions, and the aims and ideals pursued by both of them seem to me to be very much the same," according to Prof. Vadillio, the newly-arrived Mexican minister at Moscow.

"Like the Union of Soviet Republics, Mexico is a socialistic state. Therefore, what the two countries have in common will certainly exercise an influence on their present and future mutual relations."

In the statement made to Soviet press representatives, Mr. Vadillio made in brief an interesting survey of economic conditions actually prevailing in his country.

"The Mexican revolution," said he, "has changed the former system, under which nearly all the land was in the hands of a comparatively small group of big landlords, while a large majority of the people were landless.

"Now the new constitution fully safeguards the interests of the peasants and workmen. New labor legislation has been enacted, introducing the eight hours' working day, protection of labor, allowances for invalids of labor and destitutes, the official right of strikes, and so forth. The law also entitles the workmen to a share in the profits of enterprises. Generally speaking, the new laws regulate normal conditions of labor.

"The effects of the Mexican revolution on the agrarian construction of the country are still more far-reaching. It has restored the former rights of the native Indians, who number about 8 million of a total Mexican population of some 15 million people, to engage in farming on a communal basis. Another law limits private land ownership, making it illegal for any private individual landlord to own more than about 135 acres of land. The land, which, according to another new law, has become national property, has been equally partitioned between the white people and the Indians wishing to till it with their own labour. The state has also become the owner of the underground mineral resources of the country (such as oil, various methls, etc.), and royalities must be paid to the state by anyone wishing to exploit the same."

The Mexican minister further pointed out that the reason why the revolution in his country was so deeply rooted lay in the fact that it was in the main directed against the propertied classes. For this reason, too, the country was plunged for a long time into civil war caused by counter-revolutionary attempts. However, the revolution emerged victorious, as it had the backing of the entire proletariat and all the peasants.

Echoes of Revolution in Mexico.

"The Russian revolution," declared the Mexican statesman, "found a live echo in the hearts of all the Mexican people, and the latter are quite familiar with the names of the Russian revolutionary leaders and the ends pursued by them. As for external policy, the people and government of Mexico fully endorse the political creed of the Soviet Union, namely the respect for the sovereignty of so-called small nations and the abandonment of imperialistic policy. Indeed, how could it be otherwise, since the Mexican people, having fought for the independence of their country, cannot but deeply respect the aspirations of all the peoples striving for national freedom."

Regarding the prospects of the resumption of normal relations between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the republican countries of South America, the minister stated that, in his opinion, this development was to be expected within a very short time. "Mexico", he remarked "wields great authority with these states and her move in restoring normal diplomatic relations with the U. S. S. R. will certainly be taken into consideration and is bound to influence the decision of the various South American governments."

Danish Bosses Forming Fascisti On German Border

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, Feb. 1—Thousands have been reported enrolled in fascisti corps which are being formed in Danish territory which borders German. The organizations resemble the Italian fascisti, and are made up of reactionaries who are opposed to working class organizations and radical and liberal political parties.

The fascisti leader Arrildskovo is making a house to house canvass along the Danish-German frontier asking for fascisti recruits. The move is said to be nationalistic, aimed against Germany, but as was the case of the Italian fascisti, it is primarily aimed at both the Danish and German workers.

Leninism or Trotskyism

Speech by Comrade Stalin.

At the Plenary Meeting of the Communist Section of the Central Trade Union Council on Nov. 19, 1924.

COMRADES! I will confine myself to unmasking a few legends which have been spread by Comrade Trotsky and others of the same opinion as to the October revolution, the part played by Comrade Trotsky in the revolution, as to the party and the preparations for October, etc. In doing so I shall treat Trotskyism as a singular ideology which is quite irreconcilable with Leninism, and speak of the duties of the party in connection with the recent literary undertakings of Comrade Trotsky.

The Facts as to the October Revolution.

First of all as to the October revolution. Strong rumors are being spread among the members of the party, that the C. C. as a whole is said to have been opposed to the insurrection in October, 1917. The tale usually goes that on Oct. 10, when the C. C. passed a resolution regarding the organization of the revolt, the majority of the C. C. pronounced against the revolt, but that just then a workman forced his way into the committee and said: "You have passed a resolution against the revolt, but I tell you that it will take place in spite of everything." The C. C. is said to have been alarmed by these threats, to have discussed anew the question of the revolt, and to have decidod to organise it.

This is no simple rumor, Comrades. The well-known John Reed, who was not connected with our party and naturally could not know the history of our conspirative meeting on Oct. 10, so that he fell into Mr. Suchanov's trap, writes about it in his book "Ten Days That Shook the World." This tale is printed and repeated in a whole series of brochures which originate from the pens of Trotsky's adherents, among others in one of the latest brochures about October written by Comrade Syrkin.

These rumors are supported in an increased degree by the latest literary enterprise of Comrade Trotsky. It is hardly necessary to prove that all these and similar "Arabian Nights" do not correspond to the facts, that nothing of the sort happened or could have happened at the meeting of the C. C. We might therefore pass over these rumors, for indeed many unfounded and silly rumors are manufactured in the studies of persons in opposition or not connected with the party. We have, as a matter of fact, done so until recently, for instance, by paying no attention to the mistakes of John Reed and not troubling to correct them. But after the recent enterprises of Comrade Trotsky, it is really impossible to pass over these legends for efforts are being made to educate the youth on the lines of these legends which have unfortunately already met with some success. I feel therefore, compelled to confront these silly rumors with the actual facts.

Let us take the minntes of the meeting of the C. C. of our party from Oct. 10-23, 1917. Present: Lenin, Zinoviev, Kamenev, Stalin, Trotsky, Swerdlov, Uritsky, Dzershinsky, Kollantay, Bubnov, Sokolnikov, Lomov. The question to be discussed is the situation at the time and the insurrection. After the debate, a resolution of Comrade Lenin's as to the revolt, is put to the vote. The resolution was passed with a majority of 10 votes against 2. It seems therefore perfectly clear that the C. C. resolved by a majority of 10 against 2 votes to proceed immediately with the practical work for the organization of the insurrection. At this meeting, the C. C. chose a political central committee with the title of a political bureau, consisting of Lenin, Zinoviev, Stalin, Kamenev, Trotsky, Sokolnikov and Bubnov to lead the revolt.

These are the facts.

These minutes immediately destroy several legends. They destroy the legend that a majority of the C. C. pronounced against the insurrection. They also destroy the legend that the C. C. was faced by a split on the question of the insurrection. It is evident from the minutes, that the opponents of immediate revolt—Comrades Kamenev and Zinoviev, joined the organ for the political direction of the revolt, just as did those who were in favor of it. There was not and cannot be any question of a split.

Comrade Trotsky asserts that in the persons of Comrades Kamenev and Zinoviev we had in October a right wing, almost a wing of social democrats, in our party. In view of this it seems difficult to understand how it could happen that the party escaped a split; how it could happen that, in spite of the differences of opinion, the comrades in question were placed by the party at the most important posts, were elected to the political central committee of the insurrection, etc. Lenin's intolerance of social democrats is well known in the party; the party knows that he would not for a moment have agreed to have comrades with social democratic leanings in the party, let alone in the most important posts.

How is it to be explained that the party escaped a split? It is explained by the fact that these comrades were old Bolsheviki who stood on the general foundation of Bolshevism. In what did this general foundation consist? In a conformity of views as to the fundamental questions, the questions as to the character of the Russian revolution, as to the driving force of the revolution, the role of the peasants, the principles of party leadership, etc. Without such a general foundation, a split would have been inevitable. No split took place and the differences of opinion only lasted a few days, and that because Comrades Kamenev and Zinoviev were Leninists, were Bolsheviki.

Let us now pass on to the legend as to the special part played by Comrade Trotsky in the October revolution. Comrade Trotsky's partisans vigorously spread rumors that the inaugurator and the only leader of the October revolution was Comrade Trotsky. These rumors are specially spread by Comrade Lenzner, editor of Trotsky's works. By the fact that Comrade Trotsky systematically neglects to mention the party, the C. C. and the Petrograd committee, and is silent as to the leading part played by these organizations in the work of the revolution, putting himself in the foreground as its central figure, he himself, intentionally or unintentionally, promotes the spread of the rumor as to the special part played by him in the revolutino.

This installment is part of a pamphlet "Leninism or Trotzkyism" now in preparation. It includes articles by three outstanding figures in the Russian Communist Party: G. Zinoviev, I. Stalin and C. Kamenev, to form a most timely and important contribution to a discussion of world interest. The pamphlet will be of 64 pages, selling at 20 cents and will be ready at the conclusion of this serial publication.

I am far from denying the undoubtedly important part played by Comrade Trotsky in the revolution. I must however say, that Comrade Trotsky neither did nor could play any special part, that he, as chairman of the Petrograd Soviet only carried out the will of the party authorities in question who supervised everyone of his steps. To member of the petty bourgeoisie, such as Suchanov, all this may appear strange, but the facts, the actual facts completely confirm my statement.

Let us take the minutes of the following meeting, of the 16th of October. Present: the members of the C. C. plus representatives of the Petrograd committee, plus representatives of the military organization, of the factory committees of the trade unions, of the railwaymen. Among those present were, besides the members of the C. C., Krylenko, Schotman, Kalinin, Volodarsky, Schlapnikov, Lazis and others. The question for discussion is the insurrection from the purely practical point of view of organization. Lenin's resolution as to the insurrection was passed by a majority of 20 votes against 2, 2 refraining from voting. The practical central committee for the organizing direction of the revolt was elected. Five comrades were elected to this committee: Sverdlov, Stalin, Dsherhinsky, Bubnov, Uritsky. The duties of the central committee consisted in directing all the practical organs of the insurrection in accordance with the instructions of the C. C. As you see, something "terrible" happened at this meeting of the C. C., i. e. the "inaugurator," the "central figure," the "only leader" of the insurrection, Comrade Trotsky, was not elected a member of the practical central committee, who duty it was to direct the insurrection.

How can this be reconciled with the opinion in general circulation as to the special part played by Comrade Trotsky? It is indeed somewhat "strange" as Suchanow or Comrade Trotsky's adherents would say. Strictly speaking, there is however, nothing "strange" in it, for Comrade Trotsky, a comparatively new man in our party at the time of October, neither did nor could play a special part, either in the party or in the October revolution. He, like all the responsible functionaries, was only an agent of the will of the C. C. Anyone who knows the mechanism of the party leadership of the Bolsheviki will understand without much difficulty, that it could not have been otherwise, for had Comrade Trotsky begun to act contrary to the will of the C. C., he would have been deprived of his influence on the course of things. All the talk about the special part played by Comrade Trotsky is a legend which is spread by officious "party" gossips.

This, of course, does not mean that the October revolution did not have its instigator and leader. But this was Lenin and no other—the same Lenin whose resolutions were accepted by the central committee in deciding the question of the revolution, the same Lenin who was not hindered by illegality from becoming the instigator of the revolution in spite of the assertions of Comrade Trotsky. It is foolish and ridiculous to endeavor by gossiping about illegality to erase that indubitable fact that the leader of the praty, V. I. Lenin, was the instigator of the revolution.

These are the facts.

Granted, they say, but it cannot be denied that Comrade Trotsky fought well in the October period. Yes, it is true, Comrade Trotsky really fought bravely in October. But in October, not only Comrade Trotsky fought bravely, so did even the left social revolutionaries who at that time stood side by side with the Bolsheviki. Altogether it must be said that it is not difficult to fight bravely in a period of victorious insurrection, when the enemy is isolated and the insurrection is growing. In such moments even the backward ones become heroes. But the battle of the proletariat is not always an attack, not always exclusively a chain of successes. The fight of the proletariat has its trials, its defeats. A true revolutionary is one who not only shows courage in the period of victorious insurrection, but who fights well in a victorious attack of the revolution, and the same time shows courage at a moment of retreat of the revolution, in a period of defeat of the proletariat; who does not lose his head nor fall out, if the revolution fails and the enemy succeeds; who, in the period of the retreat of the revolution, does not fall a victim to panic and despair.

The left social revolutionaries did not fight badly in the October period when they supported the Bolsheviki. Who however, is not aware that these "brave" warriors were seized with panic in the Brest period when the attack of German imperialism threw them into despair and hysterics? It is a sad but indisputable fact that Comrade Trotsky, who had fought well in the October period, lost his courage in the Brest period, the period of temporary failure of the revolution, to such an extent that in this difficult moment he was not steadfast enough to resist following in the footsteps of the left social revolutionaries. There is no doubt that the moment was a very difficult one, that it was necessary to display an iron self-possession so as not to be worn out, to give way at the right moment and to accept peace at the right moment, to protect the proletarian army against the thrust of the German imperialism, to preserve the peasant reserves and, after having in this way attained a breathing space, to strike out at the enemy with renewed force. But alas, Comrade Trotsky did not display such courage and such revolutionary steadfastness at this difficult moment.

In Comrade Trotsky's opinion, the chief lesson of the proletarian revolution of October is "not to run off the rails." This is wrong, for the assertion of Comrade Trotsky contains only a small part of the truth as to the lessons of the revolution. The whole truth as to the lessons is to avoid "running off the rails," not only in the days of the revolutionary attack, but also in the days of retreat of the revolution, when the enemy has gained the upper hand and the revolution is suffering defeat. The revolution is not exhausted with October. October is only the beginning of the proletarian revolution. It is bad to run off the rails when the revolution is in the process of development, it is worse when it happens in the hour of severe trial of the revolution, after power has been seized. It is no less important to hold fast to the power on the day after the revolution, than to seize it. Since Comrade Trotsky ran off the rails in the Brest period, the period of sever trial for our revolution, when it was almost a case of yielding up the power, he ought to understand his pointing out the mistakes made by Kamenev and Zinoviev in October, is entirely out of place.

The Party and the Preparations for October.

Let us now pass on to the question of the preparations for October. If one listens to Comrade Trotsky, one is tempted to think that the Bolshevist Party during the whole period of October only did just what turned up, that it was devoured by internal dissensions, and that it hindered Lenin in every possible way and that, had it not been for Comrade Trotsky, no one knows how the revolution might have ended. It is rather amusing to hear these strange statements of Comrade Trotsky about the party, who in the same "preface" to volume III. states that "the chief weapon of the proletarian revolution is the party," that "without party, beyond the party, independently of the party, by a substitution of the party, the proletarian revolution cannot win," from which argument Allah himself could not understand how our revolution "could have been victorious, since "its chief weapon" was inadequate and yet no victory is possible "independently of the party." It is not however, the first time that Comrade Trotsky serves us up such strange fare. We must take it for granted that the entertaining speeches about our party belong to the usual peculiarities of Comrade Trotsky. Let us glance briefly at the preparations for October according to the various periods.

C. M. & St. Paul Railroad That Killed Ten Is Given Jury Whitewash

The January grand jury, in bringing in a verdict of "no recommendation" in the train-trolley wreck at North Ave. and Kingsbury st., reversed the judgement of the coroners jury, which held the employes of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad responsible for the death of ten persons.

The coroners inquest brought out the fact that the railroad had violated several Chicago city ordinances and state laws, including the city ordinance that tracks must be elevated above street car crossings and that trains within the city must not be more than 35 cars long.

The jury, in the face of the evidence showing the responsibility of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad for the wreck, declined to hand down indictments in the case, declaring, that "While is is apparent more care and caution should have prevailed at the crossing, successful prosecution of any individual or individuals on the evidennce at hand was too doubtful to warrant true bills."

SEATTLE MACHINISTS GIVE TEN DOLLARS TO MICHIGAN DEFENSE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 1.—The Hope Lodge No. 79, of the International Association of Machinists, unanimously voted to contribute ten dollars to the Labor Defense Council.

The resolution, signed by Vice-president Vincent Brown, declared that the money was to be "used in aid of the defense of C. E. Ruthenberg and other class war prisoners victims of the infamous criminal syndicalism law of the state of Michigan."

EVEN HARVARD STUDENTS REBEL AGAINST BIG BIZ

Lampoon the Methods of New Commercialism

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 1.—Even students of America's champion snob university, Harvard, are rebelling against the business methods capitalism is forcing on them.

The "Harvard Lampoon," the college humorist paper, has come out with a "Business School Number" in which they lambast, with cartoons, the new graduate school of business administration, founded with $5,000,000 donated by George F. Baker, former partner of the owner of the United States and many European countries, J. P. Morgan.

Donham May Supplant Lowell.

The dean of the new school is W. B. Donham, who, many say, is expected to supplant the present president Lowell. In one cartoon composed of two pictures the former president Charles W. Eliot, is shown with two boods under his arm and the label of this side of the picture is "The University President of Yesterday." Dean Donham is shown in the other side of the cartoon as "The University President of Tomorrow," yearing a nifty business suit and holding a statistical chart in one hand to denote the new times of efficiency and business setting in at Harvard.

Another cartoon shows "Johnny Harvard" holding a lion cub, labeled "The Business School." The cub is again shown but this time as a full-grown lion, and "Jimmy Harvard's" hat is the only thing remaining of the old university. The legend asks the reader to guess where little Johnny Harvard college is now.

It Shows the Leaven.

The opening page has a picture of the new business school library. The central dome is an immense stock ticker. Dollar signs fresco the walls, while on the cornices are the names of Ponzi, Arnstein, Doheny and Shylock.

It is not much but shows the leaven is working a trifle and maybe American students will some day wake up to what their country is becoming under capitalistic ethics and business administrations.

Insure The Daily Worker for 1925

OUR A. D. DISTRICT IS NOT YET PD. BUT IT IS PLOUGHING DEEPLY

NORTH and South Dakota have put their hands to the plough with the spirit to be expected from the agricultural district of the Workers' Party. In some fields real digging has been done for the DAILY WORKER. Two superactive branches in Frederick, S. D., the Finnish and the English, harvested $80.00 almost over night.

From Mandan, N. Dak., $25.00 are to come in installments of $5.00 before February 15. Considering the fact that the agricultural district is the "baby" district of the party, its showing is to be commended. Eight branches, besides fighting LaFolletteism at home, have helped fight it on a bigger scale by supporting the DAILY WORKER.

We ask the nine backward branches, "How do you expect to carry on against LaFolletteism without the DAILY WORKER'S generalship?" And again, "How do you expect the DAILY WORKER to carry on without your re-enforcement?"

It's a fifty-fifty proposition. If the agricultural district flips a coin and it turns up "tails," the DAILY WORKER loses as well. If the DAILY WORKER'S coin turns up "heads," the agricultural district wins, too.

Only our drive to insure the DAILY WORKER isn't a gamble—it's a mathematical certainty. If the branches fail to raise their quotas, the campaign is lost. So far just a little over half the quota in the agricultural district has been raised, $132.00 out of a minimum set at $273.00. The record reads as follows:

They Put Their Hands to the Plough:

Frederick, S. Dak., Savo	$30.00
Platt, English, Douglas, N. Dak.	9.00
Belden, N. Dak., English	16.00
Fargo, N. D., English	4.00
Frederick, S. Dak., English	50.00
Mandan, N. Dak., English	5.00
Wilton, N. D., English	5.00
Wing, N. Dak.	17.00
Total	$132.00

No Digging Done by These Branches:

NORTH DAKOTA BRANCHES—Bonetrail, Carrison, Douglas, Williston.

SOUTH DAKOTA BRANCHES—Centerville, Inland, Marion, Menno, Mitchell.

20,000 MINERS DESTITUTE IN WEST VIRGINIA

R. R. "Brotherhood" Evicts 86 Families

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Hundreds of bundles of clothing were accepted for miners' families in West Virginia at a meeting in New York.

Over 20,000 coal miners of West Virginia are on strike and some have been out for more than three years. Thousands of the miners and their families are living in tents and shacks because of their eviction from company houses, McAlister Coleman, investigator of the League for Industrial Democracy and American Civil Liberties Union, told the mass meeting.

Neal Ferry, executive board member United Mine Workers charged that Coal River Collieries, owned by members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, had refused to deal with the Miners' Union and had evicted 86 families of miners who refused to accept non-union wages. An A. F. of L. committee is to meet Chairman Stone on this dispute.

Both speakers mentioned the importation of foreign and Negro workers to replace union miners. Coleman says the non-union scale is from $2.50 to $4 a day, contrasted to the union's $6.90, which is being paid by only 10 per cent of West Virginia operators.

Y. W. L. INVADES NIGHT SCHOOLS WITH LITERATURE

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The night schools of New York are full with immigrants who came to the "land of freedom and opportunity" and were bitterly disappointed when instead, they found oppression, and unemployment.

To counteract the feeling that is growing among these immigrants against the conditions here, and to appease the hunger of those who walk the streets in vain in search for jobs the schools are feeding these young workers with Americanism.

Here they are told of the great struggles that our present "captains" of industry had to go thru until they achieved their present success, holding forth to every immigrant altho unqualified because of birth in a foreign country of becoming the president of the United States, the great possibility of becoming a Rockefeller if only they will be obedient to the institutions of capitalism, and be patient.

The Young Workers' League finds here a very fertile field of propaganda. Squads of league members who are organized for the distribution of literature find the young disappointed immigrants very eager to get the Young Worker and read it altho handicapped by their difficulty in reading the language.

Every day as a result of this agitation in the schools both thru literature distribution and the general activity of the Young Workers' League fractions in the night schools many of these young workers join the Young Workers' League.

WORLD WAR VETERANS BECOMES PROGRESSIVE POLITICAL BODY, TO FILE OR ENDORSE CANDIDATES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 1.—Jack Bradon, national president, and Leslie R. Hurt, national director of publicity of the World War Veterans, Inc., resigned their positions recently at a meeting of the national executive committee of the organization. Both are Communists, Bradon holding membership in the Workers Party, while Hurt is industrial organizer of the Young Workers' League in Minneapolis.

Farmer-Labor Man Now Head.

Emil E. Holmes, farmer-labor candidate for lieutenant-governor in Minnesota, at the last election, will succeed Comrade Bradon as national president and Comrade Hurt's post has been given to Rolland M. Prindle, of Minneapolis. Charles E. Rice was elected to succeed Elmer McMillian, one of the Communist defendants in the Michigan "Red Raid" cases, as a member of the executive committee.

The new policy as announced by Holmes makes the organization a political alliance of discharged soldiers, sailors and marines. It will further the candidacies of office seekers favorable to the world war veterans and who promise to work in the interests of soldier legislation, as well as to file their own nominees.

Only One Political Center Possible.

Comrade Hurt contended that he could not sanction a political program unless same was under the supervision of a disciplined organization such as the Workers (Communist) Party of America. Comrades Bradon and Hurt have served as national officers of the world war veterans since 1922. The new political policy of the organization is as follows:

Future Policy of the World War Veterans.

"From now on the world war veterans will function as a progressive political veterans' organization. The manner in which we will so function is of interest to all peoples interested in political matters. First, we shall file or endorse candidates for all legislative offices, state and national. We shall only interest ourselves in city or non-legislative offices when the present holders thereof have been found to be guilty of:

"1. Incompetency.

"2. Misappropriation of public funds.

"3. Immoral conduct.

"It becomes our duty to campaign against any office holder found guilty of any of those, otherwise we shall not interest ourselves for our mission is not that of getting office for politicians, but to secure for the veterans a more immediate enactment of their demands thru political action.

Stands for All Freedom.

"We shall not change our program. We are opposed to any interference official or unofficial with any rights secured us by the first amendment to the federal constitution. We endorse the right of collective bargaining by all truly representative groups of productive industry. We condemn the exploitation of child labor. We recognise the right of the farmers as well as workers of America to advocate and secure for themselves the full product of their labor. We oppose the exploitation of the patriotism of the ex-soldier by selfish interests to keep down wages and lower standards of living. We stand for, and pledge ourselves to the achievement of an Americanism based upon economic, political and social freedom.

"Our slogan 'The enforcement of the constitution of the United States of America as it is written' will remain and we shall do our utmost to acquaint the people in general with the constitution, especially so candidates for political office that they may conduct themselves in a more creditable manner than has too often been the case in the past where economic organizations have sought to give expression to grievances."

COCKEYED EXCUSE FOR KEEPING UP ROTTEN SYSTEM

Professor Puts Blame on Relief Society

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—The criminal career of the young prisoners of Sing Sing seems to be due to the "Cruelty Society" as they called the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and other children's organizations of that class, thru their harsh treatment of their charges.

Dr. George W. Kirchwey, former dean of Columbia University and once warden of Sing Sing prison told of this before Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfield, on hearings to find out whether or not New York City shall continue its appropriation for the support of the S. P. C. C.

They Try To Cure a Pimple.

Dr. Kirchwey said that firty per cent of the prisoners in Sing Sing during his administration were under 25 years of age.

"I heard a great deal from them," he said, "about their experiences with the 'Cruelty Society' as they called it and they were all convinced that their criminal career was largely due to the harsh treatment accorded them from these agencies."

Dr. Kirchwey said a majority of these young prisoners has been under the supervision of various juvenile agencies.

Dr. Mason Pitman, superintendent of the Riverdale Orphan Asylum, also accused the society of bad treatment of children.

"Of the seventen or eighteen children received from the society last year," he declared, "six or eight were in an unsanitary condition and the condition of the rest was not so good as we would expect to find under the circumstances."

URGES UNITED FRONT FOR ALL CLASS WAR PRISONERS' RELEASE

WALLA WALLA, Wash.—Amnesty drives should include all political and industrial prisoners, in the opinion of Ray Becker, one of the eight I. W. W. serving from 25 to 40 years in Washington state penitentiary for defending themselves against the American legion rioters in Centralia over six years ago.

Becker thinks that common cause should be made in behalf of every worker sentenced for standing by his convictions and rights. A special campaign is now on to release the Centralia politicals.

TEXTILE KINGS FIGHT TO KEEP CHILD LABORERS

Pour Millions Into the Fight on Amendment

By LAURENCE TODD.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Child labor in American industries is not to be abolished this year. Defeat has met the pending 20th amendment to the federal constitution in one or both branches of thirteen state legislatures. Ratification by at least 36 out of the 48 legislatures is required. The campaign of opposition, which has been financed by the cotton mill interests, exploiters of the children, has been overwhelmingly successful. Almost every business group and reactionary middle class group in the country has joined in the work of driving these children back to their machines. Powerful aid in this direction has been given by the National Grange and the American Farm Bureau Federation.

True, the legislatures that have rejected the amendment may reverse their action, either this year or later. Any legislature that ratifies an amendment determines the matter for its state, while a rejection is never final. But the propaganda of lies and half-lies which the cotton-mill barons, under the name of the Farmers' States' Rights League, Inc., of Troy, N. C., have published at advertising rates in farm papers thruout the west and south has been effective for this year at least. And it makes ratification in future much more difficult.

Sen. Wadsworth of New York, leader of the opposition to freeing the child slaves of industry, hastened to issue a jubilant statement to the press, that the amendment had been disposed of. The American Federation of Labor, thru Secretary Morrison, replied with a confident prediction that the amendment would still be adopted, thru the reversal of action taken in the past few days by a number of legislative bodies.

Employers Organized.

"In most of the states where unfavorable action already has been taken there have been organized campaigns of the most despicable nature," said Morrison. "There has been no hesitation about resorting to gross misrepresentation nor about engendering all kinds of prejudice.

"Employers of child labor have gone the limit in financing these campaigns. The whole situation calls for a congressional investigation of the most serious charcter... The battle is just beginning. If all friends of the amendment rally to the cause we shall yet release American children from their present industrial enslavement."

Investigation by "Labor" of the Farmers' States Rights League discloses it to be a dummy concern, whose president is cashier of a cotton mill bank, its vice-president a clerk in a cotton mill store, and its real promoter David Clark, for many years lobbyist against child-labor laws, editor of the Southern Textile Bulletin, and instigator of the suits which resulted in the killing of two federal statutes which sought to abolish child labor. Clark denies that Jeff Palmer, the agent who writes the advertisements against the 20th amendment, for which papers have received large sums, is his employe. But Palmer is located in his outer office, takes peremptory orders from Clark, and is listed in the city directory at Charlotte as an employe of the Clark Publishing Co. Clark and Palmer refuse to explain the source of their funds, while admitting that members of their alleged league pay no dues.

Morrison's demand for a congressional investigation is to be pressed, in order to lay the basis for reversal of unfavorable votes in the 13 legislatures where temporary defeat has ben registered.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Every day under this head you will learn not only what BUILDERS thruout the country are doing to build a greater newspaper, but also practical suggestions to accomplish more for OUR paper. Tell us what YOU are doing—and we will "tell the world."

The Easiest Task of a DAILY WORKER Agent.

THE Workers' Monthly has proven a great success—beyond the fondest hopes of all concerned. And it is easy to understand why.

The magazine is so good that it almost sells itself. All agents have found it a simple matter to get subscriptions—to sell a bundle order—to use it on those workers who claim they can't find time to read a daily newspaper even as good as the DAILY WORKER.

The new February issue, now partly off the press and going into the mails, will be fully mailed during the coming week—and enough will be left over to handle all the bundle orders you can send us for this splendid number.

The DAILY WORKER Builders have the job of disposing of the Workers Monthly and of securing subscriptions for it—and it's the easiest task of any. The new issue has such a variety of interesting articles, photographs, cartoons, world labor review—an item or more to interest the most exacting of reading workers.

Now is the time to order a bundle, before the ink has scarcely dried on its pages. It is an easy matter to secure a sub from any worker who already has had the pleasure of going thru especially this number.

The success of the Workers' Monthly is an important contributing factor to the success of the DAILY WORKER. When you build one, you are building the other—and whichever you build, you are building the Communist movement in this country.

COMMUNIST-CHILDREN'S-COLUMN

Miners' Children Need Shoes and Stockings

Our readers will remember that Comrade Ross White of Sessor, Ill., has been collecting funds and clothes for the families especially the children of unemployed miners thru the columns of the DAILY WORKER.

We print his letter and hope any comrade who can help these miners' families will do so at once while their need is so great. Incidentally we might add here that the employees in the building of the DAILY WORKER have only recently sent a shipment of clothes.

Comrade White's Letter

To the DAILY WORKER: I received the parcel post package today which you mailed me and will say that I was glad to get the clothes for they will be of great benefit to some of the people here who have been out of work over a year. Still many of them here cannot understand what is wrong. Maybe they will wake up some time, but their children are not to blame. By the time the children grow up they will be too wise to vote for Coolidge and the Dawes' platform under which there are several families keeping cool here. We have two good mines and one of them has not worked since Nov. 20, 1923 and the other has ceased operating since Jan. 14, 1924 and this last mine still owes its employes back pay for the time they labored before the mine closed down. Sometimes we can hardly get coal for house use and when we do it costs $6.00 a ton and with nobody having any money or any sign of making some they keep cool while Coolidge is comfortable.

This is cruel punishment for those who are already exerting every effort to advance the workers' cause, but it is of good educational value for those workers whose minds are still poisoned with bosses' propaganda.

I want to thank you very kindly for helping us out in our struggle and also for any favors in the future, tho the need is not so great now as it was about two months ago, for I received a lot of clothing from my appeal in the DAILY WORKER.

Our greatest need now are shoes and stockings for children from 6 to 12 years of age and money to keep some of the people here in coal. If you can in any possible way get a collection, even if it is small, just send it on and I will return an itemized account of how it was spent to be published in the DAILY WORKER.

I remain your comrade and more power to the DAILY WORKER.

ATTENTION JUNIOR GROUP LEADERS OF CITY OF CHICAGO

Tonight at 8 o'clock sharp at 221 No. Avers Avenue a very important meeting of all the Junior group leaders will take place. Every group leader must attend this meeting and get there on time! This meeting is of the utmost importance!

All previous arrangements, if any have been made, must be postponed for the attendance of this meeting.

Junior Valentine Dance.

This will be a very novel affair. Our juniors are putting into it all the ingenuity they posses and their only worry is that the seniors and party members give them sufficient support by sending all their juniors (who are not yet members) and by coming to the affair themselves.

Whenever the juniors arrange an affair—its always a corker!

"The Beauty and the Bolshevik" is coming to Ashland Auditorium Feb. 5.

SHYLOCKS WRING HANDS AND YEL ZINOVIEV AGAI

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Zinoviev sent the letter to the British Communist Party telling them to organize nuclei in the army and navy and prepare to overthrow the British capitalist government: Zinoviev called upon the French Communist Party to organize factory nuclei, in order to mobilise the workers for the final struggle with French imperialism and for the seizure of French factories. Zinoviev called upon the colonial peoples of Africa and Asia to prepare for the military struggle again world imperialism.

Center Attack on Zinoviev.

It's Zinoviev, Zinoviev, Zinoviev. The capitalists are shrewd in centering their attack on Zinoviev, for they know that he is the president of the Communist International and the Communist International is their only enemy.

But now they have discovered Zinoviev in another "atrocity." The French art treasures formerly in the French embassy at Petrograd (old name) have disappeared. The building was sealed up many years ago, and now that the French ambassador has returned to Soviet Russia, he wants to take possession of the embassy and everything in it. Holy horrors! When the seals on the doors were broken, the art treasures were gone. Who could have taken them but Zinoviev! The seals had not been tampered with—everything apparently was in good order—but, the treasures had disappeared.

The French are good sleuths. So they established the fact that the art treasures had been removed thru the windows and taken to the home of Zinoviev. Zinoviev, the vandal!

Anything else? Perhaps Zinoviev also raped the wife and daughters of the former French ambassador. Perhaps one of them is among the "nine wives" he is alleged to have or to have had.

Atrocities—atrocities! This shows the desperation of the capitalists before the growing power of the Communist International.

Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs Takes Slap at Klan

The state board of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs has adopted a resolution barring from membership any woman "affiliated with any organization which tolerates by practice or teaching violation of national or state laws." The resolution is said to be aimed at the members of the ku klux klan. The resolution was enthusiastically received at the meeting.

What Capitalism Does to the Farmers

THE U. S. Department of Agriculture has been making a study of the difference between what the consumer pays for a box of apples and what the grower gets for his labor. The consumer pays $5 for a box of fine apples and the farmer gets only $1.18 of that.

Farmer Sitting Pretty.

Thirteen fruit-shipping associations furnished data for the study. Of the $1.18 the grower received he had to pay for boxes, paper, nails, labor, overhead charges, etc., amounting to 40 cents. Of the 78 cents left he had to pay for all the cost of production, which include such costs as pruning, spraying, irrigating, thinning, fertilizing, picking, equipment maintenance charges, hauling to central packing houses, taxes and interest on investment in orchards and equipment. This is for the best apples and receipts for inferior quality were, of course, much less.

The retailer took $1.87 or 37.4 per cent of the total retail price. The jobber took 40 cents, or 9.8 per cent. Transportation charges were 80 cents, or 16 per cent. Shipping organizations' market campaigns averaged 27 cents, or 5.4 per cent.

The department is making an investigation to see if these charges may be reduced. Efficiency of methods is what it is looking to as the government has no intention of getting apples to any consumer in any other manner that that by which profits may be made out of him. Therefore the government's experts are using their energy to learn something about improvement of handling facilities speeding up sales processes, effecting economies in packing, transportation and handling in wholesale and retail which means getting more profits for capital.

Firetraps and Profits

An old apartment house on the south side of this city took fire and after the smoke cleared away, it was learned that six persons, men, women and children had lost their lives in the flames.

An investigation has been instituted to establish responsibility for the disaster. This is the usual thing to do, but as usual nothing will happen, except the making of a few threats by the politicians and much publicity for the same fraternity.

Nothing will be done about it, because the politicians are defenders of the capitalist system which is responsible for last Saturday morning's tragedy. Landlords are powerful factors in society under capitalism and their interests must be safeguarded. Let the public howl for a few days! They will forget all about it shortly and landlords must be saved from the necessity of laying out their good money in order to make their firetraps safe for human habitation.

We had hundreds and thousands of such "accidents" in the past. And each "accident" was followed by an investigation. And each investigation was followed by silence until the next "accident."

Mayor Dever, State's Attorney Crowe and all the other public officials elected to office by the workers of this city are hand in glove with the landlords and the capitalists. They will do nothing. They will not even enforce the laws already in existence. That would in some measure protect human life in tenements and apartment houses.

No sincere voice will be raised in the city council to advocate steps that will compel landlords to make their death traps safe for workers and their families. There is not a single representative of the workers in the city council.

The organized workers of Chicago should make an investigation of their own into the housing situation in this city and they should also take steps in the aldermanic elections which will be held here on February 24, to send representatives to the city council who will defend their interests and expose the profit mongering capitalists who do not even stop short at murder thru criminal negligence to make profits.

Professional Charity

Twenty-six million dollars is raised annually in Chicago for charity, reports the Chicago Council of Social Agencies. That is half a million a week. The council thinks that isn't enough and is initiating a movement to start a "community chest" for Chicago.

The council doesn't report how many fat jobs are being held down in the hundreds of "welfare" organizations in the city. Certainly a comfortable portion of the half million a week never reaches the "needy." Nor does the council take the trouble to explain that demands for more charity contributions are nothing less than a damning finger pointing to the rottenness of Chicago conditions.

The local labor movement is up in arms at the suggestion of a community chest. These centralized campaigns have been conducted in many other cities of the country and in not a single instance has the labor movement been given a place. They always turn out as a monopoly for professional philanthropic agencies. And anyhow, what business has labor in philanthropic work?

Scott Nearing's generalization that philanthropy involves control of social policy in education and elsewhere becomes important in the spending of $26,000,000.00 a year in a single industrial center.

Freezing the King

The three thousand engineers and stokers whose busines it is, when they are working at it, to keep London's palaces and government buildings warm, folded their arms and parked their shovels, when a non-union man was added to the working force.

Even Buckingham Palace, where the king hangs out, is shivering. Perhaps the king is shivering with fear as well as with cold. Not that he has anything to worry about just now, but if British workers have so far forgotten themselves as to let their king freeze, they might also decide to let him starve and save a lot of good food.

Ministers of the tory government are huddled around a grate fire in Downing Street, wearing their overcoats. The strikers threaten to picket the houses of parliament if scabs are employed. In England these vermin are referred to as "volunteer workers."

Had three thousand subjects of the British king pulled off such a stunt a few hundred years ago, three thousands heads would be decorating as many pikes just as fast as the king's mercenaries could get at them. But today it's the king's head that sits uneasy on his shoulders.

Called Off!

According to a communication issued by Bert M. Jewell, head of the railway department of the American Federation of Labor, the railroad shopmen's strike which began in the summer of 1922 is now called off by order of the executive council of the A. F. of L.

This decision of the executive council is the most outstanding action taken by that body with regard to the shopmen's strike since that protracted struggle began.

There never was a labor struggle in this country that had such an excellent prospect of victory as had the shopmen's strike, yet never was there such a pitiable fiasco, and entirely because of the treachery of the A. F. of L. leadership particularly of William H. Johnston, Jewell and the Gompers gang.

One-half of the membership of the railroad shop crafts remained at work while the other half struck. The maintenance-of-way men, despite an overwhelming vote to strike, were not permitted to down tools by their officers. Two weeks before the strike started, William H. Johnston had a conference with Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. At that conference the initial steps were taken to sell out the members of the Machinists' Union to the B. and O. The infamous B. and O. plan of class collaboration was a result. Faced by such treachery, what could the men expect but defeat? They were licked from the start.

Treachery and defeats will be the lot of the railroad workers until the lessons they might have learned from their defeats are burned into their hearts. The old craft system of organization must give way to industrial unionism. The old corrupt and capitalistically-minded leaders must go. And the workers must see beyond the immediate goal of a higher wage and better working conditions to the goal of a workers' government and freedom from capitalist rule, poverty, unemployment, strikes, lockouts and all the other evils that flow from that system.

The child labor amendment is beaten, but the faith of the liberals and reformers in ultimate victory via the amendment to the constitution route is unshaken. They will ultimately "amend" capitalism out of existence, when the tiger becomes a vegetarian or a vegetarian becomes a tiger.

Laundry Workers Strike

Every driver, to a man, in the Brownsville, New York City, branch of the Clovelen Wet Wash Laundry has gone out on strike. There are thirty men driving in this laundry and the men, all members of the Teamsters' and Drivers' Local No. 810, American Federation of Labor, quit unanimously. They are dissatisfied to such an extent with their conditions there that they struck and will formulate their demands which will be published in the DAILY WORKER as soon as presented to the laundry by the drivers.

But the Clovelen laundry didn't like the strike and felt it would hurt their business so much to have it become known their drivers were dissatisfied that they immediately changed the name of the company to Premier Laundry, so as to befuddle the women in the neighborhood, who would know of the strike.

The strike will ask women sending out their wash to watch for the union button on the drivers who call for articles they want cleaned.

The drivers feel confident and will have the sympathy of the whole neighborhood.

The number of registered unemployed in England on last January 5 was 1,307,800. It is estimated that at least half a million more idle workers did not list themselves on the exchange. The unemployment evil is the most damning indictment that can be drawn against the capitalist system and it cannot be solved under capitalism.

Judges Are Sacred

Harry A. Ely, world war veteran, called a New York judge a "numskull," and got six months to three years for it. Judges are sacred beings in the United States, and the capitalist courts are sacred institutions. Judge Mancuso, who tried the case, declared that "Justice Caffrey's reputation and integrity as a judicial officer stands unimpeached. A writer has the right to publish truth with immunity, with good motives and justifiable ends, whether it respects the executive, legislative or judicial branch of our government. But if one goes out of his way to asperse the personal character of a public man, and to ascribe to him corrupt motives, he does so at his own peril. The law requires that he must prove the truth of what he says."

Do you have to prove to one judge that another judge is a "numskull"? The workers know it very well, but judges are really such numskulls that they don't even recognize it. Nevertheless, don't call the next judge a numskull. That will be at your own peril. You will have to prove it, even if the judge is one.

Two Chicago millionaires made substantial contributions to the fund for rebuilding a local episcopal church. The families of both millionaires, when questioned as to their church membership, said they did not belong to any church, but attended the particular church to which the donations were made "whenever they went to church." The working class alone take church seriously, tho it is one of their worst enemies.

Gouged Tenants Can't Criticize Judges

futility of getting justice under capitalism, several prominent New Yorkers are plunging into the fray and will afford good copy for the radical press, and much distress for the mossbacks.

Calls Judge Numbscull.

Captain Ely is said to have claimed that a certain judge was a "numbscull" which is a word not found in the Student's Standard Dictionary, but which, nevertheless, must have gotten under the skin of the judge in question. Making it appear that things may be found in judges that cannot be found in ordinary dictionaries.

Capt. Ely's attorney, Robert Ferrari, No. 165 Broadway, will this morning ask Supreme Court Justice O'Malley for a certificate of reasonable doubt, in order to obtain his client's release on bail pending appeal. The grounds improper and prejudical remarks by Judge Mancuso in the trial and alleged vituperative language and "indecent references" to Capt. Ely by Assistant District Attorney Panger.

In the Tombs yesterday Capt. Ely declared the article upon which he was convicted, appearing in an issue of the Tenant last May, was predicated in part on the report of Gov. Smith's court commission.

"There was nothing in my article," he said, "as strong in its characterization of some of the practices and conduct of the municipal courts as that contained in the report of this commission.

"It may be said I was convicted, not on a charge of attacking the courts, but of libelling a Judge. That is true—but the assistant district attorney impressed the jury by every means in his power that my article tended to bring the courts into disrepute, and the judge in sentencing accused me of attempting to destroy public confidence in the courts."

Caffrey, and other municipal court judges, the New York Tenant charged, had been interpreting these laws in the interest of the landlords, not in behalf of the tenants for whom they were drawn. Caffrey and other judges,—but Caffrey the worst—had the habit of taking cases out of the hands of juries, at the last moment, and giving decision themselves, in the interest of the landlord. The particular case that Ely cited in the paper was a typical one, he said. A Washington Heights tenant refused to pay rent, on the ground that the landlord had refused to repair the roof and rain had flooded his apartment, causing considerable damage. A jury heard the argument, and then at the last moment Caffrey took the case from the twelve and decided in behalf of the landlord.

In the course of his article, headed "Scofflaw Judges," the aged veteran waxed very indignant, terming Judge Caffrey a nincompoop, a Tom Noody, etc. and advising the exploited tenants to remove him from his job and set him to work cleaning streets or doing other useful work. He also called Caffrey "Greenwich Village Bill."

As the criminal libel trial was closing in general sessions assistant district attorney Panger make some cracks that rivaled A. Mitchel Palmer at his worst, as when he said: "It is not Judge Caffrey against this defendant. It is organized society, as it is today, against those who are worse than the criminals. It is he who nibbles at the structure of our society." Judge Mancuse was nearly as bad, voicing his fears of revolution.

Fears the Revolution.

"How does calling a man a nincompoop spell revolution?" Defense Attorney Robert Ferrari said, discussing the case with the Federated Press. Ferrari's appeal brief will emphasize the point that his client was nominally tried for criminal libel but actually convicted for seditious libel, a statute dead since its repeal a century and a quarter ago.

Captain Ely is a [illegible] one of his jobs was the W[illegible] tunnel. He is a veteran of the [illegible] American War, the Filipino [illegible] tion, the Boxer Rebellion and [illegible] great war—in the last named [illegible] served in a technical capacity. [illegible] record is that of a conventional patriot, save for his unpaid activities in the tenants' organization, which the courts consider subversive.

Judge Mancuse in sentencing [illegible] said "Your war record . . . only aggravates, rather than extenuates, the offense, because one trained in military life, who has fought for the defense of his country, should [illegible] time of peace either by word, or of action attempt to undermine [illegible] destroy those institutions [illegible] our forefathers for the protection [illegible] life, liberty and property of citizens by unjustifiably and [illegible] ciously and untruthfully exposing [illegible] tribunals of justice to ridicule [illegible] contempt."

The jury was out 23 hours. [illegible] imum sentence is a year but the [illegible] sent him to the penitentiary [illegible] specifiying a term, which means [illegible] spends his year there unless the [illegible] role biards acts. He is in the [illegible] while Ferrari is trying to get [illegible] released on bail.

DEBS APPEALS FOR SUPPORT OF LABOR DEFENSE

"A Tocsin of Alarm," Says Socialist

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Feb. 1.—"The case of Ruthenberg and his associates appeals like a tocsin of alarm to every organized worker in America," cries Eugene V. Debs in an appeal to labor to assist the defense of C. E. Ruthenberg and others arrested in the Michigan red raids of 1922.

"It is enough for us to know that Ruthenberg, Foster, Minor and their associates committed no overt act of any kind, harmed no one whatever, and yet are in the penitentiary or on the way there. It is enough for us to know that these men, wholly void of offense, are treated as criminals only because of their connection with the labor movement.

"The Labor Defense Council in charge of the defense is making appeal for the funds needed in this critical situation, and I but do my duty in seconding this appeal and calling upon all friends and supporters of organized labor, and of the cause of free speech, free assemblage, and a free people, promptly to make their contribution according to their means and forward the same to George Maurer, secretary Labor Defense Council, 166 W. Washington st. Chicago, Ill."

From a Has-Been Farmer.

To the DAILY WORKER.—You are asking for contributions to the DAILY WORKER. You may get many from the cities but the farmers are still asleep. How did Cal Coolidge get elected? Here is the story of a farmer who had to quit farming and accepted the job of attending a canal lock. He is an old socialist, used to belong to Wayland's Colony. I met him after election. "Well comrade, for whom did you vote?" "For Coolidge!" "What?" says I, "you an old socialist?" It shocked me. I met him again later, we talked on different subjects and I found out he was also employed by the state government to take measure of rainfall, heat degrees, etc., and so I knew the poor devil, old and homeless, had to vote to keep his job for most likely he received a notice, "Keep Cool with Coolidge."

Now if the unemployed would create councils to demand either employment or payment of wages, whether in cities or on the farm a fellow out of work could be more independent and say instead of, "Keep Cool with Coolidge," "Make it hot for the capitalists."

Yours truly,
The Has-Been Farmer.

LENINISM FINDS MANY EAGER SUPPORTERS IN DENVER, COLO.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DENVER, COL., Feb. 1.—No, he wasn't here personally, of course, but we all felt as if he was, for Leninism certainly was and still is.

The occasion was our Lenin memorial meeting, held Sunday night at 8 o'clock. All the seats were filled, and it was necessary to put out extra chairs. Half an hour later there were no more vacant seats, and many had to stand up.

Extensive Program.

At 8:15 o'clock Comrade Krasick who acted as chairman, opened the meeting with a few introductory remarks on Lenin, and announced quite an extensive program of speaking music, singing and Russian dancing The program was as follows:

1. Revolutionary Funeral March by Balalaiko Trio.
2. Singing of the International.
3. Violin solo, by Miss Mary Kessler, accompanied on the piano by Miss Lilly Kaminsky.
4. Workers' Memorial, a recitation by Miss Jacobs.
5. Piano solo, by Miss Mildred Gains.
6. Talk on Lenin, by Comrade J Wilson.
7. Violin solo, by Comrade Emil Berkoirtz, accompanied on the piano by Miss Stein.
8. Another number by the Balalaika Trio.
9. Piano solo, by Master John Pilon.
10. Talk on the DAILY WORKER by Comrade Will Dietrich.
11. Russian national dance by Miss Berenbaum, of the Young Workers League.

In addition to the above program refreshments were served.

Audience Enthusiastic.

In justice to the above mentioned entertainers, I must state that the comrades who just recently came to Denver were suprised at the variety and skill of the comrades for there seemed to be no end to the applause after every number, and all had to give encores.

Life of Lenin.

Comrade Wilson ably presented the life and work of Lenin from his childhood to death and dwelt at length on Lenin's accomplishments and able leadership since 1917.

Accomplishments of Daily Worker.

But we did not forget the DAILY WORKER either, on the contrary, we rembered the suggestion that no meeting be complete without a talk on the DAILY WORKER.

So Comrade Dietrich told us why the DAILY WORKER is a necessity why it is the greatest labor paper in America, and also told us of its accomplishments in the past year. In concluding he stated that the only road to power is the straight road of Leninism, and that the best way to get acquainted with Leninism is to read the DAILY WORKER.

Large numbers of Lenin pamphlets and bronze buttons were sold. The meeting was then closed with the singing of the Red Flag.

Anna Pavlowa and Her Company at the Auditorium Theatre

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN

Nine ballets, among which were two revivals, were presented by Anna Pavlowa and her company at the Auditorium theater last Thursday night. The most important of the revivals was the first act on the program, the ballet "Coppelia" by Leo Delibes.

"Coppelia" is the first big ballet of Delibes, who later came to be known as the pastmaster and authority on that form of work. The story of "Coppelia" concerns a toy maker in a Galician village who has created a doll so life-like that one of the boys in the town attempts a flirtation with it, as it sits in the window of the toy maker's house. This precipitated a quarrel between him and his girl, which quarrel is patched up by revealing what manner of creature the doll is.

As with most of the classic ballet, there is no attempt at a realistic presentation of this story. Galician peasant girls do not wear the sort of ballet costume that looks like a great powder puff.

Any score by Delibes is a continuous wonder of tune making. The man had a fund of melody that never ran out, like the salt mill of the Sinbad story. And so popular has the music of the ballets "Sylvia" and "Naila" and the opera "Lakme" become that no movie cue sheet is complete without an extract from one of them.

"Coppelia" was followed by a ballet setting of nine Chopin works, orchestrated by Glazunov. Here was real classical dancing at its best. It was done by a large company dressed in white, in a setting of severe cypress trees, in a blue light. And to add to the beauty of the effect was the work of Anna Pavlowa hereself.

Among the short works at the end of the program was the revival of "Coquetterie de Columbine" by Richard Drigo. These short ballets, or divertissements as they are called in ballet lingo, ranged from the pastoral "Primavera" of Erik Meyer-Helmund at the beginning, thru the exploding colors of a clown affair set to the Russian dance in Chaykovski's "Nutcracker" suite, down to a wonderful bit of Poe-like horror, called "Les Ondines", set to music by Mario Catalani.

Pavlowa's orchestra is far from good. One can forgive, from considerations of economic necessity, its inadequate size, but one cannot forgive the exceedingly bad tone of some of the players, notably the first flute and clarinet.

Theordore Stier, the veteran conductor of the company, does wonders with so small a band.

Probe Submarine Wreck.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Feb. 1.—A naval court of inquiry today prepared to investigate the grounding of the United States submarine S-48. Meanwhile wrecking tugs stood by to pull the submersible into deep water Seven of the thirty-eight officers and men from the undersea craft were recovering in the naval hospital here from the effects of exposure and the breathing of chlorine gas.

Neck Broken; Didn't Know It.

DANVILLE, Ill., Feb. 1.—Mrs. Mary Spencer, of Kingman, Ind., has been suffering from a neck broken in two places for two weeks, and did not know it. This was revealed today following an X-ray examination, taken to determine the nature of injuries sustained when she fell down stairs two weeks ago.

LABOR REACTION IN MINNESOTA FIGHTS Y. W. L.

Rushes to Protect Capitalist Education

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 1—The campaign by reactionary elements in the labor unions of Minnesota, to [illegible] Communists and progressives, has not only become the talk of the whole state, but is reflected in other reactionary movements. Among these is the anti-labor biennial report of the so-called "state board of visitors" filed with Governor Theo. Christianson.

Wants Dissenters Suppressed.

This report excels in [illegible] action, and is apparently written by those who know nothing, have learned nothing and are incapable of learning anything about the education of the young, except that "hundred per centism" and the sacred interests of corporations and the whole capitalist class demands that the Young Workers' League be suppressed.

That the Young Workers' League is a sort of a collective and [illegible] raises "corrupting the youth" [illegible] gist of the matter, and the "board of visitors" wants the [illegible] on at once in the form of [illegible] probably a more savage [illegible] "criminal syndicalist" law, to prohibit the activities of all organizations aiming to incite the overthrow of existing American government.

Desires Docile Wage Slaves.

The report evinces much concern for the "future usefulness" of the young—to American capitalist employers, and says that "The Young Workers' League has branches in different towns and cities in Minnesota. Five branches are in Minneapolis and three in St. Paul.

"The campaign of instruction," says the report, "includes the Communist doctrine for overthrow of American government and organized opposition to capitalism in any or all of its forms." This opposition to capitalism naturally includes opposition to the capitalist control of education, therefore the "state board of visitors" have a reason for worry.

Murmur of the Jobless.

And still thru the long day,
With drudgery drear;
The slave drags his weary way,
Haunted with fear.
Wealth in abundance
Surrounds the poor knave;
But poverty stricken
He goes to his grave.

Though wealth may surround him,
He toils on and on;
While starvation haunts him,
'Til death comes along.
Though slaves can move mountains
And make machines roar,
They own not an ell
Of the land they adore.

What strange sort of creatures
Are those who deny,
Themselves and their loved ones,
The gifts that are nigh.
Toiling and moiling,
As though without end;
Piling up billions
For others to spend.

How strange that a master,
Thru preacher and press,
Can shackle the millions
As pawns in his chess.
Work, work is their cry,
"See, we starve, my good master.
We will fight, e'er we 'all,

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 1.—Beorge W. Cable, author of a score or more of well known books, died at his winter home here. He was 81 years of age.

How Workers May Achieve Success

Harry Thayer, chairman of the board of directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., speaking at a meeting of members of the Harvard business school club in New York City, said that the workers "must give the business they choose a chance. Don't give up until you really know something about it. Having laid out your course what is there to interfere with going straight to port? "

Now, We Know!

The reason there are so many poor workers is that they do not give the business a chance. The workers, either out of envy or misunderstanding of the interests of the bosses, work against the business, and therefore cannot have success themselves. The 25,000,000 workers of this country still need a lesson as to the deep interest that their bosses take in their, the workers', welfare. They should work more intensely—they should think of nothing else but the business. Then having "laid out your course, what is there to interfere with going straight to port?"

Yes, what? Capitalism itself, which is based upon the power of the few to exploit the millions. Their control of industry makes the millions work for them as slaves. Their control of government puts them in a position to dictate to these slaves. Oh yes, go "straight to port"—to the port of economic slavery—unless the workers think more about giving themselves a chance and then go straight to port—to bat with the system and put an end to it.

Mr. Thayer understands his end of the question. It is about time that the workers begin to learn somethin; about theirs.

MIN[illegible]ESOTA LABOR REACTION BEATEN

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

MRS. ETHEL SNOWDEN, wife of Philip, former chancellor of the British exchequer, is touring Canada under the auspices of the department of education. That a capitalist institution should tour a socialist is sufficient proof that Ethel's socialism is of the yellow brand. What the lady says about education has not caused as much discussion as her expressed views on the character of the [illegible] that Ramsay MacDonald [illegible] to the parliamentary labor party during the last days of his premiership.

MRS. SNOWDEN said, substantially that Ramsay's leadership was everything it should not be and that the tories made a horse's neck out of him on the Zinoviev forgery issue. A more astute leader, said Philip's wife would be able to prove that the labor party had nothing in common with bolshevism without playing into the tories' hands by accepting the fake letter as genuine. Ethel's contention is, that had Philip been in Ramsay's place, things would have been different. That and her prediction that the British monarchy is safe forever in the hands of British labor, is causing lively comment in British trade union circles.

[illegible], moderately progressive [illegible] leaders of the British trade union movement took violent exception to Ethel's prediction, regarding the future [illegible] of the monarchy thereof [illegible] majesty, George, the [illegible]. They claim no yellow socialist has a right to set bounds to the progress of the working class [illegible]. They feel that even the King [illegible] possibly join the social[illegible] provided it does not grow [illegible] for him, that would [illegible]

THE British delegates to the Russian trade union congress continue to cause excitement in the haunts of the yellow socialists on the continent of Europe and even in America. They have successfully refuted the lies of the socialist press about "poor, downtrodden Georgia." They have shown that the workers and peasants of Georgia are now really free and prosper under Soviet rule. They have shown that the various "uprisings" that took place in Georgia have been [illegible] by the capitalist governments thru their socialist agents. The anger of the yellows is so intense that Vandervelde, one of the King of Belgium's ministers, made a vicious attack on the British trade unionists at a recent meeting of the Socialist and Labor International.

AS a counter defensive against the trade unionists, Purcell, Tillet Bromley and others, the capitalists, socialists and the anti-Soviet forces generally put the notorious political prostitute Emma Goldman on the platform to belch forth her venom against the workers' and peasants' government. Emma was always a shallow faker who lived in luxury in the United States, while giving a thrill to the bored female parasites of the bourgeoisie, with lectures on sex and kindred subjects. She had quite a following among that section of the capitalist and middle classes that finds in perversion the only outlet for their surplus energies. Perverts being at a premium in Russia, Emma felt quite out of place and decided that Picadilly was more in her line than either the Nevsky Prospect in Petrograd, or the Red Square in Moscow. She is welcome to her company.

THE extreme right wing of the trade union movement in Minneapolis is not satisfied with ousting Dan Stevens from the Trades and Labor Assembly. They want him expelled from the Painters' Union, also. And not only do they want the Communist, Stevens, expelled, but they also want to get rid of Robly D. Cramer, Bud McKillop, of the Labor Review, and Dick Wiggin, three fakers just as reactionary as the

[illegible]EF PLANNED FOR IRELAND AS FAMINE SPREADS

No Fuel, No Food While Epidemics Rage

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DUBLIN, Feb. 2.—Human misery is rapidly reaching its lowest ebb in South Fermanagh, for there famine conditions are tragically acute, said reports from Enniskillen, in that district today. In 27 towns many families have not tasted potatoes since November.

Potatoes always have been the main and staple diet for these people and the lengths to which they have gone to substain within themselves the spark of life is a story of privation almost beyond comprehension in countries where there is food and warmth.

Peat is not to be had for fuel. Farmers go about daily combing the bleak countryside for green heather with which to kindle a tiny flame for their suffering families.

Illness is general, malnutrition is widespread.

Epidemic in Donegal

Gales blowing off the Atlantic are daily adding to the hardships of the inhabitants of the west countries of Ireland.

Three were dead and ten injured today from derailment of two coaches of a train, blown from the viaduct by the fury of the gale last night.

In Donegal the situation has been aggravated by epidemics which have killed huge flocks of sheep.

The famine area covers several [illegible] the farmers of these districts are at a standstill.

FIGHT ON STONE CONFIRMATION WITHDRAWN

Re-indictment of Sen. Wheeler Proceeds

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.—The month-old fight to prevent elevation of Attorney General Harlan Fiske Stone to the United States supreme court virtually ended this afternoon when the senate judiciary committee recommended his appointment for the second time.

The committee took this action when Senators Borah, Rep., Idaho, and Walsh, Dem., Montana withdrew their opposition to the appointment which had been based on charges that Stone was "persecuting" Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Dem., Montana.

While the committee was approving Stone's promotion, a federal grand jury met in the court house, a few blocks away, to re-indict Wheeler. It was this move by the Attorney General that provoked the attack on his nomination.

The committee acted without a record roll call but announcement was made that no negative votes were cast against Stone. Senator Walsh attended the session.

The result, it was predicted, insures confirmation of Stone by the senate within a few days.

New Junta Claims Power

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.—The United States has received a note from the Chilean foreign office officially announcing creation of a new Junta and cabinet, the state department announced today.

COLORADO PRISON WARDEN ON TRIAL CHARGED WITH BRUTALITY, FLOGGING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 2.—Thomas Tynan, warden, of the Colorado state penitentiary, went on trial today on charges of incompetency, brutality and flogging before the state civil service commission. The charges were filed by former Governor Sweet.

The charges contain twenty specific citations. Both sides are expected to call scores of witnesses.

COOLIDGE FAILS TO AID NOME, STRICKEN WITH DIPHTHERIA

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 2.—Word was received here from Nome, Alaska that 5 residents of the stricken town died in one day as a result of the diphtheria plague.

One million units of anti-toxin were sent from here on the steamer Alameda which will be taken overland from Seward to Nome. The dog team speeding toward Nome was due to arrive in the plague ridden city today.

Dr. Marguder of Seattle who sent the serum, declared no word has been heard from Washington in answer to repeated requests that the government arrange for shipment of the serum to Nome by airplane.

Dr. Curtis Welch, the only physician in Nome, had previously reported four deaths. The temperature in Nome is now 50 degrees below zero.

STRIKE AGAINST TEXTILE WAGE CUT IN UTICA

Unanimous Strike Vote at Once Effective

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 2.—A unanimous strike vote was made by the workers of Utica Steam and Mohawk Valley cotton mills in a mass meeting at the Labor Temple Sunday afternoon.

Their action resulted from a 10 per cent cut in wages announced two weeks ago. Production has been continued for one week at the reduced rates, while committees from the various departments sought an adjustment with owners, the combined committees met mill officials Saturday afternoon with no results.

Workers Resent Report.

Their report claimed that wages must be lowered or the mills closed. In the discussion which followed, workers asserted strong feeling and declared living conditions would not allow the cut to be accepted with self respect after the unanimous vote, which is immediately effective.

Jos. R. White, organizer for the United Textile Workers affiliated with American Federation of Labor, took charge and came out strong for orderliness and businesslike procedure. Until then he remained out of the discussion only outlining the action already taken to avert strike and reading various communications with the mill owners.

Greeks Try to Keep Calm While Waiting For Reply from Turks

ATHENS, Feb. 2.—Warlike sentiment still stirred a part of the capital today, altho the government was endeavoring to maintain a calm attitude while awaiting a reply from Turkey to the Greek protest against expulsion of ecumenical patriarch from Constantinople.

Kemal Takes Charge.

ANGORA, Feb. 2—Mustapha Kemal, president of the Turkish republic, today had taken personal charge of the Turkish end of the Greeco-Turkish controversy.

It was understood that Turkey took the attitude that the expulsion of the patriarch was an internal question which Turkey alone could handle and that Greece had no right of intervention.

French Step In.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The French endeavored today to bring about a friendly feeling between Greece and Turkey Premier Herriot received separately the Greek minister and the Turkish minister. Herriot, it was officially announced, "strongly urged the necessity of reaching an agreement" on the question of Greece maintaining an ecumenical patriarch in Constantinople.

MILITIA SLEEPS WHILE HERRIN MAN IS KILLED

Small's Aides Slumber Upstairs During Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 2.—Governor Len Small declared he has "no intention of declaring martial law in Herrin."

A little later, however, word came that Joseph Phillips, a stranger in Herrin, was killed in a gun fight with two Herrin policemen in the lobby of the Lymar hotel while Maj. Davis and two aids were in bed in the same hotel.

Black had said about the three guardsmen, "Major Robert Davis and lieutenants sent into the storm zone Sunday night, have reported the situation well in hand."

Black declared, "If Sheriff Galligan were sincere in his request for troops he would have come to see the governor here. The governor cannot declare martial law on the advice of a sheriff's representative." It is known that many of the guard militiamen are members of the ku klux klan.

Phillips was killed by Policeman Rufus Whitson after Phillips had come to blows with Policeman Sim Stephens. The militiamen did not wake up.

Galligan sent a wire that he could not come to Springfield as he was "unavoidably detained." Small has repeatedly declared his reluctance to send troops to Herrin to stop the klan rioting. Small was supported by Glenn Young in his last election campaign.

FORT DODGE TO HEAR BOLSHEVIKS FEBRUARY 10TH

Town of 300 Votes and No Members of Party

(Special to The Daily Worker)

FORT DODGE, Iowa, Feb. 2.—This town gave W. Z. Foster and the Workers Party over three hundred votes last November, in the face of an intensive LaFollette campaign, without so much as one speech or the distribution of literature.

In an effort to find the cause for this phenomenon the Workers Party will hold a mass meeting at the Labor Temple, third floor, Commercial National Bank building, 7th and Central avenue, on Tuesday evening, February 10, with J. E. Snyder and David Coutts as speakers.

There are no Workers Party members in Fort Dodge and the socialist party has long since passed away, with the exception of a few who are still affiliated with the Italian federation of the S. P.

One Time Thriving Town.

Fort Dodge was, up to about five years ago, one of the liveliest little burgs in America. It was well organized with the gypsum miners and millmen as the backbone of the labor movement.

Then the big gypsum plaster and cement companies sought to reduce wages and precipitated a strike which lasted, in the case of the miners, over eighteen months, the millmen stood out even longer.

Moyer Knifed Strike.

The strike of the gypsum workers was unauthorized by their international, the Mill, Mine and Smelter Workers, and was against a change in their contract and a reduction of one dollar a day for fifteen months.

The United Gypsum company, the largest firm here, owns 40 mills and mines scattered in many states. Some of the other firms also have plants in other states. Yet, in spite of this competition with unorganized workers, Fort Dodge was the only locality with

MUSHERS WITH SERUM FOR NOME THOUGHT LOST IN BLIZZARD

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 2.—Leonard Seppalla and his companions "mushing" their way towards this city with anti-toxin serum to check the diphtheria epidemic, may be lost in a blizzard raging on Norton Sound.

Nothing has been heard for hours from the men journeying across the ice with their dog sleds. The storm has been raging over the snow and ice covered trails, forming the path of the mushers, and heavy winds have added to their troubles. Dog teams may be dispatched from here to search for Seppalla.

RELATIONS WITH SOVIET RUSSIA ASKED IN N. D.

Communist Legislator Has Resolution

BISMARCK, N. D., Feb. 2.—Among the bills introduced by A. C. Miller, the one Communist legislator in the North Dakota legislature, is one favoring full diplomatic and commercial relations between Soviet Russia and the United States.

The resolution recites how the Soviet government, established by the Russian workers and peasants as the best instrument of forwarding their happiness, has stood for more than seven years in spite of being continually attacked by capitalist-imperialist powers.

Refusal Has Capitalist Basis.

Notice is made of the refusal of the United States to recognize the Soviet government, and it is stated that such refusal can be based only on a reactionary opposition to the efforts of the workers and peasants of Russia to build up a social system where such exploitation as was known there and is still existing here, will not be known. The privileged capitalist class of this country naturally wish to stamp out this example of workers and peasants' revolutionary rule.

Would Benefit American Workers.

Twenty-one nations, among them the greatest of world powers, have been compelled to recognize the Soviet power, and the resolution declares that recognition would be greatly beneficial to the workers and farmers of the United States as well as a benefit to the toiling masses of Russia.

The resolution directs the North Dakota secretary of state to mail copies of the resolution to the members of the United States congress.

Many Attend Lenin Memorial Meeting in East Liverpool

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio, Feb. 2.—An excellent Lenin memorial meeting was conducted in the Trades and Labor Hall here on Sunday. Comrade Wolkoff, of Cleveland, made the principal speech in Russian, and there were shorter speeches and recitations in English, interspersed with very good musical selections.

About 100 people attended, including the Russian branch from Empire Ohio, and the audience was almost equally divided between Negroes, Germans, Russians and English speaking comrades. It was a very happy and successful meeting.

The Russian branch in Empire Ohio, is giving a big dance in the Lithuanian Hall, Steubenville, Ohio on the evening of Feb. 14. All workers are invited.

British Police Think They Have Stack's Assailants

CAIRO, Feb. 2.—Two men attempting flight across the desert toward Tripoli, and disguised as Bedouins were captured by police today. It is believed they were implicated in the assassination of Sir Lee Stack.

Police adopting the same disguise held up the men with guns after they had boarded a train. All passengers were forced to alight and the two fugitives were taken from the crowd. The two pretended Bedouins were armed with automatics, whose cartridges were fitted with dum dum bullets. Police intimated the men might be the actual assassins of the British leader.

DEATH LIST NOW NINE IN FATAL FIRETRAP BLAZE

Coroner Blames Evil Housing Conditions

Hight rents and bad housing conditions were responsible for the fatal fire which Saturday killed nine people, Coroner Oscar Wolff said yesterday.

The high rents caused the crowding of almost 100 persons into 32 miniature "housekeeping apartments."

The apartments had originally been eight flats of seven rooms each. This caused the heavy loss of life, according to the coroner. Wolff demanded more stringent housing laws to prevent a recurrence of the disaster.

Three more were added to the original death list of six when one of the injured died in the hospital and Libby Anderson and Laura [illegible]gaard, tenants of the building, were found to be missing.

City Council Probe Waits

The investigation to have been conducted by the schools, fire and civil service committee of the city council did not materialize yesterday.

Alderman Wiley Mills, of the 37th ward, who had declared his intention of starting an investigation as to whether or not the city ordinances had been observed, said he had not yet seen Dorsey Crowe, chairman of the committee, who is the one empowered to conduct such an investigation.

City Inefficient

"Everyone knows that none of the inspection dept. of the city are efficient, or can properly take care of their work," said Mills. "Every inspection department in the city hall is undermanned. There are not enough city inspectors. Not enough money is appropriated for the inspection department, and good use is not made of that money which is appropriated.

"In the building department, there are barely enough inspectors to examine new buildings before giving permits to build. The old buildings are seldom looked at by the city inspectors. It is the same way in the board of health, the city fire department, and all other city departments."

Negro is Made the Goat

Noteby Appleby, the negro, who was arrested after the fire, charged with starting the flame by throwing a lighted cigarette into papers in the basement, was arrested on no other evidence but that he is a Negro. "I am not the janitor of the building at all," Appleby told the DAILY WORKER. "I am a pre-medical student attending Lewis Institute. I had a room in the basement for which I paid by doing odd jobs around the house such as tending the furnace. The janitor who is responsible for the care of the building is a white man. He was not arrested."

Appleby told how he was sleeping when the fire broke out. When he rushed to the street, the building was already in flames, but the basement did not burn.

MAHONEY LOSES IN ATTEMPT TO BAR COMMUNISTS

Farmer-Labor Federation Stands Solid

(Special to the Daily Worker)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 2.—The Communists were seated in the farmer-labor federation. The attempt to bar Workers Party members failed to materialize.

No attempt was made to reject the credentials of [illegible], Votaw, Wangerin and other Communists in the annual convention of the Ramsey county farmer-labor federation held last night.

Such an attempt was fully expected in view of a resolution adopted at a conference of farmer-labor leaders held on Jan. 17 in St. Paul, and in view of the general drive against the reds now going on in the Trades and Labor Assemblies of both Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Red Scare Collapsed.

Despite the red scare raised by William Mahoney and others, O. E. Wangerin was reelected secretary by a safe majority. Comrade Wangerin had been charged with disloyalty, double allegiance, and all the other bunk that Communists are charged with, but it just did not take. Comrade Emme in answering the red scare and double allegiance charges quoted from the organ of the Minnesota bankers, showing that those attacking the Communists were serving the interests of the bosses. His talk silenced the fakey fakers.

[illegible] Fred Tillquist. They pulled a clever piece of [illegible] by having Tillquist at first decline, then they all proceeded to tell how impossible it would be to do without him. At the proper time Tillquist agreed to be a candidate and was elected by a small majority.

Condemn Mahoney's Betrayal.

A resolution condemning Mahoney's pet "unity" conference was recommended for adoption by the executive board. Mahoney immediately introduced as a minority report a resolution in favor of his March 30 conference. He had taken care to have some of the farmer-labor politicians on hand in an attempt to spellbind the convention. The hour had grown late and a motion to table the March 30 proposition was carried to the evident chagrin of its sponsors, after which the meeting adjourned.

The move for the March 30 conference is a move to destroy the farmer-labor federation of Minnesota, the denials of Mahoney and others notwithstanding. The March 30 meeting is to be a get-together of all shades of "progressives" and is sponsored by Mahoney, chairman of the farmer-labor federation of Minnesota and Chairman Buckler of the legal farmer-labor party of the state at a meeting of selected individuals prominent in Minnesota politics, legislators and some members of the executive committees of both the legal party and the farmer-labor federation.

Attempt to Destroy Federation.

The excuse offered is that the farmer-labor federation is not representative of all progressive elements and that there are other organizations such as the farmers' nonpartisan league that do not work harmoniously with the federation. An article in Mahoney's Union Advocate states that if the unity conference does what is anticipated, the federation will be liquidated, and this without the con-

PEKIN, Feb. 2.—Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, leader of the government of Southern China, who underwent an operation for cancer recently, passed a comfortable night and was not in pain this morning. His physicians pronounced his condition satisfactory.

Dr. Sun Yat-Sen was reported dead Tuesday in dispatches received at Tokyo by a Japanese news agency. After Dr. Sun was operated upon it was expected that his illness would prove fatal within ten days.

A. F. of L. bureaucrats who are leading in the expulsions. The extreme right wing however, does not trust the Wiggins-Cramer gang. The fact is that there is not room enough for both. The Paul Smith supporters (Smith is the A. F. of L. dis-organizer who has spent two years in Minneapolis trying to wreck the labor movement), want to be in a position to sell out the workers to the bosses, to eliminate all strikes and to show the capitalists that they can make more profits by unionizing their business than by running open shop. They want a monopoly on this business.

WHEN Cramer and McKillop, et al, saw that there was real danger of the A. F. of L. lifting the assembly's charter, they stole a march on Smith and preferred charges against Dan Stevens for "slandering A. F. of L. officials." The fakers were sore because the fake progressives got the jump on them. But what could they do? They had to be satisfied with Dan Stevens' head for the time being. But judging from a weekly sheet gotten out by Paul Smith's chief crony, Louis Harthill, former socialist and chief of police in Van Lear's cabinet, Cramer and company are also on the expulsion list. This stoolpigeon Harthill fills his rotten rag with the most pernicious propaganda against everybody who has the decency to speak a word in favor of a square deal for the radicals.

A DELEGATE from the Teachers' Union make a speech in support of the veteran trade unionist, Dan Stevens. Stoolpigeon Harthill ran a big headline in his paper: "West high school instructor rallies to banner of Communism," and in smaller type: "Professor Dudley Parsons entering assembly as substitute delegate from Teachers' Union delivers maiden speech in eulogizing Dan Stevens and his 'magnificent work' for labor's cause." The fink editor then urges the parents of the children who attend the school where Parsons is employed to take steps towards removing him from his job. Can anything be more contemptible? Yet this is the usual policy of the labor fakers who cannot mee the radicals in a fair fight. They have to line up with the employers and rob their opponents of their bread and butter. A fine example of one hundred per cent Americanism!

ONE of the high spots at the Chicago Federation of Labor meeting last Sunday was a speech, or rather an outburst, delivered by Joseph Wise, formerly on the payroll of the DAILY WORKER Publiching company as a linotype operator, but now a scribbler for the A. F. of L. press' service, presided over by the ex-socialist, Chester Wright. Like his boss, Wright, it seems that Wise is wise enough to scribble for anybody that will come across with the mazuma. Indeed, it is whispered that if the ku klux klan made him a better proposition than Wright, he would squirt out his ignorance for the hooded order. Wise accepted the dollars of the Communist Party thankfully before he secured a sinecure from Sam Gompers.

GOMPERS is now dead, but those whom he placed on the payroll still shed tears regularly over his bier While the resolution condemning criminal syndicalism was being discussed Wise got up and raved against the Communists, particularly against the DAILY WORKER. He is sore on the daily because it showed the world what a buffoon he is and there is nothing an ignoramus hates more than to be exposed. He and Chester Wright make a good team, but the DAILY WORKER will miss no opportunity of exposing these buzzards who batten on the labor movement, to the rank and file. These per capita sharks would like to pose as militant trade unionists and get away with it. They are sore because the Communists turn the spotlight on them.

The fire department knows that there are hundreds of overcrowded rooming houses, mere firetraps, but can do nothing about them, as there are no laws under which to act.

"This building was built for an eight apartment building, to hold four to a family, but it was holding one hundred persons instead of thirty-two. The building had been converted into a 36 kitchenette apartment building."

BLUE LAW CRAZE HITS NEW YORK WITH VENGEANCE

Fanatics Give Order for Sabbath Joy Killer

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 2.—The blue law threats that have hitherto been considered merely as a joke took on definite form when a bill formulated by a Lord's Day Alliance was introduced into the New York legislature which would change the present penal code and close up everything on Sunday except churches.

Cuts Off Amusements.

Cutting off every avenue of amusement, recreation and education for the workers who have no other day free from labor the new law would tie the slave to his job with merciless chains and grant him no privilege on Sunday except to go to church and hear his master's preacher tell him to obey the employer and be content with his lot while he hopes for reward in heaven.

That the bill is fathered by the employing class and handed to fanatics to be pushed is clearly indicated in the restrictions which would effect labor more than the idle rich who may play all week and to whom a day of quiet is desirable, when no workingclass meetings or amusements may disturb them.

Padlocks and Bibles.

Fines, jail sentences, injunctions and the padlocks on the doorway would be metted out to Sabbath breakers.

From midnight Saturday to midnight Sunday the proposed new law would close all motion picture houses, all concerts, garages, barber shops, hairdressers' shops, all golf links, tennis courts or ball parks where a fee is charged or attendants are employed, public debates and all places of dancing where a fee is paid either directly or indirectly.

The proposed law would prohibit all public traffic on Sunday, all reduced fare excursions, ice cream, sodas and "all noise unreasonably disturbing to the peace."

Funerals Would Be Silent.

It would permit only funerals, and without music unless it be the funeral of a soldier or veteran or member of a fraternal society, and then the proposed law would prohibit the playing of the music within a block of any church, and stipulates that "there shall be no fireworks."

Then the proposed law proceeds to bring under the penal code by name the activities which have managed previously to argue themselves to Sunday freedom thru the courts. Moreover the proposed law doubles the penalties and makes the first Sabbath offender subject to a fine of $10 and $50, second offender not less than $20, third offender not less than $25 or ten days in jail or both, and after that the offender would be enjoined by the court as a public nuisance and a padlock placed on the establishment where the nuisance was committed.

The law provides liberty for those who observe another day than Sunday as their Sabbath as follows:

"Any person, who from conscience or conviction, observes another day of the week as a Sabbath and who habitually does not labor any part of such day, may not be prosecuted for any individual work or labor on the first day of the week, but may not conduct any business which is in violation of any provision of this article."

There is no provision in the proposed Sabbath law for any citizens who, from conscience or conviction, have no particular regard for the Sabbath.

WORKER PINNED UNDER BOULDER GROWS WEAKER

Imprisoned in Sand Cave Since Friday

CAVE CITY, Ky. Feb. 2.—Floyd Collins, who was pinned under a huge boulder in Sand Cave Friday night, 800 feet below the mouth of the cave, was still imprisoned today. Rescuers were tapping at the rock with a portable automatic drill brought from Louisville.

Collins after his long imprisonment, became weaker today, and for a time lost consciousness. He was able to make only faint gestures today.

Rescuers wriggled thru the narrow opening soaked with icy water seeping in from melting snows, and brought Collins food. Collins was pinioned under the rock for 24 hours before he was found.

330 Ships Used for Smuggling

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—More than 330 foreign vessels engaged in the "business of smuggling liquor into the United States during the past year." Attorney General Stone declared today.

Big Call for Movie Tickets Is Reported By Council Delegates

At the meeting of the Chicago Labor Defense Council last Saturday every delegate reported that there was an unprecedented demand for tickets for the coming show at Ashland Auditorium, this Thursday, Feb. 5th, from 7 to 11 p. m. The program will consist of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" and "Russia in Overalls," both of which have delighted big audiences in many eastern cities and will undoubtedly do likewise for Chicago's workers.

The Young Workers League orchestra will play, and the Freiheit Mandolin orchestra is expected to give several numbers. The South Slavic and Lettish orchestras are also expected to contribute.

Dime Admission for Children

Under a city ordinance every child must have a ticket, but the committee in charge wants no one to stay away on account the high cost of upkeep for children under capitalism. Admission for all under 12 will be only ten cents.

A large committee will be needed to handle the detail arrangements and everyone who can and will help is urged to be at the hall at six o'clock. At least forty committee members are needed.

ABRAMOVICH IS PLANNING TALK TO STEEL LABOR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Feb. 2.—According to word given out by leading socialists of the New York Forward's type, the notorious agent of the Second International, Rafael Abramovich will be secured for a meeting in the Youngstown steel district to offset the increasing sentiment for the first workers' republic.

The steel workers know how to handle men of the Abramovich type and thru the DAILY WORKER and the party language press, the steel workers wish to assure Abe Cahan & Co., that there will be several meetings in Youngstown when Abramovich arrives to do his dirty work.

Anarchists, yellow socialists and so-called progressives who have formed a united front to misrepresent and cowardly lie about the first workers' republic by importing Abramovich can feel assured of a warm reception.

Plan to Get Big Hall.

The large Communist organization amongst the steel workers is officered by workers who have the courage of their convictions.

The white guards have been advised to secure the largest hall in Youngstown to hold the steel workers who will greet Abramovich and his sluggers.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, to Hear Communist Talk on Feb. 20

any real union—they built up conditions and had good job control.

The strike had been on but a few weeks when an "open shop" drive was started. Nearly every business man in the town signed the declaration and posted the cards in his shop or office. Building workers and contractors were brought in from other cities and the fight was on in earnest.

Wages Reduced About Half.

Prior to the open shop drive, the gypsum miners received $6.50 for eight hours, and all overtime wages was forfeited to the union. The millmen received 65 cents per hour for day work. Loaders of rock received 33 cents per ton and averaged $8.00 a day with their overtime.

The miners now have to break the rock and build their own tracks, while many of them now work in water up to their knees. They get the same rate for double the work.

The millmen have been reduced from 65 cents to 35 cents per hour for day work, while loaders get 13 instead of the former 33 cents per ton. Loaders were limited to 12 cars, about 27 tons, by the union; now they load 50 tons, the company gets the difference —23 tons loaded for nine cents.

Good Rock; Big Investment.

The reason for the miners and millmen getting improvements was their union, and because of the quality and quantity of the gypsum rock. Also because of the large investment involved. One company paid one thousand dollars an acre and owned a whole section with the exception of 160 acres.

The rock is not only clean, and has good top and bottom, but it ranges in thickness from 12 to 35 feet. This makes it possible to blast as much as 75 tons at once. Gypsum to be good for plaster must be absolutely free from clay or grit. Only Fort Dodge has that kind in any great quantity.

Little Business Now Squirms.

With the reduction in the wages of the thousand gypsum mine and mill workers, followed by unemployment and bank failures, little business in Fort Dodge is being hit hard. They have long since repented of their debauch with the "open shop" drive and a number insist upon union and Fort Dodge labor on all their jobs. Not only the labor movement, but the busy little town has been paralyzed.

Bohn, Renegade, Offers Solution For Farmers' Woes Under Capitalism

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, Frank Bohn marches to the front, thru an article in "The Forum," and gives his version of the cause and cure of "The Great Farm Rebellion." He childishly speaks his little piece tuned for bourgeois applause.

It is interesting to note that Bohn confesses he changed the first few paragraphs of his article after reading a contribution in last October's "Forum" entitled "The Politics of Wheat." That is supposed to have brought his offering into harmony with the policy of this organ of intellectual New England.

A perusal of the opening paragraphs indicates that Bohn takes violent objection to the wives of wheat farmers in the Saskatchewan country in western Canada buying California cherries. Evidently Bohn, nestling among the codfish aristocrats of the efete East, has decided that western farmers are not entitled to eat cherries. He becomes an outspoken apostle of Coolidge "economy."

• • • •

Bohn was a "socialist" in the days before the war. He was active on the editorial side of the International Socialist Review, with strong leanings toward the Industrial Workers of the World. But the war ended all of Bohn's radical and revolutionary connections. He was sent to Europe by the ultra-respectable capitalist sheet, the New York Evening Post, while the Times later used him in Mexico. But he was born on a farm and that makes him an expert on agricultural problems.

• • • •

Bohn doesn't talk about revolution the way he once did. He went the way of John Spargo, William English Walling, Chester M. Wright, A. M. Simons and the rest. Bohn now advances the alternative that the nation's crops must be grown either by individual free farmers, "who own the land they work, or by powerful organizations of capital which employ a seasonal class of wastrels."

He can see nothing outside the individualism of the small landholder or capitalist exploitation applied directly to the land. And he shows his tremendous ignorance when he speaks of Soviet Russia, charging that, "with markets shut off, the farmers (of Russia) surrendered the pure gold of their great co-operative for the dross of the Bolshevist government monopoly."

In this he exposes himself in conflict with the views of nonpartisan observers, who have actually visited Soviet Russia and studied the conditions there, especially of the co-operatives, like Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, who reports that there is the greatest harmony of action between the Soviet government and the co-operative movement.

• • • •

Bohn urges various co-operative schemes as a panacea under capitalism, getting as enthusiastic about them as labor leaders who urge banking as a means of taking over the whole capitalist system. He urges as the greatest virtue of the capitalist state, that it be "inoffensive and weak, that it may not play the tyrant," concluding that, "Our political parties, our state and federal legislatures are mostly chattering, gossiping, harebrained affairs."

But it is this capitalist state that is the instrument of oppression wielded against the city workers and poor farmers alike.

Bohn's efforts to turn the farmers from their attack on this capitalist state will prove abortive. In the first place the poor farmers do not read "The Forum." The food speculators, who are today reaping enormous winnings on the boards of trade, might circulate a few free copies among the discontented, if they chose to spend some of their profits. Which they won't. And if they did, it is doubtful if any poor farmers could be duped into absorbing any of Bohn's nostrum. They have been presented with such piffle too often before.

• • • •

The poor farmers, in daily increasing numbers, are learning that the solution of their problems can only be achieved thru the overthrow of the capitalist state. The co-operative tilling of the soil and the distribution of its products can only be achieved, for the benefit of all, under a Communist society.

MAYOR TIED TO BANKS-BRENNAN TRACTION DEAL

The political boss of Chicago, George Brennan, has announced his approval of Mayor Dever's traction ordinance. Brennan said he is opposed to government ownership, but does not see anything about municipal ownership in Dever's plan which merely puts the traction lines more securely in the hands of the bankers and gives them a long and favorable franchise. The city, according to the mayor's traction ordinance, does nothing but take the risks of financing off the shoulders of the bankers.

The officers of the Chicago Federation of Labor, John Fitzpatrick, Victor Olander and Ed. Nockels, a few days ago were loudly declaring their anger at the speed with which the ordinance was being railroaded thru the transportation committee and the city council. Now, however, after the threat of Brennan and Dever that support of the democratic party would be withdrawn from Oscar Nelson, up for re-election in the aldermanic races, the federation officers are showing more signs of co-operation with Dever.

Confer With Mayor.

Olander, Fitzpatrick and Nockels had a two-hour conference with Mayor Dever Saturday, during which they urged that Nelson be forgiven for opposing the traction or railroading of the traction ordinance, and that he be taken back into the democratic fold

The three labor fakers said they would ask the transportation committee for more time in which to prepare and present their views.

MAY WHEAT CONTINUES TO HOVER AROUND THE TWO DOLLAR MARK

May wheat continued to hover around the $2.00 per bushel mark on the Chicago board of trade yesterday. Bulletins from Liverpool showed May wheat had dropped off 2½ to 2⅜ pence and from Winnipeg reports were that wheat had dropped 4 to 6 cents. This brot the price of May wheat to $1.99 but the commission men threw selling orders on the market and wheat again rallied.

55,848,000 bushels of wheat is reported in ships on the way to Europe.

Devers Traction Ordinance Plans Fluctuating Fare

The Dever traction ordinance, which puts the traction lines in the hands of the bankers until every dollar of the securities are bought by the city, will be presented to the city council on Feb. 13, it is announced.

An amendment has been proposed which changes the fare one cent each six months, according to the earnings of the traction lines after all charges are paid. It is not stated whether the city or the bankers will handle the finances.

NOTICE, SOUTH SIDERS!

The meeting will take place at the regular time and place.

THOUSANDS HEAR RUTHENBERG AT N. Y. LENIN MEET

Garden Overflows with New York's Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 2.—Fifteen thousand workers packed Madison Square Garden and cheered the Communist speakers at the Lenin Memorial meeting.

C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party, released from prison at Jackson, Mich., last week, received a tremendous ovation as he told the workers what Leninism means to America's toiling masses.

Rebuke to Abramovich.

Thousands of other workers were turned away from the doors, unable to gain entrance to the packed hall. The meeting was considered a stern rebuke to the mission of Raphael Abramovich, tool of the Second International, who is trying to create counter-revolutionary sentiment against Soviet Russia.

"Prisons only steel the workers in their fight for the overthrow of the exploiters and the establishment of the dictatorship of the workers," Comrade Ruthenberg declared amid storms of applause. "Lenin showed the militant workers of the world that they must organize on the basis of the everyday struggle of the working class, allying themselves with the toilers in the factories and on the farms."

Tells of Leninism.

Ruthenberg told the workers that they must replace the rule of the bosses with the rule of the workers, and that the working class must take over the industries and the state power and run them for their own use, and not for the profit of a few employers and bankers.

Two hundred and fifty policemen and detectives and 20 mounted police were distributed in and around the Garden, but did not interfere with the crowds.

The speakers included Ben Gitlow, well known leader of the garment workers, K. Radzi, the noted Russian speaker who spoke last year at the Garden; Jack Stachel, district organiser of the Young Workers' League; M. J. Olgin, the famous Jewish writer and speaker; Y. Nishimura, a leading comrade among the Oriental Communists, and Charles Krumbein, district organiser of the Workers Party.

The musical program was one of the finest ever gotten together in the historical Garden. It included numbers by the well known Freiheit Singing Society and the combined Freiheit and Hungarian Workers' Symphony Orchestra. The chorus included hundreds of well-trained voices and the orchestra, a fine organization of 100 of the finest musicians in New York City.

These were aided by Nina Gussieva the famous dramatic soprano. The musical program included the following numbers: The International, the Russian Funeral March, La Forza del Destino by Verdi, Aria Liza from opera "Pique Dame" by Tchaikowski, Ase's Tod by Grieg, Serp and Hamer by Kochotoff, Arbeiter Brider by Shaeffer, Tosca by Puccini, Gioconda by Ponciello.

The chorus was conducted by Lazar Weiner and the orchestra was under the direction of Arnold Powell, both of whom are well-known in the field of musical art.

SMALL DELAYS CHILD LABOR RATIFICATION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 2.—Legislators who professed to speak for Governor Small, said here today that Small will not introduce the ratification of the child labor amendment into the present session of the Illinois legislature.

Small, who during the campaign, posed as a "friend of labor" and who was backed for re-election by the leading labor fakers of the state, has been postponing presentation of the resolution from week to week. One Chicago representative said that "Since enough states have refused to ratify it to insure its defeat, there is no particular need for immediate consideration in Illinois."

Small has not helped the child labor amendment during the campaign, altho the officials of the labor unions, who helped elect him to office, are working for the amendment.

TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE WEEKLY SECTION

ALL DETROIT CARPENTERS "IN CONTEMPT"

Everyone Defies Injunction of Hutch

President Hutcheson is having an awful time trying to convince the carpenters of Detroit that the T. U. E. L. is a dual union. In order to show the terrible nature of this crime, Hutcheson thru his spineless agents got out an injunction to restrain Wm. Reynolds from attending his local union meetings and to stop any local from allowing him the floor or to taking any action on the matter until it was settled by a capitalist court.

Local Ignores Injunction.

At the meeting of Local 420, January 30, Botterill, Hutcheson's general dis-organizer, warned the local that if they allowed Reynolds the floor or acted upon his case they would be in contempt of court. The local promptly told the doddering Botterill and the court to go to the devil.

The local, to show how much the injunction restrained them, passed a motion unanimously condemning the officials of the district for getting out an injunction and, in order to make their proposition clear, passed the following resolution by unanimous vote:

Local 420 Has Resolution.

"WHEREAS, Brother William Reynolds of Local Union 2140, has been expelled by the general executive board without being given a fair trial as provided for in section 55 of the constitution, Brother Reynolds having been given no opportunity to defend himself or answer charges, and

"WHEREAS, Local Union 2140, being notified of this expulsion by the G. E. B., have taken action unanimously to repudiate this action of the G. E. B., and sustained Brother Reynolds in all his rights and privilges of membership and as president of Local Union 2140 until such time as charges are brought before the local union in a regular, constitutional manner, be it therefore

"RESOLVED, that Local Union 420 sustains the action of Local Union 2140 in protecting Brother Reynolds in his rights of membership, and be it further

"RESOLVED, that Local Union 420 condemns the policy of expulsions being carried on by the G. E. B. in Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Detroit as a policy which, if followed, can only result in the wrecking of the organization, and be it further

"RESOLVED, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the G. E. B., and to the official journal, the Carpenter, for publication."

What Local 19 Calls "Shipwreck."

Local 19, carpenters, the largest and oldest local in Detroit, at its meeting held January 26, elected Jack Welch, the left wing candidate for business agent by a vote of 88 to 33 cast for William Shipp. Shipp was former business agent and is now chairman of the district executive board. The election was on the issue of expulsions. Shipp stated that no goddamned radical was going to run this town. Well Shippy, old sock, we will assure you that if you do any running it will be out of town.

To make sure that Shippy knew just why he was defeated the local went on record unanimously against the injunction gotten out by President Hutcheson in the name of the district council. Censuring District President Sharrock and Secretary (Jelly) Fish for signing the injunction. They also went on record unanimously to refuse to recognize the expulsion of Reynolds.

Condemn General Office? Sure!

Local 1905, Detroit, at their meeting January 27, passed a motion condemning the injunction and ordered Sharrock, who is also president of this local, to have it lifted.

At the meeting of the Carpenter's District Council of Detroit, held January, 29, the expulsion of Reynolds and the injunction gotten out by Hutcheson and signed by the president and secretary of the council was condemned categorically by almost every delegate. Sharrock refused to entertain a motion to withdraw the injunction pleading that he had applied for it by instruction from the general office.

The council, however, in spite of the opposition of Sharrock, Fish and Botterill, by an almost unanimous vote condemned the general office for getting out an injunction, and in another motion demanded that Reynolds be given a fair trial. Sharrock refused to withdraw his name from the injunction and fined one delegate twice for saying what he thought of it.

Bring On Your Jails—Lawyer!

This means that the district council and all the locals of Detroit have gone on record to support Reynolds against Hutcheson's expulsion policy. They have all defied the injunction and legally stand in contempt of court. Hutcheson had a lawyer attend the council meeting to justify his action. He tried to scare the delegates not to violate the injunction. The meeting lasted until midnight discussing the case.

CENTRAL DISTRICT

COUNCIL BLUFFS UNIONS ENTER UNITED FRONT

Militants Get Special Child Labor Action

(Special to The Daily Worker)

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia.—The last meeting of the Council Bluffs Central Labor Union was visited by David Coutts and J. E. Snyder who spake on the campaign for ratification of the child labor amendment. They sat thru the entire business session and heard the reading of a mild resolution requesting the legislature of Iowa to ratify the amendment, two communications from the A. F. of L., and one from the T. U. E. L. on the child labor amendment were filed without being read.

Good and Welfare—Right!

Good and welfare arrived and with it the opportunity of the visiting militants. David Coutts opened up with a barrage on the apathy of the trade unions toward this vital question and mentioned some of the tricks of the forces of reaction opposing the amendment. He stated that he was well acquainted with the labor movement in Council Bluffs and knew it to be progressive in the past but that now the central body had given up leadership thru carelessness or failure to recognize the importance of this question.

He then urged that a special committee be appointed to get together the trade unions and organizations in favor of the amendment into an association to carry on a campaign, a campaign strong enough to be heard at Des Moines and elsewhere.

Only T. U. E. L. in Action.

Then J. E. Snyder, district organizer of the Workers Party, gave some facts as to the power of the opposition and the danger of defeat of the amendment thru lack of action upon the part of the labor unions. He had visited a farmers' convention at Des Moines last summer and had seen the propaganda of the opposition at work even then, while there was no counter-education carried on by the A. F. of L. to support the amendment. Only the T. U. E. L. had worked for it.

The unions should have gone into action on this months ago but it was not yet too late to save the name of the local and state labor organizations by getting into the fight now.

Real Work Ahead.

Two militants in the central body in Council Bluffs came into the room at this time. They had been auditing the books of the organization. There was no opposition to their motion to appoint a committee, which was done. One militant was appointed, which assures us that some real effort will be made to stir up the fighting spirit and make the conservatives and politicians take notice.

This is another feather in the cap of the Omaha T. U. E. L. Any issue upon which we can make the unions act will help make them more militant and give opportunities for presenting to them a more advanced program.

We have received four letters from members of Local 82, Machinists of Detroit, giving the results of the vote cast for the left wing slate. Each correspondent asked that their name should not be published. Dennis Batt was not amongst those sending in the report.

It was a straight fight between the left wing slate headed by Julius Emme and the Johnston administration ticket. This is Dennis Batt's balliwick and when the smoke of battle cleared Emme had defeated Johnston by a vote of 35 to 30, McNamara defeating McMahon by the same score while the Johnston forces nosed out a victory on the remaining vice-presidents by a 33 to 30 vote. Overgaard was defeated by seven votes and Tim Buck by 14.

Strikes Double Blow.

At a special meeting of Lodge 478 of the Machinists, in Chicago, the left wing scored another victory. At their last meeting they turned down the B. & O. plan, at this meeting they nominated Julis Emme for president, Tim Buck for secretary and P. Jensen and McNamara for vice-presidents.

MINN. UNIONISTS GATHER TO HEAR LEFT WING CASE

Good Spirit and Good Support Shown

By CARL SKOGLUND.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 2.—A big mass meeting was held in the Unitarian church here Friday. About 200 trade unionists responded to the call to hear explanations made on the campaign that is going on in the local labor movement to exclude the Communists.

C. A. Hathway explained at length the program of the T. U. E. L. and showed that the Communists are not in the trade union movement for the purpose of destroying the labor unions, but for the purpose of building and strengthening them.

Can Build Unions Only By Struggle.

He also showed that in order to build the labor movement, to fight in the interest of the working class, this movement must be built on a class struggle basis and not on a collaboration policy.

Walter Frank explained the condition of the building trades union. He showed that the reason for the inability and disintegration of the unions was due to the inability of the leaders to fight a militant battle in the interest of the workers, and not as the labor fakers wish to convey that the Communists are the destroyers of the labor movement.

Stevens Proves Case with Documents.

Dan W. Stevens, expelled member from the assembly, explained the charges that he made before the assembly at the time of his expulsion against the officials of the American Federation of Labor.

He proved by documents that what he stated was correct and the reason for the complaints were not because they were lies but on the contrary they were helping to expose the aim and workings of the leaders who wish to betray the workers.

Enthusiasm and Support.

All the workers present received speeches with great enthusiasm and manifested a great desire to stand behind and support the Communists in their local fight.

More meetings of this kind will be arranged in the near future to make it possible for the workers of Minneapolis to know the facts about the fight from time to time.

I. A. M. Helpers No. 915 Helps the Left Wing

At the last meeting of the Machinists' Helpers, 915 of Chicago, the B. & O. plan was voted down unanimously. Due to the activities of the T. U. E. L. this class collaboration baby of Bill Johnston's is not popular. One of the grand lodge auditors was present and was asked to explain the B. & O. plan and he said that he did not know a thing about it. Overgaard and others spoke against it.

Little Things Like This Doesn't Stop 'Em

The Auto Workers' Union 127, of Detroit, was not influenced by the fact that 13 states have turned down the child labor amendment. They not only endorsed the child labor amendment but elected two delegates to attend the conference for the ratification of it.

LEFT WING HIT HUTCHESON HARD IN CARPENTERS

Brown Makes Noise Like Tame Clam

In spite of the rigid control of the union machinery and flagrant stealing of ballots, President Hutcheson had to count nearly 35,000 votes against him. This is a remarkable showing, and without question is the real reason why Hutcheson, following the lead and advice of his pal, John L. Lewis, is starting out on an expulsion campaign against the leaders of those who led the fight against him. The official vote given out is as follows:

For President, Wm. L. Hutcheson, 77,985.

For President, Willis K. Brown 34,306.

For President, Morris Rosen, 9,014.

This is very encouraging to the progressive carpenters, with a very weak machinery, running for the first time a candidate upon a definite left wing program. Morris Rosen's vote was undoubtedly over 20,000. The outstanding fact is, that Hutcheson had to count 9,000 of these votes.

Again Willis K. Brown, paraded as a progressive, was accepted by many progressives on the rather weak grounds that Rosen had no chance to win. This is rather popular but fallacious idea that the main objective is to beat Hutcheson by supporting any opponent no matter how reactionary he may be.

The vote cast for Brown, generally speaking, is a progressive vote, and has thrown Hutcheson into a panic. He is now investigating F. W. Burgess, Brown's manager, who is undoubtedly slated for expulsion. So far none of the candidates who opposed Hutcheson has been threatened with expulsion. Brown, if he retains characteristic Coolidge silent opposition will not be touched. However, we prophesy that Morris Rosen or his campaign manager is next in line.

No. 181 Members Give Fakers Warm Time

Local 181 of the Carpenters' Union, Chicago, did not have any meeting Monday, January 26. The five expelled members with the support of the membership refused to leave the hall and the officials refused to open the meeting.

A Pleasant Time Had By All.

However, the night was not a dull one, the expelled members and the members generally in numerous speeches told what they thought of the Hutcheson-Jensen expulsion policy. This finally got under the hide of Harry Jensen and he tried to get the floor, but the membership howled him down and told him to open the meeting and discuss the expulsions officially.

A resolution demanding the immediate reinstatement to full membership, the giving of the expelled members a working card, and calling upon President Hutcheson to compel the local officials to live up to the constitution was endorsed and signed by 51 members.

Many Locals Support Expelled Men.

The expelled members and sympathizers have been visiting the other locals explaining their case. They have been well received by the membership. In Local No. 1, members took the floor and supported the expelled, the opinion expressed being that with such an expulsion policy no member was safe if he could be expelled without a trial. A motion was made to write to the general office and demand a speedy decision on the matter. Locals 242 and 13 took similar action.

JINGLE JANGLE

By SAMMY GAY.

THE RISING TIDE

"MILITANTS," what can that mean? Does no one really know? Perhaps it is some daring scheme, something that is oft' unseen until it strikes a blow. Czars are bold when all is well, their power becomes a whip; force is used to sound the knell, democracy must say farewell; and then—a scuttled ship. Stolen crowns are hard to keep, they're mostly made of brass; their gilding never very deep, the acid test will find them cheap, and then the czar must pass. T. U. E. L. has got their goat, the scuttlers now must pay; although they cry: "Don't rock the boat, our craft and flag must keep afloat;" just hear those fakers pray. So like a whippet after rats those militants are taken; they hit the crook right in the slats and make him show some acrobats, until his tricks are seen. Progressives now within the mine, though beaten back for years; Czar Lewis at them spewing slime and using every trick and crime, his finish now he fears. The carpenters have Hutcheson, a czar resourceful, too; there, militants have just begun and soon will have him on the run, though votes will not go through. Ha, ha! You simple democrat, your referendum law; with ballots in a trickster's hat, and sleight-of-hand with him quite pat, what do you think he'll draw? And shop committees, when a fact, you'll make them stand true blue; through them you'll make the local act, no crooked deal or bribing pact can then escape from you. Plute politics has been our curse, the pie cards have been won by crooks the bosses reimburse; while locals go from bad to worse, that's how our czars begun. So ditch the czars by starting right, the job's where you begin; then to the local take the fight, and carry on with zeal and might, for only fighters win.

TEXTILE BARONS TO BEGIN USING STRIKEBREAKERS

Unanimous Strike Vote in Rhode Island Mill

PAWTUCKET, R. I.—The Pawtucket Hosiery Co. announces that strikebreakers will be imported to take the places of operatives who refuse to accept the wage reduction of 10 per cent made by the company last week.

This is the first instance in New England where a mill owner announced that strikebreakers will be used. The 200 employes walked out last Tuesday in protest against the wage reduction.

At the same time the 400 workers at the Greenhalgh Mills of Pawtucket voted almost unanimously to strike unless the order reducing wages 10 per cent is rescinded. This company is also reported as planning to import strikebreakers.

Fifty weavers of the Manville mill of the Manville Jenckes Co. are on strike. The strikers asked for increased pay, a cut in the number of looms operated by each weaver and modification of a fining system for spoiled cloth. The strike affects 1,000 looms.

Newport, R. I., Gives Vote to Left Wing

NEWPORT, R. I.—At the last meeting of Lodge 119, I. A. M., the following left wing candidates were nominated:

For president, J. Emme.
Secy.-treas., Tim Buck.
For vice-presidents, P. Jensen, John Ottis, H. Garner, Alfred E. Goetz, McGovern and Slavens.

McGovern and Slavens are not on the left wing slate, but are progressives. Slavens supported all the progressive measures proposed by the left wing in the Detroit convention.

Pittsburgh Machinists Give All to Left Wing

The Pittsburgh militants were on the job at the last meeting of Local 671, I. A. M., the result being that the entire left wing slate headed by Julius Emme was nominated.

A Textile Worker Urges Amalgamation

By A Textile Worker.

CLIFTON, N. J.—"The Amalgamated Textile Workers of America does not exist any more," so wrote the general secretary of that union, Russell Palmer, to one of the locals and also to a member of the general executive board.

The leaders were known to some members, but the rest did as the general secretary-treasurer-editor desired.

In the convention of May, 1924, about 19 candidates were nominated for the executive board. Six or seven were elected thru referendum vote. The general executive board should meet every three months, but none was held.

Mr. Russell Palmer and Mr. Derrick the general organizer, did everything so they did what they wished with the locals, the money, furniture and the union.

In the convention of 1923 and 1924 also, efforts were made to get started with amalgamation—"One Union for all Textile Workers"—but the leaders fixed it so that resolution would be killed. Nevertheless, amalgamation is coming anyhow.

The leaders may see it coming and therefore destroy the union rather than permit amalgamation. Fellow workers, the only way to make some real success in our struggle is to have a union of all the textile workers. Therefore, push the leaders in your local for amalgamation—no worker is against it.

T. U. E. L. Reports Labor Lyceum Work

The militants more and more are beginning to understand the necessity of working where the masses are. In the shop, unions, Workmen's Circles, etc. The T. U. E. L. of Pittsburgh reports that two Communists were elected to the board of directors of the Labor Lyceum which is the home of the organized Jewish workers of that city.

Pittsburgh A. C. W. Left Wing Very Much Alive

Local 63 of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of Pittsburgh, Pa., still retains its traditional left wing policy. In the recent local election it elected a majority of the left wing ticket. The T. U. E. L. militants are on the job. This local is also affiliated with the Labor Defense Council.

UNEMPLOYMENT BIG PROBLEM IN VANCOUVER

Jobless Made to Work for a Dollar a Day

VANCOUVER, Can.—The wages and working conditions maintained by the building and metal trades unions of Vancouver are being seriously threatened by the employment of jobless men below the union scale.

Unemployed men are set to work as a relief measure doing the periliminary work in the building and metal trades at $2 a day for married men, while single unemployed workers are offered $1 a day for clearing land or breaking rock.

Waterfront Now Scabby.

Last winter unemployed stranded British harvesters broke the longshoremen's strike. The Vancouver waterfront is now open shop and wages and working conditions are determined by the master stevedores. Many unionists believe that the contemplated bi-building program for the spring will only be attempted on a nonunion wage scale and that the unemployed of the city are being used to introduce the cut.

Schemes to beat down wages usually paid for clearing land fell thru when the young jobless workers informed the city council that they would not clear land or do chain-work for $1 a day and maintain themselves. The men declared that for working outside in the inclement weather clearing land or breaking rock, 35c an hour should be paid.

Jobless Fight Back.

The council is threatening to arrest all men who refuse to work under its proposed relief scheme but the unemployed are being drilled and disciplined and are making the public aware of their position. Next week they will appear before the council and make a formal demand for a living wage.

The unemployment situation is aggravated by every westbound train bringing dozens of English immigrants who have been duped into paying what little money they had for steamship and railway tickets on the promise of good jobs at high wages. The plight of many of these people, especially men with families, is pathetic.

Exceptions Granted Make 8-Hour Day a Joke in Canada

VICTORIA, Can.—Exemptions from the eight-hour law have been granted to all the principal industries of British Columbia. More are to be granted.

The metal trades and the timber industries are attempting whole or partial exemption from the act.

Labor's "representative" on the board administering the act is an obscure liberal party henchman from the interior of the province.

Windsor and Toronto Give Left Wing Vote

The Welling Lodge of the I. A. of M. and Lodge 792, at Windsor, Ontario, decided that they had had enough of Bill Johnston and his class collaboration policy and nominated the complete left wing slate.

Lodge 225 of Toronto, Ontario, nominated Tim Buck for secretary-treasurer and P. Jensen and McNamara for vice-presidents. A tie vote resulted for editor of the Journal, the president casting the deciding vote against Overgaard, the left wing candidate.

Welland Machinists Want No More Wm. H.

The machinists' lodge of Welland, Ontario, at its last meeting decided that they wanted no more of Bill Johnston and nominated the left wing slate.

"WORK WITHIN REACTIONARY UNIONS," LENIN

No Separation of Revolution from Mass

By N. Lenin, April 27, 1920.

To refuse to work within reactionary trade unions means to leave the backward or insufficiently developed working masses to the influence of the reactionary leaders, the agents of the bourgeoisie, the "aristocrats of labor," and the "bourgeoisified" workers.

It is just this absurd theory of non-participation by Communists in reactionary trade unions that most clearly shows how light-headedly the "left" Communists regard the problem of influencing the "masses," how they contradict their own outcries about the "masses."

Qualities of Mass Leadership.

In order to be able to help the masses, and to win the sympathy, confidence and support of the "masses," it is essential to be fearless in the face of difficulties, to fear neither chicanery, opposition, insult or persecution at the hands of the "leaders" (who being opportunists and social chauvinists, in the majority of cases have direct or indirect connections with the bourgeoisie and the police), and to work by every possible means wherever the masses are.

Great sacrifices must be made, all obstacles overcome, in order to carry on systematically, stubbornly, insistently, patiently, agitation and propaganda in all those institutions, societies and unions, even the completely reactionary in which are grouped proletarian or semi-proletarian masses.

Where are these Masses?

And trade unions and co-operatives (the latter at least in some cases) are just organizations where the masses are to be found.

In England, according to figures given by the Swedish paper, Folkets Dagen Politiken, (March 10, 1919), the trade union membership, from the end of 1917 to the end of 1918 rose from 5.5 millions to 6.6 millions, that is, an increase of 19 per cent. Towards the end of 1919 this number reached 7.5 millions. I have not the corresponding figures at hand in regard to France and Germany, but generally known and incontestable facts testify to an immense growth in membership in the trade unions of these countries also.

These facts speak with the utmost clearness of a phenomenon confirmed by a thousand other indications: the growth of class consciousness and the driving force towards organization existing among the proletarian masses, the "lowest level," the backward. Millions of workers in England, France and Germany are for the first time passing from a complete lack of organization to the most elementary the lowest, the simplest, and (for those still imbued with bourgeois prejudices) the most accessible form of organization, the trade union.

Contradictory Revolutionism.

And the revolutionary but foolish "left" stand around, crying, "the masses! the masses!"—and refuse to work in the trade unions.

They refuse on the pretext of the "reactionary character" of these unions! And then they invent nice, brand new, pure little "Workers' Unions," which are free from bourgeois democratic prejudices, guiltless of the sins of trade and craft narrowness, and which, they claim, are to be (are to be!) broad, and for participation in which the only (only!) requirement is to be "the acceptance of the Soviet system and the dictatorship"!

No Conditions to Bar Out Members.

Anything more idiotic, more harmful to the revolution than this attitude of the "left" Communists cannot be imagined. Why, if now in Russia, after two and a half years of unparalleled victories over the bourgeoisie of Russia and the entente, we had demanded that entrance into the trade unions be conditional upon "acceptance of the dictatorship" we should have committed an unpardonable piece of stupidity, impaired our influence with the masses, and given aid and comfort to the mensheviks.

For the whole task of the Communists is just this—to be able to convince the backward, to be able to work among them, and not fence ourselves off from them by manufactured, infantile, left slogans.

WORKERS RALLY TO THE DEFENSE OF COMMUNISTS

Labor Bodies Donate to Defense Council

The Labor Defense Council is receiving many reports from its locals and from Workers Party units on work done or being done for the Michigan defense.

Detroit reports the reorganization and strengthening of the local defense and at their January 26 meeting over $120 had already been received.

The Finnish W. P. branch stated that proceeds of their Lenin Memorial meeting would go to the labor defense, the Greek branch announced $16.00 already collected on lists, and the Bulgarian, Roumanian and South Slavic reported that they would hold an entertainment on February 1, for the defense.

Big Defense Bazaar.

The Labor Defense Council local and party branches of Detroit are solidly behind the big defense bazaar arranged by the Detroit Federation of Working Women. It is to be held on Sunday, March 8, at the House of the Masses, 2201 Gratiot Ave., and the comrades are determined to raise $500.00 to $1,000.00 by it. At the time of their next meeting, February 11, the Detroit Labor Defense Council expects to report much more.

Portland Meeting.

Portland is to have a united front defense mass meeting in February at a large theater, with many workers' organizations participating.

The Revere, Mass., W. P. branch sends $36.00 and says "Hold the fort; we are on the job, having a house to house collection next Sunday."

Other Workers Party units have remitted as follows: Russian branch, Cleveland, $20.00; Bulgarian, Pontiac, Mich., $11.20; Italian, Philadelphia, $10.00; Englewood, Chicago, $7.50; N. S. English, Chicago, $10.66.

Workers' organizations all over, are responding to the call for a united front defense in Michigan. The Workmen's Sick & Benefit Fund No. 102, San Francisco, which only recently sent a donation, forwards another check for $10.00 with information that they passed a resolution against criminal syndicalism laws and the Michigan attack, and have forwarded it to the governor of Michigan.

The Slovak Workers' Society, No. 44, Uniontown, Pa., donated $31.30, the S. W. S. No. 51, Glassmere, Pa., $5.00, the "Elore" Hungarian Workers' Singing Association of Akron, O., $11.50, and Lithuanian Alliance, $48.00.

Try Once More to Force Voting Machines in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Attorney General Ottinger will ask the supreme court of the state of New York, February 9, for an order peremptorily directing the N. Y. city board of education to buy voting machines and do away with paper ballots for elections.

Ottinger made a formal demand on the board of education to convene and select a type of voting machine, but several members disapproved of the machines and nothing has been done.

The politicians have always been able to keep out the voting machines in New York state as it might register too well the voices of the people, and they are anxious to control them in a safer way.

Leninism or Trotskyism

1. The Period of Re-Organization of the Party (March—April).

The fundamental facts of this period are: a, the fall of czarism; b, the formation of the provisional government (dictatorship of the bourgeoisie); c, the rise of soldiers' and workmen's soviets (dictatorship of the proletariat and the peasantry); d, the double government; e, the April demonstration; f, the first crisis of power.

The characteristic feature of this period is the fact that side by side, concurrently and simultaneously, there exist both the dictatorship of the bourgeoisie and that of the proletariat and the peasantry, the latter showing confidence in the former, believing in its efforts for peace, voluntarily conferring the power on the bourgeoisie and thus turning itself into its appendage. Serious conflicts between the two dictatorships had not yet arisen. Instead of this there was a "contact commission."

This was the greatest change in the history of Russia and a hitherto unexperienced turn in the history of our party. The old pre-revolutionary platform of the direct overthrow of the government was clear and definite, but was no longer suited to the new conditions of the fight. It was now impossible to aim directly at the overthrow of the government, for it was bound up with the Soviets which were under the influence of the social patriots, and the party would have had to carry on an unbearable fight against both the government and the Soviets. But it was also impossible to carry out a policy for the support of the provisional government for this was a government of imperialism.

A re-orientation of the party under the new conditions of the fight was necessary. The party (its majority) approached this re-orientation very cautiously. It adopted the policy of a pressure of the Soviets on the provisional government in the question of peace, but did not at once make up its mind to take the further step from the old slogan of the dictatorship of the proletariat and the peasantry to the new slogan of the power of the Soviets. This double-faced policy was calculated to convince the Soviets thru the concrete questions of peace of the genuinely imperialistic nature of the provisional government, and thus to tear them away from the latter. This was an entirely mistaken policy; for it produced pacifist illusions, supplied water to the mills of social patriotism and rendered the revolutionary education of the masses difficult. This mistaken attitude I shared at that time with other members of the party, and I only renounced it altogether in the middle of April after I had subscribed to Lenin's theses.*

A re-orientation was necessary. This re-orientation was given to the party by Lenin in his famous theses of April. I will not enter into detail as to these theses, as they are known to everyone. Were there at that time differences of opinion between the party and Lenin? Yes, there were. How long did these differences of opinion last? Not more than a fortnight. The conference of the organization of the whole town of Petrograd (second half of April), which accepted Lenin's theses, was a turning point in the development of our party. The state conference at the end of April only completed the work of the Petrograd conference in a measure appropriate to the state gathering, by the united attitude of the party, nine-tenths of the party round itself.

Now, after seven years, Comrade Trotsky shows malicious joy at long passed differences of opinion among the Bolsheviki, by representing these differences of opinion almost as a fight of two parties within Bolshevism. But first of all, Comrade Trotsky exaggerates in an outrageous manner and inflates the whole subject; for the Bolshevist Party has outlived these differences of opinion without being in the least shaken. In the second place our party would be a caste and not a revolutionary party if it did not admit different shades of opinion in its midst, but it is well-known that there were differences of opinion amongst us also in the past, thus for instance, in the period of the third Duma, which however, did not interfere with the unity of our party. Thirdly it will not be superfluous to ask what was Comrade Trotsky's attitude at that time, he who now takes malicious pleasure in long past differences of opinion.

This installment is part of a pamphlet "Leninism or Trotzkyism" now in preparation. It includes articles by three outstanding figures in the Russian Communist Party: G. Zinoviev, I. Stalin and C. Kamenev, to form a most timely and important contribution to a discussion of world interest. The pamphlet will be of 64 pages, selling at 20 cents and will be ready at the conclusion of this serial publication.

2. The period of the revolutionary mobilization of the masses (May-August). Fundamental facts of this period: a. The April demonstration in Petrograd and the formation of a coalition government with the participation of the "socialists"; b, the demonstration on May 1, in the most important centers of Russia with the slogan of the "democratic peace"; c, the June demonstration in Petrograd with the chief slogan: "Down with the capitalist ministers!"; d, the June offensive on the front and the failures of the Russian army; e, the armed July demonstration in Petrograd and the resignation of the ministers of the cadet party from the government; f, the bringing up of counter-revolutionary troops from the front, the destruction of the editorial office of the "Pravda," the fight of the counter-revolution against the Soviets and the formation of a new coalition government with Kerenski at its head; g, the sixth party session at which was given the slogan for the preparation of an armed insurrection; h, the counter-revolutionary imperial council and the general strike in Moscow; i, the unfortunate attack of Kornilov on Petrograd, the revival of the Soviets, resignation of the cadets and formation of the "directorium."

As the characteristic feature of this period we must regard the sharpening of the crisis and the destruction of that unstable equilibrium between the Soviets and the provisional government, which in the previous period had, for better or worse, continued to exist. The double rule was unbearable for both sides. The fragile construction of the "contact commission" saw its last days. The "crisis of power" and the "ministerial leap frog" were at that time the most fashionable expressions. The crisis at the front and the disintegration behind the front did their work in that they strengthened the extreme wings and wedged in the social compromisers and social patriots on both sides. The revolution was mobilized, which brot about the mobilization of the counter-revolution. The counter-revolution on the other hand fanned the flame of the revolution by intensifying the revolutionary conflagration. The question of the transference of power to a new class became the question of the day.

Were there at that time differences of opinion in our party? There were. But, contrary to the statements of Comrade Trotsky who attempted to discover a "right" and a "left" wing of the party they were of a purely objective nature. That is to say, they were differences of opinion of a kind without which no active party life and no real party work can exist.

Comrade Trotsky is wrong when he maintains that the April demonstration in Petrograd brought about differences of opinion within the C. C. The C. C. was in this question absolutely unanimous and condemned the attempt of a group of comrades, to arrest the "provisional government" at the moment when the Bolsheviki were in the minority both in the Soviets and in the army. If Comrade Trotsky had not written his "history" of October according to Suchanow's material but on the basis of the actual documents, he could easily have convinced himself of the incorrectness of his assertion.

Comrade Trotsky is undoubtedly wrong when he asserts that the "right" members of the C. C. designated as an "adventure" the attempt, at "Lenin's initiative" to organize a demonstration on June 9. If Comrade Trotsky had not written in accordance with Suchanow's information, he would certainly have known that the demonstration of July 9 was postponed in complete agreement with Lenin and that that Lenin defended the postponement in an important speech at the well-known meeting of the Petrograd committee (see minutes of the Petrograd committee).

Comrade Trotzky is entirely in the wrong when he speaks of the "tragic" differences of opinion within the C. C. in connection with the armed July demonstration. Comrade Trotsky is simply using his imagination when he assumes that some members of the leading group of the C. C. "must have regarded the July episode as a harmful adventure." Comrade Trotsky, who at that time was not yet a member of the C. C. but only our Soviet representative in parliament, could not of course know that the C. C. only regarded the July demonstration as a means for getting information about the opponent, that the C. C. (and Lenin) did not wish to turn nor think of turning the demonstration into an insurrection at a moment when the Soviets of the chief towns were still in favor of the social patriots. It is quite possible that some of the Bolsheviki actually pulled long faces in connection with the July defeat. I know for instance that some of the Bolsheviki who were arrested were even ready to leave our ranks. But to draw conclusions from this against some who are said to have been "rights," to have been members of the C. C., is to distort history in a reckless manner.

Comrade Trotzky is wrong when he declares that in the Kornilov days, some of the heads of the party showed a tendency to form a block with the social patriots in order to support the provisional government. Of course the same so-called "rights" are meant, the comrades who disturb Trotzky's sleep. Trotzky is wrong; documents exist, such as the central organ of the party at that time, which upset Comrade Trotzky's statements. Comrade Trotzky refers to a letter of Lenin's to the C. C. with a warning against supporting Kerensky. But Comrade Trotzky fails to understand Lenin's letters, their significance, their object. Sometimes Lenin purposely anticipates in his letters and places in the foreground those possible mistakes which might occur, criticises them in advance, so as to warn the party and deter it from mistakes, or he sometimes exaggerates a "trifle" and "makes a mountain out of a molehill" for the same educational purpose.

A party leader, especially when he is in an illegal position cannot act otherwise, for he must see further than his companions and it is his duty to warn against every possible mistake, even "trifles." But to draw a conclusion as to "tragic" differences of opinion from these letters of Lenin (and there are plenty of such letters) and to blazon it forth, shows a lack of understanding of Lenin's letters, a lack of knowledge of Lenin. This no doubt explains the fact that Comrade Trotzky sometimes entirely fails to hit the mark. To resume: There were in the days of Kornilov's advance, as a matter of fact, absolutely no differences of opinion in the C. C.

*It is well-known that Comrade Zinoviev, whom Comrade Trotsky would like to turn into an "adherent of Hilferding" entirely shared Lenin's point of view.

The so-called editor of Trotsky's works, Comrade Lenzner, maintains that the American letters of Comrade Trotsky (March) "completely anticipate" Lenin's "Letters from Abroad" (March) which form the foundations of Lenin's April theses. He writes verbatim: "completely anticipate." Comrade Trotsky makes no objection to this analogy, so evidently accepts it with thanks. But first of all, Comrade Trotsky's letters "in no way resemble" Lenin's letters, either in spirit or in their conclusions, for they fully reflect Comrade Trotsky's anti-Bolshevist slogan: "No czar, but a labor government," a slogan which means the revolution without the peasantry. It is only necessary to look thru these two groups of letters to convince oneself of this fact. Second, how can it be explained in this case that Lenin thot it necessary two days after his return from abroad to draw a line of separation between himself and Trotsky?

Who does not know of Lenin's repeated declarations, that Trotsky's slogan "No czar, but a labor government" is an attempt to "overlook the peasant movement which is not yet out of date," "that this slogan is playing with the seizure of power by the labor government"?* What can Lenin's Bolshevist theses have in common with the anti-Bolshevist scheme of Comrade Trotsky, with his "playing with the seizure of power"? And where do these people get the passion with which they compare a miserable hovel with Mont Blanc? Why did Comrade Lenzner [illegible] to add, to the many legends about our revolution another legend about "the anticipation" of Lenin's famous "Letters from Abroad," by the American letters of Comrade Trotsky?

*See Lenin's works, vol. XIV. page 31-32 (Russian edition). See also the reports at the conference of the whole of Petgograd and at the imperial conference of the R. C. P. (Middle and end of April, 1917).

We must consider as one of these legends the wide-spread version that Comrade Trotsky was the "only" or the "chief organizer" of the victories at the fronts in the civil war. In the interest of truth, comrades, I mus declare that this version is absolutely contrary to the truth. I am far from denying the important part played by Comrade Trotsky in the civil war. I must, however, declare with all firmness, that the honor of being the organizer of our victories falls on no individual but on the great community of the advanced workers of our country, the Russian Communist Party. Perhaps it will not be superfluous to quote a few examples. You know that Koltschak and Denikin were regarded as the chief enemies of the Soviet republic. You know that our country only breathed freely after the victory over these enemies. And history says that our troops defeated these two enemies, Koltschak as well as Denikin in opposition to Trotsky's plans. Judge for yourselves!

1. Re Koltschak. It was in the summer of 1919. Our troops attacked Koltschak and operated before Ufa. Meeting of the C. C. Comrade Trotsky proposed to stop the attack on the line of the Bjalaja river (before Ufa), to leave the Urals in Koltschak's hands, to remove part of our troops from the eastern front and to throw them on to the southern front. Heated debates took place. The C. C. did not agree with Comrade Trotsky and found that the Urals with their works, their network of railways, should not be left in Koltschak's hands, because he could there easily bring his troops into order, collect large farmers round him and advance to the Volga, but that first of all Koltschak should be driven back over the ridge of the Urals into the Siberian steps, and that only then should the transference of troops to the south be proceeded with. The C. C. declined Comrade Trotsky's plan. The latter resigned. The C. C. did not accept his resignation. The commander in chief, Wazetis, a partisan of Comrade Trotsky's plan, retired. His place was taken by a new commander in chief, Comrade Kamenev. From this moment onward, Comrade Trotsky declined any direct participation in the transactions on the eastern front.

2. Re Denikin. The affair took place in autumn, 1919. The attack against Denikin failed. The "steel ring" round Mamontow, (the storming of Mamontow) was an obvious failure. Denikin took Kursk. Denikin approaches Orel. Comrade Trotsky was called from the southern front to a meeting of the C. C. The C. C. declared the situation to be disquieting and resolved to send new military functionaries to the southern front and to recall Comrade Trotsky. These functionaries demanded "non-interference" on the part of Comrade Trotsky on the southern front. Comrade Trotsky withdrew from immediate participation in the action on the southern front. The operations on the southern front, up to the taking of Rostow on the Don and of Odessa by our troops, proceeded without Comrade Trotsky.

SIMMONS LOSING KLAN JOB FORMS RIVAL SOCIETY

Founded K. K. K. Then Lost Fat Salary

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.— A rival organization to the ku klux klan has been started by the founder of the klan, Col. William Joseph Simmons. Simmons established the klan and made himself "Imperial Wizard" at a fat salary. When money to pay his salary and expenses stopped coming in, Simmons hired Edward Young Clarke as publicity agent for the klan.

Get Publicity.

A few murders of defenseless Negroes gave the klan the needed advertisement, and the support of the employers who were anxious to keep the Negroes in subjection.

The klan then launched into an active anti-union campaign. In southern Illinois the klan made an unsuccessful attempt to gain control of the Illinois miners' union. A gun fight between the union miners and the klan disrupters was narrowly averted in Ziegler, Illinois, when the klansmen broke up several union meetings.

They were finally defeated in the miners' elections, however. In Oklahoma the klan has been in control of the miners' union for many months, and has done much to disrupt and disorganize the miners of that state.

Simmons Kicked Out.

Simmons, however, was dispossessed of his job of "Imperial Wizard," by Dr. H. M. Evans, of Dallas, Texas, who, backed by a different gang of grafters, succeeded in gaining control of the klan and its finances.

Now Simmons is trying to build up another organization, the "Knights of the Flaming Sword," which is to be a section of "The Hidden Host." This organization is to have the same purposes as the klan, it is announced, but Simmons is to be its leader.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Every day under this head you will learn not only what BUILDERS thruout the country are doing to build a greater newspaper, but also practical suggestions to accomplish more for OUR paper. Tell us what YOU are doing—and we will "tell the world."

'LEVEN LIVE LEAGUERS

YOU might suspect us of "local patriotism." But we are only looking for efficient propaganda methods to "Build the DAILY WORKER"—which of course will build our party.

In this column, in the Saturday issue, we brought to your attention the activities of the North Side Branch of Chicago in selling literature. And looking for efficient BUILDING we must point out another Chicago branch. This time it is a branch of the "Flaming Youth"—and the flame is revolutionary fervor in Area Branch No. 5 of the Young Workers League.

A squad of eleven live Leaguers under the direction of Literature Agent Natalie Gomez, during the month of January sold over thirty dollars worth of literature at union and other meetings. This did not include pamphlets sold at factory gates when the Y. W. L. had a drive.

"To the masses" is a slogan that actually is put into practice by these comrades who are going to the shops, union halls and every meeting where workers gather. In the group all with the exception of two are girl comrades—most of them working in the National and DAILY WORKER offices. The fact that our comrades are "easy to look at" is not the only factor in their success. They have fully realized the importance of this pioneer organizational work and have built up their sales by persistently attending union halls, selling, talking, convincing—until at many local union meetings a session is incomplete when they do not attend.

And the comrades are ambitious. This squad, together with the live-wires in the North Side Branch, are actually giving the City DAILY WORKER agent comrade Thurber Lewis no peace. They want a meeting held to map out a plan to cover ALL of the union meetings in town and to drag in willy-nilly the non-active groups in the local.

—We are giving this tip to the DAILY WORKER agents thruout the country: If there are any Young Workers League members in your local, get them in your work and prepare for a busy season.

Teachers Won't Get Wage Boost from New Property Appraisals

Albert H. Wetten, chairman of appraisals for the board of education starts work on Feb. 5, on revaluation of property in the loop and near loop districts known as school fund property.

This property provides revenue only for teachers' salaries. Nevertheless, John E. Byrnes, business manager of the board of education, said that the teachers may expect no increases in pay when the revaluations of school property owned by the board of education boost rentals and increases the revenue.

ADLER RESIGNS POST IN SECOND INTERNATIONAL

Apologizes for Collapse of Socialists

Friedrich Adler, secretary of the Socialist and Labor International (the second international), has resigned from his post, thoroly tired out and disappointed.

Yielding to pressure from his social democratic colleagues, he finally agreed to continue in office temporarily, for the purpose of completing arrangements for the forthcoming congress of the Second International; however, he has let it be known that under no circumstances will he reconsider his original decision to retire to some less strenuous occupation.

Adler an Emotionalist.

It is a tortuous road "Fritz" Adler has traveled since October 22, 1916, when he shot and killed Count Sturgkh, the Austrian prime minister. That act seemed to be his one fierce, pent up, hysterical protest. When the Karolyi government released him from prison a few years later he was a changed man. Never anything but an emotionalist—in no sense a true leader of the masses—he deliberately traded on his revolutionary reputation and became an out and out opportunist.

Becomes Opportunist.

He has attacked the Russian revolution bitterly, while at the same time condoning the worst crimes of Scheidemann, Noske, Gessler and Renner against the German and Austrian workers.

Adler accompanies his resignation with a letter in which he tries to excuse the social democratic leaders from responsibility for the betrayal of the workers in the world war:

Evades Responsibility for Crash.

"From the Marxian point of view, I consider that the collapse of the International thru the policy of various socialist parties during the war was one of the gravest of calamities. I never was one of those who adopted the superficial excuse that all the evil was the result of treachery on the part of the leaders."

Adler goes on to complain of the present tendencies among the workers, and closes with the lament that "Marxism is receding in the labor movement."

[illegible], Lenin appears to have known what he was talking about when he spoke of the lack of stamina of the Austrian school of social democracy.

Freight Rate on Newsprint

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Railroads were ordered by the interstate commerce commission today to establish on or before March 10, a freight rate of 29 cents a 100 pounds on shipments of news print paper in carloads from Alexandria, Indiana, to Omaha, and Kansas City. This action was taken on the complaint filed by the Western Newspaper Union alleging that the present rate was unreasonable.

WALL STREET'S SCRUB WOMEN MAINTAINED BY CHARITY—CHILDREN LABOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—The poor who work on the fringe of the richest financial section in the world—the scrub women, janitors and cleaners of Wall Street, are paid such small wages that they and their families must be maintained by charity.

The "Bowling Green neighborhood association" has just announced that thirty downtown business men have donated $1,000 each year for three years, toward the upkeep of a home for the downtown poor. The Wall Street business men hire non-union labor at starvation wages, and the children of these Wall Street workers fill the downtown homes, working far into the night making artificial flowers, sewing pants, and making stockings.

CONTINUE FIGHT ON CHILD LABOR, SAYS COMMITTEE

Butler Wants Slavery of Children to Stay

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.—Representatives of twenty-six organizations connected with the national child labor committee meeting here, announced that the fight to secure ratification of the federal child labor amendment by 36 state legislatures will continue. The organizations sending delegates were mostly women's clubs, and liberal and pacifist organizations.

Mrs. C. A. Watkins, of the national parents' and teachers' association, declared that the press is misrepresenting the situation. She said that only eight states have rejected ratification of the proposed amendment, and these states may reconsider.

Nicholas Murray Butler, an ardent supporter of child labor, has issued a statement setting forth his pleasure that child labor can continue in America.

Senator Thomas Walsh of Montana, will speak to members of the children's welfare association of New York, Friday night, at a dinner at the Waldorf Astoria hotel. Walsh is in favor of the amendment, which gives congress power to regulate and prohibit child labor.

Refuse Freight Rate Increase

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The interstate commerce commission today refused to permit the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad to increase the freight rate on bituminous coal in carloads from Evansville, Ind., to stations in Illinois on that road.

GIFTED ARTISTS AT BAZAAR OF LABOR DEFENSE

Children Planning to Give Performance

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 2.—The joint bazaar of the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council will furnish four evenings of the best enjoyment.

The greatest efforts have been made to secure the co-operation of high-class talent and the committee has succeeded.

The Freiheit Singing Society, famous thruout the east for its splendid singing, will be at the bazaar and will present a fine program. If there were no other entertainment but the Freiheit Singing Society at the bazaar, it would of itself attract thousands of friends not only of the art, but also of the movement.

Finnish Athletes.

Then come the Finnish gymnastic and choral societies. The Finnish comrades are well-known for their athletic ability and will present some of their best numbers.

The Finnish Choral Society—well it is unnecessary to talk about the Finns as singers—they are known thruout Europe for their wonderful, melodious voices. And then finally the Finnish orchestra, which will play some classical selections. Not to forget the Finnish Junior group, who will assist in the athletic performances.

Hungarian Orchestra.

Then comes the Hungarian orchestral and Singing Societies. Hungarian music is famous and popular the world over. It became so because Hungarian orchestras and singers were able to take this music to every quarter of the world, revealing the great creative genius of the Hungarians.

And the soloists! They are friends of the revolutionary movement who are ever ready when a worthy cause such as the defense and relief of political prisoners is involved. And they have responded in a splendid way this time.

Children have Program.

And the children! Saturday, February 14, in the afternoon, the children of the revolutionary and radical worker of New York will do their very best and will demonstrate what the children of the proletariat can do. The children of the Modern School will dance—60 strong. An orchestra of 25 children will perform some classical selections. And finally the Junior groups of the Young Workers' League. They were the hit of the Liebknecht-Luxemburg memorial meeting. They will perform a little play, give some tableaux and dances. This will be a wonderful afternoon for the children and all of them must be there.

Don't forget the time and place: February 11, 12, 13, 14—Lyceum, 86th St. and 3rd Ave.

BISHOP BROWN APPEALS HERESY CASE TO BISHOPS

Declines to Recant, Uses Lawyer

GALION, O., Feb. 2.—Spurning the decision of eight episcopalian bishops to unfrock him, Bishop William Montgomery Brown, author of the radical book, Christianism and Communism, is preparing for his last appeal to the house of bishops next December.

He was convicted of heresy in May 1924, for his attacks on the dogmas of the protestant episcopal church and the conviction was upheld by an appellate court of bishops in Cleveland recently.

Represented by his attorney, Joseph W. Sharts, Brown declined to recant his doctrines summed up in the motto on the cover of the book: "Banish Gods from the Skies and Capitalists from the Earth.

CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT LOSS PLEASES BUTLER

Bosses Can Continue to Exploit Kids

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Nicholas Murray the Butler, president of Columbia University, has issued a statement hailing the defeat of the child labor amendment as a victory for the people and vindication of the nation's capacity for citizenship.

The Butler runs a university solely for the purpose of turning out bourgeois mediocrities as a machine turns out sausages.

These mediocrities are to work for capitalistic concerns and capitalism and any instructor or professor in the Butler's show is asked to resign if he dares do any original thinking or becomes "radical."

President Butler isn't satisfied with his presidency of a college. He wants to be president of the U. S. and thinks he will make a super-Wilson. He throws out this bait to capitalism to show he's a safe man to be nominated.

Butler says in his statement:

"The prompt and overwhelming defeat of the proposal to ratify the so-called child-labor amendment to the constitution of the United States is a new and heartening declaration of independence by the American people. It serves notice on the congress at Washington that we shall be much obliged if that body will attend with more intelligence and more competence to the business that we have confided to it and leave us alone to manage our own private, local and state affairs."

What Hypocrisy.

Fineness, decency and gentle instincts are so foreign to this snob professor that in his rage at even an attempt to prevent the exploitation of children by the capitalists he sneers at all those who are discouraged, disheartened and revolted by the cruel atrocious indifference to the exploitation of children, by referring to them as follows:

"Every parent, and every lover of childhood who is not a parent, should rejoice at the defeat of this amendment. It aimed at childhood the heaviest blow ever contemplated anywhere by anybody."

Butler says in another place:

"Had the amendment been adopted more than 40,000,000 of young Americans would have been legally handed over the the tender mercies of the American congress."

This man would rather have the children in the hands of exploiting capitalists, who can, as Butler does in his university, keep the children more completely under their control, than if the people had a say about them. Butler trembles lest the people themselves have something to say about the education of their children. They are safe in capitalistic universities, sweat shops and factories and be and the opponents of child labor want them in such "safe" places.

Their Joy Short Lived.

President Butler and his ilk, capitalism and all its soul-rotten worshippers are rejoicing in glee today at the defeat of the child labor amendment. They can look with great joy now on the continued exploitation of a million and a half children working for the capitalist exploiters, grinding out for these ghouls, profits, profits—more profits. Nicholas Murray, the Butler and all the rest will wear their brutal smiles while children in South Carolina work 12 hours a day, the children to replace them getting out of their beds to take their places when the others are given permission to stop work and go to bed. Thus the beds are never cold. And Butler and capitalism rejoices.

"Worker Has No Chance for Compensation by Compensation Law"

ALBANY, N. Y.—"A workman now stands in the compensation court practically as defenseless as he was under the old employers' liability law," John M. O'Hanlon, representing the New York State Federation of Labor told the joint state legislative committee investigating why injured workers have to wait so long for compensation.

YOUNG COMRADE FIRST TO BE FIRED IN SHOP NUCLEI DRIVE IN N. Y.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Branch 12 of the Y. W. L. can now record two members being fired in one week for Communist activity. Saturday another member of the Y. W. L. was fired because he took a leading part in lining up all the young workers who as a body asked for a raise.

Suspecting that this was due to Comrade Kramer who was only employed for a short time, and has brot about such militancy among the young workers, the boss after a few questions fired Kramer.

But the boss did not realize what this discharge resulted in. The same afternoon six young workers were brot to the district office by Kramer and they were organized into a shop nucleus.

A program of work, including the unionization of the shop was adopted by the newly organized nucleus which will start its work immediately.

Comrade Kramer will be attached to this shop nucleus as an unemployed worker until he gets another job.

G. O. P. CROOK WHO STOLE W. P. VOTES IS PUT IN TOMBS

But Republican Leaders Are Whitewashed

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—George Rosken, when put in the Tombs here under indictment by the grand jury for election fraud, declared "I merely did the bidding of others. I exposed the conspiracy in my election district, and in return for it I alone am indicted."

Rosken confessed to fraud in the contest in the 23rd election district of the 8th assembly district, where he testified, he was switched in as a tally clerk by "a leading republican politician," in order to steal enuf votes to declare Representative Nathan D Perlman elected. Dr. William I. Sirovich, democrat, is now contesting the seat of the republican.

The grand jury's inspection of the ballots showed that Rosken stole six votes from Comrade Lore, Communist candidate, in that one election district transferring them to his republican employers.

RED LEGISLATOR MOVES TO HELP POORER FARMERS

"Tax All Tillable Land to Pay Hail Loss"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BISMARCK, N. D., Feb. 2—The loss suffered by farmers, especially the poorer farmers who are unable to pay exhorbitant rates for insurance of their crops from destruction by hail, is one of the pressing problems of the Dakota farming population.

For Interest of Poorer Farmers.

The first and only Communist elected to the North Dakota legislature, A. C. Miller, has introduced a measure providing an inexpensive and effective means whereby the poorer farmers may get the protection of hail insurance without paying great sums to private profit grabbers of the insurance companies, which thrive off the miseries of the working farmers.

The bill is accompanied by a repealing act of the 1923 law, which provided for the withdrawal of land from the state hail insurance, and the bill providing the indemnity tax, known as House Bill No. 81, reads, in its essential sections, as follows:

Tax All Tillable Land.

"The commissioner of insurance shall, on or before the 25th day of October of each year, estimate the amount which is required for the total payment of all loss caused by hail to crops insured by the department, and a sum sufficient to pay interest at the rate of six per cent per annum on all warrants issued from the 1st day of December until called for payment by the state treasurer, plus a sufficient fund to maintain and operate the department for the succeeding year, and shall thereupon, for the purpose of securing and paying the same levy an indemnity tax sufficient to cover said amount on all tillable land within the state:

"Provided, that the total amount of said indemnity tax shall not exceed in any one year the sum of fifty cents per acre for seven dollars indemnity or seventy-one cents per acre, for ten dollars indemnity.

"Provided, further, that if the sum collected by the maximum levy should be insufficient to pay all losses in any one year, the payment of losses shall be prorated. All moneys collected under the provisions of this section shall be paid into the state hail insurance fund."

It will be noted that the bill provides for a tax on all tillable land within the state, thus equalizing the burden for the benefit of the poorer farmers who may find their crops destroyed without being able to recuperate a cent of their losses. Both bills are referred to the committee on insurance.

Greece and Turkey

The Most Reverend Constantinos, uceminical patriarch of the Greek catholic church, was peremptorily ordered to leave Constantinople by the Turkish government. The Greek capitalists are sore. They feel liberties have been taken with their dignity. They are talking of making Turkey pay for the insult. But it is very likely that they will take it out in jaw exercises rather than with cold steel and poison gas. They haven't got the money.

London and Paris are also discussing the latest Greeco-Turkish rupture. Well, they might. It is part of the Franco-British struggle. When France takes a crack at England, she does it by proxy. Some small nation subsidised by France takes a smack at some small nation subsidised by England.

Looking at things impartially, one would say that the Greeks have no kick coming over the expulsion of their patriarch. The Turks kicked out their own sultan who had more dependents than the patriarch. When the sultan was evicted, a happy and populous home was broken up and several perfectly good wives thrown on an already overstocked market. If the patriarch has one wife he has one hundred. Perhaps that is why the Greeks are kicking. They might have a lot of fun with the sultan's cabinet, if only the Turks established reciprocity.

Judging from the size of the headlines in the capitalist press, another war between Greece and Turkey is possible. But it is not probable. England and France cannot afford to let their dogs quarrel, just now.

Who Is Crazy?

"Our greatest needs now are shoes and stockings for children from 6 to 12 years old and money to keep some of the people here in coal."

The emphasis is ours in this extract from a letter from a comrade who has been active in collecting relief for unemployed coal miners' families in southern Illinois. No more enlightening comment on the workings of the capitalist system could be had. The men who dig the coal are unable to obtain enough of it to keep themselves and their families warm. They must buy the coal at $6 per ton from the coal capitalists who have no use for their labor except when huge profits can be made.

The coal lies at the pit mouth—hundreds of tons of it—that the labor of the miners brought to the surface. They dug the coal, but it "belongs" to somebody else. Therefore they must freeze if charity is not forthcoming.

The whole thing sounds like something from Alice in Wonderland, but in one form or another this is an everyday event under capitalism.

It is not the Communists who strive to wipe out this system that are crazy. It is those who suffer from it, but still support it, that are insane.

Being Mayor Is Hard Work

Running New York is such a big job that Mayor Hylan commutes between the metropolis and Palm Beach. One of the flies in Hylan's ointment is Controller Charles L. Craig.

This man Craig almost delayed his honor in getting away to Florida a few days ago. The two statesmen do not like each other, and in their debates, which are frequent and acrimonious, they sometimes tell the truth about each other.

Last Thursday the mayor was getting ready for his fourth vacation in six months and he was in a hurry. He wanted some matter disposed of before he went away. The controller was stalling. Hylan got angry and called the controller a liar. The controller demanded that the mayor be arrested for disorderly conduct. The cop, Hylan's guardian, just laughed and told Craig to sit down. After considerable noise the statesmen cooled off and Hylan went on his way to Palm Beach.

In sunny Palm Beach his honor will not be bothered with thoughts of the thousands of New York workers who are unemployed and suffering from cold and hunger.

"He was not what you might call a religious man," said the only non-klan preacher in Herrin, while officiating at the funeral of Ora Thomas, who was recently murdered by klan gunmen. The preacher refused to make any further comment on Thomas' life owing to his boycott of the church. He was not a customer, so the preacher left him to his fate.

"One of the most christian things I have observed about organized christianity is the missionary spirit which pervades it," said President Coolidge to 5,000 alleged christians a few days ago. The American capitalists spend $40,000,000 a year on their missionaries. Forty million dollars can buy a lot of enthusiasm.

Aw, It Isn't As Bad As That

War is not the horrible thing it has been represented to be by pacifists and press agents for the chemical section of the war department. This is the burden of a statement made by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, and given front page space in the capitalist press of last Monday.

According to poison gas experts, new chemicals have been invented that would destroy whole countries and annihilate millions who succeeded in dodging the draft. A shudder went thru the nation. Happy capitalists who contemplated another nice little war with the prospect of making millions of dollars exploiting the workers and robbing the government, muttered: "Dash it all, if war is getting to be that bad, there's no fun in it."

The war department of the capitalist government began to sniff danger. The capitalists were beginning to get frightened. This kind of propaganda was more dangerous than the most platitudinous piffle the pacifists could put out. The poison gas experts had the best of intentions. They were proud of their art and proud of the country that could produce such deadly poison in large quantities. Being poor psychologists, they thought the information they were imparting would make the American capitalists desirous of starting a war at the earliest possible moment as the bill collectors say when requesting payment of the monthly installment on the radio. But they almost knocked them wordless instead.

Scenting danger, Secretary Wilbur proceeded to inject a little hop into the public. He said: "The writers who seek to terrorise the people by the statement of the awful calamities of the 'next war' overlook the one fundamental principle of war that to have war one must have a defense and that the means of defense should be commensurate with the offense.

"If poison gas can be used on one side it can be used on the other, as Germany found out to her sorrow. If disease germs can be used on one side they can be used on the other.

"Moreover, the nations using disease germs as a means of offense cannot confine the effects to one side of the fighting line. You can't keep small pox or any other disease on one side of a given line and what will make the soldiers on one side of the line immune to disease will make the soldiers on the other side of the line immune."

This proves conclusively that war is a game two can play at; in fact there can be no war unless at least two nations are willing to fight. Having made his point, the intellectual secretary of the navy drops the following spongeful of dishwater on the heads of those who paint war in colors so black that war's best customers are being frightened away:

"First, treaties have been made prohibiting the use of poison gas in the next war." His second reason was not forthcoming. Perhaps one is enough.

One is tempted to ask the honorable secretary of the navy this question: If the use of poison gas is prohibited by treaty in the next war, why are all the capitalist governments spending millions of dollars perfecting already existing gases and discovering new ones?

The secretary of the navy knows very well that treaties can no more prevent the use of gas or any other lethal weapon in war than they can prevent war. His clean bill of health is not convincing. The next war will be more horrible than the last, and the only hope for the human race is that the workers of the world take steps to make the next war the last by stepping in and getting rid of the capitalist system that is at the bottom of all modern wars.

Famine in Ireland

Ireland is in the grip of a very serious famine, according to news dispatches. Not only has the potato crop failed, but the peat, on which the poor peasants have depended for their fuel supply, is flooded with water, due to the continual downpour of rain which prevailed last summer.

The famine is not confined to the western seaboard where a chronic state of semi-famine exists. In many inland towns the people have not tasted potatoes since last November. Unemployment is widespread and the workers and peasants are dying of disease caused by malnutrition.

In addition, plagues have broken out among the sheep and cattle, adding to the horror.

It is regrettable that in face of this horror the trade union movement should be torn by civil strife, ignoring a splendid opportunity to take the lead in bringing relief to the suffering people, all of whom are workers and poor peasants. The result is that the middle class, capitalists and the church, who are responsible for the chronic state of poverty of the those unfortunate people, appear in the role of saviors and benefactors. The relief work is in the hands of the catholic church, which strengthens its hold on the people and gives it added prestige.

That poverty and misery can flourish even under a native government, is now being amply demonstrated to the Irish people. In "black '47," when over 1,250,000 people died of hunger or were driven into exile because of the famine, enough corn was exported to feed three times the population. The money was needed to pay the landlord his rent. That was under British rule.

Today Ireland is under native rule, but the condition of the workers and peasants is as bad as ever. There was only an exchange of masters or more correct a change of slave drivers. The present Free State government is but the agent of the same ruling class that once ruled from Dublin castle. Famine and pestilence will be the lot of the Irish workers and peasants until they have a change of economic systems as well as a change of masters.

'OUR LEADER,' SAYS BERGER OF LA FOLLETTE

Declares Bob Keeps Up Fight, Scolds Frear

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Formal expulsion of the LaFollette republicans from the republican party in the house is to be attempted. The first blow was struck by William Wood of Indiana, chairman of the G. O. P. caucus, when he issued, on Jan. 29, a call for a party caucus on Feb. 27, and omitted from the list of invitations the names of the ten members from Wisconsin and representatives Keller of Minnesota, Sinclair of North Dakota and LaGuardia of New York.

"We Are Good Republicans," Says Frear.

To this declaration of war Rep. Frear of Wisconsin replied with a speech in which he reviewed the history of the party, showing that Lincoln opposed the Mexican war, and Roosevelt bolted the party when he felt that it had come under the control of corrupt special interests, but that Roosevelt was welcomed back and died a good republican.

He eulogized Rep. Cooper of Wisconsin, who has a longer record of service than any other republican in the house. He declared that the Wisconsin republicans are good republicans, and that nobody can read them out of their party.

"Our Leader, LaFollette," Says Berger

To these defiant remarks Rep. Victor Berger, socialist, interposed a number of questions, calling attention to the fact that "our leader, Senator LaFollette," had declared that the new political movement of 1924 must go forward; and hinting that Frear was now trying to run away from the battle.

Frear replied that he was re-elected last fall without republican opposition, by 30,000 votes, whereas Berger came back by a margin of only 2,000-odd.

Vic Will Discuss Progressive "Retreat."

"That is because I honestly declared myself, and did not run under false colors," Berger shot back, while standpat republicans and democrats laughed at Frear. The socialist member gave notice that he would discuss the retreat of the Wisconsin progressives in a special speech to the house at the first opportunity.

Nick Longworth, G. O. P. floor leader, joined in the derisive questioning of Frear on the regularity of his republicanism. He had announced in November that the LaFollette element should never be permitted to enter another party caucus.

Pavlowa's Don Quixote Beats All Others in Originality and Beauty

Admirers of Anna Pavlowa's dancing are never disappointed after attending one of her performances, for she always embodies in her program a few of the favorite pieces that have brought her the tribute she so fully deserves.

The audience who saw her dance Saturday night at the Auditorium again brought down the house with applause in appreciation of her rendition of "The Swan," which she so truly portrays. She is none the less wonderful and bewitching in the Syrian dance in which she is accompanied by Laurant Novikoff.

This program included her original pantomine dancing program of the Spanish comedy, Don Quixote, in two acts and a prologue.

The prologue introduces us to Don Quixote in his own home and we witness him preparing to go on a knightly expedition. Markowski was splendid in the comic role of Sancho-Panzo, Don Quixote's good natured simple servant. Domoslawski makes a very dignified and stiff jointed Don Quixote who loosens up only in spots and then very self-consciously.

I have seen Don Quixote done in pantomine a number of times, but this exceeds them all for originality in colorful setting, richness in cast and super dancing. Pavlowa as Kitry the innkeeper's daughter and as Dulcinea is of course, marvelous. She does a generous amount of dancing appearing several times and in most of them she is accompanied by Novikoff with whom she dances so harmoniously.

These performances which we are informed, is her farewell tour, will be given only until the end of this week.

CHICAGO LABOR DEFENSE COUNCIL FORMS SLAV WORKERS' CONFERENCE

The urgent need for mobilization of all working class elements against the renewed Michigan prosecutions as expressed in the jailing of C. E. Ruthenberg and the calling to immediate trial of Robert Minor, has closed the ranks between the workers' organizations of three Slavic languages, and has resulted in the formation of a united Slavic Conference for Labor Defense.

The three languages are the Jugo-Slavs, the Slovaks and the Czechs. Three representatives of each of these groups met last Friday at the South-Slavic book store, 1806 S. Racine Ave., and considered ways and means of combining their resources for the benefit of the Labor Defense campaign.

A committee consisting of Michelatsky, Kratovchil, and Vrabel, one from each nationality, will work with local Secretary Kruse in winning the attendance of all Slavic workers organizations at the coming general united front labor defense conference, scheduled for Feb. 24th, at 180 West Washington St. In order to better effect this result there will be a special Slavic defense conference held on Friday Feb. 20, at 1806 S. Racine Ave.

Combine on Defense Movie

The first united effort will take the form of an entertainment on Feb. 22nd, at C. S. P. S. Hall, 1126 West 18th St. The Czechs had taken the initiative but admitted the other two organizations on equal basis with their own branches when the need for united work became clear. At least fifty per cent of the proceeds will benefit the defense.

The chief feature of the program will be the showing of "Polikushka" famous Russian film made by the Moscow Art Theatre, and which has been shown to large and enthusiastic audiences in Orchestra Hall, Gartners Independence Theatre, and Hull House. Nevertheless thousands of workers in Chicago have never seen this film and they will welcome this chance to do so.

Start Street Collections

The South Slavic comrades took over a score of collection boxes for use in a house-to-house drive for subscriptions for their paper, "Radnick." Every subscriber and every prospective subscriber will also be asked to donate to the defense. In the F. S. R. campaigns many hundreds of dollars were raised by this branch in this way.

PARTY ACTIVITIES

Philadelphia Activities

The city central committee of Philadelphia has outlined a campaign of activities that will not close untill the two thousand workers who cheered the Communist speakers at the great Lenin meeting are brought into the Workers Party.

The first step towards this goal is the campaign to increase the circulation of the DAILY WORKER and in connection with that, the first annual DAILY WORKER ball which will be held Friday February 27, at the New Traymore Hall. Daily Worker agents from 17 branches are busy making preparations, distributing tickets and securing advts. for the DAILY WORKER ball souvenier program. The enthusiasm and activity of our comrades assures us that the ball will be the greatest event of the year and an aditional milestone indicating the growth of the influence of the party in Philadelphia. The first meeting of the Labor Defense Council has laid down plans for an intensive campaign against the criminal syndicalist law and the raising of a defense fund to help the legal battles to free our comrades involved in the Michigan cases. March 21st, the anniversary of the Paris Commune and the Hungarian Soviet republic has been set as the date for the great defense bazaar. Collection lists for the articles for the bazaar are out and the party is being mobilized to carry out this task with the same spirit and results that we attained for the Lenin memorial meeting.

25 new members were taken into the party during the month of January and several new branches are being formed.

The open forum conducted by the city central committee every Sunday eveneng at the Grand Fraternity Hall, 1628 Arch St., is growing in size and influence. It is the only center where the every day problems and the burning issues of the workers are presented and discussed from the Communist point of view.

The Carlson series of lectures on the elements of Communism are attracting wide attention and the growing attendance of party members is another healthy sign displayed by the party in this city.

The industrial department has shown great improvement during the last few months and is steadily bringing the party into closer contact with labor movement. The trade union class which meets every Sunday morning at 11 in the party headquarters discusses the many tactical problems that confront our comrades in the unions. First steps have been taken to reorganize the party on the shop nuclei basis. The industrial department has given special attention to this matter and some results will soon be forthcoming.

The close co-operation of the Young Workers League in all the above work has aided greatly to the influence and growth of the party.

West Side English Branch Holds Red Revel

The west side English branch of the Workers Party in Cleveland finds itself up against it for funds. After scratching our heads for a considerable time as to how we might lay our hands on some ready cash it was decided that something different and attractive must be done. So, it finally developed that a Red Revel should be held. Too much information can not be given at this writing, but merely just enough to make you itch for the night. A few of the things to be "pulled off" will be an expose of the "Michigan Spinach Law" a Soviet Court, the Cheekaa who will bring all offenders to the Soviet Court to be fined and numerous other attractions.

Never before has anything like this been "pulled off" in this city and every member of the branch has his hands full making the arrangements. The date will be Saturday evening March 7th, at 7:00 P. M. The place is the Hungarian Workers Home, 4309 Lorain Ave.

For additional information ask a member of the west side English branch and also watch this column.

CLASS in elementary economics meets Wednesday night, 8 p. m. at 722 Blue Island avenue. Max Lerner, instructor. Class to have resumed work again last Wednesday but due to former meeting place being locked did not meet as scheduled. Note change of address to 722 Blue Island Ave. All comrades entered in this class which was formerly conducted by Earl R. Browder are required and urged to be present this week. First four chapters of People's Marx will be reviewed. New applicants for rest of course will be considered but not admitted unless already sufficiently advanced to keep up with rest of class.

Text for review, People's Marx, 1921 edition, chapters 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Text for this week's lesson, People's Marx, chapters 5, 6, 7 and 8.

Answer the following questions with material from the eight chapters but in your own words.

Some review questions on first four chapters and other works taken up during course.

2. What is the capitalist mode of production based upon?
3. Has the capitalist mode of production existed for all time?
4. What is a commodity?
5. From what twofold point of view does a commodity present itself?
6. How then do we make an approach at deriving the value of a commodity—is value something concrete or is it something social?
7. Show briefly why "labor time" is the only possible basis of measurement of value and how this "labor time" must be understood as "socially necessary labor time."
8. Show why labor power is a "peculiar" commodity and what conditions must first exist historically before the worker offers his labor power as a commodity on the market.
9. Explain the vital difference for the capitalist between capital invested in raw material and means of production on the one hand and capital invested in labor power [illegible] hand.

Note—The answers to the [illegible] view questions will be publish[illegible] week either in the form [illegible] the form of a brief [illegible] sible.

Further Questions on [illegible] 5, 6, 7 and 8.

2. Explain how the [illegible] follow the law of exchange [illegible] values for equal values, in the [illegible] chase of all things necessary for [illegible] duction and yet, after employing [illegible] commodities in production [illegible] with a greater value than [illegible] pended.
3. Point out why the making of profit cannot be explained [illegible] saying that commodities are [illegible] low or above their values, or [illegible] by one capitalist cheating another.
4. Explain the process [illegible] surplus value is extracted.
5. What is constant and [illegible] capital? In what way [illegible] its of fixed and variable capital [illegible] the capitalist understands [illegible] source of surplus value?
6. Explain how a uniform [illegible] obtained in capitalist production [illegible] why here again the underlying [illegible] of profit is obscured. Define [illegible] production and cost price. Is the [illegible] of production of a comodity its [illegible]
7. In what ways does the [illegible] strive to increase surplus value [illegible] is relative surplus value, what is [illegible] lute surplus value?
8. In order to obtain a relative [illegible] crease of surplus value can [illegible] simply take over the labor process [illegible] the form which has been historically handed down or must there be a [illegible] plete revolutionization of the mode of production? In what branches of [illegible] duction would such a revolution [illegible] of the production start if such [illegible] necessary? How would it affect [illegible] other branches?

Both Face Money Cris

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

UNFORTUNATELY, Myron Crosier, the 108-year-old barge captain who died in New York recently, did not have a nose for publicity, else he would have informed the public how he managed to live so long. But he had friends who tell us that Crosier, who was a barge captain, had one infallible prescription for every disease, and it was strong liquor. When smoking among women became almost universal, which came to pass when the captain was around ninety he deserted the weed, declaring that the luxury became the hall mark of effeminity. His friends believe the captain's early death is due to the difficulty of securing the right kind of medicine under prohibition.

EMPEROR WILLIAM SIMMONS, former chief gazook of the ku klux klan, but now a retired emperor on a pension, does not know how to stay quiet. He is a typical American go-getting business man. Imperial Wizard Evans of the K. K. K. bought out Simmons's interest in the [illegible] and gave the original manager of the [illegible] a life pension of one thousand dollars a month. The emperor took the money and considered himself free to start again. His next venture was the knights of kamelia, by which he proved that the women of the species are quite as nutty as the male. They flocked to the order in thousands. In order to retain a monopoly on his graft, the imperial wizard, again bought out Simmons.

BUT you cannot keep a good man down. Here comes the ex-emperor with a new organization to keep this country in the grip of white protestants. It is labelled the "Knights of the Flaming Sword." Most of the other wooly titles are already in use. Simmons sent a copy of the constitution and by-laws of his order to the politicians in Washington. He has issued a "royal proclamation." Instead of inviting sapheads into the "Imperial Realm," he calls his [illegible] the "Royal Beneficient Do-[illegible]." No doubt, Simmons will find plenty of suckers and it is quite likely [illegible]

THAT old reliable political idiot, Peter W. Collins, side kick of the [illegible] David Goldstein, is again on the warpath peddling his rubbish on a question of which he is blissfully ignorant, i. e., Communism. [illegible] chautauqua went fairly well before the war, but that great tragedy opened the eyes of millions of workers. Goldstein's principal visible means of support before the war was a book called "The [illegible] of Fatherless Children." The war disposed of seven or eight million fathers and potential fathers and left millions of children fatherless and millions of women husbandless. The capitalists whom Goldstein defended, were responsible. That fact the cur could not deny.

"PETE" is now working for the Knights of Columbus. His last public appearance was in East Liverpool, Ohio, a hotbed of ku klux klanism, which is the obverse of the medal of which the Knights of Columbus and his brand of religious bigotry is the reverse. Collins might defend the catholic religion as a substitute for what he is pleased to call "the evils of Communism" under better auspices than the Knights of Columbus in view of what Bishop Gallagher of Detroit said about that order a little over a year ago. The bishop charged leaders of the K. of C. with being atheists and grafters out to perpetuate themselves in office and with having defied the orders of the church. A case of crooks falling out. But "Pete" does not care as long as he is attached to some payroll. In that respect he is fit company for Simmons and Evans and the other boodle-hounds who organized the protestant morons into the K. K. K.

THE British government is an efficient institution. This has often been demonstrated, but another proof of it was given last week when the throne of Albania was offered to two Englishmen, both of them Moslems, a necessary pre-requisite to qualification for that honor. It should not be forgotten that Britain recently helped the bandit who is now premier of that country, to oust Bishop Van Noli, former premier, who was somewhat liberal. COMMUNIST IS GIVEN FLOOR BY SEATTLE LABOR

Reactionaries Beaten After Bitter Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash. (By Mail)—Communist and progressive delegates to the Seattle central labor council defeated the reactionaries at the last meeting of the council when a motion was passed by a vote of 46 to 36 inviting Norman Tallentire, district organizer for the Workers Party, to speak to the central body on the Michigan defense cases in which 32 Communists are involved.

The debate on the motion, which was introduced by Joe Havel, delegate from the Stenographers' and Bookkeepers' Union, lasted over half an hour. When the vote was taken and the reactionaries realised they were beaten, a few of them started a stampede from the hall, but it failed and despite an attempt to create a disturbance, the delegates listened attentively to Comrade Tallentire's exposition of the Michigan cases and the threat to the entire labor movement contained in the criminal syndicalist laws.

Expelled Without Trial.

Some reactionary delegates having attacked Tallenstire's record as a trade unionist, the speaker related how he was expelled from the Carpenters' Union illegally, without trial or without any charges being brot against him, by order of "Czar" Hutcheson.

"You members of the American Federation of Labor have as much to fear from the criminal syndicalist laws as have the members of the I. W. W. or the Communists" declared Tallentire. When he finished the applause indicated that the meeting was almost unanimous in approving his plea for support of the Michigan defendants.

The reactionaries [illegible] to filibuster in order to prevent a vote. According to the rules of the central body, adjournment automatically takes place at 11 p. m.

Fakers Block Action.

A motion to endorse the Ruthenberg defense was made by Paul K. Mohr and seconded by Joe Havel. A substitute motion to lay the question over until the next meeting was then made by the reactionaries. One of the ringleaders of the reactionaries was no other than the erstwhile progressive, E. B. Ault, editor of the Seattle Union Record, who is now playing the same role in Seattle that his prototype, Cramer, is playing in Minneapolis. Ault declared that the meeting was packed by Communists and warned them not to take action that might be repudiated later on. The reactionary minority succeeded in defeating the will of the rank and file by blocking action until adjournment.

A significant paragraph in a very unfair story of the meeting in Thursday's Seattle Union Record, of which Mr. Ault is editor, indicates that the A. F. of L. bureaucrats are considering following the footsteps of the Minneapolis gang, in attempting to expel all the Communists from the Central Labor Council. The paragraph evidently written by Ault under the instructions of the local A. F. of L. "disorganizer" is as follows:

"Following the close of the session a large knot of delegates gathered outside and discussed the proposal of adopting the plan now being used by the Minneapolis Trades and Labor Council, which voted a few weeks ago to unseat all Communist delegates and bar them from the council floor. The group expects to bring the issue before the council at an early meeting it is said."

WORKER IS INJURED AS ARMOUR PLANT GOES UP IN SMOKE

WORTHINGTON, Ind., Feb. 3.—Armour and company's packing plant here was destroyed by fire today with a loss of approximately $225,000. While fighting the fire, Carl Kaiser, an employe, was seriously injured when an ammonia tank exploded hurling debris high into the air.

The plant, consisting of a five-story frame building and a two-story brick annex, was a center for poultry packing in this district. About 1,000 chickens and 100,000 pounds of dressed poultry were destroyed.

BOONE, IOWA, TO HEAR 'REDS' FEBRUARY 12

Gave Foster 265 Votes Without Party Branch

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOONE, Iowa, Feb. 3.—A brief visit to this little town of 14,000 population, a farming, mining and railroad division center, reveals many things of interest. Perhaps the most remarkable is the many different crafts that have unions here.

Hodcarriers and Teamsters.

Boone, being a railroad division point, all the brotherhoods have lodges. The miners have also got a local union that meets at the Boone Labor Temple. The temple is in the center of the town, and has two halls on the second floor.

These are occupied every evening of the month almost, for outside of the railroad brotherhoods, there are eighteen locals meeting at the Labor Temple, among them the teamsters, with forty members, and the hodcarriers. Then we learned that "Bob" Lyons was up from Des Moints last week and lined up a few for a new cooks' and waiters' local.

Farmers and Women Join Up.

Boone trade unions are ambitious politically, so practically all locals are represented in the legislative council, which is "non-partisan," and extends out into the county, with the affiliation of four farmers' organizations as well as two groups of the women's labor bureau, No. 2, and No. 5. The last named is a ward group about two miles from town.

This political council is a local organization, but all its affiliations are linked up thru their state councils or bureaus, including the women, who are now an auxiliary to the state federation.

The Boone county legislative association, their full name, will also put up candidates for election in the county this spring.

Fire Fighters and Street Car Men.

Then there are two locals not usually found in small towns, fire fighters and street railway employes. Many large towns cannot boast of such organizations, but apparently every craft that has a dozen workers is organized in Boone.

They have fairly good control on the job and now aspire to run the politics of the town and county. There

SOVIET RUSSIA DISCUSSED IN N. D. HOUSE

Communist Legislator Introduces Subject

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BISMARCK, N. D., Feb. 3.—The resolution of A. C. Miller, the Communist, asking for the recognition of Soviet Russia by this country was discussed in the house of representatives Thursday. Many non-partisan league representatives were clearly in favor of the proposal submitted by Miller, but lacked the courage to support it in the open. Besides Miller, Representative H. F. Swett, of Kidder county, spoke in favor of the resolution. D. L. Peters, of Pierce county, a blind tool of capitalism, spoke against it. On a viva voce vote about twenty voted in its favor.

Miller said that "twenty-one countries, among them some of the leading nations of the world, had already recognised Soviet Russia and the United States is losing valuable trade to other countries because it refuses to deal with the Russians. The result is," he continued, "that our factories are not working at full capacity, and in some instances, shutting down altogether, with thousands of workers in this country walking the streets looking for work and getting into the bread lines. Shiploads of tractors are being sent to Russia from Germany, while we who are manufacturing the best tractors in the world, cannot find a market for them."

Working Farmers Favor Recognition.

H. F. Swett, working farmer from Kidder county, urged consideration of the measure, saying that "Miller was looking at things in an international way and that he could see farther than most of us and I am convinced," he said, "that there are communities all over North Dakota that are in favor of recognizing Russia."

Representative D. L. Peters showed his utter ignorance of the subject he was trying to discuss, stating that "Russia owes the United States $800,000,000 which the Soviet government has repudiated. It is morally wrong for any government to recognise a government founded on bloodshed and murder," he said.

Upholds Soviet Before Legislators.

Miller, replying to this ignorant assault on the first workers' republic, said that "Peters evidently read only the capitalist papers. Time and again the Soviets have offered to discuss the debt question and the counterclaim of the Russians amounted to more than the whole debt," Miller said. "There was Bakmetiev," he continued, "who for a long time represented the non-existent Kerensky government in this country and to whom this government paid $187,000,000, this money being used to pay capitalists in the United States who had money coming from Russians in the days of the czar, and much of this vast sum was also used for counter-revolutionary purposes. The farmers and the workers of Russia are standing solidly back of their government," Miller added.

Many non-partisan league representatives congratulated Miller upon his talk.

House Will Probe Alleged Illegal Acts Of Illinois Judge

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—An investigation into the alleged official misconduct of Federal Judge English, eastern district of Illinois, was ordered today by the house judiciary committee.

It will be made by a sub-committee consisting of representatives Boise, Iowa; Christopherson, South Dakota; Hersey, Maine; Michener, Michigan, republicans; Summers, Texas; Tillman, Arkansas, and Weller, New York, democrats.

Judge English had been charged by residents of East St. Louis, Illinois, with irregularities in connection with an alleged "bankruptcy ring," under direction of his court, and with arbitrary and illegal acts against attorneys practicing before the court.

AUSTRIA, WHITE ELEPHANT ON LEAGUE HANDS

League Laboratory Up for Auction

(Special to The Daily Worker)

VIENNA, Feb. 3.—Austria is about to put up the shutters and go into mourning. As an independent nation, this creature of the league of nations is a ghastly failure.

The league has decided that keeping Austria as an independent republic is only a waste of good money and they are looking around for a plan to get the white elephant off their hands.

Dr. Zimmerman, the league's dictator, admitted that despite the financial jugglery practiced by the committee of international bankers that owns Austria, a financial crisis cannot be averted. Financial ruin is around the corner.

How to avert the crisis is the big question. Some favor annexing Austria to Germany. This plan has the sanction of the social-democrats and the catholic party, both strong factors in Austrian politics.

The second proposal is that Austria become a member of a union of Danubian states.

The third an Italian protectorate.

Owing to the jealousy between the powers, agreement as to the disposition to be made of Austria is difficult. Of course, the interests of the Austrian working class are not considered.

Austria's deficit for the year 1924 was $260,000,000 and the banks refuse to lend any more money. Austria is a stronghold of social-democracy and was one of the boasted conquests of the Second International.

SOVIET RUSSIA SPLITS JAPAN FROM LEAGUE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Feb. 3.—The consummation of the Soviet-Japanese treaty is causing considerable flutter among the gentlemen of Versailles who look upon the league of nations as an instrument especially designed to oppose Soviet Russia and all it represents.

Breaks Up League of Nations

One of the many points of a more technical character in the treaty which absorb French interest is the reported agreement by Japan not to engage in any hostile combination against Russia.

Japan is one of the original members of the league of nations and as such is bound by the articles of the covenant to take part with other nations in the coercion of Russia should she engage in any act of aggression against other members of the league, as for instance the Baltic states or Poland.

But by this treaty the Japanese government seems to have accepted an entirely contradictory engagement.

Worried Over Red Navy

Hyacinthe Philouze, intimate personal friend of Premier Herriot, closely allied with the Herriot government, and editor of the Sans Fil, signs an article, in which he states pointblank that Russia ceded a part of Sakhalin island containing enormous petroleum deposits, to Japan in return for the Tokio government's pledge to construct the latest and most formidable warships for the Soviets.

COOLIDGE MAY REWARD FORD WITH SHOALS FOR ELECTION SUPPORT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Henry Ford's offer to work with the government in the development of Muscle Shoals for the production of nitrates and power is regarded as "very generous" by President Coolidge, it was declared officially at the White House this afternoon.

Officials said that the president was not familiar with the details of Ford's offer, but that there was "a possibility that the government might find occasion to take advantage of it."

FIRETRAP RELIC OF WORLD'S FAIR 32 YEARS AGO

Hastily Constructed to Milk Visiting Throngs

The building at [illegible] Blackstone Ave., which burned down Saturday, snuffing out the lives of seven tenants, was constructed as a world's fair building in 1893, when present fire laws were not yet passed, George Erickson, one of the tenants in the building, told the DAILY WORKER yesterday.

Even when constructed thirty-two years ago, the building was a flimsy firetrap, hastily constructed for world fair purposes, Erickson said.

Old and in Bad Repair.

The building was old, and badly repaired, with faulty plumbing, worn wooden floors, inadequate fire escapes and small flimsy apartments, the testimony of the tenants revealed at the coroner's inquest yesterday.

George Erickson, who rooms on the first floor, testified that he had to go thru a room stored with furniture to get to his apartment. "None of the walls or floors were well finished," Erickson, a mechanic, testified. "The floors were old and worn. There had been varnish at one time but it was all rubbed off."

B. Yaeger, a laborer in a warehouse, who occupied the apartment in the second floor, told how his sister Mrs. Elizabeth Pryor, was trapped on the third floor.

GERMAN CAB IS ROCKED MONEY SCAN

Luther Gave Million Industrialists

(Special to The Daily Worke

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—The Kaiserli ernment of Hans Luther is no in office than it finds itself in a scandal surpassing even th the famous Barmat case in whic social democrats were proven to extended state credits to an e prising concern that had been o the socialist party's most gen financial supporters.

What the Lutherites are ch with is having turned over the g tic sum of $150,000,000—almo much as was loaned to Germany the Dawes plan—to the big indu ists of the Ruhr in compensatio their losses under the French oc tion.

These payments were made, w Luther was finance minister Stresemann was chancellor. The publican papers and particularly Communist press is deman that Luther and Stresemann be before the supreme court. It is likely, however, that anything of kind will take place.

Compensating the Plutes.

The payments were supposed to made in accordance with the gov ment's decision to compensate the players for losses sustained by the during the passive resistance aga the French invasion.

All the beneficiaries under the p ments were members of the people party or supporters of the extr right. Hugo Stinnes, Fritz Thy the Mannesmann group and von Hoesch were among the lu ones. The coal trust received $ 525,000; the chemical trust, $12,0 and the Rhine shipping trust, $ 275,000.

SEVEN COMMUNISTS APPEAR AS CANDIDATES IN ALDERMANIC POL

Seven Communists will appear on the ballot in the February alde manic elections in Chicago, unless fraud or trickery is used to keep the off. Petitions, containing the requisite number of signatures, have bee filed with the elections commissioner on behalf of Victor Zocaitis, 236 Emerald Ave. (4th ward); Louis Cejka, 2837 S. Spaulding Ave. (22nd ward); Hyman Epstein, 3131 W. 15th St. (24th ward); N. Dozenberg, 321 N. Aver Ave. (28th ward); Harry Brooker, 2708 Crystal St. (34th ward); J. Lou Engdahl, 1400 N. Kedzie Ave. (35th ward), and J. W. Johnstone, 2406 N. Clark St. (44th ward).

Commenting on the work done in circulating petitions, Martin Abern, city secretary of the Workers Party, pointed out that the Communists would have been able to accomplish still better results if it were not for the legal restrictions placed upon the conduct of "non-partisan" aldermanic campaigns.

The next stage of the campaign will be the holding of mass meetings in the various wards. A meeting is already being arranged for Johnstone.

JENSEN TACTICS FAIL TO KEEP OUT MILITANTS

Local No. 181 Demands That Hutcheson Act

Harry Jensen's strong arm men failed to prevent the illegally expelled members of Carpenters' Local Union No. 181, from attending their union meeting last Monday night. The rank and file insisted that the railroaded militants get inside and so they did.

As usual, the chairman refused to open the meeting until the expelled members retired, but as those members have been illegally deprived of their membership and consequently of their means of livelihood at their trade, they refused to comply with the autocratic chairman's orders. He was acting under the instructions of Harry Jensen, local satrap of "czar" Hutcheson.

"Hutch" Is In Florida.

It was learned at the meeting that Hutcheson is now enjoying the balmy breezes of Florida, and has no time to comply with the demands of Local No. 181, that he give a speedy decision on the appeal from the ruling of the chair in expelling the five members.

The meeting did not open until 9:30 p. m. The chairman wanted to "adjourn" the meeting before it opened, but the rank and file insisted on doing business.

When the chairman decided that he had better open the meeting, a motion was made demanding that General President Hutcheson of the international give a speedy decision on the appeal from the illegal ruling of the chair in declaring the five members expelled without complying with the laws of the brotherhood.

Jensen Is Furious.

The chairman consented to put the motion, despite the frantic appeals of Harry Jensen, who raved around the platform and tried to incite others to use violence. He was advised by the indignant members that if he started any trouble, they would see it thru. He therefore, calmed down and was chagrined to see the motion passed unanimously.

The members are extremely angry over the cold-blooded manner in which the general president refuses to consider their appeal for justice for their fellow workers and they are more determined than ever to see that the officials are not going to make a laughing stock out of the laws of the organization.

HEROIC DRIVER TELLS STORY OF RACE WITH DEATH IN WILD BLIZZARD TO SAVE NOME VICTIMS

By GUNNAR KASSEN.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 3.—My big black dog Balto must get all the credit as far as my part of the journey goes.

In the long trek across the snow covered and blizzardy trail it was Balto's eyes that saw when human eyes failed.

Balto is the leader of my 13 black Siberian malamutes and I do not think any other leader in Alaska could have brought me in safely.

It was my dog's intelligence and bravery that won in the face of the greatest odds.

I wish I could tell you the story of the whole race but I am so sleepy.

Leonard Seppella finished his run, 120 miles from Nome, making a 40 mile mush, near Bonanza to deliver the packet of serum to Olson of Bluff at Golovin. Olson gave the package to me at Bluff and my leg of the race was on.

I left Bluff at 10 p. m., Sunday night.

It was a storm all right.

I took four hours and 20 minutes for the first 20 miles. I had to travel in a fierce storm, a regular blizzard.

There was eight feet of snow on the ground at one point.

Then how dark! I passed Solomon's road house at Saftey without seeing it. I could not see the trail or the trail marks. Just Balto was there going up and down, up and down.

I was supposed to meet Ed. Rohn, another relay man there, but it was so dark I missed him and so decided to continue on to Nome. I thought it best—better than cause delay looking for him and changing dog harness.

Now the blizzard was abating somewhat but still I could not see.

I decided to trust to fate and Balto. I was sure he would come thru.

He did. But my dogs were just in the last act. To the other drivers and dogs most credit is due. They had the harder mush—more difficulties.

And for them I know I can say as for myself—we were glad to serve.

• • •

Nome More Hopeful.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NOME, Feb. 3.—Despite reports that the new serum may prove useless and that the epidemic was bringing new cases, Nome faced its plague with a strong heart and for a time forgot its sufferings to pay tribute to the men who made the fight against death.

Gunnar Kassen, the musher who drove the dog team in the final dash here and his 13 black Siberian dogs were the heroes of the camp.

Kassen was forced to tell again and again his story of the race and revealed that the outstanding driver of the battle against the elements was John Sommers, veteran mail carrier.

Sommers, Kassen said, left Kaltagat on his leg of the dash at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and reached Unalkleet at 3 o'clock Saturday morning after driving all thru the night.

His lap of the course was thru heavy timberland over deep and drifted snow with huge avalanches of snow blocking the trail. It was the most difficult leg of the race, yet despite the great difficulties he encountered Sommers pushed on and on and finally triumphed.

None was happier in Nome than Kassen's bride, formerly Miss Anna Carlson. She was among the first to greet the musher after his arrival.

Kassen is employed by the Hammon Consolidated Goldfields company. He is a friend and associate of Leonard Seppella, the champion musher and with him has made many perilous treks on the trail.

None of the containers holding the serum were broken, Dr. Welch said. He planned to thaw out the serum gradually.

Firetrap Relic of World's Fair Days

"I tried to save her but I couldn't make it thru the smoke and fire," he said. Yaeger hurried away immediately after his testimony to attend the funeral of his sister at Hammond Indiana.

No Way of Escape.

J. Roberts, told how he carried Mrs Earl out of the building dying. "Mrs. Earl had no way of escaping from the building except thru my door, which was locked," Roberts testified. "Her screams woke me up. I unlocked the door, but could not see Mrs. Earl thru the smoke. After taking my wife to a safer part of my apartment, I again looked for Mrs. Earl, and under the smoke saw her lying in the hall. I dragged her out, and took her to the yard. She died yesterday morning. She was trapped."

Doors Locked.

Ray G. Overall, a chauffeur, told how the water was not working on the night of the fire. The tenants had to flush the toilets from the hot water faucets, which were the only ones working, Overall said.

"I heard a man scream, and then saw the smoke," said Overall, who rooms on the third floor. "I tried to get my wife out the back way, but the door was locked. I then escaped from the floor below."

Couldn't Get Work.

Overall testified that he had been unable to find work for several months. "I had not paid my rent for three months," he said. "I couldn't get any kind of work."

Gordon Galloway, a milkman who roomed on the third floor, told how the fire escapes were flimsy and inadequate. "From my room the only fire escape was a ladder, which reached only as far as six feet below and to the side of my window. I had to jump the distance." Galloway first took his wife to a fire escape in a different apartment, but after going for his clothes, found that he could not get thru the flames to reach his wife again. He then jumped to the ladder below his window.

C. L. Bailey, a railroad machinist working for the Illinois Central railroad, advanced the theory that leaky gas pipes became ignited and caused the blaze. "It was a very old building," Bailey said. "The gas pipes were old, and perhaps a leaky gas pipe became ignited."

There are many firetraps in Chicago as bad or worse than the 32-flat tenement at 5830 Blackstone Ave that snuffed out the lives of seven people when it burned down last week, fire department witnesses testified at the coroner's inquest.

Similar blazes are liable to break out at any time, with just as fatal results, Horace McLane, chief of the 16th battalion declared. The fire department can do nothing, as the fire ordinances are inadequate he said The fire department witnesses asked for more stringent fire ordinances.

Building Like Many Others.

The known death toll was increased to seven when Mrs. Alice Earl, 56 died at the Illinois Central hospital Two other women who were tenants of the building have been missing since the fire and are also thot to have perished in the fire. They were seen after the fire; according to some of the witnesses at the inquest.

"Is this old building materially different from a large number of other buildings?" McLane was asked at the inquest.

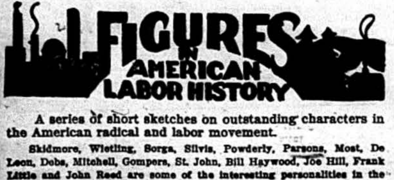
"No, it is just as well constructed as many others. It was inspected in 1920 and the fire laws were complied with." The building was construted as a world's fair building in 1893 when the present fire laws were not yet passed.

Business Men's Jury.

The "business men's" coroner's jury consists of Frank F. Holmes of the Insurance Exchange, C. C. Taylor of the Central Actuarial bureau, E. C Fischer, of the Employers Liability Assurance corporation, G. A. Mavon L. F. Menard of the Standard Accident Insurance company and Dr. Eldorado Scott, 6343 Kenwood avenue. There is no worker on the jury.

The buildings and zoning committee of the city council declared that they will ask the board of education to delay starting its new building program until all preventable fire hazards are eliminated. The committee will visit the scene of the Blackstone Ave. fire today.

Look for it every day beginning with next Saturday's paper.



FIGURES IN AMERICAN LABOR HISTORY

A series of short sketches on outstanding characters in the American radical and labor movement.

Skidmore, Wietling, Sorga, Silvis, Powderly, Parsons, Most, De Leon, Debs, Mitchell, Gompers, St. John, Bill Haywood, Joe Hill, Frank Little and John Reed are some of the interesting personalities in the labor movement that will be treated in this series.

Maritime Labor Herald Gets Big Advertising By Steel Co. "Expose"

HALIFAX, Can. Feb. 3.—Invaluable free publicity for a labor weekly appeared in two Halifax newspapers as a double page advertisement paid for by the British Empire Steel corporation. One page of the ad was a full page reproduction of the Maritime Labor Herald of Jan. 3, edited by J. B. McLachlan, and published at Glace Bay, N. S.

In that issue the Labor Herald gave considerable space to pointing out to the miners that the best weapon available to fight the corporation is the 100 percent strike.

The minimum circulation of the two dailies—The Halifax Herald and Morning Chronicle, in which the ad appeared, totals 50,000. It is reported that the advertising thus accorded the labor paper has increased its weekly circulation by 1100 copies and that subscriptions are coming in from points never before touched by the paper.

AMNESTY GRANTED FORMER ENEMIES BY SOVIET RUSSIA

ROSTOV ON DON, Russia.—Amnesty has been extended to all those who during the civil war allied themselves with the Wrangel and Deniken anti-Soviet army, Premier Rykoff announced at the first congress of the Soviets of the northern Caucasus.

All who returned to Russia after the collapse of the counter-revolutionary campaign will have their election privileges restored.

In announcing amnesty, Premier Rykoff said:

"The past must be buried; we must establish greater unity among all nationalities in this district; we must lighten the labors of the people; we must forget all that occurred during the civil war. We must establish the electoral rights of the whole population.

"The government has sufficient proof that those who opposed the Bolshevik regime are ready now to engage in peaceful labor, having recognized that their hostility toward us was a mistake."

M. Rykoff announced further that certain categories of peasants and workmen would also be liberated from prison and that the government would annul the greater part of the old agricultural tax which had remained uncollected for several years past.

"In doing this," continued the premier, "the government wishes to create in northern Caucasus a situation which shall bring all into closer contact for the welfare of the Soviet Union."

SUFFERERS FROM IRISH FAMINE WELCOME DEATH

Children Are Shoeless and Hungry

DUBLIN, Feb. 3.—Relief associations began sending oil stoves and oil to the famine districts of west Ireland today.

Depressing reports come from Galway. Travelers tell of shoeless children with hunger indelibly imprinted on their thin faces; mothers with babes at their breasts and showing signs of under-nourishment; and depressed men, all unemployed and living in miserable stone and sod roofed hovel. Death has not made any great inroads on these people, but many would welcome death, travelers said rather than continue to endure the daily pangs of hunger and suffering from the cold.

Seven In Two Rooms.

One tiny hut houses a family of seven in two rooms. All day long they crouch about a heap of smoldering wet peat which gives off so little heat it could be picked up from the hearth.

Another cabin of two rooms holds a family of twelve who sleep in two beds and on the flagstones of the hearth. Even the hovel-like homes of these people appear to add to their discomfort, for the rain-soaked sod roofs and stone walls hold moisture until the sun dries it out.

The daily fare in the famine districts consists of tea and bread for breakfast, tea and bread at midday In the evening dry, unbuttured bread Some families have a small store of be-dwarfed potatoes which represents their year's labor. These potatoes are harbored closely and are rationed carefully.

POWERS ANXIOUS TO AVOID FIGHT OVER PATRIARCH

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Feb. 3.—The British, French and Italian governments are anxious to avoid getting involved in hostilities because of the rupture between Turkey and Italy over the expulsion of the Greek patriarch from Constantinople.

The three governments are endeavoring to prevent the crisis between Greece and Turkey from developing into an open break.

Greek Workers Cool.

Reports of indignation over the expulsion of the patriarch come from Greece, but the Greek workers are keeping quite cool and have no intention of shedding any of their blood in order to salvage the dignity of the bourgeoisie which may have been wounded when the Turks advised the religious leader to take up his bed and walk.

As England and France, the two nations most interested in the doings of Greece and Turkey, are not now ready for war, it is likely that the incident will become part of history with no more horrible results than several scare headlines.

"The Beauty and the Bolshevik" is coming to Ashland Auditorium Feb. 8.

Chicago Journal Was Not Turned Over To Its Employes by the Owner

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, all the world is told that John C. Eastman, late editor and owner of the Chicago Journal, has left that publication to its employes. "LEAVES JOURNAL TO EMPLOYES," says the big headline in the Journal itself, which should leave no doubt about it.

On the face of things, this would indicate that Chicago's workers, at least those employed on the Journal, were to have a daily paper of their own. By employes one visions the printers, the stereotypers, the mailers, the pressmen, the office staff, the workers in the editorial rooms, even the newsies.

• • • •

But no one is kept long in doubt as to the real facts behind the misleading headlines. The paper doesn't go to the employes at all. The workers on the Journal were never in the mind of the publisher, Eastman, when he made his will.

The much heralded "employes" consist merely of three high officials of the Chicago Journal company; Eastman's closest business associates. Take a good look at them: W. Frank Dunn, president; O. L. Hall, vice-president, and H. C. Deuter, treasurer.

The Journal had to be continued after Eastman's death. It wasn't in the nature of things that he could take it along with him. Someone had to have the ownership of the paper. The "employes" certainly didn't get it. The workers, all the way from reporters to pressmen, have no more proprietary right in the Journal today, than they had before Eastman died. This title is lodged, according to the best traditions of private ownership, in the hands of the business trio, to whom Eastman turned over this property.

• • • •

It isn't written in the newspaper game, no more than in any other industry, that the workers should get control under capitalism. The business of publishing newspapers is being monopolized just like the running of the steel industry.

Hearst is the greatest newspaper monopolist. His Chicago Herald-Examiner has grown because of the sustenance it won from the graves of The Chronicle and The Herald, two morning dailies that it drove out of its field. Its sole competitor is The Tribune, a giant corporation, alone taking millions of dollars annually in profits.

• • • •

The Journal prides itself on two things. It claims to be the oldest daily newspaper in Chicago. It is also Chicago's only democratic newspaper. But things that are old are ready for death. There is really no reason for the continued existence of The Journal; no more than there is for the Evening Post. Vic Lawson's "open shop" Daily News, and the scandal mongering Evening American, also a Hearst property, thoroly cover the field. They give the master class all the service that it really needs. It should, therefore not be surprising if the Journal should in time decide to die. Then the other capitalist sheets would publish long news articles and editorials relating the failure of turning over such a delicate property, a newspaper, to mere "employes." They would merely be publishing the sequel to the fiction they have already set afloat.

• • • •

The consolidation of the various capitalist newspapers, however, increases the necessity of the workers building their own press. The Journal proclaims that it has "steadfastly fought on the side of law and order, public decency, official honesty and civic reform." Every other capitalist sheet, if it cannot say as much, can at least claim it. What the workers, in city and country, need are newspapers that will fight for the working class against the capitalist class.

There is only one daily newspaper in the English language, published in these United States, that is doing that at the present time. That newspaper is the DAILY WORKER, the official organ of the Workers (Communist) Party.

The DAILY WORKER welcomes the consolidation of the forces of its enemy. It sees in the growing capitalist press monopoly, the developing solidarity of its enemy, that must become apparent to city and land workers, forcing them into a realization of the necessity of building their own press.

• • • •

The DAILY WORKER belongs to workers. It is their weapon; wielded by the organized American Communist movement. Its triumphant record shows that the workers can successfully conduct a class organ of their own. The DAILY WORKER is the forerunner of many DAILY WORKERS, to come in all the big centers of the nation.

John C. Eastman's death marked the passing of the last of the private owners and personal editors of an American newspaper.

The DAILY WORKER marks the joint effort of workers to build a press of their own; one of the chief weapons, not only in crushing the opposition capitalist press, but in helping to abolish the whole capitalist system; when the workers will take over the world.

TURK CAPITALISTS APOLOGIZE TO RUSS WORKERS AND PEASANTS

SOCIALISTS IN MILD QUARREL WITH HERRIOT

Against Him on Papal Compromise

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Leon Blum, leader of the socialist party in the French chamber of deputies criticized premier Herriot's foreign policy towards Germany which his party supported last week after Herriot threatened to resign if the socialists withdrew their support.

In a secret caucus prior to the session of the chamber, the socialists decided by a vote of 37 to 11 to refrain from voting on Herriot's proposal to establish an Alsace-Lorraine diplomatic mission to the Vatican. The socialists however decided that they would vote for Herriot in the event Herriot called for a vote of confidence in the government.

Wall Street's Tools

That the socialists are anxious to stand in the good graces of the American capitalists is shown by Blum's speech during which he said:

"We can consider that Germany is practically disarmed. We prevented the chamber from adopting a resolution to placard Marin's speech because we do not wish America to believe that the entire chamber approved of Marin's remarks." [illegible] criticized the U. S. for demanding payment of her war debts.

Senator Borah Wants to Talk Money with Mussolini's Bandits

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.— Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, wants Italy to pay her war debt to the United States. As a step towards bringing that delicate question to public attention, Borah addressed a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, a well-known admirer of the fascisti, demanding information regarding the amount Italy owes to the United States government and when the credits were granted.

The amount of the Italian debt, with interest added is now about $2,000,000,000. It is known that proposals looking toward a settlement of the Italian indebtedness are not popular with Benito Mussolini.

"Big Five" Packers Violate Law and Plot More Grabs

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Charging the "big five" packers with continual violation of the government "anti-trust" degree, Senator Frazier, rep., North Dakota, this afternoon called upon the senate to enact his bill placing the packing industry under the direct control of the federal trade commission.

Frazier urged haste, he said, because it was rumored the consent degree, forbidding the packers from engaging in "unrelated industries" was to be set aside, leaving them free of government regulation.

Tinker with Leaky Law to Restrain New Jersey Bosses

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 3.—An amendment to the disputed no-night-work-for-women bill providing penalties of $50 for first violation and $200 for second is being prepared for presentation to the New Jersey state legislature.

The new law was inoperative for lack of penalties. It provides against work by women between 10 p. m. and 6 a. m. and is being fought by a group of textile mill, laundry and glass factories.

Pull Guts Out of Eight Hour Bill; Plutes Let it Pass

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—Prospects for passage of the women's eight-hour law at this session of the Illinois general assembly became bright today with the announcement that many objectionable features that caused its defeat two years ago had been toned down. Terms of the bill were agreed to at a conference in Chicago and the measure is now on its way here, Representative Mrs. O'Neill of Du Page county said.

2,381 COAL MINERS KILLED DURING 1924, MORE TO COAL MINED

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 4.—Coal mine accidents cost the lives of 2,381 miners in 1924, which, although a slight decrease of 77 from the 1923 total, shows an increase in the number of deaths to the coal produced. The death rate per million tons of coal mined in 1924, being 4.27, compared with 3.74 during 1923. This is a report of the Bureau of Mines.

TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE WEEKLY SECTION

WHO'LL ANSWER? WHO WILL BE OUR CORRESPONDENT?

Workers Everywhere Invited to Write

The importance of developing the T. U. E. L. section into a real live expression of the everyday struggle of the workers on the industrial and political field cannot be overestimated. The success of this section however depends entirely upon the militants in the labor movement, the members of the Workers Party and the T. U. E. L.

The T. U. E. L. is attempting to organise a corps of correspondents in every industry. So far only the Detroit and Chicago league have notified the editor of the T. U. E. L. section that they have selected reporters who will be held responsible for sending the news of these cities for the section.

Let's Hear From You.

At the next meeting of your industrial or local general group take up this matter and see that some one in each industry is selected and held responsible for the sending in of reports on strikes, election campaigns, shop conditions and shop activities, trade union activities, political activities, injunctions, child labor, criminal syndicalist laws, etc. In fact, give us news of all the struggles of the workers, no matter how small they may appear to be.

Irregulars Also Welcome.

If you are located in places where no organization exists, or you belong to none, yet if you know of such events as mentioned above, if you have a story—send it in. We want regular correspondents, but we accept "irregular" ones if they have labor news.

One local comrade should be selected to cover your city and should be responsible for the reports of the industrial group reporters. We do not reject articles, they are welcome, but it is not necessary that your report should be in the form of an article. Send us notes on things as they happen, gives us dates, figures, results, the part played by the left wing in the struggle, no romancing—just facts. Just jot them down as they happen and send them into the T. U. E. L. DAILY WORKER section and we will do the rest. All material should arrive not later than Friday of each week, for publication in the following Tuesday's section.

LEFT TURNS

Since joining the T. U. E. L. we have learned that it isn't the worst thing in the world to get what's left.

F'R INSTANCE—

Take our left wing group in the printing trades—there's a fine crowd—they always run true to type.

BUT—

If you are ambitious in the building trades, promotion is sure. Even tho on every job you must start from the bottom, you soon work yourself up.

• • •

While the Minneapolis central labor body expels Dan Stevens of the Painters and Mauseth of the Machinists, both Communists, Walter Frank, also Communist, is elected from another local union to be seated.

The local unions in that town just insist that there should be some brains in the central body.

MINERS DEMAND NATIONALIZATION OF COAL MINES

4-Day Week and 6-Hour Day to Aid Jobless

The following unemployment resolution was passed by Local Union No. 2376, U. M. W. of A., Christopher, Ill.:

Resolution on Unemployment.

Whereas, we the members of the Miners' Union of America, are face to face with the most severe crisis in the history as an industry, and an industrial union due to unemployment, and starvation resulting from same, which is eating at the very foundation of our very life and union, and causing unspeakable misery and hardships, and

Whereas, according to reports many places are falling out of the ranks of our union because of the economic pressure by the magnates of industry ably backed by Wall Street and the Coolidge regime, and because of lack of financial support due to the financial condition of our organization, and

Whereas, no educational policy is being conducted by any branch of our organization to educate the workers to the real cause of the crisis, which is an outworn economic system that can no longer function to the welfare of the people, and

Whereas, the miners all over the country are organizing unemployment councils and a demand is made to pursue a policy and campaign to educate the rank and file of our union, relative to: First, a six-hour day and a four-day week; second, an intense campaign for nationalization of the coal mines; third, an intense organizational campaign in the unorganized field and to further that end we the members of Local Union No. 2376 do hereby petition and

RESOLVE, first, that the officers of our international and districts at once commence to educate the rank and file along the lines of the above policy thru the official organs of our organization and in every other way advisable; second, that a special international convention be called to bring together the representatives of our union to council and advise, to devise ways and means for carrying the above policy into effect and for any other business relative to the same, and be it further

RESOLVED, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Illinois Miner and The United Mine Workers' Journal.

Cleveland Cooks Strike Against Lockout and Cut

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND—The cooks and waiters of Webber's restaurant, a food emporium catering to the fat-bellied politicians in this city, have been locked out and their jobs given to more docile slaves when they refused to accept a cut in their already miserable wages.

The locked-out workers, who are members of Locals No. 106 (Waiters) and No. 167 (Cooks) of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' International Association, are picketing the restaurant and are fully confident that Webber's will be forced to adhere to the union agreement and maintain the union conditions.

The wages of the waiters in this establishment which the owner has for a long time been trying to cut were but $18.00 per week, and the proprietor has claimed that he is unable to pay even such a wretched pittance and has even refused to present his case to a mediation board. The lockout was initiated without warning and in face of the government mediator's proposal that action be deferred for thirty days.

This lockout is an illustration of the bosses' real views on the sanctity of contracts. They raise a howl if any workers seek to engage in a sympathetic strike, but a contract is nothing but a scrap of paper if it suits their purpose to violate it. Webber's agreement covering the workers now locked out does not expire until July 15.

The cooks and waiters involved in this controversy are taking great encouragement from the fact that the waitresses employed by the big May Department Store, who were locked out in violation of the agreement with the joint board of Cooks, Waiters, and Waitresses, which is also handling the Webber case, were successful in enforcing adherence to the agreement by the May Co. after being out several weeks.

CHI. FEDERATION IN UNITED FRONT FOR PRISONERS

Votes Down Hostile Committee Report

The Machinists' Lodges 337, 84, and 390, also Painters' Locals 275 and 637, passed the resolution supporting the Labor Defense Council in its fight to free the Communist victims of the Michigan "criminal syndicalism" gag law. The resolution, in part declares:

Solidarity For Defense.

"Whereas, the sustaining of Ruthenberg's conviction by the United States supreme court will make easier the railroading to long terms in prison of William Z. Foster, Robert Minor, William F. Dunne, and 28 other well-known fighters in the ranks of the labor movement—and would also encourage high-handed suppression by the capitalist-controlled government of all and any working-class organizations who dare oppose their open shop rule, and

"Whereas, the solidarity of the entire working class is essential to its welfare and requires that those in the forefront of the struggle must especially have the support of all workers, therefore be it

"Resolved that we protest against and condemn the action of the Michigan state supreme court, record ourselves as in support of the Labor Defense Council in these cases and call upon all labor organizations and working class bodies to take the same stand."

Chicago Federation Stands True.

This resolution came up for action in the Chicago Federation of Labor at their meeting Sunday, February 1. In spite of the recommendation of the resolution committee to file the resolution an amendment was made and carried by an overwhelming majority that the federation reiterate its former position.

The Chicago federation was the first central labor body to condemn the Michigan raids and to come to the support of Foster, Ruthenberg and the other 31 Communists.

Reactionaries Lose Leadership.

Since then the Chicago Federation of Labor has repudiated its former stand on amalgamation and independent working class political action, but it is not yet ready to follow the lead of its reactionary resolutions committee.

All Ill. Coal Fields Are Stirred by League Unemployment Program

When the Illinois coal operators attempted to use the clause of the existing working agreement providing for division of work during unemployment as a means of forcing down the throat of the miners a "Yellow Dog" contract, they calculated without the militants of the T. U. E. L. It could not be put over on them.

But when the miners' union officials practically sided in with the operators instead of proposing something for the relief of the unemployed miners the militants decided it was about time to take some action by themselves.

Now the whole Illinois coal field has become stirred with activity. The needs of the unemployed have become formulated into concrete demands upon the state government to enact legislation providing relief for the unemployed and for the industry to bear the burden of maintenance.

Repeatedly the rank and file coal miners have demanded action from their officials and proposed that conferences be held to work out measures for relief but they failed to respond.

Under the leadership of the T. U. E. L. and Workers Party militants, the rank and file are now laying the basis for organization of these unemployed workers to bring sufficient pressure to bear in the struggle for the demands. The basis is solidarity between employed and unemployed, between all unions in the territory no matter what trade they belong to—united working class action.

So. Bend Prosperity Only in Newspapers

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—The local capitalist papers have ben raising a cry about the prosperity that is gripping this city. Let us examine. Information I have received from a person closely connected with health department has this to say: "We have at present three hundred (300) families living on charity (the city feeds them) and there are more coming every day."

The local press tells us that Studebaker Auto Co. has not reduced wages of the workers, which is another lie. I believe the workers could tell better about that. Most of them are working only part of the time, many are laid off indefinitely, and those who are working have their wages reduced to a starvation level.

A DAY WITH A SHOVEL STIFF ON HIS JOB

A Round Trip, Told by One of Them

The L. E. Myers Co. is constructing an extention to the "L", planned to connect with the Chicago & Evanston "L" at Howard St., and running from there northwest to Niles Center. Several hundred men are employed out there now; 40 cents an hour being paid those laborers who live in the company's camp (board $8 per week), and 45 cents an hour to those who live outside,—in Chicago mostly.

Here, every morning before daylight, a motley crowd of widely travelled men begin to gather, to whom for the present the 40 cents or 45 cents looks like a life-saver. They are all "Micawbers", too,—something better is bound to turn up in a week or a month.

The Scissor's Ambition.

In the street car going north some luckless worker hands the conductor a transfer all nicely folded up and is admonished to do his own unfolding. Arrived at the check window one minute past seven, the worker is docked half an hour for his minute's tardiness by the hard-faced slave back of the wicket, who has doubtless been dreaming a little while since of rising to be the head of the company.

Hustled into a work train or truck, the workers are then rushed out to the job in the bitter morning air and perhaps put at unloading cinders for ballast.

Oh, how the wind does carry those cinders and ashes and dirt into and through and over one, and how one's eyes especially get to hurting. The job is not a contract, but is being done on a percentage or cost-plus basis, so the work is not carried on very strenuously, but is cold and tedious.

The "I Am the Boss" Mind.

The walker says, "Damnedest bunch of know-nothings I ever saw. Chinks or Japs are nothing to these."

The foreman says, "Go on, damn it, move up the line. Too many men here. Go on, take a walk."

Their psychology is that of slave drivers, but the slaves respond only slowly; some get cross and scowl and swear, others smile and joke.

The lack of any real organization for getting work done is apparent to all. Nearly everyone does as little as possible, and keeps from getting too cold. No class collaboration here.

The Stiff's Daily Treadmill.

Owing, perhaps, to a late train, they get back to the office at night half an hour or more late but the morning's penalty is not remitted.

Home? In the darkness, to eat and sleep awhile, and then up and at it again, on the job from 7 to 6, 7 days a week.

Milwaukee T. U. E. L. Gives Berger Hell and Battles Bob

The Milwaukee T. U. E. L. group have been successfully exposing the local C. P. P. A. which is composed chiefly of republican party politicians, bankrupt socialists and a few labor fakers. Most of the unions in the city have refused to send delegates to the local conference for progressive political action.

The purpose of this conference was to solidify the so-called "progressive" forces and to elect delegates to the Chicago convention of the C. P. P. A. Several railroad, building trades and other unions turned down this proposition. The Machinists' Union No. 66 at its last meeting voted down the invitation to send delegates by a vote of 31 to 1.

Socialists Protest.

Even the membership of the socialist party is beginning to seriously protest against Berger's class collaboration policy. In open violation of party instructions, the membership in Milwaukee are refusing to support this move that has the official endorsement of their party.

Notwithstanding the idle boast, made to keep up their ebbing courage, that 1,000 delegates will be at the convention, all indications are that the whole thing will be a flat failure, and that the delegates will be composed of politicians of the socialist party, republican party and labor fakers of the Johnston type.

Break Bob's Grip Thru Unions.

The members of the Workers Party and the T. U. E. L. are active in the unions and are succeeding in breaking the LaFollette illusion.

The progressive workers in Milwaukee are sobering up from the LaFollette intoxication, they are beginning to see the correctness of the position taken by the left wing. One can clearly perceive the growing influence of the left wing movement in Milwaukee. And the fight is only beginning.

CANADIAN DISTRICT

'NO WAGE CUT!' SAY MINERS OF NOVA SCOTIA

Militants Remind Miners of Their Power

The coal miners of District 26 Nova Scotia have been asked to accept a cut in wages by the British Empire Steel corporation. The reasons advanced by this blood sucking octopus are:

1. "The steel trade is so depressed that the Sydney Steel plant cannot operate at a profit.

2. "The coal trade has become unsatisfactory, owing to the ability of the United States producers to undersell our coal in Canadian markets."

Sounds Like Farrington.

This is the same argument put up by Frank Farrington at the Illinois miners' convention when he urged the miners to produce more and cleaner coal so that the Illinois mine operators could successfully compete with the nonunion mines of W. Virginia and Kentucky.

The miners in District 26 are determined to fight against any attempt to cut their wages. The following is one of the militant calls for action:

Brother Rebels.

"Brothers, rebels of Cumberland county, day in and day out your protecting hand saves the grinding, crushing millions of tons of earth pressure from destroying Besco property in your county. Besco looks longingly at your breakfast table and sees your children with less than one half glass of milk for breakfast. Besco and Wolvin want to snatch the children's milk away from them and take one-tenth of it to pay profits on idle junk. Can you not see the trump card you hold in your hand to stop Besco and save the children their morning milk? Then use it to the limit!

"Brothers, rebels of Cape Breton county, your protecting hand saves every day the destruction of Besco property from flooding. Besco looks longingly at your thinly clad, poorly fed family and says that $17.50 per week—if you get work enough to earn that much—is enough for you and yours. Besco wants some of the food off your table and some of the clothes from your backs to pay dividends to idle stockholders—some of whom are now in jail for bank smashing.

No Defense Council Meeting on Saturday

There will be no meeting of the Chicago Defense Council this Saturday, Feb. 7, but there will be one held the following Saturday. All delegates should be prepared to settle for tickets and advertising at that time. Complete settlements should be made if possible, but all available cash should be turned in.

HOW TO DO T. U. E. L. WORK IN SHOP AND REACTIONARY UNION

By A RED UNIONIST.

The A. C. W. of A. is living upon its past reputation, the only thing revolutionary about it at present being the phraseology of its leaders.

A union, to be militant and revolutionary, must have a class conscious membership and a revolutionary leadership. In the A. C. W. of A. only a minority of the membership can be designated as revolutionary or class conscious. If the balance of the membership lacks these qualities, it is not their fault. They are not as dumb as the fake leaders try to picture them, to serve as an excuse for their conservative attitude. The blame rests upon the shoulders of the officials who do not attempt to lead and teach the members the class struggle.

Patience and Sincerity.

When I first came into my shop and started to agitate, asking the workers to fight for the betterment of their conditions, they looked upon me as a professional kicker. They used to tell me that I found fault with everything.

It took weeks of hard work to prove to them that I was their comrade, and my aim their aim. I did this by actually fighting and helping them gain improved working conditions.

When I had gained the confidence of my fellow workers, it was easier to explain that in fighting for them I fought for myself as well, as I was a part of the working class, while the boss belongs to the class of exploiters, our enemies.

Talks With the Workers.

During working hours in my sections, we discussed many questions pertaining to shop conditions. I found one conception prevailing in my shop which was the hardest to combat, and which even exists to this day, and that is this:

To the workers the union seems but a dues collecting agency. They claim they were better off before union took control. For example, the boss would give them cheap lunch rates, visiting nurses, and once in a while, a wedding present.

My hardest task was to show up this fallacy. To show them that all the so-called "good things" of life with which the boss used to favor them, are nothing in comparison with what can be gained thru their solidarity. Their standard of living and their working conditions being much better than when they were accepting "charity" from the boss, and only by their organization can they hope to still get more.

Unions and Officials Different Things.

Another difficult job is to show the workers that the leaders and the unions are not always swynonimous. We fight and expose fake leaders because they neglect the union and its membership, and instead of fighting the boss, they collaborate with him; for example, the recent "readjustment," which benefitted only the boss.

One day, while we were sitting and waiting for work (and as we work piece work this means a waste of time) I called the foreman over and asked him why it was not arranged so that the boss should suffer this loss of time as well as we. As usual, he told me that if the boss would suffer, I would too; that less profit for the boss would mean that I would get less. I told him not to talk such nonsense to me, that I had nothing in common with the boss.

Teaching the Workers of Russia.

After the foreman left, some of the workers asked, "Do you mean to say that we don't need the boss? What would you do without a boss? Where would you get work?"

So I explained to them that a boss is not necessary, the workers in Russia having proven this. I showed them that the boss knows nothing about our factory, anyway, all the work being carried on by men to whom he pays wages, from the manager down.

All the boss does is to clip coupons, and many bosses die, and still things go on without them. If we workers could win the factory for ourselves, the difference would be that the boss would not exploit us and get the profits, etc.

Discrimination Futile.

When the boss, or foreman, saw how my propaganda was influencing the workers, he thought it necessary to transfer me to a different shop run by the same firm. But in the new shop it did not take long for me to gain the confidence of my new fellow workers.

One of our comrades used to be chairman in this shop, and carried on active propaganda, so it was not so difficult to liven up the progressives in the shop.

Take the T. U. E. L. Seriously

Yes, the workers understand not only nickles and dimes, as the fakers say, but when proprely informed, they understand the necessity for revolutionary action. And I am convinced that if all our comrades would take the T. U. E. L. work more seriously, the success of our cause is assured.

Big Vote for Left Wing in District 5 of Miners' Unio

The Progressive Miners of Dist Five, Pittsburgh, reports that the tab lation of the election returns in 48 l cals of that district, shows a 5 to vote for the progressive candidate The following is an example of ho the vote runs:

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD FIGHTS FOR COMPANY UNIONS IGNORING RAILROAD LABOR BOARD ORDER

That the Pennsylvania Railroad will make a determined stand for its labor policy of fostering company unions is indicated by the mailing out of notices that an election of employe representatives will be conducted as usual in February. The election is for the telegraphers on the system.

This action is taken despite the recent vote ordered by the Railroad Labor Board, in which the telegraphers employed on the Pennsylvania voted four to one in favor of representation by the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, a national organization.

Is Rabid Open Shop Road.

According to those who are familiar with the labor policy of the Pennsylvania, any failure to carry out the election in the case of the telegraphers, notwithstanding the vote recorded by the Railroad Labor Board, would have been a virtual withdrawal from its policy of dealing with its employes thru the company unions.

The Pennsylvania has made a strong fight in favor of this policy for several years, even tho it has been opposed seriously by the national unions and at times by the Railroad Labor Board.

Must Not Represent Union.

One provision of the notice of the election mailed to the telegraphers is that any one accepting the nomination must be an employe representative and not a representative of the union.

In the election last year the employe representatives appeared before the Railroad Labor board and declared that they were representatives of the national union. It is said that this clause was inserted in the nomination blank this year to prevent a repetition of this case.

The stand of the Pennsylvania on employe representation has made it one of the railroads most closely watched in its dealings with the railroad board.

"A Fair and Impartial" Count.

Under the system employed on the Pennsylvania the ballots will be sent to all telegraphers. They will be invited to register their choice for employe representatives and return them in sealed envelopes.

All of the ballots are to be counted by a committee of tellers representing the management and the "employes" now in the company union.

COMMUNISTS IN GERMANY HAVE OWN THEATRES

Depict Class Struggle in Drama

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—One of the most efficient means of propaganda of the German Communists is the so-called "Wonder Theater." It was first used during the last election campaign and received big approval on the part of the workers, since the wishes, hopes and the hate of the masses are being expressed. The Communists rent halls in workers' districts, and offer their performances in 14 scenes.

In staging these scenes, two men—of whom the one represents the proletariat, the other the boufrgeoisie—give suitable commentaries. In this manner they take the place of the chorus in the ancient Greek tragedy.

One scene shows a Communist who is sentenced to the penitentiary because he had his own opinion about the present system of society. He delivers a speech to the jury that explains the principles of Communism.

In another scene an inhabitant from Mars comes down to the earth and finds to his surprise that there are people who toil and starve in order to make it possible for some others to wallow in luxury. He can only explain it in that the producers of the wealth are too backward yet to use their power in order to gain control of the means of production.

One of them, in order to make the Albanians realize the hazard attached to the job, demanded half a million dollars cash on the spot and an annuity of $50,000 as long as he lived. They kicked against the spot cash payment. They were not afraid of the annuity.

CONSIDERABLE mystery has enshrouded the death of Lord Kitchener who was drowned while on his way to Russia in a cruiser during the early part of 1917. Some people claim that he is still living, but that for some mysterious reason, his whereabouts are kept secret by the government. This is a pure yarn on a par with the one which insists on placing the czar among the living. The latest story about the manner in which the Germans got wind of Kitchener's intended trip to Russia is from a czarist general in New York. He says that one night while the czar was drunk, he informed a general in command of the imperial palaces of Kitchener's proposed trip. The czar's drunken indiscretion finally reached the ears of the Germans with results not altogether to the advantage of Kitchener. This story can be taken for what it is worth.

After the July defeat, it is true a difference of opinion did arise between the C. C. and Lenin as to the fate of the Soviets. It is well known that Lenin, who wished to concentrate the attention of the party on the preparations for the insurrection outside the Soviets, warned it against allowing itself to be seduced by the Soviets as in his opinion, the Soviets which had already been rendered nauseous by the social patriots, had become hopelessly barren. The C. C. and the 6th party session took a more cautious line and decided that there was no sufficient reason for thinking it impossible to revive the Soviets. Kornilov's advance showed that this decision was right In any case, this difference of opinion had not actual significance for the party. Lenin subsequently admitted that the line taken by the 6th party session had been the right one. It is interesting that Comrade Trotsky did not cling to this difference of opinion and did not exaggerate it to a "monstrous" degree.

A united and consolidated party which stands in the center of the revolutionary mobilization of the masses, this is the picture of the situation of our party at that period.

3. The Period of the Organization of the Attack (September-October). The fundamental facts of this period are: (a) the summoning of the democratic council and the collapse of the idea of a block with the cadets; (b) the going over of the Soviets of Moscow and Petrograd to the Bolsheviki; (c) the Soviet Congress of the northern district and the resolution of the Petrograd Soviet against the transfer of troops; (d) the resolution of the C. C. of the revolutionary military committee of the Petrograd Soviet; (e) the resolution of the Petrograd garrison regarding the system of the commissoners of the revolutionary military committee; (f) the formation of armed Bolshevist fighting forces and the arrest of members of the "provincial government"; (g) the seizure of power by the revolutionary military committee of the Petrograd Soviet and the formation of the Soviet of the people's commissioners by the second Soviet Congress.

As the characteristic feature of this period we must regard the rapid growth of the crisis, the complete confusion of the ruling circles, the isolation of the S. R. and of the mensheviki and the wholesale going over of the vascillating elements to the Bolsheviki.

An original peculiarity of the revolutionary tactics of this period must be pointed out. This peculiarity consists therein that the revolution attempted to carry out every, or almost every step of its attack under the appearance of defense. There is no doubt that the refusal to permit the transfer of troops was a serious aggressive act of the revolution; nevertheless this attack was undertaken under the slogan of the defense of Petrograd against a possible attack of the external enemy. There is no doubt that the formation of the revolutionary military committee was a still more serious step in the attack against the provisional government; nevertheless it was carried out under the slogan of the organization of the Soviet control over the activities of the military staff. There is no doubt that the open going over of the garrison to the revolutionary military committee and the organization of the network of Soviet commissioners indicated the beginning of the insurrection; nevertheless these steps were taken under the slogan of the defense of the Petrograd Soviets against possible attacks of the counter-revolution.

It is as though the revolution had hidden its acts of aggression under the cloak of defense so as to attract all the more easily the undecided elements into its sphere of influence. This must also explain the apparent defensive character of the speeches articles and slogans of this period which none the less, in their intrinsic value, bare a throughly offensive character.

Were there at this period differences of opinion within the C. C.? Yes there were, and those not unimportant ones. I have already mentioned the differences of opinion as regards the insurrection. They were fully explained in the minutes of the C. C. of October 10, and 16. We must now give more attention to three questions: the questions of the participation in the "preliminary parliament," of the part played by the Soviets in the insurrection and the time for the insurrection. This is all the more necessary because Comrade Trotzky, in his eagerness to put himself in a conspicious place, unintentionally misrepresents Lenin's attitude towards the last two questions.

There is no doubt that the differences of opinion as to the question of the preliminary parliament were of a serious nature. What was, so to speak, the object of the preliminary parliament? That of helping the bourgeoisie to push the Soviets into the background and to lay the foundations of bourgeois parliamentarism. Whether the preliminary parliament, in the revolutionary situation which had become so complicated, was able to carry out this task, is another question. Events have shown that this object was unattainable, and the preliminary parliament itself represented a miscarriage of the Korniloviad. There is however, no doubt that this was the aim pursued by the mensheviki and the social revolutionaries when they created the revolutionary parliament. What can, under these circumstances, have been the share of the Bolsheviki in the preliminary parliament? Nothing else than the intention to deceive the proletariat as to the real charactetr of the preliminary parliament. This chiefly explains that passion with which Lenin, in his letters, scourges the adherents of the preliminary parliament.

The participation in the preliminary parliament was doubtless a serious mistake. It would however be wrong to take for granted, as does Comrade Trotzky, that the partisans of participation entered the preliminary parliament with the object of organic work, to "guide the labor movement into the channel of social democracy." This is quite wrong. This is not true. If it were true the party would not have succeeded in correcting this mistake by the demonstrative exit from the preliminary parliament. The living force and the revolutionary power of our party were expressed, among other ways, in that it was able so speedily to make good its mistake. And now allow me to correct a slight inexactness which has crept into the report of the "editor" of Trotzky's works, Comrade Lenzner, concerning the committee of the bolshevist fraction which decided the question of the preliminary parliament. Comrade Lenzner states that at this meeting there were two reporters, Kamenev and Trotzky. This is untrue. As a matter of fact there were four reporters: two for the boycott of the preliminary parliament (Trotzky and Stalin) and two for participation (Kamenev and Nogin).

But Comrade Trotzky is seen in a still worse light when it comes to Lenin's attitude towards the question of the form of the insurrection. Comrade Trotzky makes it appear as tho had Lenin been followed, the party would in October have seized power "independently of the Soviet and behind its back" (Trotzky "On Lenin," page 71 of the Russian edition). In the subsequent criticism of this nonsense which is ascribed to Lenin, Trotzky "dances and plays" and finally ends with the condescending sentence: "This would have been a mistake.' Comrade Trotzky here tells a lie about Lenin; he misrepresents Lenin's view as to the part of the Soviets in the insurrection. We quote a heap of documents which prove that Lenin proposed the seizure of power by the Soviets, by those of Petrograd or Moscow, and not behind the back of the Soviets. For what purpose did Comrade Trotzky need this more than strange legend about Lenin?

Comrade Trotzky comes off no better when he "expounds" the attitude of the C. C. and of Lenin to the question of the date for the insurrection. Comrade Trotzky communicates facts with regard to the famous meeting of October 10, and maintains that at this meeting "a resolution was passed to the effect that the insurrection should take place not later than October 15" (Trotzky "On Lenin," page 72. Russian edition). It looks as tho the C. C. had fixed the day of the revolution for October 15, and had then itself made the resolution of no effect by postponing it to October 25. Is this true? No, it is untrue. In this whole period, the C. C. only passed two resolutions altogether concerning the insurrection, one on the 10th, and one on the 16th of October. Let us look at these resolutions.

The resolution of the C. C. on October 10 is as follows:

"The C. C. finds that for the following reasons an armed insurrection is on the agenda: the international situation of the Russian revolution (mutiny in the German navy, the increasing growth of the socialist world revolution in the whole of Europe, the fear that the imperialists would make peace in order to choke the revolution in Russia), the military situation (the unquestionable determination of the Russian bourgeoisie and of Kerensky & Co. to hand over Petrograd to the Germans), the conquest of a majority in the Soviets by the proletarian party, all this in connection with the peasant insurrection and with the transference of the confidence of the masses of the people to our party (elections in Moscow), finally the obvious preparations for the second Korniloviad (removal of the troops from Petrograd, transfer of Cossacks to Petrograd, the encircling of Minsk by cossacks, tec.).

"The C. C. thus finds that the insurrection has unavoidably and completely matured, and therefore calls upon all organizations of the party to act accordingly and to judge and solve all practical questions (concerning the Soviet congress of the northern territory, the removal of troops from Petrograd, the coming into action of those from Moscow, Minsk, etc.) from this point of view."

The resolution of the conference between the C. C. and the responsible functionaries on October 16 is as follows:

"This assembly welcomes and warmly supports the resolution of the C. C and calls upon all organizations and all workers and soldiers to support the armed insurrection in every way and with all intensity, and to support the central committee which has been appointed for this purpose by the C. C., it expresses its full conviction that the C. C. and the Soviets will in due time make known the right moment and the suitable means for the insurrection."

You see, that Comrade Trotsky's memory played him false as regards the date fixed for the insurrection and the resolution of the C. C. concerning the insurrection.

Comrade Trotsky is absolutely in the wrong when he maintains that Lenin underestimated the legality of the Soviet, that Lenin had not understood the serious significance of the seizure of power by the All-Russian Soviet Congress on October 25, that just for this reason Lenin had insisted on the seizure of power before October 25. This is untrue. Lenin proposed the seizure of power before October 25 for two reasons. Firstly, because it was to be feared that the counter-revolutionaries might at any moment hand over Petrograd to the Germans, which would have cost the rising insurrection blood, and that therefore every day was precious. Secondly, because of the mistake of the Petrograd Soviet in fixing and publicly announcing the day for the insurrection (October 25), which could only be made good by the insurrection actually taking place before the day legally fixed.

The fact is that Lenin regarded the insurrection as an art and must have known that the enemy who (thanks to the lack of caution of the Petrograd Soviet) was informed as to the day of the insurrection, would undoubtedly make every effort to prepare for this day, that it was therefore necessary to steal a march on the enemy, i. e. to begin with the insurrection necessarily before the day formally fixed. This chiefly explains the passion with which Lenin in his letters upbraids those who regard the date, October 25, as a fetish.

Events have shown that Lenin was entirely in the right. It is known that the insurrection was begun before the All-Russian Soviet Congress. It is known that the power was actually seized before the opening of the All-Russian Soviet Congress, and that it was seized, not by the Soviet congress but by the Petrograd Soviet, by the revolutionary military committee. The Soviet congress only took over the power from the hands of the Petrograd Soviets. For this reason Comrade Trotsky's long dissertations on the significance of the legality of the Soviets are certainly quite superfluous.

A living and powerful party, at the head of the revolutionary masses, who storm and overthrow the bourgeois power, this is the condition of our party at that period.

This is the truth as to the legends regarding the preparation for October.

64-PAGE PAMPHLET ON LENINISM OR TROTSKYISM NOW IN PREPARATION

This installment is part of a pamphlet "Leninism or Trotzkyism" now in preparation. It includes articles by three outstanding figures in the Russian Communist Party: G. Zinoviev, I. Stalin and C. Kamenev, to form a most timely and important contribution to a discussion of world interest. The pamphlet will be of 64 pages, selling at 20 cents and will be ready at the conclusion of this serial publication.

Coolidge Ready to Veto Second Postal Workers' Pay Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Strong indication was given at the White House today that unless the proposed postal rate and wage increase bill emerged from the house and ultimately from congress with revenue raising provisions adopted to meet entirely the contemplated wage increases, the measure again will meet the presidential veto.

The house today refused to have anything to do with the senate's postal pay bill. House leaders continued plans to "rebuke" the senate for invading the house's constitutional right of originating revenue legislation.

A compromise bill will be brought out before Friday, but there has been no determination today as to what form it will take. House leaders said they would make their produce the entire $68,000,000 revenues needed for the postal workers' raise. The senate bill raises revenues amounting to $40,000,000.

They lunched at the White House.

GUNS GO OFF IN HERRIN AT THE LEAST PROVOCATION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MARION, Ill., Feb. 3.—Coming out of a "peace conference," in which plans were made to end "gun toting" in Williamson county, Fred Howard, a miner living near here, leaned against a radiator in the courthouse corridor, discharging a heavy automatic in his hip pocket. The bullet passed through his hip and heel, causing painful wounds.

DISMISS FIGHT FOR DEPORTATION OF GEO. HALONEN

Others Held; Some Are Free on Bail

George Halonen, member of the Workers (Communist) Party and leader in the Finnish co-operative organizations in the northwest, will not be deported, the Labor Defense Council announces from 166 W. Washington St., its Chicago headquarters. Proceedings in Duluth resulted in dismissal of the deportation warrant against him.

Eugene Vajtauer, Czech editor, scheduled for deportation, is being held on Ellis Island while attorneys try to stay the ousting from America.

John Lassen, editor of Uj Elore, the Hungarian radical paper, also scheduled for deportation, is free on bail while government red tape unwinds itself.

Proceedings against A. V. Severino, Cleveland unionist, whom the government wants to return to Italy, are taking shape with the collection of evidence that he participated in he Michigan convention of Communists in 1922.

The John Schedel case is under advisement in Washington the Defense Council reports. Publicity favorable to allowing him to stay with his wife and children in this country is appearing in many quarters, including the magazine Christian Work and The New Republic.

Peace Conference on In Williamson County Between Klan and Foe

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MARION, Ill., Feb. 3.—A conference which held a promise of peace was scheduled here today between the warring Williamson county factions.

Hopes of reaching an agreement which would disarm the county's host of ku klux klan and anti-klan feudists rested in a committee of five appointed from the board of supervisors. This committee was to meet with Sheriff George Galligan to work out a peace plan.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Woodrow Wilson died a year ago today. The first anniversary of the president's death passed almost unmarked in the national capital.

DISTRICT 15 ROLL CALL SHOWS MORE LOAFERS THAN LABORERS

District 15, the only district not yet reporting in these columns, gives its record today. Unfortunately, this report is both last and least.

"What have you done to insure the DAILY WORKER for 1925?" This is the question asked. And two-thirds of the District 15 Workers party branches are forced to reply, "Nothing,—nothing at all." This, in face of the fact that other branches thruout the country have poured out $16,000 to keep their party press operating.

Only 11 Connecticutt branches have responded to the DAILY WORKER'S first call for assistance. Among them, however, have shown up several branches worthy of the name of Communist. But the efforts of one-third of the branches alone cannot offset the inactivity of two-thirds.

Eleven branches have raised one-third of the district's quota. If the other 22 branches had done as much, the entire quota would be filled. As it is, however, not one dollar a member has been given the DAILY WORKER, on the average. Only $202.50 totalled in a district with a membership of 256!

are but few socialists or LaFollette loyalists among them.

Unemployment Growing.

The national problem of unemployment has also struck Boone and, in proportion to population, this is serious, altho little business tries to talk it out of existence.

One worker went to the police station last week, said his family was starving and that if food was not brought there by noon he would take it. The food was supplied in a hurry, but this shows how really acute the situation is, as law breakers are scarce in a small town where everyone knows his townspeople.

Bolsheviks Enter Boone.

Altho Boone county gave W. Z. Foster and the Workers Party a big vote, there are no "honest-to-goodness Bolsheviks in town." LaFollette lost the county by 27 votes while 265 votes were cast for Foster.

In an effort to locate these potential Bolsheviks, the Workers Party has rented the Labor Temple at Boone for Thursday night, February 12, when J. E. Snyder and David Coutts will try to permeate the atmosphere with Leninism in American style.

M'ANDREW CUTS MORE TEACHERS FROM PAYROLL

25 Classes Disbanded to "Cut Expense"

Twenty-five school teachers were fired by Superintendent of Schools McAndrew yesterday at the opening of the second semester of the school year. The pupils in twenty-five class rooms taught by these teachers were distributed among other class rooms thus increasing the size of the classes.

McAndrew fired the teachers as part of his policy of putting the schools of the city on a business basis, regardless of the damage to the efficiency of the teachers and the effect on the school children.

Many Teachers Idle.

There are 216 mid-year graduates of the Chicago Normal school who are waiting for teaching positions. These will have to wait until at least the close of the present school year, McAndrew announced.

In addition there are 500 experienced teachers from other cities who have passed examinations but who are forced to fill in at substitute work.

Theater Is Hit By $2,000 Judgment for Denying Negro Rights

Judgment for $2,000 against the Tivoli Theater company of Chicago has been won by a colored man, Leon W. Headen, in a case fought to recover for exclusion from the theater on the ground of color, and for assault and battery committed in ejecting him.

Mr. Headen charged that he purchased tickets for a performance at the theater and when the tickets were presented, it was endeavured to make him and his companion, Miss Lillian [illegible] Proctor, sit in another part of the house than that to which their tickets entitled them. Upon their refusing to change places, theater attendants, it is charged, assaulted them, severely beating Mr. Headen.

In the trial two actions, one brought under the civil rights law, and the other for assault and battery, were [illegible].

This case against the Tivoli theater, it is believed, will serve notice upon a number of theaters in Chicago that they cannot discriminate against colored people with impunity. For sometime a considerable number of theaters in that city have denied admission to colored people; have sought to segregate colored patrons and in other ways to set up race barriers.

NEW HAVEN R. R. SHOPMEN, BETRAYED AND SENT BACK DEFEATED, WANT AMALGAMATION

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 3.—Shopmen called together by a press notice yesterday were informed at a meeting in Trades Council Hall that their international officers had called off the strike. About a hundred were present. A letter was read from the betrayer, B. M. Jewell, president of the Railway Employes department of the A. F. of L., arbitrarily ending the strike at midnight, Jan. 31, 1925.

The reason given was that it was for the best interests of the men to go back, for the railroad refused to treat with the men. It was announced by a local man that a delegation had gone to Manager Bardo, of the road, and was kept waiting for hours, day after day, without getting an interview.

A Shock to the Men.

This order came rather suddenly. Many strikers, when asked by the DAILY WORKER reporter before the meeting about the continuation of the strike, were strongly for it. They resented the fact that there was no vote taken by the men, that they were not consulted. Many were there who promised not to go back to the road.

The chairman of System Federation 17, John C. Ready, praised the men for the wonderful fight they had put up, but that was all. Not a word of criticism of the craft form of organization that kept many crafts working, while others were on strike. It was even stated that the men ought to thank the international officials for calling off the strike.

What helped take the starch out of the men was the recent betrayal on the part of Joseph Tone, formerly organiser of the Machinists' Union, and elected state senator, who accepted a position with the New York, Ontario and Western railroad which removes him from the working class fight, and lines him up on the other side of the fence.

"Thru With the Union."

They go back licked. Some are disgusted with the unions. The effect of the strike will be to force many men out of the unions, discouraged, disgusted. The reporter advised them to stay in the union, and fight the fakers; to defeat the B. and O. plan, and the officials who sponsored it; to amalgamate their unions.

Amalgamation appealed to them. Unless this issue is raised, there is little hope for the shopmen. As to the union leaders they acknowledge no mistakes; "The present craft form of organization is correct. Strike, lose, and go back; but leave the union as it is.'"

And Now the R. R.

The New Haven railroad recently announced that the strike had cost them ten million dollars; and that they had kept on the job those who responded to the call to take the strikers' places. They reward the loyalty of scabs. It is doubted here that many will be taken back.

Opium Conference Has New Crisis Account No Delay Demand

GENEVA, Feb. 3.—A new crisis faced the international opium conference today when the American delegation took a firm stand for a definite period to be set for the eradication of opium. Congressman Stephen G. Porter, head of the American delegation, demanded that the "mixed commission" of the conference should set a fifteen year period in which opium cultivation is to be decreased. He served notice that period should be dated now and should not be delayed until order has been restored in China.

Viscount Cecil, British representative, at once took issue with Porter. Cecil said the British government was awaiting a promise from the producing countries that they would gradually reduce production so as to prevent smuggling.

"It will be unfortunate," Cecil declared, "if our proposition is not accepted."

POSTAL WORKERS TO STRIKE SOON, SENATOR WARNS

Cannot Live on Their Present Wages

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.— Responsibility for the injustices contained in the pending postal rates and salaries bill was placed squarely upon the administration by senators today, when they announced during debate that they would vote for the measure because there remains no other way of getting a living wage for the 300,000 postoffice employes. Sen. Norris, making a fight to strike out the revenue section and insert a provision for a joint committee of congress to study postal rates and recommend a fair system of charges, was equally frank in his denunciation of the oppression and trickery practiced by Postmaster General New and President Coolidge upon these faithful workers for the nation.

"This bill is simply put forward here to save the faces of men who voted to sustain the president's veto of the postal salary bill," said Walsh. "But what is the alternative? Four years of poverty and suffering and want on the part of these government employes; four years of injustice, of denial of relief to men who are denied the right to strike and protest against their government's action.

Police Strike Justified

"If the postal service were a private organization who would doubt that there would now be a strike of these employes? I saw a strike of city employes—the policemen of the city of Boston. I saw men strike and commit a very serious offense by striking, but who were obliged to strike in order to awaken public officials to the knowledge of their demand and the necessity for an increased wage—for the untrained and inexperienced men who took their places were given higher wages than the men who had been in the police service for years.

"I am not going to wait until the postal employes strike. I am going to place the responsibility of increased rates where it belongs, upon the executive department of this government."

Rents High

Walsh declared that he knew that a Negro family in the city of Washington cannot hire a tenement for less than $60 a month, or $720 a year, and yet the minimum salary for a postal employe is only $1,400 a year. He thought $720 was not enough to meet all the other costs of living for a family in the capital—costs of food, clothing, schooling, medical care and other household items.

Cleveland Co-op to Open New Store in the Near Future

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 3.— The Co-Operators' company of Cleveland, has issued the following statement, outlining the achievements of the co-operative for the last year, and telling of plans to open a new store in the near future. The statement, signed by Carl Hacker, follows:

"At the last meeting of all stock holders of the Co-Operators' company of this city, held last week, the financial report of the company for 1924 showed a marked improvement over the previous year.

"The board of directors of the past year were re-elected with exception of three members.

"The reports of the various officers were received enthusiastically with the result that the board's recommendation for the opening of a new store on July 1, was accepted. The work of selling one thousand dollars worth of additional stock for the financing of this new store was gone into thoroly and started immediately with the result that ten per cent of the amount was subscribed at the meeting. This, we consider a good start and certainly shows the right spirit among the shareholders.

"Let us go forward comrades with our enterprise. This is one project which will not consume much of your time as the most work is done by those employed directly in the business. Let us go forward with this institution as we sincerely hope that this institution will be of benefit to the revolutionary proletariat some time."

St. Louis Gas Goes Up.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Every day under this head you will learn not only what BUILDERS thruout the country are doing to build a greater newspaper, but also practical suggestions to accomplish more for OUR paper. Tell us what YOU are doing—and we will "tell the world."

SHOCKED INTO ACTION!

SOME locals really feel that they are doing quite well for the official organ of their party. They do—until the monthly list of subscribers for their territory arrives and then they are—actually—shocked! This has happened even in so live a little Communist center as Liverpool, Ohio. Hidden in the "sticks" of Ohio, Local Secretary Mary Waters is the guiding spirit of this section that just insists on action. And just notice the constructive suggestions in her letter which follows:

"Dear Comrades:—I was shocked upon receiving the mailing list of the DAILY WORKER for this immediate territory, to see how few subscribers there were about here.

"Well, we will do all we can to remedy that in the near future. Still, out of that list we got several new names and sent them invitations to our Lenin meeting. HAD RESPONSE FROM ALL BUT ONE!

"Our branch organizer will call upon them very soon. Our DAILY WORKER agent is now tied up at home nursing a very sick husband, but we will get some one else on the job right away. Our branch has instructions to hand in to the branch organizer, the names and addresses of all radically inclined people as fast as possible so he can call upon them, or see that some one else does so.

"The improvement in the Tool Boxes I suggest is a bunch of perforated blanks on which to place such addresses, these to be then detached and turned over to the branch organizer. If you ask the comrades at a meeting for such addresses, they cannot on the spur of the moment seem to think of hardly any, but thru the week they think of them, or meet the people and then the address blanks would be useful."

• • • •

ANSWER—The Tool Boxes already have address sheets in them, altho they are not perforated. They could be used for this purpose by just tearing them out. For after all, we are always glad to send another—or even many others. Altho we haven't made this our Tool Box slogan you can abopt it: "Go ahead, tear right into the Tool Box, we'll send you another!" The suggestion by Comrade Waters, however, to have perforated sheets for this purpose, is a good one. Something tells us that you will see it in the next improved Tool Box which will carry additional features of lasting value.

Chilean Workers Ruled by Fascists Clamor for Revolt

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 3—Chile is at the mercy of armed forces dominated by army and navy officers and fascist elements.

The sentiment of the masses for a workers' revolution is growing. The rich exploiters now dominating the government are regretting that they forced the workers to undergo compulsory military training, as large numbers of workers whose conditions are now miserable, are well trained to act as working class soldiers.

MAGNUS OPENS FIGHT FOR SEAT IN U. S. SENATE

Makes Host of Charges Against Schall

By LAURENCE TODD,
Federated Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Sen. Magnus Johnson of Minnesota, announces the filing of his contest against the seating of Rep. Thomas Schall as his successor in the upper branch of congress. Schall has the certificate of election, his republican votes being reported at some 9,000 more than the farmer-labor votes cast for Johnson. But there are circumstances surrounding the winning of those republican votes by Schall that may upset the returns when the senate committee on privileges and elections has canvassed them.

Charges Laws Violated.

First of all, Johnson alleges that Schall violated the election laws of Minnesota by insinuating that Johnson had been bribed to support the world court plan; also, that Schall openly and falsely accused Johnson of having been removed from the directorate of the co-operative grain elevator concern in St. Paul "for stealing the farmers' money."

Secondly, Johnson charges that powerful legal aid was promised to jailed bootleggers, in return for large payments of money, by men identified with the financing of Schall's campaign, and that these promises, which were understood as pledges of immunity, were given at Schall's headquarters.

Schall is Silent.

Under the laws of Minnesota a libel uttered or published by a candidate against his rival, is sufficient ground for setting aside the election returns. Rep. Kvale, farmer-labor, was denied the certificate of republican nomination over Andrew Volstead, in 1920, because it was held that he had accused Volstead of being an atheist.

Johnson will present affidavits that in many speeches Schall stated that a man had approached him with an offer of $25,000 in return for his support of the world court proposal, and that Johnson, who until that time had opposed the world court, turned around and favored it.

In one speech, Johnson will allege, Schall declared in this connection, that he guessed that Johnson was "getting a nice little package every month." An affidavit as to Schall's utterances on that occasion, will be furnished by a former lieutenant governor of the state.

The Miners' Pay

Semi-starvation is a chronic condition for some 20,000 men, women and children in the mining regions of West Virginia—one of the richest states in the union.

For three years these miners have been locked out by the coal companies and have suffered untold hardships. Lately there has been renewed activity on their behalf and food and clothing is being collected. In this district the strikebreakers are working for $2.50 to $4 per day while the union scale is $6.90. The complete collapse of union organizations in this territory is seen in the fact that since the desertion of the miners by the officialdom of the United Mine Workers of America but 10 per cent of the coal companies are paying the union scale.

It is largely from the non-union mines of West Virginia that coal comes which displaces union mined coal in other markets and it is this non-union territory that furnishes the ammunition with which the coal operators' association bombards the United Mine Workers of America.

The commonsense policy would be to put the whole strength of the union behind an organization drive in this state, but the reactionary Lewis administration prefers to revoke charters in union territory and disrupt the once splendidly organized United Mine Workers of America. Persecuting and expelling Communists has replaced organization work and West Virginia affords a fine example of the result of this policy.

It is doubtful if the misery of the West Virginia miners would have been brought to the attention of the labor movement at this time at all if it were not for the fact that non-union mines owned by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers are located in this district and the Lewis administration can find plenty of time to fight this gang of cockroach capitalists with whom it has a personal feud. According to reports the Brotherhood mines, managed by Warren Stone, one of the original LaFollette boosters, has just evicted 86 miners' families in the best steel trust style. Hence the new publicity campaign of the Lewis administration. Here is a cross section of the American labor movement as it is in the hands of the crooks, cockroach capitalists and politicians. One section of it owns mines and uses the most infamous methods of the bigger capitalists. Another section of it supports Coolidge and the blackest group of capitalists and tries to discredit the smaller fry.

Meanwhile the rank and file with whose lives both groups play, exists in tents in the bitter winter weather and starves.

This is one of the conditions that makes for the growth of the revolutionary left wing movement. It is a condition that will vanish only when both sets of betrayers have been kicked out neck and crop, and the American labor movement rallied to the program of the Trade Union Educational League.

Poincare Speaks Thru Herriot

The French chamber of deputies by a vote of 541 to 32 approved the posting of Premier Herriot's reactionary speech in relation to Germany. The socialists at first announced that they would vote against the posting on the ground that the speech was too reactionary. Herriot threatened to resign and the socialists promptly changed their minds.

The burden of Herriot's speech was that Germany was not disarmed, that France's allies and associates had not kept faith and that France had made all the concessions she could afford to Germany and in the future must consider the question of her own security against a German attack. He intimated that France would not withdraw her troops from the Rhine unless satisfactory guarantees were forthcoming.

Only the Communists and a few other deputies voted against Herriot. Some of the socialists outdid the nationalists in jingoism. The Poincareists declared that Herriot was a convert to their side, so they voted unanimously to support him.

The advent of Herriot to office was hailed by pacifists as a victory for peace and liberalism. But as the Communists pointed out, even a man with the best of intentions cannot bring about peace under the capitalist system. It is impossible.

"As far as labor is concerned," declared Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the chancellor of the exchequer in Ramsay MacDonald's government, "the throne is established forever." It is only necessary to say that Mrs. Snowden is a leading British socialist and is dead set against the Communists. She dearly loves her king.

Landlords, Courts and Tenants

Former patriots who could see no connection between landlords and agencies of the capitalist state power like the courts, for instance, are having their eyes opened in New York.

A federation of rentpayers' associations who have been battling the landlords for some time have been advised, thru the conviction and sentencing of one of its officers to a year in the penitentiary, that courts and judges are institutions and individuals functioning for the protection of landlords and other thieves whose profession is legalized.

Captain Harry Allen Ely, president of a tenants' association, called a certain judge a "numbskull" in an article in the official organ of the association and the association of landlords took care to see that the article was brought to the attention of this ornament of the New York bench with the result above set forth. The courts, of course, are not immune to criticism we are told, but we notice that most of those who indulge in searching criticism of the judiciary land in the hoosegow as did the captain whose long record of service in war time which he naively reasoned would save him, failed to keep him out of the Tombs—the first stop on the way to Sing Sing.

It is to be hoped that this experience will have the effect of convincing the members of the tenants' association, in spite of their middle-class character and leadership, that any fight against landlordism and kindred evils is useless unless it recognizes that all the legal appendages of capitalism, legislatures, courts, judges, police and military, are back of the landlords and the private property interests they personify.

The frenzied fear that even the mildest form of protest against landlordism and its kept courts arouses in the parasitic element is shown by the severe sentence handed out to the worthy captain who in all probability looks upon American capitalist government as the supreme achievement of the human race.

When the captain gets out of jail he should take a walk to the New York headquarters of the Workers (Communist) Party and find out the real reason why he was incarcerated.

The Austrian Debacle

Austria, the little country that has been used as a laboratory by the league of nations and whose working class has been forced into the role of guinea pigs by the imperialist experimenters, has collapsed.

Even the injections of gold serum and the cowardly submission of the social-democrats to Zimmerman, the receiver appointed by the league, has failed to do the impossible—repair the damages of war, rebuild industry and feed the population in a country stripped of its resources and partitioned among the allied nations.

The working class of Austria has gone thru hell while the experiment was in progress and today stands as a living—barely living—example of the hopelessness of a working class that allows itself to have faith in capitalism.

The Austrian breakdown creates another serious problem for the imperialists and this problem cries for solution at a time when political crises hold the stage in almost every important European nation. Three avenues of escape, all of them of a temporary nature, are open to the allied powers. First, Austria can become part of a Danube federation that would strengthen the little nations and in all probability upset French plans in that sector. Second, Austria can become again a part of the German nation with a resultant strenghtening of the working class forces which neither the German or allied capitalists view with anything but fear. Third, Austria can become an Italian protectorate and thus arouse an implacable enmity in the Balkan states that might mean a new war.

The Communists alone can look at the new situation created by the Austrian debacle with equanimity, confident that it is additional proof that capitalism cannot solve its post-war problems and that with the growing strength of the Communist parties in all European nations, that continent steps closer and closer to the path blazed by the revolutionary workers and peasants of Soviet Russia.

More Trouble for Fascist Spain

Raisuli, the Spanish government's only consequential friend in Morocco, has surrendered to Spain's most redoubtable enemy, Abd-el-Krim, who has inflicted defeat after defeat on the Spanish forces. His latest conquest renders the position of Spain in Morocco untenable.

The chieftain Raisuli was purchased by Spain last October for a large sum of money. He took to the hills with his treasure and remained there ever since, feigning illness. Krim, however, was more than a match for the forces of Dictator Primo de Rivera.

The Spanish directorate allocated 1,000,000 pesetas for the purpose of "demoralizing and corrupting the enemy." This means bribing the native chieftains. Thru his victory over Raisuli, Abd-el-Krim has access to whatever part of this million is still untouched by the recipient. Spain's treasure turned out to be a gift to her foes.

The prospects for Spain retaining her precarious hold much longer on Morocco is not bright. But as soon as Spain quits the other and more powerful capitalist nations will step in. The continued robbery and exploitation of the people of Morocco and other undeveloped parts of the earth can only be prevented by the working class.

Workers Party and T. U. E. L. Anthracite Meet

By JOSEPH MANLEY

THE return to work of the 12,000 anthracite strikers employed by the Pennsylvania coal company, marks a new point in the struggle of the rank and file of the miners union against John L. Lewis, and his policy of class-collaboration rulership.

This two month old strike was a spontaneous affair, caused by the failure of the regular union machinery to secure redress for the many grievances of the men. The bulk of the leaders of the strike were men whose idea of the struggle between labor and capital is very similar to those held by Lewis himself. The strike could have no other ending but the present one—a return to work with the promise of the Lewis strike commission, that the various grievances of the men would be taken up by the conciliation board.

Abolish Fake Conciliation

This is the same conciliation board developed out of the commission appointed by Roosevelt to settle the 1902 strike. This conciliation board, consisting of three representatives of the operators and three of the miners and an umpire paid by both sides, has little power to settle anything. Its chief function has been to create the illusion among some of the miners that thru it they could get redress for their grievances. But there is a growing conviction amongst the rank and file that the conciliation board is but one of the cogs in the wheels of the giant machine that is destroying their hard won gains of other days. A demand is arising for its abolition.

Had a militant leadership been at head of this strike it would have taken an entirely different turn. Such a militant leadership would have rallied the strikers in mass meetings; it would have understood the power, both economic and political of the anthracite trust. To fight this power it would have organized a general strike of ALL the "companies." By such methods the struggle would have gained real concessions in less than half the time consumed by the "Pennsylvania" strike.

By its lack of militancy and its tacit acceptance of Lewis' class-collaboration policies, the leadership of the recent strike doomed the strike to its present inevitable ending. This leadership is not the kind that will enable the anthracite miners to escape from the iron grip of the anthracite monopoly.

A Policy of Struggle Wanted

This anthracite monopoly, headed by the world banker Morgan, can only be successfully opposed by the type of leadership that accepts a policy of class struggle rather than one of class collaboration. The class struggle type of leadership has not come to the front in the anthracite region. There are many reasons for this, some of which are: The sharp racial divisions existing especially since 1902, the overwhelming population is foreign born; the tremendous influence of the church upon both the native and foreign population. And the objective economic conditions have not yet become sharp enough to have had a leavening effect upon the old fashioned ideas of property rights of the native population.

Wages have in the past been just enough to foster the illusion of owning one's own home. In addition, the many textile mills scattered all thru the anthracite region, have provided jobs for the miners' daughters while their sons worked in the coal breakers.

All this is changing. The miners are now rebelling against, not alone their own miserable working conditions, but against this system of child labor exploitation. They are insisting upon a better education for their children than they themselves received. With this change will also come that other product of American capitalism—the modern American militant revolutionist.

In the anthracite region the Workers Party and the T. U. E. L. and their policies are the only hope of the miners for the future. Their analysis of both the objective and subjective factors in the only one that rings true to the existing situation. The call of the Communists and left wingers in the anthracite for militant policies and militant leadership is the outstanding feature of the present situation in the anthracite region.

The Party and T. U. E. L. Conference

To more effectively carry on this struggle an important conference has just been held at which was represented delegates from the various party branches and the Trade Union Educational League in the region. This conference was unanimous in adopting plans and policies to carry on and intensify Communist propaganda. However, its immediate task was to formulate practical plans that will enable every Communist and sympathiser to take the lead in the daily struggle for the redress of the miners grievances. To this end it adopted the following:

1. Demand the abolition of the conciliation board, substituting for it regular democratic union machinery dealing directly with the employers.
2. Actively participate in the coming elections for district officials.
3. Regularly attend all meetings of the local unions.
4. Fight for the retention of the general grievances committees and link them up with agitation for the shop committee system.
5. In future strikes demand mass meetings under auspices of general grievance committees.
6. Call for joint meetings of all general grievance committees.
7. Expose class collaboration of union officials.
8. No united front with fake progressives.
9. Fight for the nationalization of the anthracite industry.
10. Increase the circulation of our general party press and especially that of the DAILY WORKER.

More Work Needed.

These are but a few of the items of the general program adopted. The conference was, on the whole, productive of much good. The exchange of ideas between the miner delegates was extremely beneficial. It is only by such collaboration that [illegible] can be joined to practice.

It was pointed out by several delegates that in the past this section of Pennsylvania had not received sufficient attention. All were unanimous in the opinion that with perhaps the single exception of the Pittsburgh district, the anthracite northeast corner of Pennsylvania was the most important industrial section in the state. It was agreed that the district organizer would devote more time to this section. Altogether this conference, if closely followed up with further activity, will be a turning point in the life of the party in the anthracite region.

WHY CO-OPERATION IS NOT ENOUGH

By EARL R. BROWDER.

THE reason that "co-operation" (in the sense of the consumers' co-operative movement) is not enough to solve the problems of the working class; is that we are living under capitalism, which, under the forms of parliamentary democracy, imposes a dictatorship of the capitalist class upon the toiling masses. Until this dictatorship of the bourgeoisie is broken, and the power of the working class made supreme, the working class must concentrate its main attention upon crystallizing its class leadership and mobilizing its class forces, for the struggle against capitalism.

Co-operation Can Help in Class Struggle.

The co-operative movement can be used to the advantage of the workers in their struggle, provided it is organized and led on the basis of the fundamental class struggle. Co-operation between the workers—struggle between the workers and the bourgeoisie; this is the formula for a successful co-operative movement.

Unfortunately the co-operative movement is largely dominated by middle-class ideas. These exercise a confusing and pernicious influence over the workers. They set up the false goal, the reformist Utopia of "co-operation" between the workers on the one hand and sections of the bourgeoisie on the other hand. This co-operation of classes is the very worst poison for the labor movement in all its phases. It must be combatted everywhere by all means, and particularly in the co-operative movement is it strongest.

The co-operatives can become instruments of working class emancipation only to the extent that the philosophy of class collaboration is driven out and destroyed, and the co-operative movement drawn into the whole class struggle.

Task of Revolutionary Workers.

What should revolutionary workers do when they face a workers' co-operative movement which is dominated by these harmful ideas of class collaboration which poison the minds of the workers? Should they refuse to participate, or should they enter the co-operative movement?

The answer is, that revolutionary workers should always take part in every activity which engages large numbers of workers. And it is precisely there where the bourgeois ideas are the strongest that the revolutionary workers will find the most fruitful work to be done—in combatting these wrong ideas.

All revolutionary workers should join the workers' co-operative movement, engage earnestly in its work and energetically advocate the following program:

(1.) The co-operative must always consider itself an organ of the working class in its struggle against capitalism.

(2.) Draw the co-operatives into close contact and united actions with the trade unions.

(3.) The co-operatives cannot be neutral in the political struggle, but must always support the working class political struggles against the bourgeoisie.

(4.) The co-operatives should assist in mobilizing the masses in direct struggle for control of markets, prices, etc.

(5.) The co-operatives must support the political and industrial struggles of the workers morally and financially, and must take an especially active part in relief of class-war victims.

(6.) The co-operatives must continuously renew their controling bodies FROM THE RANKS OF THE WORKERS IN THE SHOPS AND FACTORIES and prevent at all costs the development of a controlling bureaucracy.

Fight "Business Morality."

(7.) A continual ideological struggle must be carried on against the current "business morality" of the bourgeoisie which constantly comes in with the technical experts who serve the co-operatives. The co-operative while they must use the technique of capitalist business, must reject at all costs capitalist ideas, becoming always more and more united with the working class struggles against capitalism and its instruments of suppression and exploitation.

Co-operation is therefore not enough and its current philosophy is positively harmful. But when it is imbued with the ideas of the class struggle, and when it accepts the Communist reconstruction of society as the common goal of all workers, then it may become a valuable and powerful instrument in the arsenal of the working class.

It is the task of revolutionary workers to enter earnestly into the co-operative movement with this program always before them as the guide to their practical activities.

Pinioned Under Rock In Kentucky Cave; Collins Nears Death

One hundred and fifty feet below the entrance to Sand Cave, in the darkness and mud, lies Floyd Collins who for more than 80 hours has watched the engineering skill of the state pit its craft against the boulder which holds him pinioned in the cave. Today for the first time he gave way and made a plea for death.

Even should Collins be rescued within a few hours, and this appeared unlikely, physicians say he probably will not survive the shock.

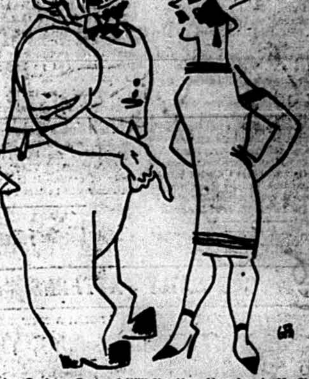
THE WORKERS MONTHLY -:- A Review

A PANORAMIC view of the present struggles of the left wing militants in the American trade unions, is the article by Wm. Z. Foster in the February issue of the Workers Monthly. Just such articles as this, have established the combined journal and made it the most successful this country has seen. Comrade Foster gives an interesting birds-eye view taking the reader thru the recent elections of the miners, carpenters and the metal and needle trades. One feels the growing strength in the left wing of this country in the cold figures of fact the author presents.



"No Monkey Business Rosie. I Will Not Have Vampires in My Shop."
—In the February issue of the Workers Monthly

So many other features are included it is difficult to do justice in few words. Charles E. Johnson's article "The Sixth Trade Union Congress of the U. S. S. R." from the title alone gives hint of its value. It is an interesting picture of labor in the first world's workers' government.

Robert Minor's "An Old Prison Speaks" is not only a timely one in these days of renewed persecution—it will hold your interest with many new angles he presents.

Those who are following closely the developments in the political activities of labor will read with interest the article "A Conference of Progressive Reactionaries" by Alexander Bittleman. It carries the keenness of insight into many phases of labor politics.

The picture of Mexican labor, reliable and not, as many in the [illegible] clothed with gobs of [illegible] "The Pan American Fig Leaf" [illegible] W. Johnstone. Written by an observer at the recent pan-American [illegible] convention, it is the kind of [illegible] that has established the Workers Monthly as the source of the [illegible] valuable information.

Thousands are already acquainted with that classic of Communist literature and are closely following "The History of the Russian Communist Party" by Gregory Zinoviev. The generous installment in this issue alone gives value to the Workers Monthly that makes it a pleasure to receive.

And then an interesting feature, the article "From Anarchism to Communism" by Jay Fox, a statement by a leader of the anarchist movement in America for thirty year, and in the labor movement since [illegible] when he joined the Knights of Labor.

Twelve interesting articles in all, including "The Fine Art of Grafting" by T. J. O'Flaherty, whose keen wit and satire seen daily in the "As We See It" column in the DAILY WORKER, is sparkling in this number.

An international review, editorials, photographs, drawings and cartoons (by such artists as Becker, Wm. Gropper, Hay Bales and J. de Miskey) [illegible] out an issue that deserves a great deal more space for proper appreciation in review. If you wish the very best in labor journals—it is here.

AS WE SE[illegible]

By T. J. O'FLAHE[illegible]

THE editor of the official [illegible] the International Ladies' [illegible] Workers' Union is an anarch[illegible] [illegible] of the kind associated in th[illegible] lic imagination with struggles against the powers that be, and sacrifice for unpopular causes. This fellow's name is Yanovsky and a more confirmed lickspittle it is hard to find. In a recent issue of his paper, while commenting on the accomplishments of the general executive board, he mentions the presentation of a marble bust of Gompers to the noted faker, at the El Paso convention. Yanovsky says: ". . . it had fittingly expressed the high regard and love it had for him for many years past. In [illegible] the International has, by virtue of this act, gained for itself the [illegible] and recognition of a host of organizations and leaders in the American labor movement." This is the way the yellow socialists and anarchists purchase the "recognition" of the bureaucrats, that and by expelling radicals.

ATTORNEY GENERAL STONE proves his fitness for a seat on the supreme court bench by his action in nolle prossing the indictments against several wealthy members of the council of national defense. These patriots took advantage of their position on the council by robbing the government. One of them was a former secretary of war, and he doubtless was an adept in the art of connecting with easy money. Perhaps he did not treat Daugherty right and drew an indictment.

BUTLER and Calvin Coolidge are putting up a united front in trying to drive the republicans who supported LaFollette during the last election out of the republican party. Butler thinks that this isolation will compel those worthy pleaders to throw in their lot with the "third party" which it hopes will be organized on or about February 22, when the convention of the conference for progressive political action will be held. [illegible] "progressives" are [illegible] [illegible] that there is very [illegible] at the present time [illegible]

[illegible] a wonder [illegible] if the Communists had [illegible] when the Wisconsin [illegible] with a withering broadside at the [illegible] before the June 17 convention, which LaFollette wanted to destroy. One of the charges made by LaFollette against the Communists was that they were boring from within the "progressive" organizations, which they had no right to do. Evidently the managers of the G. O. THE Germans have another scandal on their hands. Last week the socialists were involved when it was learned that their leaders, while in control of the government turned over millions of dollars to a certain concern, headed by an enterprising gentleman named Barmat. This time the nationalists are involved. They went one better than the socialists. Where the latter dealt in millions, the nationalists handed out hundreds of millions. When the scandal involving the Luther government was first made public, Vorwaerts joined the anvil chorus of attack, but strange to relate on the day following it, shut up like a clam. Why? Think it over, the brain exercise will prove more mentally invigorating than solving cross-word puzzles.

AND little Austria is going under the hammer! Things are very bad in Vienna, the capital of the league of nation's little pet. The bourgeoisie are taxed to death by the social democrats, say the bourgeoisie, hence business is on the bum. Of course. Vienna being ruled by the socialists, perfect democracy prevails there. No dictatorship for them! The employers own their own shops and the workers slave for them just as under the Hapsburgs. A few weeks ago the co-operatively owned bakery, run by the socialists, was purchased by a capitalist concern. Now that the league of nations refuses to spoon feed its little ward any longer, the workers must be ready for another brand of capitalist democracy, the kind that pays big dividends to the capitalists.

'NOTHING TO DO,' [illegible]AY A. F. OF L. HEADS IN MIAMI

Have 'Routine' Only at Florida Resort

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4.—National labor leaders, here for the first meeting of the executive council, American Federation of Labor since the death of their chief, Samuel Gompers, said today that no matters of "extraordinary importance" would be brought up and that only routine business would be transacted.

William Green, Gompers' successor, presided over the first session, which was held behind closed doors, as will be all other sessions during the week or more the labor chieftains are here.

Duncan Doesn't Show Up.

James Duncan, first vice-president who resigned when Green was elected to succeed Gompers, is not here, but his resignation is to be acted upon.

A public meeting will be held Friday night when Green and others speak. It is thought some intimation of the policies of the new administration will be given at that time.

Bricklayer-Plasterer Issue Up.

One of the important question to be considered by the labor chieftains, according to high officials, is the dispute between the international unions of bricklayers and plasterers as to which union should do stucco work.

PRESIDENT OF MINERS UNION THANKS DAILY WORKER FOR PACKAGES

A short time ago the employes in the DAILY WORKER office sent packages of clothing to the unemployed miners of Sesser, Ill. A few days ago we carried an appeal to all who can do so to send money for coal and to send shoes and stockings to the children of the miners of Sesser. We print a letter we received today from the president of the United Mine Workers of Sesser, Ill.:

"To the DAILY WORKER: Received packages yesterday containing clothing which were sent by the employes in the office of the DAILY WORKER and I extend my greatest thanks and appreciation to them. There are many miners here destitute and without hope of conditions getting better soon. They will surely be glad to get the articles contained in these packages.

"With best wishes for all possible success for the DAILY WORKER,

"Yours truly,

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 4.—The Hennepin county committee of the farmer-labor federation held a meeting Feb. 2, where the following resolution was introduced from the tenth ward branch of the farmer-labor federation condemning the expulsion of J. O. Johnson and C. R. Hedlund as members on the state executive committee:

Whereas, it has come to our notice that the state executive comittee of the farmer-labor federation, at a recent meeting passed a motion excluding from membership on their committee two members, J. O. Johnson and C. R. Hedlund, and

Whereas, these two members, J. G. Johnson and C. R. Hedlund were elected to membership on the state executive committee at a legal state convention of the farmer-labor federation held at Minneapolis on March 12, 1924, and were elected to represent the fifth and tenth congressional districts respectively, and

Whereas, such an attitude is subversive of the rights of the members of the farmer-labor federation in choosing their own officers, therefore

He said he would remain and accept radium treatments from American physicians.

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—Thomas A. Winston of East Boston today telegraphed President Coolidge as follows:

"I want work. You were elected on a platform promising prosperity, good times and better business. I am one of millions unemployed. I want work."

Winston said he had toured the city but was unable to get a job.

They were alone in the house.

CARPENTERS ARE AGAIN LET DOWN BY JENSEN GANG

Surrender to Bosses on Wage Scale

The joint arbitration board set up by Harry Jensen, president of the Carpenters' District Council, to negotiate the question of an increase in wages with the local contractors who are signatory to the infamous "Chicago Carpenters' Agreement" accepted the bosses' compromise of $1.37 an hour instead of the $1.50 scale that other sections of the building trades are receiving.

At last Friday night's meeting of the District Council, the Jensen machine succeeded in putting across this compromise. This means that in case the local unions vote to accept the proposed agreement the carpenters will receive a lower scale than the painters and other sections of the building trades here in Chicago.

Resolution From Local 80.

A resolution introduced by Local 80, demanding that the carpenters insist on $1.50 an hour, thus bringing the carpenters' scale up to the level of the other members of the building trades, was turned down.

The members will have an opportunity to vote on the proposed agreement and if they vote to accept it, they might as well know that besides voting for a scale lower than that of the painters and other members of the building trades, they will be voting for the following provisions in the scabbiest agreement ever foisted on any section of the organized workers in Chicago:

Some of the basic points are set forth as follows:

1. That there shall be no limitations of the amount of work a man shall perform during his work day.
2. That there shall be no restriction of the use of machinery, tools or appliances.
3. That there shall be no restriction of the use of any raw or manufactured materials, except prison made.
4. That no person shall have the right to interfere with employes during working hours.

No More Strikes (?)

Article No. 2 of the agreement reads: Witnesseth: That both parties hereby agree that there shall be no strikes, lockouts or stoppage of work and that they will by all lawful means compel their members to comply with the arbitration agreement and working rules as jointly agreed upon and adopted and that where a member or members affiliated with either of the two parties to this agreement refuse to do so, they shall be suspended from membership in the association or union to which they belong.

An arbitration board is to be jointly selected every year to which all matters of dispute is to be referred. This board selects an umpire, who is in no wise affiliated with this trade, and his decision shall be final and binding upon all parties to the agreement.

Arbitration Board Decides All.

Article 3 under the heading Power of Board, reads: "The Joint Arbitration board shall have full power to enforce this agreement entered into between the parties hereto, and to make and enforce all lawful working rules governing both parties. No strikes or lockouts shall be resorted to, and work shall continue pending the decision of the joint arbitration board, or the umpire."

T. U. E. L. Says "Fight!"

The progressives among the carpenters brand this latest compromise on the part of Jensen as another act of treachery to the rank and file. It is reported that he was ready to accept a six-cent an hour increase, but feared the wrath of the membership. The rank and file will not be satisfied with this compromise, however, as they know very well that the carpenters are strong enough to force the bosses to at least put their scale on a level with that of the highest in the building trades.

Local leaders of the Trade Union Educational League are urging the members of the Carpenters' Union to vote down the compromise and point out that they can easily force the bosses to grant their demands.

It is said that Jensen is endeavoring to get a snap vote on the agreement before the members have a chance to discuss it. This is his main hope of slipping it over.

Mine at Nakomis Shut Down After 11 Days Work

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NOKOMIS, Ill., Feb. 4.—Four hundred miners were thrown out of work today when the Indiana and Illinois Coal company of Chicago, closed the big No. 12 mine at Witt, near here.

After being closed for several years, the mine was opened December 30, last, pitching the quiet little community again into the excitement of its former activity. But there were only 11 days of work and then came the closing order.

Many miners were despondently facing the double difficulty of living in a strange town and being out of work. They had moved their families to Witt from other mining camps when the opening of the mine was hailed as a new era of prosperity.

NO FEAR; COMMUNISTS WON'T ENTER THE G. O. P. CAUCUS AT SPRINGFIELD

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 4.—A "row" was precipitated among the republican members of the Illinois legislature today when a senate caucus admitted Senator Herbert Giberson of Alton, elected as a democrat, to its ranks.

Giberson's election two years ago came on a democratic ticket, but the republican landslide in his district at the last election left him a lone hand. He deserted the democratic caucus early this year and has had no political anchor until today. Administration republicans favored admitting him to the party.

Senator James J. Barbour of Evanston left the caucus in a great rage shouting that at the present rate "the party soon would be admitting Communists to its ranks."

After leaving the caucus Senator Barbour declined to say whether or not he would sit again in a caucus of republican senators.

"I was elected a republican, am still a republican, but I object to sitting in a rump caucus," he declared.

EXPLORER FREED FROM ROCK THEN HELD BY SLIDE

Boulder Slips But Rocks Block Rescue

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 4.—Floyd Collins, cave explorer, who has been imprisoned in the entrance of a cave since early Friday morning, was freed from the boulder holding his foot this morning, but a slide in the opening between him and the mouth of the cave will stay his complete rescue for several hours.

The slide came while Collins was alone, and none of the rescuers were caught behind the rock.

Information was given the rescuers by Collins, that his feet were free, but that he was too weak to force his way to the mouth of the cave.

Shortly after daylight today, when rescuers had left him, Collins called to them that the boulder had slipped to one side and he was free, but too weak to crawl out. Before help could arrive a slide of loose rock closed the passageway between the man and his rescuers and he was a prisoner again.

Work started immediately to remove the barrier, but it is slow and tedious. Only one man can work at the digging, and he passes the shale by hand to others stationed along the passageway.

NO KLAN TIES, SAYS HEAD OF PREMIER CAB

State That Kluxers Are Not Welcome

Following publication in The DAILY WORKER of the alleged ku klux klan letter which was sent to employes of the Premier Taxi company, urging them to join, officers of the company, entered vigorous denial to the manager and editors of The DAILY WORKER that the company or any of its officers had any connection with the hooded order.

The unpopularity of the ku klux klan among the organized workers of Chicago was again demonstrated when employes of the Premier Taxi company held a protest meeting after the letter was made public. The officers of the company took steps to clear themselves of suspicion by immediately having posters displayed in all their garages with the following statement:

"To all Premier Taxi employes: Be it hereby officially stated: Absolutely no Premier Taxi company's officers or directors are members of the organization known as the ku klux klan and so long as they are affiliated with this company, never will be. The propaganda recently circulated without our knowledge and which is contrary to these statements, is not in accord with the truth.

"Walter L. Hays,
"Vice-president and General Manager, Premier Taxi company."

The Premier Taxi company is only one of the few taxi companies in the city of Chicago whose employes are allowed to join a union. It is believed in some quarters that the "klan letter" was sent out by one of the rival companies that refuses to employ union labor. The Yellow Cab company is the strongest scab taxi company in Chicago and spends large sums of money advertising the virtues of its service in the capitalist press. It has resisted every effort on the part of union organizers to unionize its employes and is there-

KNITTED TRADES OF NEW YORK CITY WILL STRIKE, SOME NOW OUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Knitted outerwear workers of New York and Brooklyn will be on strike within a few days. Halperin Mills, Brooklyn, is already out because of the discharge of workers who talked of unionization.

The International Ladies' Garment Workers, with whom the knitted wear workers are now affiliated, and the United Textile Workers, who also exercise control, will conduct the strike.

The unions have asked a conference from knitted wear manufacturers to discuss wages and working conditions in the spring needle trades.

YELLOW CAB SETS POLICE ON WORKERS

Wage Cut Protested; Boss Calls Cops

When a group of employes of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing company called at the office Tuesday to request information regarding the new scale of wages which was inaugurated in the shop without their knowledge or consent, they were met with force and threats of violence at the hands of the company's officers, house detectives and about twelve city police officers in uniform and in plain clothes. Among the police officers was a motorcycle policeman.

The Yellow Cab Manufacturing company manufactures cabs for the Yellow Cab Taxi company and for the Chicago Motor Coach company. It employes about one thousand men in its shops at 530 Dickens Avenue.

This company is notorious for its spy system, having at least one stool-pigeon in each department and the chief spies over the entire factory.

When the employes of the [illegible] department learned on last Tuesday that they were no longer going to be paid on the old basis, of 48 cents per hour with a premium of 22 cents an hour paid at the pleasure of the management, they decided to find out under what conditions they were going to be paid in the future. They marched in a body to the assistant superintendent. He was decidedly surprised when he saw the men and inquired angrily what they were here for.

Only Wanted Information

The spokesman for the workers informed the boss that they came to ask for information about the new wage system in the shop, whether it was to be piece work or so much per hour. They were told that the foreman should tell them, but the foreman had already told the men that he did not know anything about the new system.

While the boss was [illegible] other boss, the spokesman [illegible] workers began to explain [illegible] increased cost of living, and [illegible] possibility of workers [illegible] living on the wages they were [illegible] not to speak of accepting a reduction.

The boss became furious and shouted: "I'll be damned if I am going to let you talk like that here." He [illegible] with anger and stood glaring at the men. Evidently the idea of a group of workers walking into his office was repugnant to him.

Ordered Them Back.

By degrees the house detectives began to gather. The general superintendent arrived but instead of giving any information about the new wage system, he ordered the men back to work. They insisted on being informed about the conditions under which they were expected to work, but he positively declined to give them any information.

"Are we going to be paid on the old basis," the spokesman for the men demanded.

"You are not," replied the superintendent, "but go back to work and you will get paid."

The men refused to go back to work until they were informed about the new system. Then the boss tried to negotiate with them individually. The men refused, all except four who got frightened and agreed to return.

While this conversation was going on a call was sent in for policemen and they began dribbling in. The police immediately began to bully the men and threaten them, calling the leader of the workers "a Bolshevik." The patrol wagon was waiting outside. One of the house detectives patted his pocket where he carried his gun saying: "I have something here that will get you."

The city policemen acted just as if they were beating up strikers on the

WIRING ILLEGAL IN FIRETRAP IN 1894, CITY SAYS

Tenants Say Condition of House Was 'Rotten'

Faulty electrical wiring, of which the owners must have been aware, was the most probable cause of the fire at 5632 Blackstone Ave., which killed six people last week, in the opinion of chief city electrical inspector, Tousley.

Tousley's testimony brot out that the wiring had been inspected in 1894, and condemned as dangerous, the city refusing to allow the current to be turned on at that time. He said that the wiring in use previous to the fire was worse than the 1894 wiring.

Tousley told how after the supreme court had declared illegal the city ordinance allowing the city to regulate wiring the use of electricity had increased. He produced bills of the Commonwealth Edison company to show that electricity is now being used in greater quantities than when the ordinance was enforced.

Tell of Rotten Conditions.

Testimony of C. D. Bryson, plumber who worked at the building the day before the fire, brought out that the toilets and bathrooms were in a wretched state. Bryson said he was a "boss" plumber, and came to the Blackstone Ave. apartment house Friday, after Mrs. Fritz, the owner, telephoned him that some of the toilets were not working.

He told of one toilet on the second floor which he tried to repair, which he said, "Must have leaked many times." "Two loose boards on the floor of the bathroom were rotten and water soaked," Bryson said. "I pried them up and fixed the toilet so that it would flush. However, Mrs. Fritz called me at nine o'clock the same night and told me the toilet was running over again."

H. R. Ditzel, civil engineer, told how he was trapped in his fourth floor apartment, from which he finally escaped with his 17-year-old paralytic son, Hugo Ditzel, by crawling across on the side of an old bed into a room on the fourth floor of the hotel next door. "I tried to get out by way of the hall," said Ditzel, "but the smoke and flames barred my way. I went to the window and called for help, but it was 15 minutes before the telephone girls in the hotel put a board across from their hotel room. There was no fire escape to which I had access. I was in a trap, cut off and had no chance."

Tenants Have Many Complaints.

That the tenants were extremely dissatisfied with the way the landlord kept the house in repair was shown from the testimony of Ida Belle Cummings, who occupied two rooms in the rear of the first floor with her mother and baby. Mrs. Cummings said she had frequently quarrelled with J. H. Frazier, agent and part owner of the building, about the condition of the bathroom, about the lack of heat, the poor lights, and the general repair and sanitation of the building.

"I complained to Mr. Frazier on the day of the fire about the papers he allowed to accumulate under the stairs leading from the basement," said Mrs. Cummings, adding that the building was "full of rats."

Pays High Rent.

Mrs. Cummings said she pays $10.00 per week rent for her two rear rooms. She supports her mother, who is confined to a wheel chair, and her baby by working as an adjustor, she said.

No Protective Laws.

The supreme court of Illinois on Oct. 28, declared unconstitutional the city ordinance regulating the wiring of electrical current in dwellings, and now any wiring, no matter how unsafe, is lawful in Chicago.

Chief City Electrical Inspector Victor Tousley pointed out that since this action of the court, the electric light bills have sharply increased, on account of the added unsafe and formerly illegal wiring now being used.

Landlord Knew of Wiring.

"We found violations of the rules, in the burned buildings," Tousley said, producing wiring that was installed by the tenants, made from old telephone wires and other unsafe material. He showed that Frazier must have known of this wiring, in spite of his testimony to the contrary. Tousley produced bills sent Mrs. Fritz by the Commonwealth Edison company, showing that in the past few months the electric light bills for the building have increased from an average of $4.50 per month to $14.57 per month for Dec., 1924, and Jan., 1925.

Wired In 1894.

"The building was originally wired in 1894," said Tousley, "and we were requested to permit the use of the wiring for electric lights, but we refused the request because we considered it dangerous. The home made wiring in use in the building up to the time of the fire was much more dangerous, however. In 1916, we granted permission for the use of five lights which were not to be more than 60 watts in strength. Now, with the unsafe home made wiring, 200 watt lamps were in use up until the time of the fire in almost every apartment."

ENORMOUS PROFITS REAPED LAST YEAR BY CAPITALISTS, WHILE A MILLION WORKERS WERE JOBLESS

(By The Federated Press)

Take a look at the 1924 profits of the 10 industrial companies listed below and then try to figure how long a system so top heavy with profits can endure. These are not the profits of a boom year but a year in which over 1,000,000 factory workers were forced to join the large army of unemployed, in which hundreds of thousands of railroad men and coal miners were laid off and the country's monthly payroll reduced by nearly a quarter of a billion dollars.

Skims 11 Per Cent off Water

U. S. Steel made a 1924 net profit of $152,937,130 equal to $11.07 on each $100 share of common stock. That common stock was originally all water, its present value being due entirely to the huge accumulation of undivided profits. U. S. Steel continues its extra dividends.

Inland Steel made a net profit of $5,517,299 equal to $16.28 on each $100 of common stock. Only in 1917 has this company made a better record and in that year it exploited the war emergency to the tune of $42.15 on each $100 of common stock.

Imperialism's Super Profits.

United Fruit, exploiter of the slaves of Central America, made a net profit of $17,294,703 equal to $17.29 on each $100 of common stock. But in view of the 100% stock dividend in 1921 this means a return of $34.58 on each $100 invested. Regular dividends are paid at the rate of $10,000,000 or 20% on the par value before the stock dividend.

The 1923 profits were so huge that 1924 dividends were paid in advance and now that they have been paid over again the stockholders have the equivalent of a $10,000,000 cash bonus.

Swift & Co. made net profits of $14,135,987 equal to $9.41 an each $100 share of common stock. But as the federal trade commission discovered, the $325,000,000 capitalization represents less than $90,000,000 put in by investors. The remainder represents the capitalization of profits in excess of legitimate dividends. In other words Swift's profits for 1924 would be over $20 per $100 of real investement.

Profits from Child Labor.

National Biscuit Co. made net profits of $12,881,530 equal to $21.76 per $100 invested in common stock.

Ward Baking Corp. made net profits of $4,369,739. The 312,714 shares of preferred stock represent the entire real investement so that the report of $2.98 per share for each of the 500,000 shares of Class B common stock means nearly $1,500,000 of sheer velvet over and above the legitimate 7% dividends on preferred.

57 Per Cent Spearmint.

William Wrigley, spearmint king, made net profits of $8,539,313 equal to about $57 on each $100 of stock. The year's cash dividends were at the rate of nearly $36 on each $100 of investment proving that chewing is a profitable habit but not altogether to the chewer.

Why the A. C. W. Readjustment?

Manufacturers of wearing apparel were not behind the rest in profits. Hart Shaffner & Marx made $2,041,383 equal to $13.46 on each $100 share. National Cloak & Suit made approximately $12 a share, bringing the total earned on each $100 in the last 3 years to over $38. And Endicott Johnson, company union shoe manufacturers, made an operating profit of $6,360,513 equal to $16.08 per $100 invested.

MANY UNIONS RALLY TO AID OF MICHIGAN COMMUNIST VICTIMS AND LABOR DEFENSE COUNCIL

Following close upon the heels of the conviction of C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party under the criminal syndicalism law of Michigan, many unions and prominent individuals have voiced their indignation against the conviction of Ruthenberg and the criminal syndicalism law of Michigan as well as similar laws of other states. Without exception they call attention to the grave danger of such conviction to the labor movement as a whole and point out that what happens to the Communists today under these laws will surely be extended to the rest of the labor movement tomorrow unless a common fight of all elements is put up against these laws and again the present conviction of Ruthenberg and the possible conviction of thirty others who go on trial after him in the same case, the next one called for trial being Robert Minor, famous cartoonist and publicist.

Among the various trade unions and labor bodies that have expressed themselves as per above recently are the Miners' Local 2376, Christopher, Ill.; Journeymen Stone Cutters' Local, Omaha, Auto Workers' Local 127, Detroit, Mich.; Painters' Locals 637 and 235 of Chicago, Ill. Amalgamated Metal Workers of A., Brooklyn, N. Y., Machinists' Locals 84, 337, and 390, of Chicago, Architectural Iron; Bronze and Structural Workers' Union of New York, Locals 38, and 20, I. L. G. W. U., New York; Bakers, Locals Nos. 3 and 5, A. F. L. N. Y.; A. C. W. No. 39, Chicago; Machinists No. 91 in Minneapolis and a number of other organizations in New York, Chicago and various other cities. Sunday, Feb. 1, Chicago Federation of Labor reaffirmed its former stand (of 1922) against criminal syndicalism laws and the Michigan attack.

At its recent state convention the Musicians' Association of Michigan, also passed a resolution against the criminal syndicalism law and the conviction of Ruthenberg, and the trial of Minor and the other 29 indicted.

MOTHERS IN STRIKE AGAINST FIRETRAP SCHOOL IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—One hundred mothers of 110 children in the Bronx refused to let them endanger their lives in an old school building, took the matter to the school authorities and won the strike in no time. The school officials were forced to give the children better quarters.

The 110 children had been transferred to Public School No. 5, at Webster avenue and 188th street, which their mothers found so dangerous and insanitary that they refused to let the children go there. They asserted that the building was more than 50 years old, that it was insanitary and that six classrooms were in portable buildings which could not be adequately heated.

The school superintendent of the district, William A. Boylan, was forced to grant the mothers' requests and the children will be kept in Public School No. 33, tho, the officials announced, "temporarily."

This "temporarily" does not at all satisfy the mothers and they appointed a committee of six to see that their demands are carried out not to have their children go to No. 5.

The children were to have been transferred to P. S. 74, but this building was not ready and will not be for another month. Meantime they were to have been sent to No. 5, but the mothers wouldn't have it, so the officials are to think it over and then report to the mothers. They promise to let the children stay at No. 33 meantime, and will then send them to the new school.

U. S. PAYS SCRUBWOMEN $410 A YEAR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Chrawomen employed in the capitol—21 of them—are paid $410 a year. All they have to do is to scrub floors and stairs and toilets and railings. Most of their work is done early in the morning and after 6 in the evening. Now the appropriations committee of the house has reported favorably on a raise in pay for these 21 women of $2.80 a year.

If Coolidge does not veto this extravagance they will get $412.80 each year henceforth. This boost was allowed to facilitate accounting and deductions on the retirement fu

SENATORS TALK LOUDLY ABOUT KELLOGG'S PACT

Charge U. S. Drawn into Europe for 2¼ Pct.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Senatorial dissatisfaction with the Paris agreement, whereby the United States became an official partner in the Dawes plan in exchange for 2¼ per cent of the money derived from Germany under the Dawes plan, and senatorial fears over what the United States may have been "let in for" broke forth anew on the floor of the senate today.

It came in the form of an impassioned speech by Senator Hiram Johnson, republican, California, condemning the agreement negotiated by secretary of state designate Kellogg, and challenging the authorities to have so acted without consulting the senate.

Raises Important Question.

Johnson warned the senate that the Paris agreement brought before it "two very grave and important questions."

These were, he said, "First, the possibilities of what happened at Paris, and second, the question presented by the secretary of state that the executive department of the government has the power to determine without the consent of congress what shall be done with a debt to the nation."

Johnson pointed out that the European press, immediately after the signing of the Paris pact on January 14, "published felicitations and articles galore that America had altered her foreign policy and was once more in Europe."

"Not only abroad," he added, "but among our own publicists interested in international aspects, it was said that America had come to realize her responsibilities and finally had taken part in the collection of reparations from Germany under the Dawes plan."

They'll Pray for Dawes' Plan.

Johnson called attention to the state department to explain America's position in the Paris pact and said Americans should "pray to god" that the Dawes' plan "works out in its entirety and wholly successfully," for if so there may be no danger to this country, "but if it works out ill, if it proves unsuccessful, the signers of this collection document will have to do the collecting. Then will come the time when you will curse the day America became a part of this collection document for European debts."

No Klan Ties, Says Head of the Premier Taxicab Company

fore very unpopular among the workers. As the klan is notoriously antilabor, there is a belief in trade union circles that the hooded order may have been used by the scab taxi company to injure a rival.

The following letter was received by The DAILY WORKER from the executive officers of the Premier Taxi company in denial of the statements contained in the published letter:

The DAILY WORKER,
Chicago, Illinois.
Gentlemen:

Referring to the article in your daily paper of Monday, February 2, headed "Premier Cab company organizes for Ku Klux Klan," we deny positively that this is the case. We further deny every allegation made in that article from beginning to end.

This company has had no hand whatsoever nor has any of its officials, in the sending out of literature or letters, asking Premier employes to become members of the ku klux klan. This propaganda has been sent out by our enemies in an effort to demoralize this company. We do not sanction such tactics, any more than we would take it upon ourselves to advise employes to join the Masons or Knights of Columbus or any other organization.

No official or department head of Premier Taxi company is a member of the ku klux klan, from its president down the line. And if any other employe does belong, we do not know it any more than we do if they belong to any other order.

To prove that these charges are false, we offer $1000.00 reward for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who have spread this malicious propaganda. This slander is undoubtedly the work of our enemies who are seeking to demoralize the employes of Premier Taxi company and to break down their morale which they know is at a higher standard right now. In all our garages, we have posted signs notifying all our employes that this rumor is untrue.

We employ Jews and Gentiles, Catholics and Protestants, Masons Knights of Columbus, Elks, white men and colored men alike. The only qualification we demand of our employes is that they come to us with a clean past record. The only employes we dismiss are those who have proven inefficient in our service. We stand staunchly for good character and efficiency, and have always done so since the inception of this company. This applies to everybody in the organization from the general superintendent down.

We trust you will give our answer as much prominence as was given the above mentioned article.

Very sincerely,
Premier Taxi Company,
PETER A. MORTENSON,
President.

Great Merger of Coal Barons Calls for Bigger Battles By the Workers

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, the dollar press hails with enthusiasm the merger of coal companies controlling 150 mines over 75,000 acres of land, in West Virginia, having an annual production capacity of 21,000,000 tons.

"Twenty years ago, perhaps even ten years ago," says the Chicago Journal, "the American people would have greeted that announcement with the outcry of monopoly."

The Journal favors the monoply, altho it claims to "fight for the people." It must needs claim that "the peepul" are also in favor of it; that all they ask is, "what difference will it make in the price and the dependability of fuel?"

• • • •

The readers of the kept press are bligthely informed that monopolization will make a difference in their favor; that it will put the business on a rational basis, meaning that it will eliminate strikes, prevent car shortage, and bring about system in an admitted chaotic industry. The coal barons will no doubt be glad to have the optimism of these sheets smother the opposition, if it can, of the "dear peepul." To be sure, that is what these same "common pee-pul" voted for when they decided to keep Coolidge in the White House.

• • • •

The assurance with which the announcement is made that there will be no middle class opposition to the growing monoply in coal, is a confession that this class is getting weaker, rather than stronger. LaFollette, in entering the presidential elections, gambled that the middle class protest was getting stronger. He is away in Florida now, where he is no doubt trying to forget the "coal problem" as well as other questions in which he tried to interest the small bourgeoisie; always on the side of the capitalist system, however.

• • • •

With the admitted decline of the middle class from the days when "Teddy" Roosevelt led his onslaught against "the trusts," there is a corresponding rise of working class strength and consciousness. The great $100,000,000 coal mine merger is a new challenge to all labor.

It is not an accident that the news of the merger comes first from the Wall Street financial district in New York City. The firm that is pushing thru the merger has been busy at this kind of work for the past 35 years. This is its greatest effort.

It is also easily understood why the merger brings together 80 small companies in the non-union coal fields of West Virginia, in the vicinity of Fairmont, Morgantown and Clarksburgh, where some of the most bitter struggles between the mine workers and the mine owners have taken place.

• • • •

The gold of Wall Street supporting coal mine mergers in West Virginia means new strength to the non-union mining interests. The West Virginia mine merger is a new weapon in the hands of open shop interests thruout the whole mining industry.

The consolidated company will eliminate competition, such as it exists, and it will help curtail costs. That means higher profits for the stockholders. Reduced wages, the longer workday and worse conditions of labor, will also help add to the profit mountain, out of which an anti-strike fund can easily be drawn. This merger means more work for cheap labor in non-union fields, idleness for the miners in the organized fields, where union wages and union conditions are in force.

It is thus easily seen that new and greater struggles lie ahead, not only for the coal miners of West Virginia, but for all coal miners. And what affects the coal miners also involves the workers in all industries. If the workers do not foresee this the full realization of it will dawn upon them with the development of each day's new events and needs. There is only one way, however, to face the new and bigger battles. That is thru militant and intelligent organization, politically and industrially.

• • • •

John L. Lewis, president of the Coal Miners' Union, is the best ally of the mine owners when he makes war, as he does, upon the Communist movement. It is the Communists who lead the drive for an effective, fighting, winning United Mine Workers' Union. Such an organization would see the Lewis bureaucracy sloughed into the discard. Only the Communists point the way not only to a mighty Miners' Union, but also to the seizure of all power by the whole working class.

Wm. Green, former secretary-treasurer of the Miners' Union, now the head of the American Federation of Labor in Gompers' place, is in Miami, Florida, meeting with his executive council. He says "nothing extraordinary" will be considered at the meeting. That means that no efforts are being made to resist the new attacks being planned by the exploiters against the workers.

But the workers, under the lash of growing unemployment, wage cuts, the longer workday, will realize that extraordinary measures are necessary to resist this onslaught. They will see that the Communists were correct in their analysis of the problem. As a result they will turn to the Communists, in spite of Lewis and Green and all their kind for the leadership of which they stand so desperately in need in this hour when the master class is consolidating its every ounce of strength.

W. P. DEFEATS S. P. IN DEBATE, VOTE 126 TO 7

Swabeck Shatters Points Made by Socialist

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 4.—An enthusiastic audience witnessed a debate between the socialist party and Worker Party on the question of "Democracy versus Proletarian Dictatorship."

Arne Swabeck in a masterful fashion analyzed all of the points brot out by Ernest Unterman, an old war horse and a theoretician of the socialist party.

Class Struggle and Revolution.

In answer to the pious appeal of the S. P. for peaceful, evolutionary methods, Arne Swabeck quoted the concluding parts of the Communist Manifesto. "The Communists disdain to conceal their aims. They openly declare that their ends can be attained only by the forcible overthrow of all existing social conditions. Let the ruling classes tremble at a Communist revolution. The proletarians have nothing to lose but their chains and the world to gain." This stirring appeal for the true teachings of Marx and against the perversion of Marxism by the leader of the Two-and-a-Half International stirred the audience to a fighting spirit and gained its support to the side of the Workers Party.

Swabeck exposed the hypocrisy of the fig leaf of bourgeois democracy hiding the iron fist of capitalist dictatorship. Did you forget the Berger's case in congress? How about the socialist alderman in New York? he asked embarrassed Unterman. How about the white terror during the steel strike and every other strike? What was the last injunction in the railroad strike if not dictatorship of the capitalist class? Look at Italy, said Swabeck there you can see the iron fist of capitalist dictatorship in all its nakedness.

Democracy and Dictatorship.

When Unterman attempted to link up the Communists with anarchists on the question of the proletarian dictatorship Swabeck quickly came back and quoted Marx: That the transition period from capitalism to Communism can be nothing else than the proletarian dictatorship. "Paris Commune was the first great lesson" said Unterman which taught us that we should not use force in the struggle. And to this Swabeck came back with the true lessons of the Paris Commune as taught by Marx and Lenin that the reason the Paris Commune failed was because they did not exercise the proletarian dictatorship.

Comrade Swabeck advised Unterman to read Lenin's book "The State and Revolution" in order to understand that the state arose as the result of the division of society into conflicting social groups and since these groups exist the state can be nothing else than the organ of suppression in the services of the ruling class. Comrade Swabeck also pointed out that while it is important to have the class consciousness of the majority, yet it is of the most vital importance that the proletariat should have a party of its own, composed of the most revolutionary section of the working class to guide it toward the final goal of the proletarian revolution, the overthrow of the capitalist order and the establishment of the Communist society.

After the debate the vote was taken and the Workers Party was awarded the decision by the audience by the vote of 126 to 9.

There will be another debate with the S. P.'ites on the Dawes plan between Max Bedacht of the Workers Party and Unterman of the socialist party.

WHITE GUARDS ARE HET UP OVER MOCK TRIAL OF COUNTER-REVOLUTIONISTS

The trial of the counterrevolution which is planned for this Sunday by the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, is arousing the ire of the local white guards. There is much talk in the Russian colony. The former captains, colonels and generals of the czar's army are up against it. There are rumors that one of the defense lawyers is a 100 per cent white guardist and therefore declines to have his name announced before the trial. There is also discomfort in the office of the local white guard Russian sheet. In the last issue of this paper they attacked Ruthenberg's speech in Madison Square Garden. They expect to be exposed at the trial. The trial will be held this Sunday, at 6 p. m. at the Soviet School, 1902 W. Division St. All the proceedings will be conducted in the Russian language.

WAR VET FRAUDS GET THOMPSON, FORBES 2 YEARS

Appeals Halt Grafters Going to Prison

Col. Charles R. Forbes, former head of the veterans' bureau and John W. Thompson, Chicago and St. Louis millionaire contractor, who were found guilty of conspiracy to defraud the government by a federal jury last Friday today were each sentenced to two years' imprisonment in Leavenworth penitentiary. This is the maximum sentence under the law.

Sentence Too Limited.

In pronouncing sentence, the court denied a motion for a new trial, a plea for mitigation, and declared that it believed the maximum sentence "too limited."

Attorneys for the defense immediately declared the case would be appealed to the supreme court of the United States.

A thirty days' stay of sentence will be granted, the court stated, to file an appeal, and the usual 90 days to perfect a bill of exceptions.

The Case Will Drag.

The appeal will be based on the alleged illegal seizure by the government and introduction into the evidence of private papers belonging to the defendants.

Plea for mitigation was based on the poor physical condition of Forbes and Thompson. After sentence had been passed, their friends in court declared that imprisonment probably would prove fatal to both men.

Priest, Pastor and Rabbi Unite to Get Religion in Schools

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 4.—With the knowledge that religion is really the opium of the people and will keep them in subjection to "authority" and loyal to a god of vengeance, Cardinal Hayes appeared at a meeting in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, together with a protestant minister and a Jewish rabbi to foster a movement to give at least one hour's religious instruction to public school children everyday.

There were about 2,500 public school teachers, nearly all catholics, present. The occasion was the annual meeting of an association of catholic school teachers.

The speakers declared that because of the crime wave there is a general demand for the teaching to public school children that they have a soul and that they are responsible for their acts.

The Rev. Walter M. Howlett, secretary for religious education of the N. Y. federation of churches made the declaration that there is same leadership in the board of education and "they want this systematic week-day religious instruction for the children as much as we do."

The reverend doctor said that only 400,000 children in New York are getting religious training and that 800,000 are without it.

Cardinal Hayes said at one time: "Instead of being antagonistic to public education, which is the right and duty of the state, the catholic church is in sympathy with it."

Then in the same breath he said: "All we ask is that the state may see clearly that public education is bound to fail unless it brings into the soul of the child a proper idea of his relation and obligation to religion."

The Machiavellian cardinal will be sympathetic towards the state if it agrees with his views of religion as the opium of the people.

Rabbi David De Sola Pool for the Jews said that Christian and Jew are alike in this "sacred duty" as he termed it.

Minneapolis Communists Take Offensive

of the 10th ward (Minneapolis) local of the farmer-labor federation, protest this unwarranted assumption of authority on the part of the state executive committee and demand that the members of the state executive committee who were unseated be given their seats to which they weer elected by the state convention.

Signed: I. G. Scott, L. A. Roseland and Emil S. Youngdahl.

Condemn Middle Class Conference.

A resolution was also introduced condemning the purported call for the former-labor party conference on March 20 denying representation to trade unions and other working class political organizations.

This resolution is as follows:

Whereas, there is called a convention purporting to be of the farmer and labor elements, constituting the farmer-labor party for the date of March 20, 1925, and

Whereas, by the very nature of this call and the qualifications of delegates, the actual dirt farmer and trade unionist as such will be entirely eliminated, and

Whereas, the election of these delegates will be at county conventions held thruout the state made up almost entirely of professional men, little bankers, merchants, and office seekers, and

Whereas, we believe that the fundamental principle upon which the labor movement is founded is that it is to be an organization representing on the political field the class interest of working farmers from every district and the bonafide wage workers from the cities, and

Whereas, such delegates as who should truly represent the elements for whose benefit the farmer-labor party was organised cannot attend political conventions unless they do so at the expense of their respective industrial units and are thereby excluded when their organization is denied representation, therefore be it

Resolved, that we condemn the call of a convention which is not of and for the benefit of the producers on the land and in the industries and by the nature of the called unity conference, March 20, representation will be from office seekers and other middle class elements and politicians who have the necessary leisure and funds to attend, and be it further

Resolved, that we are opposed to the liquidation of the farmer-labor federation which may in some measure represent the class interest of the farmers and wage workers of Minnesota if the control of the workers and farmers' organizations is maintained, and be it further

Resolved, that we condemn the unwarranted authority assumed by the founders of the call for the March 20 convention in their arrogant, self-appointed, and usurped power in calling a convention which intimates the necessity for the possibility of liquidating the farmer-labor federation without first consulting the farmers and wage workers of Minnesota in a regular called convention of these groups, and be it further

Resolved, that a special committee shall be elected of this committee instructed to call a conference of delegates of all farmers' organizations and labor unions to meet on the 19th day of March for the purpose of taking such action as is necessary to protect the farmer-labor federation from all attempts now being made to liquidate it, which attempts are against the interest of the workers and farmers and in the interest of bankers and professional politicians who have wormed their way into the party.

Signed: C. R. Hedlund.

Investigation Committee Appointed.

This resolution was laid over until the next meeting and a comittee of three was selected to inquire from the state office of the farmer-labor federation as to whether they were intending to liquidate the federation. The sentiment expressed in this meeting condemned the action of the state executive committee for its usurpation of power in calling a convention and denying representation of affiliated working class organizations in the farmer-labor federation.

The opinion was expressed that the farmer-labor federation must be kept alive and that the middle class and professional politicians must be kept away from leadership of the farmer labor party in Minnesota if it is to be a live instrument functioning in the interest of the working class.

A special meeting will, very likely be called for the purpose of discussing and acting on this important question. L. A. Roseland, Communist nominated by the 10th ward local of the farmer-labor federation was also endorsed by the Hennepin county committee together with the endorsement of John Peterson, Theodore Jensen, and Louis Beneke, the two last named are at the present time aldermen from their respective wards elected on the socialist ticket. "Minnesota," the official mouthpiece of the reactionaries in Minneapolis has slated these two for exclusion and are in the field to put up candidates that are in their liking.

The Communists put up a fight for the maintenance and preservation of the farmer-labor federation and urged in case that the state executive committee will not call a state convention of the farmer-labor federation, that the Hennepin county committee of the farmer-labor federation will undertake to call such a convention in order to be able to sidetrack the moves of the middle class elements to destroy the farmer-labor federation.

YELLOW CAB SETS POLICE ON WORKERS

picket line, abusing the workers and particularly their leader.

Summarily Fired

When the men refused to return to work unless they were informed about the wages they would receive, they were summarily fired and the timekeeper was instrcted to pay them what was coming to them under the new system. When they received their envelopes they realised why the bosses were so averse to giving them any information. Instead of the $6.21, which was the average pay in the enamel department for a nine hour day's work, they received on an average of $6.00 for TWO DAYS WORK.

While the timekeeper was getting ready to pay the men off, the motorcycle policeman kept up his steady barrage of abuse. He looked much the worse for wear, having black eyes and a broken nose. He threatened to get the workers who had committed the offense of asking a little information and swore that he would have the spokesman driven out the country.

Efficient Spy System

There is no union in the plant of the Yellow Cab Manufacturing company. Under their efficient spy system every worker's movements are closely watched. It is reported that the chief house detective beat up an employe who was fired a few years ago. The company is wealthy and their thugs seem to be immune from the operation of the law. They can violate it with impunity. A workers was recently fired on the spot for going to the rest room ten minutes before quitting time.

The Yellow Cab company also has several garages around town which are distinguished the slave driving conditions under which the men work.

Another brilliant scheme of this company to get money out of its slaves is an insurance scheme which takes fifty cents a month out of their pay but when they get sick they have an awful time trying to get any sick benefits.

Two years ago the company announced that it would make its employes shareholders and offered stock to them. They found that it was not a voluntary "gift" but compulsory. If you don't buy a share, you don't work here," was the way the foreman talked to those who did not want to become shareholders in the Yellow Cab Manufacturing company.

FRENCH DEBT, GERMAN DEFAULT, IS ANOTHER PROBLEM FOR BRITISH

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The problem of what will happen if Germany defaults in its payments under the Dawes plan, became a stumbling block today when the British cabinet considered the French debt situation.

The cabinet failed to reach a decision upon the memorandum which was to have been transmitted to France, today. Generally, the British policy will be, it was said, that Britian wants from Germany and France a sum equal to what England is paying to the United States.

Keep Up Fight for Water.

The proposal now goes to the senate.

BLACKEN EYES SECOND TIME IN JAPANESE DIET

Uproar Subsides Only After Two Recesses

TOKYO, Feb. 4.—Black eyes and bloody noses were much in evidence in today's session of the Japanese diet following the free-for-all fight that broke out in the chamber yesterday as a climax to one of the bitterest parliamentary controversies ever to rage in the Tokyo national assembly.

It was the second fight to take place within a week. The tumult yesterday broke out during debate on a resolution demanding increased subsidies for compulsory education sponsored by the Seiyouhonto members, resenting charges made by members of the Kenseikai party that the Seiyuhonto was supporting the measure for purely selfish reasons, attacked several Kenseikai debaters.

The speaker of the diet was compelled to order two recesses before the uproar subsided.

BIRTH CONTROL ADVOCATES KEEP UP THEIR FIGHT

"The rich are not interested in the public necessity of birth control education," says Dr. Rachel Yarros, "because they get all the information they need from their private physicians. It is the poor we are trying to protect by our efforts."

This was the woman physician's comment on the latest decision in Chicago's birth control war in which the city health commissioner is trying to choke off the public distribution by a free clinic of information that will permit normal married life without the fear of unwanted children. The commissioner claims that immorality among the young and unmarried may result. An appellate court decided that the commissioner may forbid a license if he desires.

"Those who are not rich," says Dr. Yarros, "often get no information from their doctors or inadequate or useless advice. Parents of two or three healthy promising children do not want to jeopardize the youngsters' prospects of education and a start in life by having more babies come to take a slice of the limited income. Wives with heart trouble, tuberculosis or kidney ailments often risk their lives thru pregnancy. It is frequently also a supreme matter of health to avoid pregnancy. Some become temporarily insane at each childbirth. They could lead normal happy married lives and be a blessing instead of a burden to their families if they and their husbands had the simple information necessary to prevent conception."

THE REAL STORY OF HERRIN

The DAILY WORKER is sending a correspondent to Williamson county to get the real story of Herrin—interviews, sketches, investigations of the forces at work in and the background story of the struggle that has given the name of "Bloody Williamson" to the coal district round about Herrin, Illinois. The stories will appear shortly in subsequent issues.

SAVE THE "INDUSTRIAL WORKER" WHILE CHANGING ITS POLICIES, SAY RED INTERNATIONALISTS

The Red International Affiliation Committee of the Industrial Workers of the World has issued the following statement upon the struggle going on in Seattle between a capitalist business concern and the "Industrial Worker," against which an injunction and damages have been asked which will give it into the hands of capitalist enemies of the workers.

• • • •

REVOLUTIONARY workers everywhere should be alarmed at the danger now threatening the existence of the paper known as the "Industrial Worker," published by the I. W. W. at Seattle, Washington.

Established many years ago as a militant fighting organ of the I. W. W. in the days when that organization was the unquestional leader of the revolutionary struggle in America, the "Industrial Worker" is now gravely imperiled.

Year after year its precarious life was always sustained by the loyal mass of members who looked upon as their expression and who believed in it as they believed in the principle of the class struggle.

The Basic Cause.

Today, the "Industrial Worker" is in danger, only because the mass of members no longer receive it as their expression, but as an opponent of what they believe in, as a censor gagged organ of a clique.

Only because the workers have lost faith and lost confidence in the "Industrial Worker," only when the members of the I. W. W., to whom it is supposed to belong, reject it as alien to their ideas, could the capitalist class dare to strike the blow.

Quite a time ago, the "Industrial Worker" began advertising a boycott against a certain business place of Seattle, called "Our House." It is not in the scope of this committee to discuss the merits of this particular boycott.

Errors of Policy.

It is only obvious, however, that in the craze of the I. W. W. to ignore political questions, and to turn everything into an "economic" action, the fellow workers of the northwest failed to make the release of the Centralia victims a paramount political issue and, instead, turned to the mere fruitless and alleged "economic" task of punishing some particular bourgeois—without, take note, any realistic conception that a consumers' boycott is only a weak and usually futile substitute for organized strike action at the point of production.

But whatever the mistakes of the I. W. W. in laying down the boycott on "Our House" or any other bourgeois, the Red International Affiliation Committee declares that the recent injunction asked for by "Our House" against the "Industrial Worker" to give control of the paper, the paper of the workers, into the hands of the capitalist class, this injunction must be fought against tooth and nail by every worker, member of the I. W. W. or not. The "Our House" injunction is as damnable a blow at the working class as was the injunction asked for by Jim Rowan against the I. W. W.

Impossible Leadership.

Every worker, every member of the I. W. W. must rally to the support of the "Industrial Worker" and save it for the working class. It is a sign of the utter incompetence of the present general executive board, and the criminal spleen of the general secretary treasurer, pro tem, that when appealed to in behalf of saving the "Industrial Worker" they refuse all assistance, and manifest a cynical indifference toward the life of a paper which is the embodiment of the sacrifices of the workers of the northwest. And this, merely because they are opposed to its present policy.

It is sufficiently well known that the Red International Affiliation Committee is completely opposed to the policy of the "Industrial Worker" as it has been for some years. The "Industrial Worker" under the guidance of stupid ignoramuses of fanatic sectarianism, has become the shameful mouthpiece of Russian counter-revolution, of slander against the workers' and peasants' Soviet, of hackneyed capitalist lies, of pacifism in the class struggle, of hair-brained philosophies against the dictatorship of the proletariat and continuous misrepresentation of the Red International of Labor Unions and the Communists.

Save the Paper; Change Its Policy.

Against such ideas, which are dangerous to and against the interests of the working class, the Red International Affiliation Committee has not ceased to struggle. We urge that those branches which are mistakenly withholding funds and assistance from the "Industrial Worker" immediately reconsider and render the paper every support, demanding, however, that a complete reversal of policy be guaranteed as follows:

1. No support of Rowan, his injunction or "Emergency Program" calling for split—or any other split in the I. W. W. 2. No attacks on Soviet Russia or any other workers' organizations, political or industrial. 3. No more pacifism and non-resistance, but class struggle. 4. No censorship against any member of the I. W. W. writing upon policy. 5. That it print the appeals and statements of the Red International of Labor Unions in full.

Beat the Injunction!

But there can be no hesitancy in the minds of revolutionary workers. The "Industrial Worker" must be saved! The "Our House" injunction must be defeated decisively! Every worker should support the "Industrial Worker" in its fight against capitalism. Every I. W. W. must see that his branch send all available funds—that it pay the bills now owing the paper. Every I. W. W. should also demand that the general headquarters cease its sabotage and aid in saving the "Industrial Worker."

Every worker must aid the "Industrial Worker" while it fights against capitalism. And must demand that it then continue to fight against capitalism, and not against Soviet Russia, the R. I. L. U. and the Communist movement.

"NOT GUILTY," BY BLATCHFORD, WANTED BY I. W. W. PRISONER

A fellow worker in Walla Walla penitentiary, one of the numerous I. W. W. prisoners, wants a copy of Robert Blachford's book "Not Guilty." Can any reader of the T. U. E. L. section supply this want? The book is out of print as far as we know. If you have a copy, donate it to the cause. Send it in to the T. U. E. L. office, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill., and we will forward it to this victim of the class struggle.

Brownsville Open Forum.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—On Sunday evening, Feb. 8, Comrade Israel Amter will deliver a lecture on "The White Terror in Europe," at the Brownsville Workers Hall, 1844 Pitkin Ave., Brooklyn.

The capitalist and "socialist" press is constantly harping upon the fact that there are political prisoners in Soviet Russia, and always forget about the political prisoners in all capitalist countries. Comrade Amter will show the difference in number and kind of prisoners, and why those in capitalist jails are there.

The forum is under the auspices of the Brownsville Section committee of the Workers Party.

Leninism or Trotskyism

Leninism or Trotskyism.

64-PAGE PAMPHLET ON LENINISM OR TROTSKYISM NOW IN PREPARATION

This installment is part of a pamphlet "Leninism or Trotzkyism" now in preparation. It includes articles by three outstanding figures in the Russian Communist Party: G. Zinoviev, I. Stalin and C. Kamenev, to form a most timely and important contribution to a discussion of world interest. The pamphlet will be of 64 pages, selling at 20 cents and will be ready at the conclusion of this serial publication.

We have already spoken of the legends about the party and about Lenin, which Comrade Trotsky and his followers have disseminated. We have unvoiled and refuted these legends. Now, however, the question arises: for what purpose did Comrade Trotsky want all these legends as to the preparations for October, as to Lenin and Lenin's party? Why were the recent literary attacks of Comrade Trotsky on the party necessary? What is the sense, the purpose, the aim of these attacks, at present when the party does not wish to discuss, when the party is overburdened with a large amount of urgent tasks, at present when the party needs united work for the restoration of its internal economy and not a new quarrel about old questions? Why does Comrade Trotsky want to drag the party back to new discussions?

Comrade Trotsky declares that all this is necessary for the "study" of October. But is it not possible to study the history of October without once more attacking the party and its leader, Lenin? But what kind of a "history" of October is this which begins and ends with the dethronement of the chief leaders of the October revolution, with the dethronement of the party which organized and carried out this revolution?

No, this is no case of the study of October. This is not the way to study October. This is not the way the history of October is written. There is obviously another "intention." And according to all evidence, this "intention" is, that Comrade Trotsky is, with his literary attacks making another (one more!) attempt to prepare the conditions for replacing Leninism by Trotskyism. Comrade Trotsky feels it "absolutely" necessary to divest the party and its cadres, which carried out the revolution, of their glory so as to pass from the dethronement of the party to the dethronement of Leninism. The dethronement of Leninism is, however, necessary in order to represent Trotskyism as the "only" "proletarian" (no joke!) ideology. All this of course (yes, of course!) under the flag of Leninism so that the process of being dragged over may be "as painless as possible."

This is the essence of Comrade Trotsky's most recent literary attacks.

For this Comrade Trotsky's literary attacks strain the question of Trotskyism to breaking point.

What then is Trotskyism?

Trotskism has three distinguishing features which place it in irreconcilable opposition to Leninism. What are these characteristic features?

Firstly. Trotskyism is the theory of the "permanent (uninterrupted) revolution." But what is Trotskyism's conception of the "permanent revolution"? It is the revolution without consideration of the small peasantry as a revolutionary force. Comrade Trotsky's permanent revolution is, as Lenin says, the "neglect" of the peasant movement, a "game for the seizure of power." Where does the danger of this lie? In that such a revolution, if one took the trouble to realize it, would end with a complete breakdown, as it would deprive the Russian proletariat of its ally, the small peasantry. This explains the fight which Leninsm has been carrying on against Trotskyism since the year 1905.

How does Comrade Trotsky estimate Leninism from the point of view of this fight? He regards it as a theory which contains in itself "anti revolutionary" features. (Trotsky "1905", Russian edition, page 285.) On what is this angry remark against Leninism based? On the fact that Leninsm always has defended and still does defend the idea of the dictatorship of the proletariat and the peasantry. Trotsky does not confine himself to this angry remark. He goes further when he states:

"The whole construction of Leninism is at present built up on lies and contains the poisonous germ of its own disintegration" (See Comrade Trotsky's letter to Tscheidse of Feb. 25, 1913).

As you see we are confronted by two opposed lines.

Secondly. Trotskyism is a distrust of the doings of the Bolshevist party, of its unity, of its hostility to the opportunist elements. Trotskyism is, in the sphere of organization, the theory of an association of revolutionaries and opportunists, of their groups and groupiets in the bosom of one united party. The history of Comrade Trotsky's "August block" is surely known to you, in which Martov's adherents and Otsowists (those in favor of the withdrawal of the duma delegates), liquidators and Trotskians, having formed a "real" party, work comfortably together. It is known that the aim of this strangely patched party was the destruction of the Bolshevist party. What then were at that time our "differences of opinion"? In that Leninism saw the guarantee of the development of the proletarian party in the destruction of the "August block," whereas Trotskyism saw in this block the foundation for the creation of a "real" party.

Again, as you see, two opposed lines.

Third. Trotskyism is a mistrust of the leaders of Bolshevism, an attempt to discredit and dethrone them. I know no current in the party which could be compared with Trotskyism in its discrediting of the leaders of Leninism or of the central institutions of the party. What for instance is Comrade Trotsky's "amiable" remark about Lenin worth, when he describes him as a "professional exploiter of every backwardness in the Russian workers' movement?" (See the already quoted letter to Tscheidse.) This is however by no means the most "amiable" remark of all the "amiable" remarks of Comrade Trotsky.

How was it possible that Comrade Trotsky who bore such an unpleasant burden on his back, yet found himself during the October movement in the ranks of the Bolsheviki? This happened because Comrade Trotsky at that time relieved himself (literally relieved) of his burden and hid it in a cupboard. Without this "operation," serious co-operation with Comrade Trotsky would have been impossible. The theory of the "August block," i. e., the theory of unity with the mensheviki had been destroyed and cast away by the revolution, for how could there be any question of unity when there was an armed fight between the Bolsheviki and the mensheviki? Comrade Trotsky had no alternative than to recognize the fact of the usefulness of this theory.

The same unpleasant affair "happened" with the permanent revolution, for none of the Bolsheviki thought of seizing power immediately on the day after the February revolution; Comrade Trotsky should have known that the Bolsheviki, to quote Lenin's words, would not allow him "to play with the seizure of power." Trotsky had no alternative but to acknowledge the policy of the Bolsheviki in the question of the struggle for influence in the Soviets, the struggle for the conquest of the peasantry. As for the third characteristic of Trotskyism (the mistrust of the Bolshevik leaders) it of course had to retire into the background in view of the obvious breakdown of the first two characteristics.

Could Comrade Trotsky in such a situation do anything but hide his burden in a cupboard and go to the Bolsheviki, he who, without even the pretence of a serious group behind him, came to the Bolsheviki as a political bankrupt, robbed of his army? Of course, he could do nothing else!

What lesson is to be learned from this? There is only one lesson: The long co-operation of the Leninists with Comrade Trotsky was only possible thru his completely renouncing his old burden, thru his completely identifying himself with Leninism. Comrade Trotsky writes on the lessons of October but he forgets that in addition to all the other lessons there is one more lesson of October which I have just told you, and that this is of primary importance for Trotskyism. It would do Trotskyism no harm to pay attention to this lesson of October.

But this lesson, as we have seen, has not agreed well with Trotskyism. The point of the matter is that the old burden of Trotskyism, which was hidden away in a cupboard in the days of the October movement, has now been dragged to light in hope of disposing of it, all the more so as the market here has widened. Undoubtedly, we have in the recent literary attacks of Comrade Trotsky an attempt to return to Trotskyism, to "overcome" "Leninism" and to drag forward and apply all the special peculiarities of Trotskyism.

The new Trotskyism is not a simple continuation of the old Trotskyism, it has become somewhat ragged and threadbare, it is in its spirit incomparably milder and in its form more moderate than the old Trotskyism, but without doubt, it retains fundamentally all the peculiarities of the old Trotskyism. The new Trotskyism does not make up its mind to fight openly against Leninism, it prefers to work under the general flag of Leninism and protects itself under the slogan of the interpretation, the improvement of Leninism. This for the reason that it is weak. We cannot regard it as an accident that the rise of the new Trotskyism coincided with the moment of Lenin's death. Under Lenin he would not have dared to take this step.

What Are the Characteristic Features of the New Trotskyism?

1. The question of the permanent revolution. The new Trotskyism does not consider it necessary openly to defend the permanent revolution. It "simply" affirms that the October revolution has fully confirmed the idea of the permanent revolution. From this it draws the following conclusion: The correct and acceptable features of Leninism are those which existed since the war, in the period of the October revolution, and on the other hand the incorrect and unacceptable features are those which existed before the war, before the October revolution. Hence the theory of the Trotskians as to the division of Leninism into two parts: The pre-war Leninism, the "old," "worthless" Leninism with its idea of a dictatorship of the proletariat and the peasantry; and the new post-war Leninism of October, which they intend to adapt to the demands of Trotskyism. Trotskyism needs this theory of the division of Leninism as a first, more or less "acceptable" step which should facilitate the subsequent steps in the fight against Leninism.

But Leninism is no eclectical theory which is cemented together out of various elements and which permits of being divided. Leninism is an indivisible theory, which arose in the year 1903, has experienced three revolutions and now marches forward as the war banner of the world's proletariat. "Bolshevism," says Lenin, "has existed as a current in political life and as a political party, since the year 1903. Only the history of Bolshevism in the whole period of its existence can satisfactorily explain how it could, under the most difficult conditions, work out and preserve the iron discipline which is necessary for the victory of the proletariat" (see Lenin "Infantile Sickness.") Bolshevism and Leninism are essentially one. They are two names for one and the same object. Therefore the theory of the division of Leninism in two parts is a theory of the destruction of Leninism, a theory of a replacement of Leninism by Trotskyism.

We need not waste words in proving that the party cannot reconcile itself to these strange theories.

2. The question of the nature of the party. The old Trotskyism undermined the Bolshevist Party with the aid of the theory (and practice) of unity with the mensheviki. But this theory has so utterly become a scandal, that one does not care to be even reminded of it. Modern Trotskyism has invented a new, less scandalous and almost "democratic" theory of the opposition of the old cadres to the youth of the party, in order to undermine the party.

Trotskyism recognizes no unified and indivisible history of our party. Trotskyism divides the history of our party into two unequal parts, the part before, and the part after October. The part of the history of our party before October is in reality no history, but a "preliminary history," an unimportant or at least only slightly important period of preparation for our party. That part of the history of the party after October is the really genuine history of our party. There "old," "prehistoric," unimportant cadres of our party, here the new, real, "historical" party. It is hardly necessary to point out that this original scheme of the party history is a scheme for the undermining of the unity between the old and the new cadres of our party, a scheme for the destruction of the active Bolshevist Party.

We need not waste any words in proving that the party cannot reconcile itself to this strange theory.

DETROIT PASSES $1,000 MARK IN INSURANCE DRIVE

Detroit, Mich., branches of the Workers Party gave a new spurt Wednesday to the DAILY WORKER'S insurance drive by sending in $124.00, all in one mail. This puts Detroit over the $1,000 line with a total sale of policies to date amounting to $1,104.00.

These branches reporting Wednesday were the Finnish branch, $84.00; the English branch, $25.00; and the Greek branch, $15.00. This brings the Finnish total to $128.00; English, $438.00, and Greek, $33.00.

Among the other branches in Detroit who have not forgotten the fight to keep the DAILY WORKER going, are the following with their remittances: Armenian, $14.00; Bulgarian, $67.00; Dutch Fleming, $14.00; German, $70.00; Hungarian, $88.00; Italian, $4.00; Jewish, $18.00; Lithuanian, $22.00; Roumanian, $37.00; Russian 1, $17.00; Russian 2, $102.00; Russian 3, 50.00; South Slavic, $80.00; Ukrainian, $20.00.

NOT GRADUATE OF HARVARD BUT MILITANT WORKING CLASS FIGHTER

When asked to tell the DAILY WORKER something about himself so that the workers of the 28th ward might know more about their candidate, Nicholas Dozenberg, candidate in that ward endorsed by the Workers Party, said, "I am not a graduate of Harvard University, but, having been a worker all my life, I guess I know what the workers want."

28th WARD CANDIDATE

NICHOLAS DOZENBERG
Communist Aldermanic Candidate.

Comrade Dozenberg was born in Riga, Latvia, November 15, 1882. He came to Boston, Mass., where he lived up to 1921, joining the socialist party in 1906. He was city organizer of that party for three years. He has held a number of offices in the Machinists' Union, which he joined in 1908. He was arrested for activities in the revolutionary labor movement in 1919 and released when he proved that he had been a citizen of the United States since 1911. Dozenberg was chairman of a railroad machine shop in 1924 and represented his fellow workers at the convention of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad system workers. For three years he represented Local 391 of the International Association of Machinests on the Central Labor Union of Boston.

Dozenberg is at present a member of Local 478 of the I. A. of M., having represented that local at the Farmer-labor convention on July 3, 1923, at the amalgamation conference in Chicago, at the council for the protection of foreign-born workers. He is very active in his local union and serves on several committees.

We do not believe the workers of the 28th Ward will worry very much about the fact that Dozenberg does not hold a fancy degree from an eastern university. They will judge him by his record in the labor movement and feel certain that when they vote for him and the platform on which he is running, they vote for their own man, a man who is ready and eager at all times to fight their battles.

ONE LONE COMMUNIST DOES MORE FOR DAILY THAN 501 BRANCHES!

A STRANGER to the American Communist movement, an alien, driven from one mining job to another either because of boss-persecution or poor health,—yet M. Fumich of Mahanoy City, Pa. has the strength and the wisdom to raise $5.00 for the DAILY WORKER insurance fund.

Single-handed, without any organization to spur him on, he has done what members of 501 Workers' Party branches have failed to do. He has bought his policy!

And he knows just why he bought it, too...

"If the workers get our DAILY, then the rest would be easy," he writes the DAILY WORKER. "It's the best paper printed in the English language. Any one that reads it knows that, looking at it from a class-conscious point of view.

"At the present time, going from one community to another, one could propagate and carry on the fight, even if the workers aren't class-conscious yet. The field is wide. A good many of us have been studying how to get subscribers to the DAILY WORKER. This is the next thing I am going to do."

First, the, he did his part to make certain that there would be a DAILY WORKER to get subscribers for! And he even regretted that he couldn't get his policy sooner...

"Why didn't I send this $5.00 sooner?" he writes, "Because I had no money and I had to look for some place where I could exist. Now that I have changed communities, it will take some time before I can put my energies to work.

"Believe me, comrades, it's a hard task when you get among strange people and they know it's right—what you talk about,—but how much support will they give you until we educate them to Communist ideals, and get them organized?

"I have found from practical experience that one has to go slow before one gets influence over the masses in a community where there is no Workers Party to carry on propaganda.

"At first, when I came here to Pennsylvania from Canada, I was a stranger and alien. So that's my drawback. I had to leave the last place because of danger to my health. And it's been only myself to do all the fighting against a gang of J. L. Lewis' supporters, coal corporation and mine bosses.

"The last place that I lived in, Moon Run, Pa., soft coal mines, that's everything that I find—prominent crooks of the organization, and all the rest of the bureaucrats. You will find out in any camp you go to, what kind the officers are.

"And the members are always complaining, just complaining. They are not class-conscious. If they were, they would take action and get organized."

TONIGHT MILWAUKEE WORKERS PARTY AND SOCIALIST DEBATE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 4.—Comrade G. S. Shklar, city secretary of the Workers Party, will debate Leo Wolfson, Milwaukee leader of the socialist party, tomorrow evening on the subject: "Results of the last Presidential Elections." This debate will be held at the Labor Lyceum, corner 8th and Garfield Ave., under the auspices of the Freiheit branch of the Workmen's Circle No. 166. The role of all political parties in the last presidential elections is a subject of unusual educational value and this debate should be attended by every worker in Milwaukee. Don't miss it and bring along a worker.

Party Branch in N. Y. Is to Have Big Dance

A big Workers Party affair will take place in New York City, Saturday evening, Mar. 21, the Spring Festival and Dance of the Harlem English branch, at the Harlem Casino, Lenox Ave. and 116th street.

The undertaking is a big one, the risk is great, the expenses are high, but it is expected that the affair will turn out a success in every way, judging from the support given to the Harlem branch in all previous affairs. No expense is being spared in making the affair enjoyable. The hall is a splendid one, the music will be of the finest, so that the dance given by the Harlem English branch will be a memorable one in the annals of this branch which is one of the largest Workers Party branches in the country.

Chicago Russians in Workers Party Aid Communist Novy Mir

At the last meeting of the Russian branch, Workers Party of Chicago, it was decided to greet the reorganization of the Novy Mir, Russian Communist daily, and promised the paper moral and material support. The branch decided to send at once $134 to aid the paper. The group of Novy Mir correspondents were ordered to meet and reorganize the work for the Chicago section in the paper. Five delegates were elected to the district conference of the Russian section, Workers Party. No branch meeting will be held tonight, Thursday, Feb. 5, on account of the movie "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" being shown.

The next meeting of the branch will be held Thursday, Feb. 12, at 8 p. m., at the Soviet School, 1902 W. Division street.

LYNN, MASS., SHOE WORKERS BACK T. U. E. L.

Adopt Plan for Unity and Struggle

By M. SHARAP.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

LYNN, Mass.—A mass meeting of shoe workers was held here under the auspices of the Trade Union Educational League. Joseph Manley, eastern district organizer of the league, was the principle speaker. The subject was, "Shall the Lynn shoe workers join the Boot and Shoe Union?"

As soon as the Lynn press was informed that a meeting of that nature would take place, they started attacking us in the form of front page headlines, cartoons, and with leading editorials, telling the shoe workers that the I. W. W. had come to Lynn to destroy the city.

Bosses' Press Discovers Revolution.

This kind of bunk is not new in Lynn. The secretary of the Progressive Shoe and Leather committee of Lynn, however, sent in a written statement to the press, telling the Lynn shoe workers the real purpose of the meeting.

The newspapers, not being able to scare the workers by linking us up with the I. W. W. started a new campaign against the "reds," charging that Moscow was financing this group in order to overthrow the capitalist system.

New Master—New Mind.

They exhumed a man by the name of Jewett, who at the time of the formation of the Amalgamated, spoke before the shoe workers and found no name too violent to use against the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. The Boot and Shoe Workers' Union hasn't changed one iota; yet this very same man comes forward and urges the shoe workers to indentify themselves with the only "legitimate and universally (boss) recognized" shoe workers' "union."

Another letter from the secretary of the local, which initiated the referendum for the Boot and Shoe, asks "How can they explain their position in using their influence in inducing the Amalgamated locals in Brooklyn, N. Y., to secede and affiliate with the Shoe Workers' Protective Union?"

Traitors Hard Up For Excuses.

He further says, "Let the Lynn representatives of this league explain his purpose in attacking the general officials of the Amalgamated and the organization thru the columns of a Chicago paper (meaning the DAILY WORKER), charging it to be a manufacturers' union, which had sold out the Lynn shoe workers."

In reply, the representative of the T. U. E. L. admits that the league has influence in the New York local unions, but that the league was and is now opposed to the action taken by those local unions in seceding from the Amalgamated and joining the "Protective."

Former Officials to Blame.

These locals seceded after their committee came back from Lynn, where they witnessed the mess the former general officials of the Amalgamated led them into.

Secondly, we never accused the officials of the Amalgamated of selling out the shoe workers to the manufacturers. We severely criticized the former officials of the Amalgamated for sending men to a factory where a strike was taking place, and we will at all times criticize such misdoings in our union.

The secretary of the local initiating this referendum is throwing mud at all those opposed to his policy of merging us with the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, a reactionary organization that does not even have the initiative, referendum, and recall laws in their constitution. Yet the Amalgamated, which this busybody is trying to destroy, despite its faults, has these clauses.

Regardless of the position taken by the newspapers and the labor fakers, who have called upon the Lynn shoe workers to "smash the reds," the meeting was an overwhelming success, and is now the talk of the city.

Manley Has a Few Questions.

Manley asked, "Why is it that the B. & S. is coming to Lynn, where the shoe workers were once 100 per cent organized, telling you that they will organize the open shops that have gotten out of union control?"

"Why don't they go organizing the places where there is no union at all, and also organize the places where they have jurisdiction?"

"How can the B. & S. tell you that they will stabilise prices at a time when the policy of the B. & S. is to take in shops under their stamp, and assure the bosses of no interference with prices and conditions for six months, and then refer to arbitration?" The shoe workers are fully aware what arbitration means to them.

Down With Collaborationist Unions.

"The B. & S., if it comes to Lynn, will lower wages for two reasons; first, to show their class collaboration with the bosses, and, second, to show the open shops that they won't lose anything by taking the fake union stamp."

The worker, who is to pay the freight, is to drop quarters in the meter and keep his mouth shut, or else be put in local "zero."

The meeting was a success and adopted the following fighting program:

Organizational Proposals.

1. Raise slogan of one union in shoe and leather industry thru amalgamation of existing organizations. To this end the following measures are proposed:

a. A strong movement to consolidate independent unions in amalgamation convention to be called as soon as possible.

b. A move to amalgamate the independent unions with the Boot & Shoe on the basis of the following demands, which will turn the Boot & Shoe from a company into a trade union.

Abolition of local "0" and restoration of right of minorities to express opinions.

Use of Boot & Shoe union label to be governed by local councils and to be given only to closed shops.

Abolition of company collaboration in dues collection.

Establishment of bonafide grievance committees.

Establishment of rank and file control of the Boot & Shoe locally and nationally thru democratization of local union, local councils and national conventions.

Officials to be elected by the rank and file.

2. Pending the accomplishment of amalgamation, there shall be united front movements by the unions upon the policies and issues confronting the shoe and leather workers.

Policies.

1. Militant struggle against wage cuts and for increases in wages.
2. Demand relief for unemployed, to be paid by manufacturers.
3. General drive to organize all the workers in the shoe and leather industry.
4. Abolition of class collaboration in the industrial and political fields, and development of a policy of class struggle.
5. Abolition of state arbitration boards.
6. Abolition of child labor in the shoe industry, all children of the workers during school age up to 18 years to be maintained by the government.
7. Active propagation of shop committee system in the shoe industry.
8. Establishment of eight-hour day and 44-hour week.
9. Militant exposure of all labor fakirs in shoe and leather unions.
10. Struggle against the use of injunctions in strikes, on the basis of mass violation of such injunctions.
11. Demand that all the unions in the shoe and leather industry endorse the Red International Labor Union plan for unity of the world trade union movement.
12. Demand for the release of Sacco and Vanzetti and all other class war prisoners.

AVERAGE WAGE $25 A WEEK FOR INDUSTRIAL WORKERS IN U. S., 1,500,000 ALWAYS JOBLESS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The December wage report of the U. S. department of labor makes it possible to close labor's books for 1924. It reveals the country once again as a $25 a week nation, paying its 8,240,000 factory workers an average of $1,300 annually for carrying on the manufacturing industry.

The total wages paid by manufacturers approximated $10,728,000,000. When all the records of the year have been compiled it will be found that the manufacturers sold this work for about two and a half times what they paid in wages.

The number employed, total wages and average wages from month to month were approximately:

1924	No. Employed	Payroll	Av. Wage Per Month
January	8,660,000	$ 944,000,000	$ 109
February	8,760,000	930,000,000	105
March	8,780,000	1,003,000,000	114
April	8,585,000	979,000,000	114
May	8,220,000	930,000,000	113
June	7,900,000	824,000,000	106
July	7,780,000	800,000,000	103
August	7,800,000	830,000,000	106
September	7,965,000	835,000,000	104
October	8,100,000	923,000,000	114
November	8,090,000	810,000,000	100
December	8,250,000	920,000,000	111
Year	8,240,333	$10,728,000,000	$1,300

The figures show that a full million workers on the payrolls in March had been laid off by July and that the total wages going to the support of these workers and their families had fallen off over $200,000,000.

How the general level of factory employment has declined is apparent on comparison with a total of 9,220,000 on the payrolls in July, 1923, and 10,810,000 in June, 1920.

The greatest gains in employment and earnings at the end of the year developed in the textile and the iron and steel industries. Textile employment increased 3.7 per cent and wages 5.9 per cent, while in the iron and steel industry the increases were 3.4 per cent and 7.9 per cent.

In spite of the gain industry was still operating with only 81 per cent of a normal full force and the workers employed were averaging 92 per cent of full time making the rate of production more than 25 per cent short of normal capacity. Normal production in this country is now hardly more than theoretical. The purchasing power of the workers has been kept down to such an extent that a new normal with a million and a half idle and a third of the remainder on part time may have to be established.

N. Y. CENTRAL IS DOING SOME MORE LAND GRABBING

Big Railroad Parading as Philanthropist

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The New York Central railroad, which has been gobbling up any New York streets it needs, for the last seventy years, has prepared another plan by which it can make more business and money for itself.

This time the company makes believe it is greatly generous in giving the city a highway for automobiles and freight on the west side, where its locomotives and trains have been killing and maiming people so often and brutally that the term "Death Avenue," has been applied for years to Eleventh avenue, where the company does its atrocious work.

Borough President Miller of Manhattan, has helped work out this scheme with the railroad company and will help it get further control of New York streets and valuable concessions it needs.

Something in "Exchange."

"In exchange" is the way Miller terms it in stating what the Vanderbilt road wants for giving the city a highway. All they want are grants and concessions worth millions and millions of dollars, and if the scheme goes thru the company may be able at last to get rid of the bother it has had for half a century trying to fight off the attempts of the city to get back rights and lands, presented to it by wily politicians and officials feathering their nests all that time. What the railroad wants "in exchange" is stated thus:

"Grants of lands in connection with its new terminal yards at Spring street, grants of lands and easements in connection with increased facilities in its Thirtieth street, Sixtieth street and Manhattanville yards; overhead easements for its elevated freight railway and subsurface easements for its duct lines to convey electricity to its roads and yards."

Enthusiastic About Values.

President Miller tries to point out how valuable this plan would be to the city, but the whole scheme is to help the N. Y. Central and business. He says 84 blocks of main traffic arteries will be restored, 106 grade crossings eliminated and the congestion of automobile traffic enormously relieved.

These 106 grade crossings have been the chief cause of "Death Avenue" getting its name and there has hardly been a corporation counsel in New York City who hasn't been forced to try to get something done about these frightful places, or who hasn't been foiled by the N. Y. Central and politicians in trying to obtain some settlement for all the grabbed streets and profitable points of vantage the road has been permitted to steal from time to time, concessions worth millions.

Miller states in a report on the matter to the board of estimate, in which he asks for a public hearing on the plan:

"For seventy-seven years the Hudson River Railroad company has operated a steam surface railroad on west side streets. The dangerous condition ensuing and the deaths resulting from this operation were apparent from the start. For thirty years state legislatures, city officials, commissions, associations and many others have endeavored to abolish the tracks on 'Death Avenue.' In addition the presence of the tracks and their noisy, unsightly operation casts a blight upon the west side of the city, and has greatly retarded the development of one of the most accessible districts in Manhattan, adjoining its most valuable waterfront."

"Public Be Damned!" Policy.

William H. Vanderbilt, who was the first of that family to develop the N. R. Central into one of the chief stealing institutions of the country, is that member of this bourgeois set of capitalists who proclaimed the well-known capitalistic doctrine of "The public be damned!"

The family and the New York Central has struck to this policy ever and always. They always find politicians to help them, too.

Does Your Branch Lose New Members?

EVERY branch has had this experience. At every meeting new members are entered and they are not immediately put into party harness. Even the best branch executive committee can't always find a committee job or other work to absorb the energy of the new comrade, to make him part of the branch by virtue of activity, to give him action that will lead to a better understanding of the work and the principles of our party.

The new comrade under such circumstances begins to miss meetings, then finally disappears and no number of notices from the secretary, nor promises of great discussion will bring him back. The party has lost him. And it is not always true that with training such material would have failed to make a good Communist.

It is simply a lack of understanding; a lack of theoretical knowledge of the principles and tactics of our party; a lack of activity—the cement that holds the new addition to our ranks.

Every branch must have the same experience and thousands of workers attracted to our party are lost without ever really having become members. The day our party does as the Communist Party of Russia, we will have a solution for this problem. Make every member joining a nucleus or English branch of the party a subscriber to the DAILY WORKER and the stragglers from our ranks will diminish. Make this a condition of membership in our party and our losses become smaller.

For in this problem the DAILY WORKER plays no small role. Day after day it reaches with the best expression of Communist theory and tactics the new comrade in our ranks. It gives him the wealth of information on the local, national and world battlefields of labor; every angle of the class struggle is his—thru the DAILY WORKER.

It does not mean that the official organ of our party will prevent stragglers from joining our ranks—but it will surely lessen the number. It will give the new comrades theory, tactics, interest in activity. The DAILY WORKER will help keep the new member in your branch.

Graft Is Getting Monotonous!

We quote T. J. O'Flaherty:

> Then we have another tale of graft, with a Boccacian touch, in the revelations of the fascinating Mrs. Scott, wife of a Michigan congressman. Army officers and gambling figured in her testimony. A burned hole in her kimono was what caused her husband to let the public in on a little diversion. The burnt hole was caused by the lighted end of a cigarette. An army officer was at the other end of it. Graft, illegal transportation of liquor, drunken prohibition officers—this is the tale unfolded by witnesses to life in Washington. Graft is the order of the day. It is getting monotonous. . . .

The keen shafts of satire and wit that have made the authors' column "As We See It" in the DAILY WORKER receive nation-wide attention, are much in evidence in his article "The Fine Art of Grafting" in the February issue of The Workers Monthly.

The New German Crisis

While the German workers and their families were starving and striking against the occupation of the Ruhr, the German government, with social-democratic ministers, paid the industrial barons—the real rulers of Germany—$162,500,000.

Stinnes, Thyssen, and other multi-millionaires received this huge sum from the treasury of the German "republic" to reimburse them for losses sustained in the Ruhr. They had this gold in their strong boxes at the time when the police and military were shooting and jailing workers for strikes and demonstrations against the high cost of food. 8,000 members of the German Communist Party are in prisons and concentration camps because they took the lead in the struggle.

This last infamy of the social-democracy should convince the most apathetic German worker that further support of this gang of traitorous leeches is in itself treason to the working class.

The exposure of the German government in this theft of bread from the hungry mouths of millions of men, women and children, has brought on another crisis which adds to the rapidly increasing instability of German capitalism. We can trust the German Communist Party to acquaint the German workers with the fact that in Soviet Russia, which the German rulers hate, such crimes as these are punished with death.

The exposure of the close financial connection between the great capitalist groups and the German government reads much like our own Teapot Dome scandal and shows that no capitalist nation has a monopoly of graft and corruption—all are alike in their drive for the wealth extracted from the flesh and blood of the working class.

We believe that nemesis treads close on the heels of the German rulers. They have bought and sold the lives of the German workers a dozen times since the Hindenburg line broke and now crisis succeeds crisis. The German workers were fooled into endorsing the Dawes plan by promises of peace and prosperity, but the allied troops are still in Germany and prosperity still does not show above the horizon. The latest exposure, just as the betrayal in the last elections, will send thousands of workers into the Communist Party and immensely increase the army of its sympathizers in the industrial centers.

Capitalism in Germany is the best organizer the Communist Party has and the social-democratic traitors can no longer pose as saviors of the working class. Their connection with the capitalist robbers is too easily seen.

Postwar Germany exemplifies the Communist analysis of the disrupting processes at work in capitalist society—economic disintegration, chronic crisis, the weakening of the grip of capitalism on the mass mind, the crystallization of the revolutionary forces headed by the Communist Party, revolutionary struggles and—the dictatorship of the working class.

Making Revolutionary History

Who is fighting the battles of the working class against treason and reaction in the American labor movement? Who is taking the blows of tools of capitalism in the unions and organizing the rank and file by precept and example for action against the bosses and the capitalist government that is their instrument?

The answer is found in the story of the struggles in the labor movements of Detroit, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Seattle and other centers, in the story of the struggles in the unions of coal miners, machinists, needle workers, carpenters, steel workers, railway workers, where the Communists and their program are the pivot around which the battle rages.

The Trade Union Educational League page in the DAILY WORKER gives the bare facts of these struggles, but it is a record of achievement against big odds in a labor movement soaked in the belief that workers and robbers of the workers can live in peace. In a nation where capitalism has still resources untouched with which to wage war on the working class, the Communist program, as proved by the record in black and white, gains supporters every day and is the fighting issue around which the militant workers rally.

We are witnessing now the crystallization of the forces in the American labor movement that alone are capable of building unions that will be weapons in the class struggle and as a record of this process, day by day, the Trade Union Educational League page is history-hot with the fierce breath of the battle.

In the years to come it will be a record of the rise of the American revolutionary movement in the ranks of the organized workers—the spot where revolutionary activity registers its best results.

Moscow Lawyers' Manifesto

We publish what in our opinion is one of the most remarkable documents ever circulated. Certainly it is one of the most remarkable ever given publicity in the United States of America.

It is an appeal for the defense of revolutionists issued by a union of lawyers—the Bar Association of Moscow, Russia, and is as follows:

TO THE LAWYERS ALL OVER THE WORLD!

Dear Comrades: All the "civilized" world is drowned in a flood of White Terror. Never before, during the existence of righteous government and the actual system of justice was law so openly neglected and trodden.

The ruling capitalist classes in their struggle with the revolutionaries make of justice a blind weapon of bloody murder, of law—a sheet of paper they tear to pieces and tread on.

The jails are overfilled, the bloody work of hangmen does not cease, dreadful ordeals and most refined tortures are now the commonest methods of punishment as in the cruel epoch of the middle ages.

Revolutionists are shot for a rough word to the court of justice, they are slowly killed by means of longlasting penal servitude—for free speech (cases of C. Tomp in Esthonia, Feknenbach and Toller in Germany).

Innocent men are sentenced to death (Montejo, Sanchez and others in Spain, Sacco and Vanzetti in U. S. A.), the prisoners are tortured to death in jails (Poland, Hungary), they are killed on the slightest occasion (Bulgaria).

In Esthonia were shot about 300, among them children 12 years of age. Among others was executed Doctor Poliakoff for medical aid to revolutionists.

The government of Zankoff in Bulgaria which came to power by means of a military putsch, executed 19 lawyers, who were suspected of giving juridical aid to the rebelling peasants.

In Hungary lawyers sufficiently courageous to defend the accused in juridical processes were compelled to flee in order to avoid becoming victims of the White Terror.

In spite of this storm of White Terror, the duty of the lawyers all over the world is to defend its victims.

Don't allow the revival of the bloody jails and cruel courts of the middle ages, don't let justice be made a comedy to conceal open murder, don't let cruel violence and illimited despotism triumph.

We call you to defend, to protect the White Terror victims, we call upon you to raise your voice against tortures and heinous inhuman murder.

Protest thru press and on platform, defend revolutionists in the bourgeois courts of justice, organize yourselves for giving moral and material aid to the revolutionaries.

The lawyers of all the world must defend the victims of White Terror against the bloody justice of the ruling class.

Presidium of the Organization of Lawyers of Moscow.

This appeal is of special interest to the Workers (Communist) Party at this time because of the pending prosecutions of 32 of its members in the Michigan courts, but we hope that none of our readers are naive enough to believe that we expect large numbers of members of the American Bar Association to volunteer their services in our behalf as a result of this appeal.

Nevertheless, we, in company with revolntionists the world over, are grateful to the Moscow lawyer comrades for the spirit they display. We hope that after the American revolution the legal fraternity in America will show the same spirit, but we are violating no confidence if we say frankly that we have grave doubts of their doing so.

Perhaps there will not be many lawyers left after the revolution here.

Sun Yat Sen

If the news that Doctor Sun Yat Sen is dying is correct and not a "wish-father-to-the-thought" dispatch of capitalist press agencies, the Chinese nationalist independence movement will suffer a serious loss.

Sun Yat Sen heads the Kuomingtang party, the fighting party of the Chinese revolutionists and has given his life for the independence movement. He is a friend of Soviet Russia and it was largely his influence that made possible the Russo-Chinese treaty.

His party is the expression of the most revolutionary group of the Chinese nationalists and it has stood, under his leadership, against all domination by western and Japanese imperialism. His friendship for the working class movement of the Far East was shown last year when the conference of the transport workers of the Far Eastern countries was held in Canton under the protection of his government.

We hope that the news of his losing fight with death is not true, but if it is we extend our condolences to the movement he served so well and so faithfully, confident that it is now of such proportions that it will survive and grow in spite of the passing of Doctor Sun Yat Sen.

We hope he can live to see a China freed from the imperialist bandits and united with Soviet Russia in a powerful union of workers and peasants building a Communist society.

A "Honorable" Court Enjoins a Carpent

CZAR HUTCHESON'S machine in the Detroit section of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners must be in a bad way when it is compelled to call upon the armed forces of the state thru an injunction to prevent one illegally expelled member from participating at meetings of his union.

William Reynolds, vice-president of the Carpenters' District Council in Detroit and president of Local Union No. 2140, was expelled from the union without trial. In fact, the first Reynolds heard about his expulsion was when he was so notified by the general executive board in Indianapolis.

Constitution Violated.

According to the laws of the United Brotherhood, every member is entitled to a fair trial under specified conditions. One of these conditions is that, the defendant has the right to appear before his accusers and defend himself. This or any other condition of the constitution of the brotherhood was not complied with in the railroading of Reynolds. It was even a more high-handed piece of business than the expulsion of the five members of Local No. 181 in Chicago.

The rank and file in Detroit are supporting Reynolds in his fight for justice under the laws of the Carpenters' Union. Reynolds has refused to consider his expulsion as legal and insists on a trial. The members are with him in this fight. When the fakers attempted to have him expelled from the meetings of his union, the members voted that he remain; hence the appeal to the courts for an injunction restraining Reynolds from attending his union meetings.

Scrap of Paper.

This scrap of paper issued by the capitalist court to the capitalist labor lieutenants, will not avail Hutcheson very much. It will serve to shed more light on his character and expose him to the membership.

The document is a unique one and is herewith published for the sake of the record:

STATE OF MICHIGAN
In the Circuit Court for the County of Wayne in Chancery.
To the Circuit Court for the County of Wayne in Chancery:

Wayne County Carpenters' District Council by James W. Sharrack, president, and Harold R. Fish, secretary and James W. Sharrack, individually and Harold R. 1. That the said United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, is an organized national union of the carptenters of America; that Sam Botterill is the authorized representative of said United Brotherhood for the district which embraces the city of Detroit; that the Wayne County Carptenters' District Council is a subsidiary of the said United Brotherhood, and has direct control of the district embracing Wayne county and the city of Detroit; that James W. Sharrack is a member of said United Brotherhood and president of said Wayne County District Council; that Harold R. Fish is a member of said United brotherhood and secretary of the said Wayne County District Council.

2. That William Reynolds, defendant herein, was a member of said United Brotherhood and vice-president of said Wayne County District Council and president of Local Union No. 2140, one of the locals of said United Brotherhood.

The Famous Paragraph.

That the said defendant, William Reynolds, was expelled from membership in the United Brotherhaood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, by the action of the general executive board of the United Brotherhood at the regular quarterly meeting of said board, on Jan. 9, 1925; a copy of which order of expulsion is attached hereto and made a part hereof. That the said defendant, William Reynolds, was expelled from said United Brotherhood for violation of paragraph U. section 42, of the constitution and laws of said United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, which provides:

"U—No member of the United Brotherhood can remain in or become a member of more than one local union, or any other organization of carpenters and joiners, or any mixed union of building tradesmen, under penalty of expulsion."

4. That a copy of said order of expulsion was mailed by the general secretary of said United Brotherhood to the Wayne County District Council and also to Local No. 2140; that the expulsion of the said defendant William Reynolds, from the United Brotherhood and from the District Council and from the Local Union was made effective by the official action of the meeting of the said District Council at Detroit, Michigan, on Jan. 15, 1925, at which time said order was read in open meeting; that a copy of said order was personally served upon said defendant by Harold R. 6. That as president of said Local Union No. 2140, the said defendant, William Reynolds, would have control of disposition of the funds and moneys of said local; that if the said defendant attempts to carry out his threat to continue as president of said local union, he will thereby jeopardize the rights of every member of said local union; that such action would render every member liable to expulsion and would cause the forfeiture of all benefits derived from said membership, including disability to pay death and old age pension, funeral donations and all representation at national councils.

The Tale of Woe.

7. Plaintiffs believe that unless said defendant, William Reynolds, is restrained by an injunction of this honorable court from attendance at any of the meetings of the said United Brotherhood and the said Wayne County Carpenters' District Council and the said Local Union No. 2140, that the plaintiffs herein will suffer irreparable damage, and that these plaintiffs and members of said Local Union No. 2140, will lose membership in said union and will forfeit all the benefits of said membership, as enumerated in paragraph 6, of this bill of complaint.

Solution For Unemployment

To the DAILY WORKER: This letter was refused publication in our local "labor" press:

E. J. Stack, acting president of the Oregon Federation of Labor, recently declared before the Spokane Central Labor Council that: unemployment is one of the gravest problems confronting civilization. As a solution to this grave problem, he recommended the application of the union label principle.

The Union Label

The union label principle is no doubt a desirable one for the workers; but as a solution for unemployment in the here and now, it is of remote utility.

When the Root, Russell, Duncan delegation representing this American "democracy" visited Russia in 1917 they offered to the Russian workers, then engaged in a hand-to-hand struggle with both capitalism and czardom, the union label weapon as a means of emancipation; pointing to their "successes" in the U. S. A.

Would Give Us Day Dreams

The American bourgeois cultivate a notion among their slaves that the percentage of unemployed in "God's country" is less than in Great Britain. This not so.

The Russell Sage report recently published admits that from 10 to 20 per cent of the whole labor force of this country are for weeks and months at a time unemployed—the number varying from one to six millions.

Here in the Northwest there are from sixty to seventy thousand out of employment.

The "4. L." bulletin admits that there is a vast army of "potential labor" or homeguards hibernating in the small towns, waiting for something to turn up."

In Spokane, Seattle and Portland, thousands of loggers and mechanics are bucking the blackboards on the skidroads—eager to work for their board. Unorganized, they are at the mercy of the masters of bread—and believe that nothing can be done, hence they accept a job at any price.

Unemployment Insurance

Let us inculcate in their minds that capitalist, industry and government must support workers, both employed and unemployed; if they are able to collect it. This can be done by agitating and demanding work or full maintenance by national unemployment insurance from a tax on profits.

Make it an issue in the trade union movement. It may not be a revolutionary issue but it is essentially a class demand.

The British workers have achieved state unemployment insurance; thereby preventing disintegration of the trade unions thru competition of the unemployed, as the latter, unlike their American brothers in distress, refuse to take a underpaid job, as long as they can get the same amount of money from the state, and refuse to scab on their unemployed fellow-workers.

Housewives and Insurance Agents.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I would like to say a word in behalf of the "white-collared slaves" of the big life insurance companies, who secure jobs as solicitors under the belief that if they will only hustle for a while they will soon work up a good paying business providing, of course, that they are good hustlers. In this way the company gets its collecting done for almost nothing.

These young men are usually fairly well educated and have a [illegible] of pride and conceit. They [illegible] consider themselves working [illegible] They belong to some imaginary [illegible] class. Perhaps the reason they [illegible] to belong to the middle class [illegible] cause they are about half way [illegible] tween poverty and starvation.

In the 61 weeks that we have [illegible] insured eleven different agents [illegible] collected and on 16 occasions [illegible] assistant superintendent has come [illegible] when he had no agent. In addition [illegible] his 16 calls he has had to go with [illegible] new agent to break him in, which makes the total of 27 trips for the superintendent. One man stuck [illegible] for 14 weeks, thus depriving [illegible] others of some good rich experience. Another stayed six weeks, wore [illegible] shoe soles thru and had no money to get them repaired, from Tuesday [illegible] til Saturday.

I asked a third agent, "Why [illegible] insurance companies change [illegible] often? Is it the inefficient [illegible] small salary?" He said, "[illegible] ary." He gets $14 a week. [illegible] sold more policies he would [illegible] on the dollar. He also said the [illegible] must be married men, as they [illegible] better slaves.

When agents come to our home (which is very often) I usually [illegible] them a chair to rest themselves. Then after a while I asked them: "Are you a working man or do you belong to the middle class?" After some discussion, I close the conversation by handing them our DAILY WORKER, [illegible] Workers Monthly, or other good reading material we have on hand. In this way I think the housewife can spread propaganda and advertise the DAILY WORKER. I hope other housewives will follow my example to help educate the workers on the class struggle.

Who Will Visit This Comrade?

To the DAILY WORKER: [illegible] think it advisable to publish this [illegible] in the DAILY WORKER concerning the confinement of Comrade [illegible] Graham at the Swedish Hospital, [illegible] ter and North California. Except [illegible] the moral aid of only two or [illegible] comrades his belief in a recovery would be nil. Any comrades who [illegible] to bring a parcel along may [illegible] fresh fruit such as apples, oranges, grapefruit, pears, etc. Comrade Graham has been in a cast for 12 [illegible] with a permanent recovery in [illegible] There is no doubt the accumulated moral assistance of more comrades at his bedside would be invaluable [illegible]

Ammunition for the Workers' Arsenal

Distribution of Working Population Into Employer, Salaried and Wage-earning Classes.

Capitalist industry means ever-increasing wage slavery. The tendency is for the working class to include a greater and greater proportion of the whole population, while the fortunate few who reap the profits of industry become ever fewer, and at the same time more fortunate. This tendency, pointed out by Karl Marx nearly three-quarters of a century ago, can be observed in every capitalist country in the world, not excluding the United States. Here are some figures which speak for themselves.

In the years 1910 to 1920—in spite of the fact that American industry expanded tremendously and the wage-earners and salaried employes increased from 24,889,192 to 29,621,297—the number of bosses and individuals self-employed decreased, from 13,175,711 to 11,874,369.

	1920	1910
Total Number of Employers and Self-Employed (all industries)	11,874,369	13,175,711
Extraction of Minerals	17,334	14,287
Manufacturing Industries	582,199	814,974
Transportation	81,488	59,572
Building Trades	90,169	174,422

Domestic and Personal Service	426,686	512,081
Agriculture, etc.	8,251,313	9,457,591
Salaried (supervisory and professional)	3,540,608	2,482,478
Extraction of Minerals	53,922	34,285
Manufacturing Industries	557,363	300,792
Transportation	212,228	169,091
Trade	524,014	396,721
Professional Service	1,237,286	999,251
Domestic and Personal Service	52,736	57,273
Public Service (not elsewhere classified)	801,826	476,347
Agriculture, etc.	101,233	14,345
Wage Earners (manual and clerical)	26,080,689	22,406,714
Extraction of Minerals	1,018,967	916,597
Manufacturing Industries	8,775,543	6,401,436
Transportation	2,962,614	2,664,674
Building Trades	2,397,381	2,475,329
Stationary Engineers	242,096	231,041
Stationary Firemen	143,875	111,248
Trade	1,937,600	1,563,117
Professional Service	148,267	81,666
Domestic and Personal Service	2,902,955	3,185,907
Clerical Workers	2,950,769	1,631,926
Agriculture	2,600,612	3,143,773

From the above tabulation it appears that the total number of wage earners constituted 62.7 per cent of the "gainfully engaged" persons in 1920 and the employer and self-employed group constituted 28.6 per cent. However, if the self-employed should be removed from the category of employers, the number of the latter would be seen to be much smaller.

GENERAL DAWES has come out of his retirement and he herewith makes a statement that is sure to set political tongues wagging for several weeks to come. Hell An' Maria does not want to become the confidante of Silent Cal, because forsooth he might learn things about the president that would feel uncomfortable in the general's stomach. Now, what has the general in mind? Is he going to make a bid for the presidency in 1928? It is announced that the general quit the presidency of the Minute Men of the Constitution, an organization that consists chiefly of Hell an' Maria and his white collar slaves.

PREMIER HERRIOT compromised with the extreme right wing element on the question of the Vatican embassy, by allowing a French diplomatic agent to represent Alsace Lorraine at the papal palace. One of the strongest defenders of the catholics was the renegade Briand. The socialists voted for the compromise. In view of the strength of the right wing elements and the split among the left bloc elements it is not unlikely that Herriot will be kicked out of office shortly. Briand is gunning for the job.

THE Soviet government has allotted more land for Jewish agricultural colonies along the shores of the Black Sea. Under the czar the Jews were persecuted in Russia. They were the victims of pogroms, carried out by the black hundreds, the prototypes of our American kluxers and American legions. Under Soviet rule, the Jewish workers and peasants are enjoying liberty and the privilege of putting their mental and physical energies to work in building up a new social order.

BRITAIN now wants to put France under a Dawes plan! In the meantime French politicians are roundly denouncing the suggestion that they pay the several billions France owes to the United States. This money was loaned to France when the German armies threatened to capture Paris. Wall Street lined up with London and Paris against Germany. The Wall Street government that was so loud in its praise of "gallant France" when it fought the kaiser's gray armies, is now demanding its money back. The war was a strictly business proposition.

IN order to make war more popular with the masses some wise propagandists are suggesting that capital as well as manpower be conscripted in the next war. The Chicago Tribune frankly states that this is impossible and inadvisable. We agree that it is impossible. One of the reasons why we have wars under capitalism is that capitalists make profit out of them. The main reason is, the

THINKS MELLON POWER UNDER AS WELL AS BEHIND CAL'S THRONE

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—When the $150,000,000 public buildings bill, which gives to the secretary of the treasury the control of the federal building program, was on passage in the house, Rep. Kvale, farmer-labor, of Minnesota, protested at the surrender of the right of congress to say what buildings should be constructed.

"I think is generally conceded today that Mr. Andrew Mellon is the power behind the throne," he said; "and if you pass a few more bills of this kind you will make him the power not only behind the throne but underneath and above and at the sides of it, and only in front will you still behold the face of Calvin Coolidge. We might as well abdicate!"

LOCAL CZARISTS SEE 'BARONESS' WRANGEL HERE

Parasites Entertain the White Guardist

At least a dozen former officers of "Baron" Wrangel's white guard counter-revolutionary army, which was whipped and driven out of Soviet Russia by the Russian people, are working in Chicago, plotting counter-revolution, it was learned from "Baroness" Wrangel's party here yesterday.

Mrs. Wrangel, who is in Chicago raising money for her husband's refugee troops in Europe, had given the reporters a short interview, at the Potter Palmer mansion, 1350 Lake Shore Drive, during which she told of the need for money to care for the white guard troops.

"'Baroness' Wrangel cannot see reporters during the remainder of her stay in Chicago," Miss Rossay, who has charge of the arrangements for the ex-Baroness' Chicago visit, told the DAILY WORKER. "She leaves Chicago Saturday morning, to continue her tour to raise funds."

Against Russian Workers

When asked whether Mrs. Wrangel still had hopes of overthrowing the Soviet government by force, her Chicago secretary said, "No, not until the government wears itself out.

"She believes the Soviet government will wear itself out. 'Baron' Wrangel is somewhere in Europe, keeping his exact whereabouts unknown. His troops are scattered, but not disbanded. I learned yesterday that ten officers of 'Baron' Wrangel's army are working here in Chicago."

Czarists Visit Her

These "officers," it is declared, have visited the ex-Baroness, during her stay in Chicago, no doubt to tell her of the propaganda they have been trying to spread in Chicago against the Soviet government. The small group of czarists, who immediately fled Russia when they learned they would have to go to work for their bread, have been giving royalist plays in Chicago for the benefit of the enemies of Soviet Russia.

Among the former officers of the white guard armies who fought against the Workers of Russia, backed by French and English capital, and who are now plotting counter-revolution in Chicago, are "general" Yuseffowich, "colonel" Bragin, "colonel" Lisovoij, and a czarist "officer," who claims to be "duke" Shujskij, but who also is known under another name. These ex-aristocrats are working in the Ford assembling plant, the Crane Manufacturing works, and the McCormick Harvester works, according to Russian workers.

Plot Against Soviets

It was this little group of former Russian aristocrats, who found themselves helpless when they were no longer able to live in luxury by exploiting the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia, who arranged the recent Chicago meeting for McCullough, the former British spy, who is a paid propagandist for the Russian aristocrats. They are also expected to attend the meeting of Raphael Abramovich, another paid enemy of Soviet Russia, who, it is announced, will speak in Chicago under the socialist auspices.

Mrs. Wrangel's secretary said that the ex-Baroness' time in Chicago will be "entirely taken up with society," but admitted that Mrs. Wrangel will continue raising funds for her husbands "sick soldiers."

Mrs. Wrangel told reporters that she is trying to maintain three hospitals for her husband's troops. One is in Serbia, and two in Bulgaria she said.

At the time of the first intervention in Russia by the capitalist countries, the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia forced the United States government to withdraw its troops from Archangel. On the French fleet in the Black Sea, the sailors raised the Red flag, and refused to fight the workers of Russia.

The allies, in league with the czarists, were forced to retreat. Wrangel's army fled to Constantinople, and from there scattered thru the Balkan states. Since that time Wrangel's troop have fought against the workers, led by the Communists and side by side with the fascisti and imperialist troops in the Balkan states.

SECOND BIG SHIPMENT OF ANTI-DIPHTHERIA SERUM OFF FOR NOME

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 4.—Destined for diphtheria stricken Nome, a shipment of 1,000,000 units of antitoxin was placed aboard the steamship, Admiral Watson, which sailed today for Seward. This is the second huge shipment of serum dispatched to Nome in the last four days by Dr. G. M. Magruder, in charge of public health service here.

The first consignment, sent Saturday aboard the steamer, Alameda, was expected to reach Fairbanks Monday, when Roy Darling will attempt to rush a part of it to Nome by airplane.

The rest will be sent overland by dog teams from Nenana, so some will be available in case the airplane trip ends in disaster. All of the antitoxin which went today, is expected to be sent by dog team, as the public health service is dubious of the flight's success.

STATE TROOPS 6 DAYS LATE JOIN RESCUE EFFORT

Strike Would Have Got Quicker Action

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 5.—All efforts to rescue Floyd Collins by means of the tortuous, twisted passage into Sand Cave in a pocket of which he has lain imprisoned by a boulder for six days, were abandoned here today.

Under orders from Gen. H. H. Denhardt, commandant of the military area established at Sand Cave, the tunnel thru which Collins entered was closed and sealed and work or sinking a two foot shaft to the spot where it has been estimated Collins lies, was started immediately.

Militia Takes Charge.

The iron hand of martial law clamped shut over Sand Cave and its immediate vicinity when Brig. Gen. H. H. Denhardt, adjutant general of Kentucky, arrived with staff officers and took charge of the situation.

Guardsmen were posted at strategic points along the cliffs overlooking the cave's entrance and scores of apparently idly curious who for days have roamed at will about the scene, hindering the rescue work and bringing chaos to a situation already tense from nerves strained alomost to snapping point, today met crisp, military challenges.

Rescue Work Organized.

Admission was denied to all except workers and newspapermen and what yesterday had been upwards of 100 at the cave entrance today had dwindled to a scarce dozen. Organized rescue work and maintenance was under way apparently for the first time in the six days in which a man has lain dying in the earth's bowels while those above argued and wrangled about reaching him.

Expected to Live 48 Hours.

The shaft method of rescue has been determined on in a final effort.

It is a question of certain death balanced against the faintest hope of life.

The tunnel method, previously in effect, miners said, meant impossibility of rescue of Collins and most certain death for those who braved the mud-filled passage in an effort to reach him. The shaft method, at the worst, will sacrifice only one man to the lure of the caves.

If Collins has lived this long, the rescuers argue, the chances are the flames will flicker, even tho faintly after another forty-eight hours.

SENATE CUTS APPEALS TO U. S. HIGH COURT TO 'BIG BIZ' CASES

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—By a rollcall vote of 76 to 1—the lone opponent being Heflin of Alabama—the senate passed the Cummins bill further restricting the classes of appeals which may be taken to the U. S. supreme court from lower courts.

Heflin protested that the bill simply deprived ordinary citizens of the right of adequate appeal, and fenced them off from the highest court, leaving that tribunal to handly only the affairs of the biggest business corporations.

FRANCE FEARS CHAMBERLAIN'S BALKAN BLOC

Greek Patriarch May Cause Explosion

PARIS, Feb. 5.—It is not impossible that the expulsion of the Greek patriarch from Constantinople may cause a severe crisis in the Balkans, involving England and France.

The French government is perturbed over a conference recently held between representatives of Bulgaria, Roumania, Jugo-Slavia and Greece at which plans for mutual action against Turkey were discussed.

France and the Balkan Bloc.

It now appears that the recent visit of Chamberlain to the Balkans and the lining up of the small nations had another purpose besides the Anti-Soviet alliance which was announced by the Balkan governments. France now believes that it was an Anti-French as well as an Anti-Soviet bloc.

Britain favors neutralizing Constantinople and placing it under the jurisdiction of the league of nations. This would be equal to turning it over to Britain. Jugo-Slavia and Roumania favor this course. France is against any such move, and warns that an attempt to drive the Turks out of Europe would have disastrous effects on the peace of Europe.

Herriot warned Roumania that an attempt to invade Turkey would leave Bessarabia in a rather delicate position with a Russian army hovering on the border.

LEONARD WOOD SENDS TROOPS TO PUT DOWN REVOLT OF PEASANTS

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 5.—A threatened uprising of tenants against the large landowners has caused Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood to order a company of constabulary troops to the province of Nueva Eelja to intervene on behalf of the landowners.

The constabulary officers charge that "labor organizations" have encouraged tenants to storm rice plantations and confiscate their share of the crops. The landowners were said to have refused to give the men their share, claiming the tenants owed debts contracted the previous season.

U. S. GOVERNMENT "ARBITRATOR" AIDS WAGE CUTS

Breaks Textile Strike for Bosses

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 5.—Federal Conciliator Charles G. Wood is again accused of being the employers' representative against striking workers. Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers' Union, charges that Wood, "after several hours of strenuous work, induced the striking employes of the Maverick Mills to go back to work and accept the wage cut. He represented the employers and succeeded in breaking the strike. We have strongly protested in a letter to the department of labor."

Wood was charged with acting as agent for the Waltham Watch company employers in the recently concluded fight of Waltham workers against wage cuts posted by the company.

Wood's letter to the head of the union, urging that the workers accept the wage cuts was given to the Boston Central Labor Union for investigation and a letter of protest was at that time sent to the department of labor. Formal charges have not been preferred against Wood.

R. I. TEXTILE STRIKE MAY SPREAD TO OTHER MILLS, PAWTUCKET OUT

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Feb. 5.—Greenhalgh Mills employes are striking against wage reductions. Strike vote was taken a week ago, providing that the 400 workers would walk out if the company did not rescind its order.

About 200 employes of the Pawtucket Hosiery Co. are still out on strike after a two weeks' fight against wage cuts. Workers in other mills in the Blackstone valley are meeting and discussing the increasing wage cuts and what method of fighting shall be adopted.

5,000 More Miners Lose Their Jobs

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Feb. 5.—Five thousand miners at Johnston City will be out of employment after Feb. 7, according to announcement today by the Old Ben mine officials that their mine No. 18, would suspend operations on that date.

Officials said they were forced to close down the mine because there was no market for their coal, which they say contains too much fine coal.

GERMAN TEXTILE BOSSES TRY TO CUT WAGES, EXCUSE GIVEN OF "CHEAP AMERICAN LABOR"

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Word from Gera and Greiz cotton manufacturing districts in Germany indicates that German workers may lose their demanded wage increases because of the widespread wage reductions in New England mills.

German textile workers announce that they will fight any attempt of manufacturers to reduce their wages on the excuse that they must meet American competition.

German workers say they will strike if the wage advances agreed upon in December negotiations are not carried out.

RICH GREEK OFFERS FUNDS IF GRECO-TURK WIRKERS WILL FIGHT

ATHENS, Feb. 5.—Popular opinion was being constantly fanned today toward war with Turkey. A movement has been started to raise a volunteer army and many former officers are identifying themselves with it.

One wealthy Greek has issued a bombastic circular, promising he will furnish funds if Greece comes to blows with Turkey over the removal of the ecumenical patriarch from Constantinople.

Premier Michalakoupolos after conferences with the French and British ministers claims it is his wish to avoid war.

Some significance was attached to the announcement at this time by the Serbian minister that Serbia was concluding a military treaty with Greece.

The Turkish reply to the Greek note of protest has not been received. It was reported today that it contains the threat of new expulsions.

Shipping interests are worried over the safety of Greek vessels in the Black Sea. Owners are ordering their ships home and holding up any scheduled sailings for Turkey.

Try to Dodge Demands Of Unemployed Miners With Fake Steel Jobs

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 5.—The breaking up of homes and families or utter starvation by continued unemployment in the mines, are the alternatives for the jobless miners of Indiana. The state industrial board of Indiana can think of no better remedy than to compel the state's 17,000 jobless coal miners to go to Lake county steel mills to get work.

The board, evading the rising demand for unemployment relief from the state and nationalization of the coal mines, has made arrangements with the U. S. steel corporation to persuade miners to leave their homes and families in the mining districts and go to work in the steel mills of Lake county. The board admits, however, that the jobs to be had in the steel mills are too few to absorb many of the jobless miners.

EXPECT VOTE FOR STONE SPITE OF BITTER ATTACK

Accused of Persecuting Montana Senator

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.— A spectacle almost without parallel in the legislative history of the senate was presented today when the acrimonious warfare over the appointment of Attorney General Harlan F. Stone, to the supreme court was carried into the open on the senate floor.

The appointment will be confirmed by a large majority, it is expected, but only after he has been subjected to savage oratorical attacks because of his conduct of the conspiracy case against Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, of Montana.

At the very moment the senate is meeting to consider the appointment, a District of Columbia grand jury also meets a few blocks away to consider evidence designed to re-indict the Montana senator on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government of valuable oil leases. Wheeler's friends, among them Senator Thomas J. Walsh, democrat, of Montana, accused the attorney general of "persecuting" Wheeler.

Fight Humphrey Appointment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.— A bitter fight against confirmation of President Coolidge's selection of former Congressman Humphrey of Seattle, as a member of the federal trade commission is getting under way in the senate.

Humphrey, after leaving the house some eight years ago, became a lobbyist in the capital for shipping companies. He had been on very cordial terms with the big lumber companies of the northwest, according to common report. Harry Daugherty, as attorney general, retained him to handle a case against a lumber combination, but finally dropped him.

The circumstances under which Humphrey left the service of the department of justice in this lumber case are the subject of discussion that is to be probed by the senate committee on interstate commerce, thru a subcommittee comprising Watson of Indiana, and Fess of Ohio, standpat republicans, and Mayfield of Texas, democrat. Chairman Smith and other senators are likewise looking into Humphrey's record, and will discuss it on the floor.

MARSHALLTOWN, IOWA, WILL SOON SEE BOLSHEVIKS

Meeting on Friday, 13th at Labor Hall

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Feb. 6—This is one of the oldest towns in Iowa state but has failed to keep pace with the towns who have coal mines or gypsum rock in their locality. It has grown, but only as the farm lands have developed and to serve their needs. It has something like sixty small factories employing about three thousand workers, and the M. & St. L. R. R. shops about 1,000. They also claim the largest steel furnace plant in the world.

Lots of Sinners.

The population is about 16,000 and they boast of twenty-two churches, many of them massive structures. The visitor is impressed with them and can think of nothing but 40 times 40, the number of churches in the Moscow of the czar. This does not include the salvation army, gospel mission, etc., which are all represented, as are also the various creeds patronized by the Negroes. There surely must be many sinners in Marshalltown.

Bossed and Preached At.

This small town is bossed by three or four men. Their daily newspaper, which they boast is the largest in the country for a city of its size, is owned by one of the richest men in town; he is a "democrat" in politics but a reactionary republican editor! He controls the Lenox Furnace company, the largest employer of labor outside the railroad shops, and is also a big landowner.

During the railroad shopmen's strike the friendly merchants could be counted on one hand. There is a commission form of municipal government here, and the mayor, who is a doctor and colonel in the medical corps, tries to run the city on military lines.

About five years ago they had a packinghouse in Marshalltown. The workers had a strike and they closed the plant for all time.

The townspeople are preached at and bossed but the town seems to get along pretty well just the same. There are comparatively few unemployed.

About 20 Unions in Town.

There are thirteen locals affiliated to the Trades and Labor Assembly which, with the railroad unions, and others, make about twenty locals. There is little or no activity among them to improve conditions or build up membership. There are also a number of women's auxiliaries who help maintain the feeling of comfort by serving cake and coffee at the meetings.

Life in this small town appears like that of the limited circle of the czar's mujiks, allowing for the American dress and personal appearance, and is obvious to the observant visitor.

The Bolsheviks Are Coming.

Into this atmosphere of reaction two organizers for the Workers Party will enter by holding a meeting at the Labor Hall on Friday evening, Feb. 13. An attempt will be made to reach the large number of voters who supported Foster and the Workers Party ticket at the last election in Marshall county.

Attorney General Needs More Money to Fight for Employers

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 5.—Unable to obtain a quorum because practically all delegates had gone home, both houses of the Illinois general assembly held perfunctory sessions today after which adjournment was taken until Tuesday, Feb. 10.

The house committee on appropriations was to meet next week to consider making an appropriation of $50,000 for conduct of the attorney general's office. The measure was introduced when it was discovered the funds depleted and nothing on which to operate until the new appropriations became available July 15.

WANTS MILITARY DICTATORSHIP OVER WORKERS

"War Emergency" Act Aimed at Labor

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 5.—How vicious a so-called "radical" scheme for alleged "conscription of both labor and capital" for war purposes may be, is shown by the provisions of the bill, much touted by the supposed "progressives" of the LaFollette stripe, introduced by Congressman Royal Johnson of South Dakota. Here are some of the provisions of this bill:

May Militarize Strikers

"Be It Enacted, That in the event of a national emergency declared by congress to exist, which in the judgement of the president demands the immediate increase of the military establishment, the president be, and he hereby is, authorized to draft into the service of the United States such members of the unorganized militia as he may deem necessary; provided, that all persons drafted into service between the ages of 21 and 30, or such other limits as the president may fix, shall be drafted without exemption on account of industrial occupations."

That last sentence permits the militarisation of all shops, mines and other industrial establishments, in case of wage demands.

President Dictator Over Wages

The bill proceeds to authorize the president, in case of war or when the president thinks war is imminent, "to determine, proclaim and conscript the material resources, industrial organizations, and services over which government control, is necessary to the successful termination of such emergency," and he may control these resources as may suit his judgment.

Further, he is authorized to take "such steps as may be necessary to stabilize prices of services and of all commodities declared to be essential, whether such services and commodities are required by the government or by the civilian population."

If that means anything, it means that wages may be held down by White House decree, while living prices go up, as was the case during the past war, when the "Food Control Act," instead of restraining profiteers and keeping down living costs, allowed Hoover and his crew of "dollar a year" patriots from the Chicago packing house ring, to fix it so the packers and other profiteers cleaned up immense profits.

ORGANIZED FINKS INFEST RUBBER TOWN OF AKRON

AKRON, O.—A complete contract, the first signed with any company in the bitterly anti-union Akron district has been signed with the Tuscan Tire and Rubber Co., covering wages, hours and conditions.

A Dealer in Rats.

Such complete industrial espionage has been instituted that so far little headway has been made in Akron—this firm signed voluntarily.

Shortly after the unionization of the plant, the manager was offered the help of the Corporation Service Bureau of Cleveland, an industrial spy outfit, in stamping out the union. Having voluntarily signed the union agreement, the manager turned the letter over to the secretary of the Akron Central Labor council.

Parts of the letter follow: "We are prepared to furnish you with skilled rubber workers, who are thoroly trained as investigators, and who are capable of working among your employes for the purpose of getting definite information on this subject for you, and moreover, for the purpose of directly combatting whatever forces may be working against you. There is no means by which organized labor can be so successfully combatted as by the use of proper secret service.

"Entree" in Labor Unions.

"You can readily appreciate that by having a large number of operatives employed in practically all of the different walks of life, that we are naturally a clearing house for information. There is hardly a labor organization of prominence where we do not have an entree."

NEW MORGAN MERGER MAKES RAPID INDUSTRIALIZATION OF THE SOUTH PROSPECT OF IMMEDIATE FUTURE

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 5.—The Morgan banking interests are at work on a gigantic scheme for the industrialization of the south by merging under Morgan's financial control a whole series of corporations of the Birmingham, Georgia, district into a vertical monopoly covering steel, iron ore, coal, chemicals, fertilizers and the electric power of Muscle Shoals. Monopolist capitalism is throwing its financial tentacles around the natural and human resources of the south, ending all remnants of feudal agrarian control and reducing to the common divisor of industrial wage slavery the population, both white and black.

Small Mergers Finally to Be One.

Negotiations now on depict the plan as one of the greatest of mergers, far excelling the combination made by the Morgan financial ring previously in the Van Sweringen (Nickel Plate) railroad merger. The definite plan is withheld by close-lipped bankers, and in its fullest is known only to a few of these. The completion of the combine may take some time, and a series of preliminary small mergers may be expected which will lead eventually to one giant monopoly.

Among the companies mentioned as the first ones to enter into the new combine, or into the first series of combines, are the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company, the Woodward Iron company, the Gulf States Steel company, the International Agricultural Chemical corporation and the Tennessee Chemical and Copper company.

A Four Billion Dollar Trust.

These are to be finally consolidated with the United States Steel corporation into the most gigantic monopoly of America. The U. S. Steel corporation is a two billion dollar concern, and with the new combine to be finally effected, a four billion dollar corporation will result in the most powerful combination in the world.

All these mergers and the supermerger are to be based upon another basic monopoly of electric power from Muscle Shoals. Electricity is to play an increasingly important role in steel manufacture, and the Birmingham district, the heart of the new combination, could easily be served with power by transmission lines from Muscle Shoals, the power itself, of course, being furnished by a subsidiary part of the new corporation.

The Birmingham District.

The Birmingham district has been selected as the field for immediate development, banking interests having long coveted its natural resources as a steel manufacturing center, particularly for developing an enlarged export trade.

Birmingham has the advantage over the Pittsburgh district of great deposits of raw materials in its own area, and also proximity to the seaboard, with water transport to the seaboard by way of Warrior river. Then cheap water haulage is possible via the Panama Canal to the west coast of both North and South America and to the far east, with cheap water transport possible to all foreign markets. Not the least item is the resource of man power in the fairly plentiful supply of cheap unorganized labor of the extreme south.

Combines' Stock Going Up.

That the great banking interests of Morgan are actively working on the project is apparent in the stock movement during recent days of the securities of the companies mentioned. Tremendous buying is quietly going on in all of them, and some have advanced in spectacular fashion.

Tuesday, the common stock of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company jumped up on the New York exchange to 96, or 9½ points from Saturday and 11 from last week's lowest point. Common stock of the Woodward Iron company is up 10 points from last week. Gulf States Steel is up 5⅝ points and the others also have been boosted.

HERRIOT FORCES DIVIDED OVER VATICAN ISSUE

Premier's Compromise Splits Liberals

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Herriot's compromise on the quarrel with the Vatican drove another wedge into the left bloc which presages the early fall of the present government. The French state and the Holy See, but Vatican was suppressed, thus officially severing the final tie between the Franch state and the Holy see, but by agreeing to maintain a charge d'affaires at the Vatican to look after the affairs of Alsace-Loraine, the left elements fear that the suppression of the embassy means nothing but a gesture.

Radical Socialists

Herriot announced that he would ask a credit of 58,000 francs to maintain the charge d'affaires and some members of the radical socialist party to which the premier belongs refused to vote this credit.

The catholic church is organizing the opposition of the backward peasantry in Brittany against the government. The military leader of the catholics is General de Castelnau, who is also the leader of the fascisti.

HOOSIER SOLONS APPROVE BILL AIMED AT POPE

Would Prohibit Teaching in Religious Garb

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 5.—The anti-catholic forces in the house showed surprising strength today when that body adopted a minority report indorsing the bill prohibiting the wearing of distinctive religious garb by teachers in the public schools. The motion favorable to the bill was passed 64 to 27.

The measure, as sponsored by Representative Clyde F. Cooper, republican, Terre Haute, has been generally considered an anti-catholic bill. It would prevent teachers wearing religious garments which would impress upon the pupils the religion of the wearer. The bill was submitted following withdrawal of a former measure in which wearing of religious symbols by instructors also was barred.

New Haven Comrades Hold Demonstration For Lenin Memorial

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—The New Haven Lenin memorial meeting Sunday, Feb. 1, was a splendid tribute to the memory of our leader, Nicolai Lenin. Hermansohn's Hall was packed as at no party meeting before. Over 450 workers attended.

Enthusiasm ran high, as the achievements of the Russian revolution were recounted. The speech by Alexander Chramov, in Russian, was well received on his first appearance in New Haven at a meeting of this kind.

The speaker in English was the district organizer, William Simons, who after reviewing Lenin's life, mentioned the recently published social-democratic treaty with Horthy as a sign of that treacherous collaboration with the bourgeoisie which was fought by Lenin all his life. He reviewed the accomplishments of the party during the last year, and made a plea to all class conscious workers to join the party.

The program arranged was the best of its kind. Comrade Sophie Hubelbank, of the Junior group of the Young Workers League, added lustre to the group by her recitation, "To Labor." The Maennerchor gave two numbers. The Schiffrin sisters gave violin and singing selections, which were admired by all.

The Jewish branch of the socialist party deliberately planned an entertainment for that night, but the wonderful attendance at the Lenin meeting and the few present at theirs, shows the spirit of the Jewish worker in New Haven.

SHERIFF LEAVES IN MOVE TO END KLAN KILLINGS

Agrees to Suspend Exercise of Power

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 5.—Sheriff George Galligan, of Williamson county, agreed to emporarily quit his office and the county at a conference today between himself and Governor Small. Galligan has not resigned, but agreed to a temporary suspension of the exercise of his power.

Galligan's decision was made during a discussion here between the two rival factions in an effort to bring peace and order to "bloody Williamson county" where a total of 14 lives have been snuffed out in shootings growing out of ku klux klan raids.

Galligan agreed to turn over his office to Deputy Sheriff Randall G. Parks, giving Parks full and absolute control without interference. He further agreed to revoke all special deputy sheriffs' warrants outstanding except the regular deputies authorized by the county board of supervisors and himself to leave the county immediately and remain away until such a time that the governor sees fit to permit his return.

To Stop Gun Toting.

A commission representing the klan agreed to cancellation of permission to carry weapons. Hundreds had been armed by permission of justices of the peace merely on application and upon the payment of a stipulated fee.

The klan spokesman also agreed to abandon the practice of conducting raids, leaving such operation entirely within the hands of properly constituted authorities.

After announcement had been made at Harrisburg, Ill., that Mrs. S. Glenn Young of Herrin, widow of the slain klan raider, was to appear at a local theater Friday afternoon and deliver a lecture, members of the opposing faction here announced they would have Mrs. Ora Thomas, widow of Deputy Sheriff Thomas, speak a few days later.

As the news spread, citizens began to express disapproval of either woman speaking here. Mayor Patterson and Sheriff Small went to leaders of both factions and ordered both addresses cancelled, which was done.

The agreement in which Galligan consented to "step aside" was signed by himself, Governor Len Small, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, Adjutant General Carlos Black, and members of the Williamson county board of supervisors. They also signed the agreement for the klansmen.

BREAD COST AND UNEMPLOYMENT MOUNT IN ITALY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Italy, Feb. 5.—There were 130,445 unemployed workers thruout Italy on Jan. 1, 1925, the official statistics of the fascisti show. The fascisti figures show that at the end of November, 185,785 persons were out of work.

The price of bread here has increased two lire 10 centimes per 2.20 pounds. Wheat has gone up from 185 lire per 220.46 pounds to 200 lire, and is still going up in price.

The re-opening of the chamber of deputies has been postponed. At first it was announced that the chamber would be opened about Feb. 10, but now the fascisti press announces that the chamber will not open before the end of February.

One of the first bills on which there will be heated discussion is expected to be the press control bill. The senate has passed several amendments to the Mussolini electoral bill.

The split between the Piedmont fascisti and the rest of the fascist party has widened. Four fascist deputies with large local followings have resigned from the fascisti party.

At a meeting in Alexandria these fascisti and their followers expressed open dissent with the aims of the directorate of the fascist party, and declared their intention of establishing a separate fascist organization.

The leaders of the withdrawing movement are Deputies Torre, Boido, Rebora, and Gemelli. All but Gamelli resigned from the fascist party. Gamelli also resigned from the chamber of deputies.

Russian Crops on Increase.

MOSCOW, Feb. 5. — No anxiety should be felt with regard to the condition of the winter crops in Russia at the present juncture, was stated by Mr. Latzis, member of the collegium of people's commissariat of agriculture.

The total area sown under these crops exceeds last year's by about 4.8 per cent, while in some places, in Ukraine, for instance, the area is more than 5.5 per cent larger than in 1923-24. The weather conditions up till now have on the whole been quite favorable; it has not been excessively cold, and there has been plenty of snow to cover the winter sowings.

Soviet Russia Was Right As Usual; the Geneva Opium Meet Blows Up

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, the profiteers are hanging crepe on the Opium Conference that has been meeting at Geneva, Switzerland. This development comes as predicted. Great Britain, at the head of the "Opium Block," is successful in opposing any interference with this lucrative business, that also helps her subject hundreds of millions of peoples, in Egypt, India, China and other lands to her imperialist will.

* * * *

Soviet Russia refused to participate in the Geneva opium debate. Its spokesmen months ago declared that no sincere measures would be taken against the drug traffic. It was shown that nothing would be done by nations whose commercial and financial interests are largely bound up in the trade. The verdict of Soviet Rule against the Opium Conference was summed up in these words:

> "The drug conference cannot—to judge by the work of its preparatory committee—yield positive results of any kind whatsoever.
> "The government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has come to the conclusion that in connection with the task undertaken of fighting the spread of opium and other drugs, the various states are striving to satisfy their own commercial interests and gain material benefits. Under such circumstances, Soviet Russia considers that its participation in these committees or conferences would be useless."

* * * *

Members of the American delegation at Geneva, notably Representative Stephen G. Porter, have paraded as enemies of opium. But their position may be regarded as anti-British rather than anti-opium.

The American program "to reduce production of opium to strictly medical and scientific needs" won the support of the anti-British delegates from China and Egypt. But little was said about American ambitions to use this support for the advancement of the imperialist ambitions of the United States in the orient. That will come later.

Four other nations were willing to accept the American program in "principle"; but as usual with the nullifying reservations. The Greeks wanted to consult Athens. Jugo-Slavia has a lucrative traffic of her own and wants it protected. Persia wants to be bought off, by whom is not clearly seen. Turkey also wants some renumeration for changing from the planting of poppies, from which opium is secured, to other crops like sugar beats. India comes out with a flat-footed rejection of the American program on the ground of "unwarranted interference with domestic problems." Her poppy fields must not be touched.

* * * *

To be sure, it is not the workers and farmers of these different nations that speak. It is their respective ruling classes, that are as much interested in keeping the masses in leash to their rule, as British imperialism is anxious to lord it over all.

The British plan to meet the opium problem is characteristic of the big business outlook that rules in the foreign office in London. The plan would create a monopoly for drug-producing countries, including certain British dominions and colonies, which would be able to raise prices at their own discretion. This sounds like the business ethics of the American steel or oil trusts.

* * * *

Not until the profit incentive is taken out of the opium traffic, as Soviet Russia points out, will it be possible to solve the world drug problem. This urge will not disappear until the social system—capitalism—that breeds it, has been overthrown. When International Soviet Rule has been established, then it will be possible to hold the first effective Anti-Drug World Conference. In the meantime Soviet Russia will continue to point the way.

DOHENY'S OILY DOLLARS SMOOTH WAY IN MEXICO

Petroleum King Extols President Calles

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5.—Edward L. Doheny is not losing much sleep over the Teapot Dome and Elk Hill oil litigation. A dinner given in honor of the oil king by his general manager, was attended by the elite of Mexican society and by members of the diplomatic corps. The staff of the United States embassy was invited, but had other engagements. It was whispered however, that this did not mean any hostility on the part of the U. S. government towards Doheny, but that the presence of Coolidge representatives at such an affair would give a handle to the democrats to reopen the Teapot Dome controversy in the senate.

To Operate on Constitution.

Doheny has informed newspaper reporters that he expects the famous article 37 of the Mexican constitution, which nationalizes Mexican mineral resources to be soon abolished. The oil magnate is loud in his praise of the Calles government and declared that he had loaned Mexico much money and would continue that policy as long as the government showed a friendly attitude towards the oil interests.

Muscle Shoals Again

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—A new compromise for the disposition of the Muscle Shoals property has been reached by the senate and house conferees.

JURY PROBING DEATH OF 7 IN FATAL FIRE MAKES LITTLE HEADWAY

Defective electric wiring caused the fire at 5832 Blackstone avenue, which killed seven people, John T. Miller, commissioner of gas and electricity told the coroner's inquest yesterday. The inquest, made up of five fire insurance business men and one doctor, has emphasized probing the immediate cause of the fire. The effect of the age of the building and inadequate fire escapes, has not been dwelt upon by the inquest, which is meeting in room 900, county building.

Two girls, Libby Anderson and Laura Karsgaard, who disappeared shortly after the fire, are expected to appear and give their testimony this morning.

PROFITEER POT AND PATRIOTEER KETTLE, QUARREL

War Baby and Tax Dodging Contest

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.— Colonel George Harvey announces in an editorial that he now, for the first time, disgustedly and unhesitatingly sees in the official French discussion of the American debts in the past week a sneaking desire to ultimately repudiate that debt.

He refers bitterly to the war profiteering fortune piled up by Loucheur, former finance minister at Paris, and to the tax dodging policy of the French.

"We are considerate," he concludes; "we want to help; but we will put up with no more nonsense.

"Does France mean business?

"America must know—and soon."

BOTH CAPITALIST PARTIES WORKING FOR POWER TRUST

Muscle Shoals a New Teapot Dome

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 5.—The possibility is that congress will be called into special session during the summer to make some gestures toward aiding the farmers, but chiefly to dispose of the Muscle Shoals power plant to the Morgan combine—which has plenty of influence in both the republican and democratic parties.

All Roads Lead to Wall Street.

The southern delegations in both houses of congress are thirsting to hand the gigantic power resources of the shoals over to Morgan, and their enthusiasm—altho democrats—is running neck and neck with the republicans of the north. All and sundry are working hard for Morgan. This may be seen by the following examples:

Underwood and Heflin, both of Alabama, and both of course, democrats, are busy as the very devil with one of Morgan's best republican public utility grabbers, Senator McKinley of Illinois, who was put on the conference to draft the plan which will put Muscle Shoals into Morgan's hands.

An Electric Teapot Dome.

And then Pat Harrison, democrat, who sounded the horns of scandal over the republican scandal of Teapot Dome, is as thick as thieves with the arch reactionary Senator Smoot, Utah republican, to put over a bigger steal than Teapot Dome by giving Muscle Shoals over to the Morgan power trust.

RUSS COMMISSAR SAYS IMPORTS WILL INCREASE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Feb. 5.—In an interview on the economic and financial prospects of the U. S. S. R. for 1925 Sokolnikoff, people's commissary of finance, stated, that it was proposed to promote imports and that 48 million roubles were assigned for this purpose, this sum to be subsequently increased. In spite of the failure to raise a loan in England, it is expected that the total import and export turnover in 1925 will reach the milliard roubles mark, so that the non-receipt of credits from England will not materially affect the supplying of the Russian home market.

Now Money in Circulation

Touching on the subject of fiduciary circulation, Sokolnikoff declared that while any new issuance of treasury notes was absolutely out of the question, bank notes would further be issued by the state bank of the U. S. S. R. in a quantity corresponding to the growing commercial turnover of the country. This larger volume of money in circulation, he added, is but another proof of sounder conditions of the economic life of Soviet republics.

In conclusion, the people's commissary of finance told his interviewer's that it was contemplated to lower certain taxes, more particularly the rate of the agricultural tax.

Drop World Court

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—After two hours discussion, the senate foreign relations committee today indefinitely postponed further action at this session on world court legislation.

Senator Swanson, democrat of Virginia, author of the resolution to accept the Harding-Coolidge-Hughes plan, announced he would not "press for action longer either in committee or in the senate."

MELLON THINKS U. S. SHOULD MAKE LOANS TO RUSSIA

By LAURENCE TODD,
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Now it is Secretary Mellon, the actual power in the Coolidge cabinet, who is reported to be convinced that American loans must be made to Soviet Russia in order that France and Italy and other European nations may be enabled to pay something on their war debts to the American treasury.

This is the position that Borah took a long while ago, but which has been steadily resisted by the big business crowd.

Need Soviet Trade.

In substance, the new Mellon reasoning is said to run this way: He wants to collect from the French and Italians and other bankrupt debtors. Their repudiation in fact—whatever their pretense of ultimate purpose to pay up—has a tendency to undermine the credit of world commerce, and to justify the Russian attitude on pre-revolutionary debts of the czar.

In order to collect from France, he must enable France to collect from Germany. The Germans cannot pay unless they develop the Russian market for their manufactured goods. And Russia cannot buy in sufficient amounts to make Germany a prosperous industrial country once more unless American gold is loaned to the Soviet Union at reasonable rates.

Of course, loans running into scores of hundreds of millions cannot be made without much negotiation. Probably a trade treaty, if not outright political recognition, must precede the loans.

Borah Hits at Mussolini.

Borah, who has just asked Mellon to inform him of the total of Italy's debt to the American treasury, and the steps, if any, thus far taken to collect it, will be pleased to learn that Mellon is discovering that Russia is an essential part of the European economic machine.

When Borah and Mellon get into conference on this subject, it is to be expected that Borah will write "bluff" across the face of Mussolini's latest promise to arrange for payment of the war debt to America, just as he has with the French promises. He sees no possibility of such payment so long as the Soviet Union remains an outcast, unable to buy the products of the industrial European countries under reasonable terms of credit.

World Oil Market Is Favorable for Soviet Exports

(By Rosta News Agency)

MOSCOW.—The condition of the world oil market is actually quite favorable for the development of Soviet oil exports, according to a statement of Lomoff, chairman of the Oil syndicate of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, in the course of an interview with a Rosta correspondent.

Lomoff has just returned from a business trip abroad. He further remarked that he felt sure that the current year's exports will be considerably larger than the amounts exported during the last pre-war years.

The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Oil Syndicate, said Lomoff, actually prefers disposing of Soviet oil products thru the intermediary of such solid oil groups in various countries as do not constitute part of international oil consortiums; in future, the syndicate proposes to gradually adopt the form of mixed joint-stock companies, acting jointly with the "Arcos, Ltd.," as is now being done in England and Turkey.

Lomoff further referred the large Italian purchases of Soviet crude oil which form about one-third of the total yearly consumption of oil products in Italy; to favorable negotiations under way with serious French consumers regarding supplies of crude oil for an ensuing period of years; the passing of a contract with English interests for the sale this year of 200,000 tons of crude oil; the increase of oil exports to Germany, and the disposal in other foreign markets of 140,000 tons of crude oil and 120,000 tons of benzine.

In conclusion, Lomoff stated that he was optimistic about the development of Soviet oil export to France.

INTELLECTUAL LIFE IN SOVIET RUSSIA REMARKABLY ADVANCED, WORKER-INTELLECTUALS ARISE

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK CITY. Feb. 5.—"It is a great mistake to think intellectual life dead in Russia," Michael Gold, former editor of the Liberator, asserts after six months' visit to Europe, most of which was spent in Russia.

Gold lectured to a large audience at the New York Civic Club on contemporary Russian drama.

"Intellectual life was never so alive as now," he says. "The whole nation is reading, going to the universities and to the theatre. The Bolsheviks are creating the worker-intellectual. The universities are crowded with young workers and farmers' sons. I saw thousands of such young people in Moscow studying to become doctors—a sight one would never find in America."

Lots of Books and Theaters.

Six to ten bookshops to a city block. Gold reports in Moscow. One of the publishing houses published 50,000 books last year, according to the head's statement to Gold. Three-fourths of the books were heavy political or technical works and only one-fourth belles lettres. The publishing houses are government trusts.

In 1915 there were but 210 theaters in all Russia. In 1920 there were 6,000 exclusive of factory club, peasant and Red army theater groups, says Gold.

"The new Russian actors are athletes and artists," declares Gold. "They reflect the energy and heroism of the workers and the mechanical rhythms of the machines which workers use. The plays are not the old talky intellectual plays, but every moment is crowded with action. Men solve their problems thru action on the stage as workers solve theirs thru direct action in life."

Drama Has New Forms.

Meyerhold is the leader of the new theater in Russia. Painted scenery is eliminated by Meyerhold's group and structural forms are used. The stage is stripped for action, says Gold, like a steel mill. This new stage has grown out of what existed before in the trenches of war, in factory and peasant plays; crude propaganda plays at first, like the old Christian miracle plays were.

"The new intelligentsia," asserts Gold, "is close to the workers—is the young workers in universities. They have been thru the civil war and have lost the old Russian psychology of searching for the soul. They think in terms of class and machinery and show the influence of Marx. One of the greatest lies about Russia is that intellectual life is cut off."

FARM RELIEF IS SIDETRACKED BY SENATE CHIEFS

Republicans Smother All Talk of Relief

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 5.—Congressional legislation for relief of the farmers was ignored by the republican steering committee, which has selected nine measures for action by the senate before March 4. The present agricultural commission made vague and indefinite recommendations to congress regarding legislative relief for the farmers.

Coolidge has let it be known, however, that he opposes farm relief legislation. The republican leaders in the senate will press the consideration of the German commercial treaty the reorganization of the governmental departments, and the McLean bill, which authorizes the treasury to reduce interest rates on governmental loans to railroads on the advice of the interstate commerce commission.

The rest of the nine subjects to be considered are: Enlargement of the naval reserve, the civil service retirement bill, the McFadden bill allowing national banks to establish branches, the Brookhart game refuge bill, the French spoliation claims, and the Wadsworth resolution form a constitutional amendment requiring action on changes in the organic law to be taken only by state legislatures elected after submission of a proposed amendment.

The farm relief legislation introduced by Coolidge's commission, is now being discussed by the senate agricultural committee.

NEWARK, Ohio, Feb. 5.—Their bodies showered with a sheet of flaming oil when a large tank in the plant of the pure oil refiner here was ignited by an undetermined cause, Samuel Taulor, 35, and Lee Sommers, 29, were burned to death early today. The fire was brought under control with a loss of $10,000.

MORE FLATS BUILT THAN A YEAR AGO, 33 PCT MORE CASH

Chicago Apartments Increase in Number

Permits for 1,643 new apartments were issued last month, according to records of Commissioner of Buildings Frank E. Doherty.

Altho the number is 692 less than the total of new apartments authorized in December, it exceeds by 220 the number for which permits were issued during January a year ago.

During the last thirteen months 28,932 new apartments and 9,073 new residences have been authorized. According to Chief Plan Examiner Edward H. Nordlie, the total, 38,005 new abodes, is unprecedented and is sufficient to absorb the city's annual growth for two years.

The amount of money scheduled to be expended in last month's permits was given as $21,007,950 as against $14,117,110 for January a year ago and $22,115,630 for December permits.

British Won't Offend French.

LONDON, Feb. 5.— Great Britain desires to encourage France to pay its debt, but it does not want to offend it, it was said in official circles today, when the cabinet met and adjourned without being able to decide on the text of the note it is preparing for transmission to France. A new draft of the note is being prepared.

DIPHTHERIA IS SPREADING THRU ALASKAN TOWNS

Nome Serum Supply Is Nearly Exhausted

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 5.—All Alaska may be gripped by the fearful diphtheria epidemic, according to Leonard Seppella, world's champion musher, who arrived here today.

The towns of Elim and Whitemountain have been quarantined, as cases are suspected there and 32 cases are unofficially reported in the village of Shaktoolick, Sepella said.

With one more dead and several new cases unofficially reported, Nome today faced its fight against diphtheria with its supply of antitoxin virtually exhausted.

The 300,000 units of serum rushed to Nome Monday by dog teams, was almost used.

The death of Mrs. R. C. McDowell, 24, wife of a newspaper man, brought the death toll of the camp, to six. Thirty cases, 31 suspects and 100 contacts, are now officially reported.

McDowell, husband of the dead woman, and one of the McDowell children, have been stricken and were reported critically ill.

With final arrangements completed today to rush antitoxin to Nome's diphtheria sufferers by airplane, it was learned that Roy S. Darling, government employe at Fairbanks and former navy aviator, who will fly the plane to Nome, leaving as soon as the serum arrives from Anchorage, will have no compass or other instruments to aid him. He will be forced to follow the Yukon river and the coast line from Fairbanks to Nome.

Skidmore, Wietling, Sorga, Silvis, Powderly, Parsons, Most, De Leon, Debs, Mitchell, Gompers, St. John, Bill Haywood, Joe Hill, Frank Little and John Reed are some of the interesting personalities in the labor movement that will be treated in this series.

SMALL REFUSES TO TAKE STAND ON CHILD LABOR

Wisconsin Senate Ratifies Amendment

Len Small, republican governor of Illinois, has followed the footsteps of his chief, President Coolidge, in refusing to actively support the proposed federal child labor amendment. Small even refuses to make a statement mildly favoring the abolition of child labor, "passing the buck," to the Illinois state legislature. Small has declared that when he submits the amendment to the legislature for their ratification or rejection, he will make no recommendation.

The fight on the amendment is now centering at Springfield. The Illinois chamber of commerce and the Illinois manufacturers association are conducting a vigorous lobby against ratification of the amendment, and have spacious headquarters in Springfield. The women's clubs and other organizations favoring ratification are also working hard for favorable action by the Illinois legislature. Both sides declare that Illinois is the key state because of its large industries and its central location. Other state legislatures are expected to be influenced by Illinois' action.

Wisconsin Senate Ratifies

The Wisconsin state senate, now meeting in Madison, by a vote of 19 to 10 ratified the amendment. The amendment gives congress power to "regulate and prohibit" child labor. It is understood that many members of the Wisconsin assembly favor submitting the amendment to a referendum. Lawyers who have investigated the legality of such a procedure in Illinois report that the only legal procedure is to order an advisory referendum, which would defer action on the amendement until the next session of the legislature in 1927. This move would be favorable to those who are working against the amendment, as it postpones action for two years.

Up In Indiana

The child labor amendment was slated as a special order of business in the senate yesterday. It was believed the amendment faced the opposition of conservative farmer senators, as well as those who have been influenced by the lobbying of the manufacturers.

Both houses of the Tennessee legislature, have rejected the child labor amendment. There are many cotton mills in Tennessee where children are employed.

Hot Fight in New York

Declaring that the fight for the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution has just begun, the New York committee for the ratification of the child labor amendment has issued a statement to counteract the effects of the publicity of opponents of the child labor measure that it was already defeated.

John O'Hanlon of the New York state federation of labor says: "The New York State Federation of Labor sincerely believes that the federal child labor amendement will eventually be ratified by more than 36 states and that states now recorded against the amendment will reverse themselves when the truth gains on and overcomes, as it will, the falsehoods being spread by those who profit and hope to profit from continued debauchery of American childhood. We expect New York state to take rank with Arkansas and California in defense of the right of America's youth to life, liberty and the pursuit of health and education by ratifying the federal amendment in obedience to the platform pledges on which every member of the legislature of 1925 was nominated and elected."

DEFENSE OF THE CLASS WAR VICTIMS IS FIRST DUTY OF MILITANT LABOR

The capitalist prisons of Europe (America has its victims as well) are filled with revolutionary workers and peasants; 25,000 workers and peasants who have fought for the working class are now in the dungeons—and their fight goes on.

In the United States 32 Communists face prison in Michigan

In the prisons they are not left in peace. They are tormented in every way, for the capitalists realize that one day they will be free again, and their return to the revolutionary struggle means an increase in the ranks of the enemies of the capitalist system and the capitalist governments. Hence they try to break down their morale—as they try to break down Sacco and Vanzetti, Mooney, Manko, as they tried to declare Gitlow insane at Sing Sing.

The fight for the 25,300 class war prisoners must go on. These revolutionists count upon the solidarity of the revolutionists outside. Thru the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council this solidarity is being mobilized in the United States. This solidarity, however, is not to be expressed in words and resolutions alone. It must be expressed in action.

The prisoners are suffering—their families are suffering. Many of them are starving and are being dogged from place to place. They are denied employment. The capitalists think that the misery of the families will compel the revolutionists to forsake the revolutionary movement and return to the fold of "good citizens" of their country.

But the revolutionists are not made that way. Their imprisonment only steels their revolutionary determination, and they only long for the day when they may return to the fighting ranks. We must preserve them for their later work.

Every revolutionist, every friend and sympathizer do his share in realizing this task!

He must give all support to the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council. The immediate step is to help militantly in making the joint bazaar which has been arranged by these two organizations a success.

This bazaar will take place at the Lyceum, 86th St. and Third Ave., on Feb. 11, 12, 13, and 14. Every evening there will be a fine concert and other entertainment.

Saturday night, Feb. 14, there will be a grand costume ball.

There will be an Indian magician doing his most subtle tricks.

There will be a glassblower and a printing establishment.

There will be a Russian booth containing most wonderful hand-woven linens and embroidery done by the peasants of the Ukraine.

There will be an Italian spaghetti booth; a German flower booth; a Lithuanian, Finnish, Hungarian booth; a Greek and Armenian pastry and coffee booth.

There will be booths with books, kitchen utensils, perfumery, etc.

Everybody attending the bazaar will not only be helping along the best cause that he can support today, but at the same time will be able to enjoy himself to the full.

Don't forget that the Freiheit Singing Society, the Finnish Gymnastic and Choral Societies, the Hungarian Orchestral and Singing Clubs, the children of the Modern School, a children's orchestra, the Junior groups of the Young Workers' League, the "Sprachchor" of the Naturfreunde (who will deliver some mass declamations), the Drama League and a number of first-class soloists will participate.

You can go right from work to the bazaar. There will be a fine cafeteria, with a chef from one of the best kitchens of the city in charge.

So be sure to be there. Don't come alone—but bring all friends and sympathizers. Reserve all four dates. February 11, 12, 13 and 14.

LOOKING FOR A JOB IN CHICAGO

By H. C. Filmore.

I tried to get a job in Chicago at 116 N. Dearborn St. where the state and federal officers co-operate in placing the unemployed. Placing—yes, placing them all around a big room on the second floor. The majority stand because there are few seats. They wait there alone or in little groups for "something to turn up."

Here and there the discouraged ones tramp downstairs while the yet hopeful arrive to take their places.

Six men and one woman are regularly employed here waiting for the telephone to ring and bring them news of jobs open. Of course it is a tedious business to sit at a desk all day with nothing to do, so they visit at intervals from desk to desk, and the men smoke cigars. The waiting men are not allowed to smoke of course, but they watch the attendants blow rings and inhale some of the tobacco second handed which offers some compensation.

To register for a job you are given an elaborate application form in which you must state what you want to do, your experience, your last three employers, your nationality and a few other little details about your life's history. Then they file your card and you wait. You wait but no telephone rings, you wait and slowly but surely the farce of it all sinks into your consciousness and hope oozes out of you as the telephones remain silent.

Chicago industry must have decidedly taken a flop you meditate or else the employers have it in for this office.

Finally you grow weary waiting for the job that does not come. You stroll around to the Busch Agency on Randolph St., one of several other private employment offices and there you find many jobs on sale prices ranging from $2 to $5 or $10.

All is bustle here and you reflect "Now if I only had the price maybe I could get one of these jobs washing dishes or emptying slops and if I was lucky, hold it long enough to pay for it."

MANY FAKE TRADE SCHOOLS ROBBING STUDENT TOILERS

Charge Big Fees for Useless Diplomas

By SIDNEY WARREN.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

VANCOUVER, B. C.— Fake trade schools are filching from unsuspecting workers thousands of dollars on promises of teaching them any kind of trade they care to select and giving them a job when their course of instruction is completed.

Gold Bricks For Workers.

Thruout western Canada there are a number of such schools which promise their victims anything and give them practically nothing beyond the course of stereotyped lessons and a gaudy "diploma" which is to serve as the "Open Sesame" to a big pay job. These schools issue very elaborate advertising matter, a glowing prospectus printed in two colors and filled with promise and testimonials from supposedly satisfied and prosperous students.

Workers here are charged $275 for such a course and many of those who have "graduated" from the school and received their "diploma" find that the big pay jobs are in their own imagination only, while the "diploma" as a means of obtaining work as an auto mechanic is the sheerest farce.

Graduates in Pearl Diving.

Sometime ago one of these schools was closed up by the authorities and it was found that the testimonials from successful students were mainly from relatives and friends of the owners with a few paid letters from outside points.

One of the "graduates" of this trade school has been compelled to earn his living as a "sandwich man" on the streets here, while another has disillusioned himself of becoming a garage owner at $500 a month and has instead, in the parlance of dish washers, become a "pearl diver."

Insull Takes Over Another Suburban Electric Railway

LAPORTE, Ind., Feb. 5.—According to announcement made today, the Chicago Lake Shore and South Bend railway, better known as the South Shore Line, has been acquired by Samuel Insull.

Plans for the reorganization of the line and the turning over of the management to the Insull interests are being submitted to the bond holders by a first lien holders' committee in Cleveland, the final carrying out of proposed plans being contingent on approval by the courts and the public service commission. The line was built in 1907 and operates on its own tracks from South Bend to Kensington, Ill., and trains are run down to town in Chicago on tracks of the Illinois Central railroad.

STATE after state defeats the child labor amendment. Capitalist democracy is a great institution! Children can be slowly put to death in insanitary mills. Their little bodies may be coined into dollars so that male and female parasites may revel in luxury and idleness. But what of it? We have democracy and we should be content! It is safe to predict that there will never be laws of any real benefit to children passed until the workers consign the capitalist system to oblivion

ACCORDING to all reports the movement for unity of the Chinese people against the plundering imperialists of the west is nearing fruition. The illness of Dr. Sun Yat Sen is very regrettable in view of his steadfast loyalty to the interests of the exploited Chinese masses and his friendly and sympathetic attitude towards Soviet Russia. But even if Sun Yat Sen dies—as the capitalists sincerely hope—his labors will soon be crowned with success. The policy of Soviet Russia, today the dominant factor in the Orient, will help China on her feet and conserve her resources for the use of her own people.

ANOTHER "501" JOINS FIGHTERS TO SAVE DAILY

Life and Death Struggle of Workers Shown

From Saginaw, Mich., city of "hell on earth" for lumber, coal and iron foundry workers, comes to The DAILY WORKER Thursday a letter explaining why the Workers Party, English branch, can send no more than $6.00 to help the Communist press fight their battles against the bosses.

That nothing more could humanly be asked of this branch than what its secretary, John G. Zittel, has done, can be seen from his letter:

"Excuse me for not having remitted sooner, but financial circumstances would not permit it. In our branch there are only four members with dues paid up, and one of these has had to go to Detroit to find work. This leaves only my wife and me, and one other member.

"I think you will have to excuse him, for he is a wage slave at the Saginaw Plate Glass Co., getting only 46 cents an hour, five days a week, and he has seven children. This gives his family only $18.40 a week, with house rent to pay, besides. I don't see how he can pull thru.

"This city is controlled by lumber kings, coal barons and the General Motor company with their dirty mallable iron foundries. With their gas hells, they keep several doctors and nurses busy continually dressing wounds. The stretchers are unfolded day and night, for men that have been overcome by gas. In order to keep the blazes going, slaves have to be exchanged every day, for the gases take the life out of the men in a short time, while the bosses pile up profits.

"They pay as low as 35 cents an hour and work the men from 10 to 15 hours a day. An army of unemployed, both men and women, is always being imported from out of town—men that are ignorant of the slave conditions they have to work under. All last summer we had as many as eight or ten thousand men out of work, for six and eight months.

"These are conditions which our workers have to meet, while capitalists are taking all the luxuries of life. But we are fighting to obtain the full value of our production, which we are deprived of under the present stage of black capitalism.

"I don't want to miss a single copy of the DAILY WORKER, so I enclose $3.50 for renewing my subscription and $5.00 for an insurance policy; and $1.50 for the defense of our Michigan cases. The national office of the Labor Defense Council has sent me some contribution lists, which I will make special, determined efforts to sell. Long live the Workers Party and our fighting DAILY WORKER."

Len Spouts Patriotism.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.— Len Small, governor of Illinois, has joined the national council of the United States flag association, it is announced at their offices here. The letter received from Small, in which he spouted patriotic sentimentalities, said, "An appropriate appreciation of the flag as a symbol of patriotism, unity and justice should be inherent in every American. To instill in the minds of American youth the sacred symbolism of the flag is our patriotic duty."

Leninism or Trotskyism

(Conclusion of speech by I. Stalin.)

3. The Question of Bolshevism. The old Trotskyism made efforts to belittle Lenin more or less openly without fearing the consequences. The new Trotskyism proceeds more cautiously. It makes efforts to carry on the part of the old Trotskyism in the form of praising Lenin, of praising his greatness. I think it worth while to quote a few examples.

The party knows Lenin as a ruthless revolutionary. It also knows, however, that Lenin was cautious, did not love intriguing politicians, and not infrequently held back too sharp terrorists, including Trotsky himself, with a firm hand. Comrade Trotsky treats this theme in his book "On Lenin." But from his characterization it would seem that Lenin only pretended, as "he emphasized on every suitable occasion the inevitability of terror." (Page 104 of the Russian edition.) The impression resulting is, that Lenin was the most bloodthirsty of all the bloodthirsty Bolsheviki. Why did Comrade Trotsky need this unnecessary and in no way justified laying on of color?

The party knows Lenin as an exemplary comrade who did not care to answer questions on his own responsibility, impulsively, without the leading committee, without carefully feeling his way and after cautious examination. Comrade Trotsky deals with this side of the question also in his book. But he gives us a picture not of Lenin, but of some Chinese mandarin, who decides at random the most important questions in the silence of his study, as tho he were illuminated by the holy spirit.

You wish to know how our party decided the question of the dissolution of the constituent assembly? Hear Comrade Trotsky:

"The constituent assembly must of course be dissolved," said Lenin, "but what then about the left social revolutionaries?" Old Natanson reassured us, however. He came to us "to talk things over," and said immediately after the first words:

"Well, if it comes to that, as far as I am concerned, dissolve the constituent assembly by force."

"Bravo," cried Lenin, full of joy, "what is right, must remain right. But will your people agree to it?"

"Some of us are vacillating, but I believe that in the long run they will agree," answered Natanson. (See Trotsky "On Lenin," page 92, Russian edition.)

Thus is history written.

You want to know how the party decided the question of the supreme war council. Listen to Comrade Trotsky:

"Without serious and experienced military leaders, we shall not emerge from this chaos," said I to Vladimir Ilyitsch, every time that I visited the staff.

"That is obviously true; but they will certainly betray us."

"We will attach a commissar to each of them."

"Two would be better still," exclaimed Lenin, "but stalwart ones. It is surely impossible that we have no stalwart Communists."

Thus began the formation of the supreme military council. (Trotsky: "On Lenin," page 106, Russian edition.)

That is how Comrade Trotsky writes history.

Why did Comrade Trotsky need these Arabian night entertainments which compromise Lenin? Surely not to magnify the party leader. V. I. Lenin? We can hardly think so.

The party knows Lenin as the greatest Marxist of our time, the profoundest theoretician and the most experienced revolutionary who was not guilty of even a shade of Blanquism. Comrade Trotsky treats this side of the question also in his book. His characterization however, reveals no giant Lenin, but some kind of a Blanquist dwarf, who advises the party in the October days "to seize the power with their own hands independently of the Sovfet and behind its back." I have already said that this characterization does not contain a word of truth.

Why did Comrade Trotsky need this glaring . . . inexactness? Is it not an attempt to slight Lenin "just a little"?

These are the characteristic features of the new Trotskyism.

Wherein lies the danger of the new Trotskyism? In that Trotskyism, according to its whole inner content, shows every sign of becoming a center and meeting place of non-proletarian elements, which are striving to weaken and disintegrate the dictatorship of the proletariat.

When then? you will ask. What are the immediate duties of the party in connection with the new literary attacks of Comrade Trotsky?

Trotskyism now steps forward with the object of dethroning Bolshevism and undermining its principles. The duty of the party is to bury Trotskyism as a line of thought.

Reprisals against the opposition and the danger of a split are spoken of. This is nonsense, comrades. Our party is strong and powerful. It will admit of no splits. As for reprisals, I am distinctly opposed to them. We need no reprisals now, but a developed battle of ideas against the resurrection of Trotskyism.

We did not desire this literary discussion nor did we strive for it. Trotskyism forces it upon us by its anti-Leninist attacks. Well then, comrades, we are ready! (Loud applause.)

64-PAGE PAMPHLET ON LENINISM OR TROTSKYISM NOW IN PREPARATION

This installment is part of a pamphlet "Leninism or Trotzkyism" now in preparation. It includes articles by three outstanding figures in the Russian Communist Party: G. Zinoviev, I. Stalin and C. Kamenev, to form a most timely and important contribution to a discussion of world interest. The pamphlet will be of 64 pages, selling at 20 cents and will be ready at the conclusion of this serial publication.

Speech by Comrade Kamenev

The following is a written version of the speech given by me on Nov. 18, at the session held by the Moscow committee, enlarged by the active party functionaries, and repeated on Nov. 19, at the session of the Communist fraction of the trade union council, and on Nov. 21, at the conference of military functionaries.—L. K.

Comrades!

The subject of my speech will be Comrade Trotsky's latest publication the article which appeared on the eve of the seventh anniversary of the October revolution, and entitled by its author, "The Lessons of October."

Trotsky presents the party with books fairly frequently. Hitherto we have not thought it necessary to pay much attention to these books, altho it is not difficult to find in many of them various deviations from Bolshevism, from the official ideology of our party. But this book must be accorded special attention, and subjected to a thoro analysis, the more that Comrade Trotsky has selected the theme of the Lessons of October for his last publication.

As our whole party, the whole Communist International, the whole international labor movement, and the whole working youth, are learning the lessons taught by the October revolution, and will continue to learn them it is not possible to consider the interpretation of these lessons as the private affair of this or that writer. As the Lessons of October appears with the countenance of the party, and the political bureau of our party, which—and this no secret—is the leading party in the Comintern, then it is perfectly clear that we are threatened by the danger of having such proclamations, such "lessons," accepted as text book and not only our youthful members, but also by the whole Comintern And the form assumed by Comrade Trotsky's work shows it to aim at being a textbook for the Comintern.

All who have read the article are bound to see that it appeals not only to our party, but the international proletariat as well, and to the Communist Parties of all countries. And thus it is not a matter of private opinion but a political conflict concerning the whole party. Should any comrades maintain that the conflict aroused by Comrade Trotsky's book is merely a conflict between Trotsky, Bucharin, Zinoviev, Stalin and Kamenev, a difference of opinion between literates, these comrades would prove that they are unable to grasp the real interests of the party. Comrades holding such an opinion can only do so because they would like to utilize the party conflicts for the purpose of forming some third group based on the slogan: "The literates are quarreling among themselves, but it has nothing to do with us."

No one has the right to stand aside in this conflict. It concerns one of the most far-reaching questions of our inner life, and of the life of the Comintern. The question is: Can the party recommend the proletariat to accept the lessons as taught by Comrade Trotsky's book, or should the party exercise the whole of its authority in warning the proletariat against the teaching of the "Lessons of October"?

I am not desirous of here entering into a long controversy with this article of Comrade Trotsky's. Comrade Trotsky is an excellent writer, and his gifted pen has done the party much valuable service. But here it serves interests hostile to the party, here it does not serve bolshevism, but the cause of those seeking to disintegrate and discredit Bolshevism—both the Bolshevism embodying the ideology of the proletarian revolution and the Bolshevism organizing the fighting force of the proletariat. And Comrade Trotsky does this by means of an exceedingly artistic, but essentially incorrect and inaccurate description of the whole of the events between February and October. I have no doubt but that the party will call upon a number of its writers, among those who participated in the events of this period and took immediate part in the struggle leading up to the October revolution, and that these will refute the various misrepresentations made by Comrade Trotsky with reference to decisive moments in the history of our party during this epoch.

The April demonstration is misrepresented, the April conference is misrepresented, the events in June and July are misrepresented, the events in connection with the preliminary parliament are misrepresented and finally the course taken by events in October itself are misrepresented Here I cannot dwell upon the details required for the restoration of historical truth, or on the confronting of Comrade Trotsky's assertions by documentary evidence. What I wanto to deal with here is the general question of the social and political import of the attitude adopted by Comrade Trotsky, and the significance of this attitude when considered in the light of the previous positions taken up by Comrade Trotsky, and of the role played by Comrade Trotsky.

We have hitherto abstained from putting this question, for easily comprehensible reasons. But now we can avoid it no longer for Comrade Trotsky, in thus raising the question of October, the question of the role played by our party and by Lenin in the creation of the ideology underlying the October revolution, himself forces us to deal with the question from all the standpoints which have been adopted by Comrade Trotsky during the history of the Bolshevist Party.

I am thus obliged to deal with the concrete question of Trotskyism and Bolshevism, and in doing this I refer to Comrade Trotsky's latest utterance merely as one of the clearest and most instructive examples of the general line pursued by Comrade Trotsky.

We must first of all ask ourselves: Does any general line really exist? What do we understand under the term "Trotskyism"? Is it a question of Comrade Trotsky's personality, or of general and by no means personal phenomena pertaining to the history of the labor movement in Russia during the last twenty years? What have we to deal with here? With a personality, with an individuality, or with some generalization, some trend called into being by the general conditions of the evolution of the labor movement in a petty bourgeois country? With an accidental phenomenon or with a phenomona based upon a past which we cannot forget? If you turn to Comrade Lenin's works for a reply to this question, you will find that up to the time of the February revolution, and again, with a brief interruption, after the year 1918, scarcely a work appeared from Comrade Lenin's pen in which Trotskyism was not dealt with systematically. Why?

I.

Trotskyism and the Party Before the Revolution of 1917.

Our party originated in a petty bourgeois, capitalistically backward country. Our proletariat existed under more backward conditions than any other proletariat in Europe. It was surrounded by more agrarian and petty-bourgeois elements than any other proletariat. And the question of how this proletariat succeeded in the midst of czarist despotism, in creating and welding together a party destined to lead the whole international labor movement, this is the main question of the self-knowledge essential to the party.

This question of our origin and development has frequently been raised in the party itself, and the party has made it clear to itself why and in what manner the proletariat of Russia (to use the old word), in a backward agrarian country, and under the despotism of the czar, has been enabled to create that Leninism which today is the guiding star of the whole international proletariat, of the proletariat of countries much further developed in capitalism and much further advanced in economics than Russia. One thing is certain: Under those conditions the party of the revolutionary proletariat, the party of the Bolsheviki, could only originate in the form of constant, systematic, and unceasing struggle against the petty bourgeois element striving to subordinate the working class. Bolshevism in its innermost essence signifies a struggle in the sense that it originated, grew and attained its firm foothold in the midst of an uninterrupted and constant struggle against every influence exercised by the bourgeoisie on the proletariat.

The most concentrated expression of the policy of bourgeois influence on the proletariat is afforded by menshevism. The thirty years of the history of Bolshevism is the history of thirty years of struggle against menshevism Leninism is the teaching of the struggle of the proletariat against the bourgeoisie. Precisely for this reason Leninism is therefore at the same time the teaching of the struggle against menshevism.

The Workers Party in Action

COMRADES MUST START HUSTLING TO MAKE OUR 'RED REVEL' A SUCCESS

Tickets for the coming Red Revel have been sent to all the party branches.

The members of the branch and the branch executive should see to it that they are immediately apportioned among the members and the members set out to sell them to their friends and to sympathizers of our movement.

The branch should then elect a comrade to serve on the Red Revel enlarged committee. His name and address should be sent to the city office so that we can notify him of the meetings of this committee.

The branch should then arrange to form a masked group as prizes will be given out to the best group possible and we want to make this affair a real gala affair of the party.

If more tickets are needed, write or call us and we will supply you with them.

Tickets can be obtained at Room 303, 166 W. Washington St.

CAN ACHILLES OVERTAKE TORTOISE? 501 BRANCHES TELL DAILY WORKER, "NO!"

CROSS-WORD puzzles are only a recent recreation; but the ancient Greeks had a pastime that was very similar. It consisted of the lazy art of complicating the simple, or, in other words, of inventing "bunk."

One such problem was that of Achilles and the tortoise, over which a debate raged for several hundred years, until the Romans conquered Greece, in fact. It rages even yet in the rest-rooms of our Goose-step universities. . .

This is the puzzle: Imagine a race-track on which are placed a tortoise, always considered the slowest of all animals, and Achilles, the fleetest runner in legend. If the tortoise is given a head-start, can Achilles ever overtake him?

One school of philosophers answered, "No," (and still does.) They declared that, in order for Achilles to overtake the tortoise, it would be necessary for him to pass thru the same space as that which the tortoise had traversed. While Achilles was going thru this space, no matter how little it is,—the tortoise would be moving on,—no matter how slowly: hence, Achilles would always be so much behind.

The real answer to this problem, of course, is in terms of practice, not of theory. Achilles DOES overtake the tortoise,—that's all there is to it. Argue as you will, you can't get away from facts.

But, strange to say, in the 1925 drive to insure the DAILY WORKER, we have an example that agrees with the contention that Achilles must always remain behind. . .

We have 487 branches of the Workers party who are Achilles,—they are militant,—they race to fulfill the $50,000 quota.

On the other hand, there are 501 branches who are Tortoises. They have crawled along the track. The year 1925 has not existed for them. The appeal from the DAILY WORKER has not got under their shells!

No matter how fast the Achilles branches run, can they ever overcome the handicap given them while the Tortoise branches are NOT running? Tho 487 quotas are filled, does this mean that the other 501 quotas can be overtaken?

We laugh at Greek philosophers as being men of cob-webbed minds. But we are forced to agree with them in this: in the race to insure the DAILY WORKER, it is the tortoise that holds Achilles back. The $50,000 quota can be raised only when the 501 branches become militant instead of motionless.

FINNISH BRANCH IN MINNEAPOLIS LEADS DISTRICT NO. 9 DRIVE

Sometimes, by accident, we treat our best friends in a way that even our enemies wouldn't deserve.

This is what happened in the case of the Finnish branch, Workers Party, Minneapolis, in regard to remittances credited for the sale of insurance policies for the DAILY WORKER. Tho this branch has sold more than twice as many policies as any other branch in District 9, its name was by error omitted from the district roll-call in the DAILY WORKER last week.

To date, these Finnish comrades have sent $148.00 thru their secretary, H. Seklund.

"And we are still selling policies strong," says Seklund in a letter to the DAILY WORKER Friday.

SHERIFF'S PEACE OFFER SPURNED BY KLAN BOARD

Supervisors Demand Galligan's Scalp

MARION, Ill., Feb. 5.—Tre dove of peace, after a brief stay, was gone from Williamson county again today, following collapse of a compromise agreement between Sheriff George Galligan, anti-klan leader, and the county board of supervisors, composed largely of avowed klansmen.

Today the board stood firm on a demand that Galligan resign, while Galligan stood equally firm in his determination not to resign.

Klan Moves Against Sheriff.

The next move, unless the deadly barking of automatics intervenes, was to be a plea to Governor Small to remove Galligan. A committee appointed by the board was to go to Springfield today or tomorrow to confer with the governor.

Offers to Leave County.

Sheriff Galligan's peace proposal, was turned down by the board with only one dissenting vote, offered to make a written agreement that he would leave the county, turn over his office to deputy Parks, over whom there has been no dissension, and would permit the board to name all other deputies. He agreed to stay away from the county for the duration of his term of office, but refued to resign, even if the board paid his salary in full for the remainder of his term.

After rejecting the offer, the board adjourned until March.

Woman Would Drop 'Star Spangled Banner' From Public Schools

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Feb. 5.—Mrs. Fannie Spencer, a pacifist, in a communication to Mr. Wood, state superintendent of public schools, requested that the "Star Spangled Banner," the national anthem of capitalist America, be removed forever from the public schools of California. She argues that the words of the song have a bad influence on the children's minds. It incites their thoughts to war and bloodshed and contempt for the English.

The authorities are literally tearing their hair in indignation at this pacifist proposal. Frank Pettingill, commander of the sons of the revolution, wants her sent out of the country. But the question arises, being an American, where can she be sent?

The Communists of Los Angeles consider all this "much ado about nothing." Both pacifist Mrs. Spenser and militarist, Pettingill are doomed to the scrap heap. The Communists propose to teach the "International" to the children of Los Angeles which sooner or later will become the universal anthem of the whole working class.

BANKERS REAP HUGE PROFITS, 31 AVERAGE 19 PCT., MANY 100 PCT., WITH HANDS ON ALL INDUSTRIES

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Profits of $90,583,148 representing a return of about 30 per cent on a combined capital of $307,600,000 show how 31 big New York banks and trust companies levied tribute on the country's 1924 business. Four of the group show profits fo more than 100 per cent, on instance reaching 199 per cent.

These big seats of financial power paid their owners $58,665,000 in dividends during the year, representing a cash retur nof 19 per cent. Four paid cash dividends of 50 per cent or more. These include the First National bank paying 55 per cent, the Fifth Avenue bank, 50 per cent, and the Yorkville bank and the U. S. Trust each 60 per cent.

The capital and profits of some of the leaders together with the rate earned on capital are:

New York Banks, 1924	Capital	Profit	Percent
National City	$40,000,000	$ 9,794,932	24.4
National Bank of Commerce	25,000,000	5,136,647	20.5
First National	10,000,000	12,241,023	122.4
Chase National	20,000,000	4,954,684	24.7
Mechanics & Metals	10,000,000	1,660,246	16.6
Hanover National	5,000,000	2,567,864	51.3
Bank of the Manhattan Co.	10,000,000	2,067,368	20.7
Bankers Trust	20,000,000	7,342,022	36.7
Guaranty Trust	25,000,000	3,711,366	14.8
Equitable Trust	23,000,000	4,019,071	17.4
New York Trust	10,000,000	2,584,665	25.8
Farmers Loan & Trust	5,000,000	2,150,842	43.7

The Kings County Trust Co. with a profit of $995,000 on an investment of $500,000 shows the highest rate of return. Other very profitable banks not shown in the table are the Fifth Ave. with a profit of $524,475 on $500,000 capital, the Yorkville bank with a profit of $261,340 on $200,000 capital and the U. S. Trust with $1,745,854 profits on $2,000,000 capital.

How It Piles Up.

All these banks and trust companies have huge surplus profit reserves. This total of $481,423,648 in profits which the stockholders have not yet divided is more than half again as large as the total of capital stock. In the case of the First National Bank the $59,319,035 surplus profits are noarly 6 times the entire invested capital while the $17,521,814 surplus of the United States Trust is more than 8 times its capital.

The directors of these banks sit on the boards of directors of practically all the important railroads and industrial concerns in the country. They are the agencies thru which the Morgan-Rockefeller control is exercised.

OMNIBUS POSTAL PAY BILL GOES BEFORE HOUSE

Cuts Out Six Months' Back Pay Raise

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Within 24 hours after it refused to accept the Senate's postal legislation, the House received this afternoon from its own post office committee an omnibus bill increasing postal rates to offset a proposed increase in postal salaries.

It was estimated that the House bill would bring in $60,000,000 or $20,000,000 more than was provided for by the Senate bill.

Adopt Coolidge Bill

The committee adopted with few changes the original bill proposed by Senator Moses, striking out the Senate amendments.

Rates on second class mail matter are increased to three cents in the first, second and third zones.

There is a general in crease in all parcel post rates.

Back Pay Raise Refused

Increased salaries are made retroactive to January 1, 1925, instead of to July 1, 1924.

MILITARISTS WAR OVER WARSHIPS IN AIR OR WATER

Congress Committee Charges Muzzling

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Aroused by reports that army officers are being "muzzled" and otherwise prevented by higher-ups from giving frank testimony before congress committees in relation to pending legislation, the house committee investigating air craft conditions in the army and navy today put Brig. Gen. Hugh Drum of the general staff thru a severe grilling.

Drum denied that officers were "muzzled" or "disciplined" for their testimony.

General Drum's denial of the reports did not entirely appease members of the committee, and they plied him with questions as to what was happening to Brigadier General "Billy" Mitchell, assistant chief of air service, whose post is said to have been jeopardized by the testimony he recently gave the committee with respect to air craft conditions.

Secretary of War Weeks has asked Mitchell for "an explanation" of his testimony. Mitchell advocates a separate, unified air service, which most of the other high ranking army and navy officers do not approve.

Representative Reed, republican, Illinois, told Drum: "I don't think you know what you are talking about when you say we have 682 planes ready to fly."

BUILDERS AT WORK

Every day under this head you will learn not only what BUILDERS thruout the country are doing to build a greater newspaper, but also practical suggestions to accomplish more for OUR paper. Tell us what YOU are doing—and we will "tell the world."

HE TREATS US ROUGH!

WHEN a comrade gets into a shop nucleus, he often learns to place proper emphasis on the most important work that will build the party.

Now take Comrade M. C. Long of Detroit, for instance. He is in a shop nucleus. And being earnest, willing to take seriously all Communist tasks, he looks around to find the best way to bring the Communist message to his fellow workers—and finds the DAILY WORKER.

That's natural. To use a popular saying—"they all flop sooner or later." And sooner or later every active Communist learns that the DAILY WORKER is THE method that brings immediate results.

Which brings us to the reason for all this introduction. Comrade Long wrote us once to give him a price on some stickers to advertise the DAILY WORKER. By oversight the letter was not answered at once. Not discouraged, and very impatient, he wrote us again, "bawlingell out of us" and he got an immediate answer.

A couple days later he sent us twenty-five dollars for twenty thousand stickers to bring the DAILY WORKER to the attention of many more thousand workers.

Now Detroit happens to be one of the very best towns on the DAILY WORKER list. And naturally, it is because of many instance of splendid effort on the part of the local comrades. They are "stickers," so they get results. But there is something unusually efficient about Comrade M. D. Long. He "treats us rough" but he get results and . . . well . . . got right ahead and treat us rough.

COMMUNIST·CHILDREN'S·COLUMN

By ANNA THOMPSON,
District Junior Director

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The most sensational feature of the tremendous Lenin memorial meeting held here at Madison Square Garden, was undoubtedly, as even the capitalist sheets seem to agree, the wonderful and inspiring mass-demonstration of the Junior section of the Young Workers League in New York. The Juniors were there—they certainly were!! The seats reserved for them before the meeting started proved entirely insufficient to accomodate the almost 100 per cent turnout of the Junior section.

400 Juniors March in Singing

There were over 400 young Reds there to do honor to our dead leader—the Foster group, the Ruthenberg group, the Karl Marx group, the Liebknecht group, the Trotsky group, the Luxemburg group, the Lenin group, the Young Guardsmen group, the Red Guards group, etc. About 1 P. M. the Juniors began arriving in groups, singing, cheering, and shouting. Right then and there things began to happen. The police were evidently not very much pleased to see these sturdy little Bolsheviks growing up into clear and determined young Communist fighters against capitalism. So when the Red Guards Junior group passed by thru the lobby of the huge edifice, a few particularly patriotic policemen pounced upon them and seized their beautifully printed sign and tore it up growling: "We don't want no Red Guards here—we don't want them Bolsheviks." The Juniors immediately staged a spirited demonstration informing the hired servants of the capitalists that tearing up the sign wouldn't help, that to-day they were the Red Guard Junior group, tomorrow they would be real Red Guards and Red Soldiers.

Junior Leader Speaks

During the speeches, the Juniors listened attentively noting points upon which they could have group discussions and in many cases carrying on low whispered conversations with their leaders who were sitting with them. The climax of it all was reached when the Junior speaker, Comrade Morris Spector city organizer of the Junior section was introduced by the chairman, Comrade Gitlow.

In a speech that was variously characterized by the capitalists press as "fiery," "red," "dynamic," "forceful," "enthusiastic," Comrade Spector paid tribute to the memory of our dead Leader and called upon the revolutionary working class including the working class children of the world, to close its ranks and carry on the fight. "In Lenin" Comrade Spector said, "the toiling masses of the earth saw the promise of a time when the blood and bones of little children shall no longer be coined into yellow gold to feed the greedy lust of the exploiter when the flower of the working class youth shall no longer be slaughtered for the dirty gains of the profit-mad capitalists, when oppression and exploitation shall have vanished from the earth, when man shall no longer tremble before his fellow-man." And when Comrade Spector enthusiastically cried: "Comrade Lenin is dead—but Leninism still lives—will live forever," the roof was almost raised with the cheers of the audience. Finally, our Junior city organizer ended up: "Ours is the duty of mobilizing the working class children under the leadership of the Communists, our is the task of drawing these children in the fight against capitalism and the capitalist system, ours is the duty of enrolling the masses of the working class children into the class struggle." Then Comrade Spector addressed himself to the Communist Children's Organizations of the world. "Brothers, Comrades, young Leninists of the world! Close your ranks, forward to the struggle. Remember our slogan: ALWAYS READY. Down with the capitalist oppressors of the working class children! Down with the capitalist system! Long live the Young Leninists of the world! Long live Leninism!" As he ended up, there was literally pandemonium in the hall; it seemed as if the vast audience rose as one man to cheer and applaud, not so much the speaker himself, as the splendid organization of young working class children which he represented.

Juniors Cheer Ruthenberg

When Comrade Ruthenberg was introduced, the Juniors, who had recently been discussing Comrade Ruthenberg's arrest and conviction, arose, cheering and singing the International. Then followed the memorable ovation to Comrade Ruthenberg that no one who has been to the meeting will ever forget.

When the meeting was over, and the audience began to file out, the Juniors, loath to leave, began singing, marching, and cheering. The audience suddenly stopped and began crowding around listening and applauding. The dimensions of this impromptu affair grew until it reached the size of a veritable demonstration. Finally, the policemen, not well pleased as may be imagined at what was occurrring, broke this demonstration up and told the children to go home. They did indeed—but in regular order singing the Internaitonal and the Scarlet Banner. In this strain they continued on the way home, in streets, in the cars, in the trains and subways.

Juniors Put The Meeting Over

The memorial meeting was, of course, a most wonderful demonstration for Comrade Lenin, for the Communist idea for which he stood, and for the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers League that are the American embodiments of Leninism. But for the Juniors this meeting will be remembered for many years to come. For it was at this meeting that the Junior section of the Young Workers League in New York definitely appeared before thousands and thousands of New York workers as the revolutionary organization of working class children that it is, as a Communist union of children marching side by side to victory with the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers League.

BELL PHONE CO. MISUSED SINKING FUND IS CHARGE

Used Repair Fund for Other Purposes

(Special to the Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 5.—Legislators here are said to have been given the information that millions of dollars have been diverted from the sinking funds of public utilities companies of Illinois, and illegally used for the payment of dividends.

The Illinois commerce commission is reported to have made this disclosure, after they received petitions from many public utilities corporations for authority to increase their rates chrged the public. Following the recent sleet and snow storms, the companies are said to have petitioned the commerce commission for permission to advance rates.

The commerce commission, it is said here, wanted to know what had happened to the special fund that the commission instructed the companies to set aside for such emergencies; and learned that these sinking funds had been entirely used up in paying additional dividends and for other purposes.

Cold. Frank L. Smith, chairman of Illinois commerce commission, admitted that the Chicago Bell Telephone company had diverted $33,000,000 from its sinking fund for extension of service and for purchasing other companies.

Smith said he was supporting a bill to be introduced within the next two weeks regulating the sinking fund of utilities which he characterized as beneficial both the companies and to the investors.

"A sinking fund is in reality a trust fund and as such is taken into consideration in compiling rates," Smith said.

He admitted it has become a general practice among utilities in Illinois to use their sinking funds for purposes other than depreciation expenses.

According to commerce commission's ruling, two per cent of the profits must be set aside for property depreciation. Illinois utilities are authorized to fix rates guaranteeing "nine per cent return on a fair valuation of their properties," seven per cent to be used for paying dividents and two per cent for maintaining a sinking fund.

Graft Is Getting Monotonous!

We quote T. J. O'Flaherty:

> Then we have another tale of graft, with a Boccacian touch, in the revelations of the fascinating Mrs. Scott, wife of a Michigan congressman. Army officers and gambling figured in her testimony. A burned hole in her kimono was what caused her husband to let the public in on a little diversion. The burnt hole was caused by the lighted end of a cigarette. An army officer was at the other end of it. Graft, illegal transportation of liquor, drunken prohibition officers—this is the tale unfolded by witnesses to life in Washington. Graft is the order of the day. It is getting monotonous. . . .

The keen shafts of satire and wit that have made the authors' column "As We See It" in the DAILY WORKER receive nation-wide attention, are much in evidence in his article "The Fine Art of Grafting" in the February issue of The Workers Monthly.

The Paris Pact—A Storm Center

Senator Johnson of California is one of the most despicable figures in American politics, but he has raised an issue in the senate that overshadows in importance all other political questions at this time.

The signing of the Paris agreement and the open support of the United States government given to the allied imperialists as against Germany in the collection of reparations places the United States right in the center of the European mess.

Even in international politics there are no privileges without corresponding duties and the acceptance by emissaries of the United States government of a percentage of the German payments unquestionably obligates it to take part, perhaps a leading part, in the disciplining of all violations of the agreement on the part of Germany. Such discipline can mean only the use of military force in this day and age.

The real meaning of the Paris agreement is that the United States government has been forced by the House of Morgan to begin the enforcement of the Dawes plan with all that this implies. The period of unofficial and semi-official negotiations and commitments is over. We enter now the period of payment and, if necessary, of coercion of debtors.

The banker backers of Coolidge are now demanding and receiving the price of their support, military preparations show increasel activity and American imperialism prepares to establish control over western Europe no matter what the cost to the American working class.

There is little doubt that this one issue will divide the forces in the house and senate, the division taking place somewhat along the lines drawn in the last election—the lower sections of the middle class against the Paris pact, the big capitalists and their spokesmen for it.

The economic interests that lie underneath the struggle now just beginning in Washington are apparent when we remember that Senator Johnson is in favor of the fullest preparedness against Japan, that California, his state, is a leader in the anti-oriental agitation and that LaFollette, Wheeler, Ladd, Frazier and Shipstead all represent the wealthier farmers and lower middle class.

There are also signs in the form of confused editorials in a portion of the labor press that resentment against the imperialist plans of the American ruling class is taking shape, but the ignorance and treachery of the trade union officialdom seriously hampers its development.

The burden of acquainting the American workers with the full meaning of the Paris pact and outlining a program for resistance to the murderous schemes of American imperialism falls upon the Workers (Communist) Party of America. From the middle-class insurgents and reactionary labor officials can come nothing but confusion and betrayal when the final decision for relentless struggle must be made.

Steel Trust Pension Bank

The steel trust distributed $1,683,920 in pensions last year.

Much has been said and written by rotary and kiwanis club speakers and subsidized publicists about the philanthropic pension scheme of the steel trust, but the cold figures give little grounds for any display of enthusiasm on the part of workers.

The sum mentioned was divided between 4,478 pensioners—an approximate average of $375 per pensioner per year. This is certainly no princely sum on which to depend for a livelihood while awaiting death for a body wrecked in the hellholes of the steel mills where the ten and twelve-hour day absorbed every ounce of surplus energy.

A dollar a day, in this era of high prices, does not go very far in securing the poorest food and shelter, but this is what the steel trust considers generous for the average ex-employe, altho many of them receive far less than that.

The figures show that like all schemes, the pension plan of the steel trust is a cruel frand perpetrated on the workers and that its chief value is the advertising that this labor hating corporation secures from it.

An ounce of union organization is worth several tons of pensions.

From Coal to Steel

Shutdowns in the Indiana coal fields is to be used to further the steel trust's quest for workers whom unemployment has made willing to accept its terms, according to the plan broached by the industrial director of that state.

17,000 miners are said to be without jobs in this district and thru an arrangement with the Illinois Steel company they will be sent into the Lake county (Illinois) mills as the demand for labor there warrants. Many of the miners' families are poverty stricken and it is interesting to note that the heads of the families will fill jobs for which the steel trust had planned to import Mexicans.

This will probably be hailed as a triumph of native over foreign-born workers by the capitalist press, but the workers can be certain that their wages will approximate the amount which the steel trust had planned to pay the Mexicans. In the present unorganized condition of the steel industry the workers are absolutely at the mercy of the corporation. When we say "unorganized" we refer to the workers and not to the capitalists, because this new scheme for utilizing unemployment in another basic but unionized industry for the benefit of the steel trust shows a high degree of capitalist organization.

There is one favorable fact in connection with this shifting of labor power from one basic industry to another. It is that the miners who are to become steel workers have had union experience and if any considerable number of them are recruited by the steel industry, they may form a nucleus around which organization can be built.

We can take for granted, however, that the labor experts of the steel trust have weighed this possibility and concluded that long continued unemployment has sapped the morale of the miners to such an extent that the steel trust spy system will be able to intimidate them for a considerable period of time. Nevertheless, the influx of thousands of coal miners into the unorganized steel industry is an important development and one which the left wing movement will be able to utilize in its organization campaigns.

Of great importance to the revolutionary and labor movement also is this latest concrete evidence of the intention of the capitalists to use to the fullest extent the permanent army of unemployed which highly developed industry has created—to use it for its own purposes by throwing the unemployed from one industry to another and thus establishing the keenest possible competition among the workers even in those industries that are working nearly to capacity.

Enemies of Child Workers

A sample of the intelligence of the 100 per cent American legislator is given in the recent remarks of Representative Heinrich of the Nevada state legislature in opposition to the child labor amendment. This intellectual giant said:

> "They have taken our women away from us by constitutional amendments; they have taken our liquor away from us and now they want to take our children."

The dispatch from which we cull this gem of oratory further states that Heinrich is the father of five children.

Our sympathies are with the offspring of this Nevada statesman and his wife also, if she has survived a few years of marital association with such a tripe-brained individual.

It should not be forgotten that most of our statutes are the product of mentalities such as is exposed above, mentalities held in leading strings by the blackest forces of American capitalism—individuals ignorant, debauched, bribed and coerced by powerful capitalist interests so brutal, greedy and arrogant that they refuse to surrender even the right to throw little children of the workers into the maw of the industrial machine.

Real Communist Activity

Young Comrade Olenberg, working in the Mildred Shoe company's works, Brooklyn, New York, had to lick the foreman, was arrested and placed under $200 bail, all because as a member of the Young Workers League he did his Communist duty and tried to organize his fellow shoe workers into the union.

This kind of activity will do more to win the young workers in this shop for the Y. W. L. and the adult workers for the Workers (Communist) Party than several tons of literature, altho written propaganda has its important place. Comrade Olenberg is to be congratulated for his militancy and when such incidents are happening by the score in dozens of shops and factories the workers will gladly follow the Workers (Communist) Party in the United States.

It is in such activities as those of Comrade Olenberg's that the history of the Communist movement is written and in such manner are Communist parties built.

The DAILY WORKER can always find space for stories of this kind and it looks forward to the day when its columns will be filled with them.

Frontier Heroism

The story of the 1,000-mile dog sled race against death to bing anti-toxin to disease stricken Nome is a tale of heroism that challenges the admiration.

The scene of the struggle against the forces of nature at her worst, against ice and snow, deadly cold and raging storm, is the last frontier of the American continent—the frontier where pioneer traditions and pioneer stamina still count for something.

The dog sled drivers risked their lives without thought of material reward and by their courage and sacrifice give the lie to the apologists of capitalism and their nauseous reiterations that material reward must be forthcoming—that pay is the only incentive of achievement.

Such dogged courage and self-sacrifice as that displayed by the saviors of Nome exists in spite of the debauching tendencies of capitalism—it is found only on the frontiers of capitalism and on the revolutionary frontier where the working class and its vanguard alse battle without hope of reward.

Shop Nuclei Reorganization—Some Experiences

By A. G. BOSSE.

THE inexperience of our party in the matter of shop nuclei organization, the fact that we are just beginning to reorganize our party on this basis and are encountering many difficulties due to special conditions that do not need to be mentioned in this article, makes of prime importance the study of experiences of other parties from which we can learn much.

I should like to tell some of the experiences of one of our sister parties, and its wonderful start along this line. In France six months ago the party was completely organized along the territorial lines which you find in our party. Today, Paris is 100 per cent organized on the shop nucleus basis. And while doing the job, our Parisian comrades managed to double their membership, and now have 15,000 members, 3,000 of whom were gained in the last two months.

The French party increased its numbers from 53,000 (May, 1924) to 76,000 (today). Reorganizing on the new basis in the industrial centers, and at the same time gaining 20,000 members is a real achievement. And it is evidence of the effectiveness of the new type of organization. Its lesson for us is, "Go thou and do likewise," and damned soon.

How France Reorganized.

Just before I go on to show how this was done, I must mention a few other facts of achievement. The French party in the same period raised one million francs ($55,000) as a party subscription, and an additional 800,000 francs ($45,000) for a special party loan. The circulation of L'Humanite increased 11,000, and is now 200,000. Party training schools have been set up, one of which (Central Leninist School in a proletarian suburb of Paris) was raided by Herriot in December. During the Jaures memorial parade the committee of action of the C. P. and the C. G. T. U. (Left Wing Trade Union Congress), was able to mobilize on the streets 200,000 workers under Communist leadership, because of the shop nuclei form of organization.

Now as to the methods. A certain shop in Paris with 150 workers had only one Communist, who was in a neighboring shop nucleus. When the campaign for reorganization began, his group sent speakers to his shop during the noon hour, and others to sell literature during the speech. It discussed his shop with him and planned and suggested his procedure. Three months later this comrade had a group of eighteen comrades in his shop, all propagandized during this time, and they have their own nucleus now.

The first shop nucleus started in Paris tried to work in the open, and in a short time its seven members were fired. Many comrades were frightened at this, till they realized they did not necessarily have to work openly. According to the Third Congress thesis before quoted, "Whether a Communist nucleus is to come out in the open, as far as its own surroundings are concerned, will depend on the sepcial conditions of the case after a serious study of the dangers and the advantages thereof." Thereafter this Paris nuclei worked more cautiously, with the basic idea that the workers in the factory were to know that a Communist group was at work among them, but were not to know just who were in the group. The effectiveness of this change is shown in the fact that when a large number of workers were laid off in one of the biggest auto factories in the world, located in Paris, only three out of a very large nucleus were fired. All known Communists would have been the first to have been laid off.

In another nucleus, where they had also set up a shop committee, the nucleus secretary, a known Communist, because he was also secretary of the party local, was fired. The shop committee demanded his reinstatement and secured it from the boss. This shows that a strong nucleus and shop committee not only need not endanger a comrade's job, but may often safeguard it. It is easily understood why there is now great enthusiasm for the new type of party organization in France.

Committee in Action.

One more instance. In the "Galeries Lafayette," the great Paris department store, which has a large London branch, the secretary reports the work of the nucleus as follows: A temporary committee is very important during the organisation of the nucleus. It must meet very often, daily or every other day for fifteen minutes, if possible, to maintain contact, and so that the committee will be able to sanction whatever the secretary does. This committee has a secretary and an assistant secretary, a treasurer, and four delegates, one in charge of general propaganda, one for the shop newspaper, one for education and one for trade union propaganda.

The secretary is in charge of political and the assistant secretary of administrative work. The comrade in charge of the newspaper is also correspondent for the L'Humanite, contributing to the "Party Life" column, trade union news, etc. This committee was still temporary, but a skeleton of it should be set up as soon as possible. In a couple of months the nucleus had grown to fifty comrades, propagandized from among the workers in the store. The nucleus meets three times monthly, two ordinary meetings, and one a full meeting on Saturday or Sunday, when all must be present.

Some who failed to come were disciplined. When the nucleus reached fifty, it decided to set a personnel budget for another fifty, so that after a total of two months work it might reach one hundred members. They are especially going after transport workers, mechanics, etc., since they now have mainly salespeople. A Y. W. L. group is being set up, a workers' defense unit (which the secretary would not discuss publicly in the press) and they are working on a shop committee. A shop newspaper is published by the nucleus, Red Calico, which is distributed by comrades who do not actually work in the Galeries Lafayette. Three hundred copies were printed at first for the 8,000 employes, and the number increased as its circulation grew. This was the second most important form of propaganda, the first being personal propaganda talks, carefully planned and systematically followed up by nucleus members.

Propagandizing methods are discussed in the full meeting, and the educational end is a full discussion of party questions and problems, such as international trade union unity, the Dawes plan, the International, Trotskyism, etc. In the unions they are advocating industrial unionism—the union in one organisation of salespeople, engineers, chauffeurs, and all others working in the store or vitally connected with it. The nucleus is attached to the 13th "rayon" or district. I have gone into some detail here because it gives us a picture of a fully developed, living nucleus at work. We can approximate this in this country in certain sections of the needle trades, mining industry, and others.

Besides the 500 nuclei in Paris, organized into nearly 50 districts with 200 factory newspapers, the northern industrial section of France is rapidly being reorganized. In the great coal fields and textile (Lille) centers in the north, despite the fact that this region is still the stronghold of the socialist party, 196 nuclei have been set up, half in the mines, and half in the textile mills, organized into 18 districts, and issuing 20 shop papers. The local party weekly, L'Enchaine du Nord, has increased from 14,000 to 18,000. The entire party has been reorganized into regions corresponding to the industrial and economic characteristics of the country. It was the shop nuclei which insisted on the expulsion of the right wing opportunists, Monatte, Rosmer and Delagarde, who, tho on the central executive committee, "fell for" MacDonald, Trotsky and Souvarine.

It would be very much worth while if comrades who know something of the experiences of our German party in its reorganization on the shop nuclei basis would tell us in the DAILY WORKER about it. That is the chief task before us, and we cannot know too much about it.

Views of Our Readers on Many Subjects

A Worker Travels Thru W. Virginia and Kentucky

To the DAILY WORKER:—The undersigned, a member of Harlem branch, Workers Party, New York, finds it necessary in connection with his work to travel thru parts of the south.

Kentucky Miners Unorganized

In the parts of West Virginia and Kentucky where the mining of soft coal predominates, as far as I have been able to discover, the organizations of miners are far from what they should be. Around the Clinchco mine near Elkhom City, Ky., I talked with some miners and found that most of the mines for many miles thru that section are entirely unorganized, and that as a result, the wages are much below the union rate. The workers are absolutely in the power of the greedy mine owners.

An incident which occurred today in Hazard, Ky. serves to illustrate more strikingly than statistics, the unfortunate plight of these unorganized workers.

I was doing a job on the Main St. of the town, when along come four miners carrying a stretcher, upon which rested the body of a man covered with a blanket. Nobody on the street paid more than casual attention. When I asked one of the store-keepers about the apparently injured miner, he told me to "wait a minute" and looked down the street. In a moment, he turned to me and said, "He's dead."

"How do you know?" I inquired.

"Well," said he, "it's this way; the hospital is around the corner and the undertaker's is straight ahead, and they're going right down the line."

"Oh, yes," he continued, "it's a common thing here, falling slate or something like that, you know. Almost every day the stretcher goes down the street and we can always tell when it gets to the corner whether a feller has been killed or not. I guess those fellers earn their money allright."

Said one of the by-standers, "Heard Jim was laid up, anything dangerous?"

"No," was the answer," only a broken arm or leg, something like that."

Mines Opened in Recent Years

These mines have been opened only in recent years. The towns which owe their growth and in some cases their very existence to this fact seem to be doing a very good business, so much so, that hundreds of traveling salesmen flock thru this section weekly, realizing that the sales opportunities in these mountains are growing with the growing mining operations.

Where Are The Union Organizers?

If the United Mine Workers were doing business for the workers the prospects for organizing these mines would indeed be much brighter. As it now stands, there is a real opportunity for a labor union to "line up" the men and remove a source of present misery to thousands and a future menace to the well-being of miners thruout the United States.

—Fraternally yours,
George E. Powers,
Hazard, Ky.

DAILY WORKER'S Mission.

To the DAILY WORKER: Comrade, Greetings: My subscription expires and I am hereby enclosing $6.00 for another one-year subscription. I, as a Communist realize the value of propaganda and a real working class paper. I am glad to say I have supported and am part of it from the time the paper was a weekly organ. I also realize the importance of the DAILY WORKER in the field as a battering ram against the lies of the plunder bund of capital and its pen prostitutes, also the slimy reactionary tactics of the leadership of the A. F. of L. and their betrayal of the cause of the working class for better conditions in their daily struggle with capital.

The DAILY WORKER must not be allowed to die for the want of the sinews of war against our common enemy, capitalism, we need the DAILY WORKER more now than ever. The lickspittles and lackeys of capitalism think by jailing our militant leaders that they can crush the revolutionary tide which is advancing against the citadel of world capitalism. But history will prove that no matter what persecution, despotism, and tyranny is used against the advancing hosts of labor, with the constant loyalty and true devotion to the upbuilding of a real Communist daily with a million subscribers, we shall so mobilize the masses for that which we are destined by history to accomplish that all the power at the hands of the capitalist oligarchy shall not be able to withstand the onslaught of the organized workers, once we are united politically, and industrially as a class under the banner of the Communist International, backed by virile Communist dailies thruout the world, showing fearlessly to the workers the hypocrisy of capitalist justice.

Schools in Shadyside, Ohio.

To the DAILY WORKER:—Several days ago in this vicinity the school children brought home voting cards, so their parents could vote for the church they want their children to attend.

We know that no matter what church they go to they all preach the same.

We know that the minds of young children are poisoned enough in schools, yet they (the capitalists) want to reinforce their poison with the aid of their churches. So that the children won't have a chance to think for themselves and for the interest of the working class.

You, the parents of your children have a right to raise your voice in protest against this attempt of the bourgeoisie. Don't let them poison the minds of your children.

You! The parents of young children, must teach them how to fight for the interests of the working class and not for the interests of the capitalist class.

If you don't teach them, then you are giving the capitalists a chance to teach them how to fight against you during strikes and war.

So make it your duty to have them join the Young Workers League, the only organization where the children get such an education to fight against strikebreakers, and against capitalist wars and for a workers' and farmers' government.

A Worker.

A Lesson For Young Workers

To the DAILY WORKER: My subscription expires before this reaches you. I feel deeply the loss of my DAILY WORKER, but try as I will I can only get scanty food for the house hardly able to get stamps to write, as I am seventy (70) years old; the capitalist employer looks and says to himself, "I cannot use him, he is too old; he ought to be dead and out of the way." But this neighborhood is all to the bad—no crops, on account of draught last year, no rain yet, mortgages coming due.

I have circulated the DAILY WORKER as far as able but have not been able to get one subscription yet. I hope Mr. Bailey of Hemet will send his subscription in. There are several poor devils who are begging me for more copies, and my paper goes out as soon as I have read it. I hope the seed sown will bring fruit in the near future. If I did not receive an allowance from the county of $12, we would starve. Yet they uphold the present system, a good many old workers go to the poor house and wait for the black bottle. My spirit is not yet broken, I will fight to the end. Long live the Workers Party! Long live the Soviet republic!

Fraternally yours,
Thorljus Rinden,

It Hit Home.

To the DAILY WORKER: Your paper of yesterday published an article under the caption of "Dawes' Plan Blows Begin to Hit Home". This is in column 1, page 2. This article is certainly a meaty one and deserves an immense circulation. I wish we could afford to print it in large type and make it to take up the whole of one issue. Feed us more of this. We certainly need it. I wish we could get it into the hands heads of the unemployed today. It might be useful to find out what Ford is doing in China. This placed side by side with what he is doing in the United States would help some.

Give us a little more about the internationalism of the textile industry and the patriotism of the American capitalists. Your recent article on "Textile Industry in China" was fine.

You have got to smash our crazy hopes before you can make us Communists. We don't begin to know yet that anything is rotten in the state of Denmark.

More power to your pen.

Yours fraternally,
John B. Price,

MUSIC · LITERATURE · DRAMA

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

The piano playing of Alfred Cortot, soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, always reminds me of a line in one of the poems of John Dos Passos:

"Shall I . . . . smash the imitation ivory keyboard that you may pluck with bare fingers on the strings?"

For this short and electric Frenchman works a miracle at the piano. He seems actually to transmute himself thru the vibrating strings. Anything he does becomes an example of the highest in the pianist's art.

The Schumann concerto is anything but a breath-taking stroke of genius. Cortot makes it a treat. A new work, of a type that is pretty much of a curiosity as yet, was given its first Chicago performance by the Symphony Orchestra. It is a symphony by an American, Daniel Gregory Mason of Columhbia university. The three movements of Mr. Mason's work are unequal, that is to say that the first movement is very bad and the second and third very good. In these last two sections there is much depth of thoughat and of inspiration. They are rather Brahmsian movements, with the addition of a certain inspired quality that Brahms lacked.

One notable quality of the music is that it has no characteristic one can lay hold of as American. The music of Sowerby could come from nowhere but Chicago. Goldmark of New York, even tho a Jew and hence less susceptible to national currents, also writes what may be termed American music. But the New England school, Chadwick, Parker, Paine, and Mason's grandfather and father, write music that is in imitation of the British imitators of Mendelssohn.

Altho he comes by direct descent from this New England school, Daniel Gregory Mason, in this new symphony stands head and shoulders above all the rest of the group, with the single exception of Gorge W. Chadwick. Edward MacDowell looks sick and anemic next to Mason.

During the course of Mason's symphony two instrumental feats stood out, first the marvelous, incomparable bass clarinet tone of Mr. Meyer, and secondly how Veseley built up a huge, house shaking role on a single suspended cymbal.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

A RECENT issue of the London Daily Herald carries an editorial entitled "The Foolish Rich." It deals with the tendency on the part of the rich to spend their money on riotous living or else use up all their energies in accumulating more wealth even neglecting ordinary pleasures. The editor of the Herald seems to be a good natured fellow and tho he pities the poor he also does not hate the rich. He opposes their system for scientific reasons. He likes to prove to them that they would be much happier under socialism. This argument is as convincing to a capitalist as telling a hawk that he could get along as well on baked beans as on raw chicken.

THE Soviet naval mission at Bizetta, French Algeria, according to news dispatches, has decided not to make any effort to move the units of the Russian fleet held there since General Wrangel use them to ship his defeated troops from Russian soil after the Red Army got thru with them. The ships are in such a state of disrepair that it would be impossible to take them home.

THIS decision robs Roumania of another excuse to get a loan from the west European powers for the building of warships for her Black Sea coast. Roumania had importuned England and France to object to Soviet Russia bringing the vessels thru the straits. No doubt the bandit Balkan governments may feel happier for a little while over this decision to sell the Wrangel fleet for junk, but world capitalism will not feel any more if the fears of a French politician about the terms of the Japan-Soviet treaty are well grounded. It is rumored that in return for Sakhalin oil and other minerals, Japan has agreed to build several up-to-date battleships for Soviet Russia.

IN view of Baroness Wrangell's visit here, ostensibly to collect funds for hospitals for the diseased members of her husband's army, it is interesting to note what the diplomatic correspondent of the London Daily Herald has to say about the Baltic and Balkan blocs against Soviet Russia. Yugo-[illegible] Bulgaria. The hostile nations have come to a temporary agreement on the following terms. The former agrees that the latter may increase the Bulgarian army to 100,000 men as a safeguard against Bolshevism. In return Bulgaria agrees to dissolve all political organizations working on her territory against Yugo-Slavia.

BUT the Bulgarian army cannot be increased to that figure merely with Yugo-Slavia's consent. The consent of the signatories to the treaty of Neuilly are required. What the Zankov government intends to do, is to equip the Wrangel army and label it a "security police." It is well known that the Bulgarian fascist government has not any money, and the big powers are not in a generous mood just now. What is more likely than that Mrs. Wrangel is in this country raising funds for her husband's Bulgarian army? It is reported that Henry Ford is financing at least one counter-revolutionary movement against the Soviet Republic. Perhaps the Baroness may shake him down for a large contribution.

A FRENCH scientific mission has arrived in Russia with the object of establishment of the metric system there. They have also offered to build factories for the purpose of manufacturing metrical instruments. One would think that the steady increase of commercial and financial relations between Soviet Russia and other countries shows a tendency on the part of

DIGGERS CANNOT REACH COLLINS, PINNED IN CAVE, BEFORE SUNDAY

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 6.—An appeal for money to aid rescue workers at Sand Cave, in their attempt to get Floyd Collins out of the cave where he has been imprisoned for a week, is receiving meager response. The appeal was sent out by the local red cross.

The rescue work is costing about $500 a day and only about $300 has been contributed thus far. The workers who are carrying on the rescue work are donating their time free of charge.

The digging of the shaft, in the desperate attempt to dig Collins out, is progressing at the rate of two feet every three hours. The shaft diggers hope to strike the cavern discovered by Collins a few feet from where he was imprisoned. It is expected that Collins will be reached by Sunday at the earliest.

MASS MEETINGS IN TEXTILE TOWNS RALLY WORKERS FOR UNITED FRONT AGAINST CUT

By ROBERT MINOR.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—The gigantic but hitherto silent struggle which has been going on during the past three to five months in the textile mills of all New England, where the owners are trying to cut down the workers living standard by ten to twenty-five per cent, promises to break its silence tonight with a great mass meeting to be held at Lawrence, Mass.

Meetings in Textile Towns.

Other meetings are scheduled for next Sunday afternoon at Middleboro, Mass., and Providence, R. I., the following Sunday, and in several mill towns in Pawtuxet and Blackstone valleys within the next few days, to consider organizational steps to fight against the general wage cut.

About five thousand cotton mill workers are on strike in six towns, New Bedford, Fall River and Middleboro in Massachusetts and Esmond, Pawtuxet and Natick in Rhode Island.

At least seventy thousand textile workers in thirty-six New England towns had their wages cut to the extent of 10 to 25 percent in the last two months. So adroitly is the whole wage cutting campaign being put thru that almost no organized resistance has yet been put up by the workers, altho excitement and resentment are at fever heat and spontaneous strikes are frequent.

Mill Owners Maneuver Shrewdly.

The mill owners are acting as one huge combination with skillful maneuvers to bring about wage cuts and speed systems in one mill at a time, while keeping other mills pacified.

From guarded statements of owners it is unquestionably the intent to reduce the entire 350,000 mill workers of New England to equalize New England wages with wage standards of North Carolina and Alabama where no unions have existed, and to eliminate all unionism.

Take One Mill at a Time.

The Manville-Jenckes Mill combine, controlling mills in seven towns, last summer inaugurated a general 10 per cent reduction, but taking one mill at a time so as to avoid united resistance. At Lawrence the Pacific mills laid off all employes, then hired them back a week ago at a 10 per cent reduction.

Union Officials Demoralize Strike.

Officials of the United Textile Workers, especially William T. McMahon, president of the union, are playing directly into the hands of the owners. McMahon tried to prevent the strike in Fall River, and after the strike was voted he persuaded the workers to postpone it for a week, demoralizing the ranks.

As a substitute for a strike, and instead of organizing a united resistance, McMahon is playing up proposals to have the United States senate investigate, to appeal to the general court of Massachusetts and to get civil bodies of business men to intercede with the mill owners.

Immediate General Strike.

STRIKE TIES UP UTICA, N. Y., TEXTILE MILLS

Other Unions Pledge Material Support

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Striking textile workers at the Mohawk Valley and State street mills of the Utica Steam & Mohawk Valley Cotton Co. are preparing to make a long hard fight against wage reduction which their employers have posted. Over 1,200 workers are out and the two mills are unable to produce goods. The strikers are already planning a dance and other means of financing the fight.

Daily Strike Meetings.

Daily strike meetings are being held with labor union speakers addressing the workers. Joseph R. White of Cohoes is United Textile Workers' Union organizer in charge of the strike.

He asserts that the Utica mills are quick to follow New England wage reduction tendencies, but "they do not follow suit when New England mills make an increase in pay. In 1921, the New England mills made a decrease of wages of 21½ per cent, the Utica Steam & Mohawk Valley cotton mills followed suit. But the year previous the New England mills had advanced wages 15 per cent. The Utica concern advanced them 12½ per cent."

Other Unions Support Strike.

James Hargay, vice-president of the International Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, pledged the support of his union to the aid of the strikers in a strike meeting. Other unions are expected to offer assistance as it is needed by the strikers.

Denial of the charge that New England mills had succeeded in putting over 10 per cent wage cuts is made to John D. McGregor, head of the Utica mills, by Organizer White. White points out that three Fall River mills are struck and others are likely to follow, and quotes Thomas F. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers, and the union's executive committee as favoring strikes at present.

White says that workers in other industries are gaining increases in wages and that department of labor figures show a rising cost of living, so that textile workers cannot take wage cuts "and continue to live on a decent plane."

Rhode Island Mill Closed by Strike.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Feb. 6.—With the 90 weavers striking with doffers and spinners at Greenhalgh Mills, the cotton factory is completely tied up. President T. F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers' Union addressed the general meeting of strikers before departing for New York. Organizer Francis Gorman remains in charge of the strike.

Meetings of workers from the Ninigret Mill of Fisk Rubber Co. are to be called to decide upon action against the 10 per cent wage cuts announced by the concern. More than 700 workers there are affiliated with the United Textile Workers' Union.

SEATTLE LABOR FAKERS START WAR ON MICHIGAN DEFENSE; THIRD OF COUNCIL VOTES RED

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 6.—The Seattle Central Labor Council last night by a vote of ninety-three to thirty-three endorsed a recommendation from the Seattle Building Trades Council that all Communist delegates be expelled from the Council. This action followed the events of the council meeting of one week ago, when against the bitter opposition of the reactionary elements Norman H. Tallentire, one of the Michigan defendants, was granted the floor to speak on the subject of Michigan syndicalist trials by a vote of forty-five to thirty-six. The reactionary element left the council.

Tallentire took the floor and subsequently a motion was moved to endorse the Michigan defense but a vote was prevented when the statutory hour for adjournment arrived. In the intervening week after the passing of the Anti-Communist motion of the Building Trades Council last Friday night, every available force was mobilized in order to carry the expulsion order.

Tonight's action followed a week of frenzied anti-red agitation accompanied by vicious personal attacks upon the district organizer of the Workers Party.

But One Communist Given Floor.

The members of the Workers Party who are affected by the expulsion order failed to get recognition from the chair with one exception of Paul K. Mohr, member of the Bakers' Union who secured the floor and made a splendid defense of the Communist position.

No other delegates from the Communist side were able to secure the floor in spite of the fact that debate of the motion consumed almost two hours time, speaker after speaker arising to denounce the Workers Party in what was apparently a prearranged schedule. Particularly vicious attacks were made by Johnson of Carpenter's Union, Flynn of Carpenters' Union, McMonnies of Granite Cutters and Bailey of Pattern Makers.

Communists Pleased by Vote.

The vote of thirty-three against the motion to expel the Communists was a surprise to the Communists themselves as many delegates who were among the forty-five voting in favor of giving the floor to Tallentire one week ago had in the meantime received specific instructions to vote for the motion to expel. Noteworthy exceptions to this rule, however, were the instructions given the delegates from the Painters' and Building Laborers' Unions who had been in-

BANKRUPTCY OF BERGER'S SOCIALIST PARTY SHOWN TO MILWAUKEE WORKERS BY NEW "CONFERENCE"

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 6.—The entire bankrupt "left wing" of the La Follette movement or what ever is left of it will meet in Milwaukee Sunday for the purpose of trying to perfect some kind of an alliance for state politics and also to send delegates to the conference for progressive political-action convention in Chicago.

The composition of the conference is far from having a class character. There will be very few unions represented and the majority of the delegates

WORLD BREAD IS WAY UP IN PRICE AFTER GAMBLING IN WHEAT

Wheat was hovering a little above the $2.00 mark yesterday, following a slump to $1.93, $1.93⅝ on Wednesday. Arthur Cutten, millionaire wheat gambler, is said to have bought heavily in order to bolster the market.

Trade in wheat on Tuesday was 113,000,000 bushels, being the largest single day's business since the world war.

The price of bread has increased the world over, and a verbal attack has been launched against the speculators. In Brussels the price of bread went up to one franc, seventy-five centimes per killogram (2 1-6 lbs.) Some newspapers are demanding an investigation, and the enactment of legislation against speculative operators. Bread has also gone up in England and Italy as well as in America.

Senator Cameron of Arizona has introduced a resolution into the senate providing for an investigation by the federal trade commission of any violation of the anti-trust law by speculators to inflate bread, wheat and flour prices.

UNEMPLOYED OF CLEVELAND WILL HAVE MASS MEET

W. P. Will Mobilize Them for Action

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 6.— The 50,000 unemployed workers of Cleveland have been invited to attend a mass meeting under the auspices of Workers (Communist) Party, the main purpose of which will be to wage a campaign for "Work or Wages" for the unemployed. The meeting will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 10, at 8 p. m. at Union Hall, 2182 East 9th St. A circular distributed among the unemployed workers of Cleveland asks the following question:

"Unemployed workers of Cleveland: Will you meekly accept starvation for yourself and your families? Will you continue walking the streets in vain search of a job? Or will you organize like men to demand Work and Wages?"

Call Upon All Workers.

And the same circular makes the following appeal to the organized workers and employed workers: "The present unemployment crisis constitutes a menace to every worker. Already the organized employers are launching an offensive against the organizations and the standard of living of the workers. Wage cuts and open shop campaigns are now the order of the day. Strike against wage cuts. Help organize the unorganized."

Glenn Young, Dead Klan Raider, Was Lester Mine Scab, Says Prosecutor

FACTS ABOUT HERRIN

1. Former County Prosecutor Delos Duty says he has it on good authority Glenn Young was brought to Lester mine by Hargrave Detective Agency in 1922.
2. Two bank robbers in Chester penitentiary say Glenn Young told them stories of his being a mine guard during the Lester mine riots in Herrin. They were his body guards in Herrin before they were convicted.
3. Miners say Glen Young's "prohibition" raids were efforts to uncover weapons that could be used to reopen Lester mine incident.
4. The widow of Ora Thomas says her husband got Christmas card with klan emblem saying, "Remember June 21, 1922," the day of the mine riot.
5. All persons prominent in prosecution of miners during Herrin trials, active supporters of klan.
6. Former klan member, a miner, told Mrs. Thomas he knows Glenn Young was sent and paid by chamber of commerce, which gave fifty-thousand dollars to prosecute Herrin miners.
7. Prominent lawyer in Marion says his belief is the klan is a movement to break up organized labor in Williamson county.
8. Ora Thomas, klan target, has been active and influential member of United Mine Workers since he was 16 years old. Was leader of fight with scabs and gunmen in 1922.

MINERS' UNION FOES AT TRIAL ALL KLANSMEN

Ora Thomas Led Attack on Strikebreakers

By THURBER LEWIS.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

HERRIN, Ill., Feb. 6—There is more to the fight in Williamson county than mere klan and anti-klan. Superficially observed, the fight takes on the aspect of a feud between two rival groups of people. Of course, there are rival groups. There wouldn't be a fight here if there were not. But these groups represent forces. The dry raids, burning of gambling houses and the numerous shootings constitute only half the story. The ku klux klan and the frequent gun play here in Williamson county are but the outer expression of the real forces at work.

The ku klux klan is organized to "enforce the law" in Williamson county. But why must it be Williamson county? It is no more "wide open" in the matter of booze and vice than any other county in "Egypt" (the name applied to southern Illinois in these parts). All the counties round about Williamson are "wide open" coal districts with mixed American, southern and foreign stock similar to that in Williamson. And of all the towns in Williamson county why must the fight center around Herrin?

Glenn Had Plenty of Money.

Williamson county is 100 per cent organized so far as labor is concerned. Outside Herrin on June 21, 1922, there were over a score of [illegible] gunmen killed when they attempted to open and run the Lester strip mine during the strike of 1922, and murdered two strikers.

A number of union miners were arrested and charged with the killings. Thousands of dollars were spent by the chamber of commerce and other anti-labor forces in an attempt to railroad these miners to execution. It failed. No one was convicted. The matter was dropped so far as the county was concerned. Most of the county officials, notably the state's attorney, were sympathetic to the miners. Apparently the affair was, so far as the most of the population in Williamson county were concerned, a closed matter.

S. Glenn Young came to town. He was well supplied with money. He said he had "cleaned up" Breathitt county, Kentucky, also "Bloody Breathitt," and that he intended to clean up Williamson. He found supporters. Bankrupt business men, adventurous minded lads of nineteen or twenty years, farmers, most of whom around here are enemies of the miners and even a number of deluded miners rallied to the klan banner that Young raised. In addition, he had about twenty shady characters, mostly outsiders, acting as his constant body guard and apparently paid by Young since they did nothing else.

Raiding Miners' Homes.

Home after home was raided. Miners were dragged out of their beds and taken to jail on charges of moonshining. No one was safe. No one knew who the next victim would be.

MPLS. LABOR ASSEMBLY SUPPORTS CAPITALIST PARTIES AND GOVT. AND DOES WORK OF OPEN SHOPPERS

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 6.—The Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly has adopted a new constitution with provisions that would satisfy the rulers of the American Federation of Labor.

Among other things, the Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly changed its name to Central Labor Union of Minneapolis and Hennepin County.

This change was made in order to make the labor movement in Minneapolis respectable. Organizer Smith stated that the name, Minneapolis Trades & Labor Assembly, was discredited and that it had the stigma of Communism attached to it.

Wants Recipe For Reaction.

A telegram was received from the Seattle Central Labor Union asking for the agreement that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor had imposed on the labor movement in Minneapolis. It was stated in this telegram by the secretary of the Central Labor Union of Seattle, that he wished that information in order to start a similar campaign to clean the reds out of Seattle labor movement.

The credential of Walter Frank, member of the Workers (Communist) Party, was referred to the next meeting.

The constitution committee brought in a proposal for a new constitution which was acted upon paragraph by paragraph. There is practically no difference between the old and the new constitution except upon the acceptance of the delegates' credentials. Every delegate will have to take the obligation, which in part is as follows:

Some Peculiar Union Duties Inserted.

"I, ... do solemnly and sincerely pledge my word and honor as a delegate that I will bear true allegiance to the American Federation of Labor, and that I will obey the rules and regulations of this assembly and to the best of my ability, perform all duties as a member thereof. I further pledge my word and honor that I am not a member of any dual organization or revolutionary movement or against the government of the United States, and that I will not become a member of such an organization so long as I am a delegate to this assembly, and should I do so, I shall automatically cease to be a delegate."

How Can Labor Fight Capital?

The Communists took objection to the wording "revolutionary movement or against the United States government" and pointed out that the government is controlled by Wall Street and for that reason the workers had to fight in order to be able to break their control. They also pointed out that the Declaration of Independence provides that if the people wish to adopt a new government, they are privileged to do so.

They also pointed out that no government has been established except with revolution, and by having the words "against government" inserted in the constitution of the Central Labor Union of Minneapolis, it goes further than the organic law of the nation in upholding the right of Wall Street to control the government. On motion to adopt this paragraph, 70 voted in favor and 11 against.

Also inserted in the constitution was an obligation that officers of the Central Labor Union must take, which word by word, is the agreement the executive council of the American Federation of Labor forced upon Minneapolis in exchange for retaining their charter. Sec. 12 of the constitution is as follows.

Nor Even "An Associate!"

"I, ...do pledge my word and honor before these witnesses, that I will bear true allegiance to the American Federation of Labor and this assembly and never consent to subordinate its interests to those of any labor organization of which I am now or may hereafter become a member. I will discharge the duties devolving on me as an officer of the Trades and Labor Assembly of Minneapolis and Hennepin county as described by the constitution and by-laws. I furthermore pledge my word of honor that I am not now a member of, or an associate with, nor attendant at meetings of the Workers (Communist) Party, the I. W. W., or any other dual or revolutionary movement."

Now, Let's See These Thousands.

After the meeting, it was murmured by the reactionaries that the labor movement in Minneapolis is now in order, the house is now cleaned out of reds. According to their talk, there are thousands of unorganized workers standing outside of the labor move-

TACOMA, WASH., LABOR VOTES TO ENDORSE THE DEFENSE IN MICHIGAN

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 6.—The Tacoma Central Labor Union by a vote of twenty-seven to three, after two hours debate, endorsed the Michigan defense on a motion submitted by McIlvaigh, of Machinists, and Haffre, of Longshoremen.

"ADVANCED" AMERICA—"BACKWARD" ARGENTINA

"ADVANCED" AMERICA.

Nine out of ten of a group of 3,300 working children in Philadelphia recently studied were found to be in "blind alley" occupations.

This is indicated by a bulletin just published by the White-Williams Foundation in co-operation with the Junior Employment Service of the Philadelphia board of public education. The bullettin describes a study of 3,300 working children between the ages of 14 and 16, three-fourths of whom were in manufacturing plants and one-fourth in commercial establishments.

Less than one-third of the children were in jobs calling for memory and judgment and only about one in ten was in an occupation requiring any training or length of experience to become expert. No specific or general training was being received in 40 per cent of the manufacturing and 20 per cent of the commercial occupations.

"BACKWARD" ARGENTINA.

Argentina passed a child labor law applying to the entire country on September 30, 1924. Under the new law 14 is the minimum age for employment in any industrial or commercial establishment. Children under 18 may not be employed more than 6 hours a day and 36 hours a week—a higher standard than exists in any state in the United States. Night work and employment in certain dangerous occupations are prohibited for boys under 18 years of age and women of all ages.

KLAN JUBILANT AT PACT PUSHED THRU BY SMALL

K. K. K. Left in Control of Herrin

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HERRIN, Ill., Feb. 6.—Klansmen here were jubilant over the agreement signed by Sheriff George Galligan of Williamson county, under pressure by Governor Len Small at Springfield yesterday. They declare that the agreement is a klan victory, leaving the klan forces in undisputed control of Herrin.

Galligan agreed to turn over the duties of sheriff to his deputy, Randall G. Park and to abolish his force of special deputy sheriffs, leaving in power only those klan deputies selected by the county board of supervisors, which is controlled by the klan. Galligan also agrees to leave Williamson county immediately and stay away until Small gives him permission to return.

"Hopeful But Not Confident."

The klansmen left in control promise to revoke the 900 gun permits issued by the justices of the peace, and to carry on no more raids.

"I am hopeful that the agreement will bring the desired peace to Williamson county," Galligan said. "It is only because of that hope that I sacrificed myself. But I am not any too confident of what will happen."

Governor Small, Attorney General Carlstrom, and Adjt. Gen. Black finally induced Galligan to sign, after several conferences.

Klan Won't Compromise.

That the klan is willing to accept nothing but complete victory was shown when it was announced that the "conservative party," a political body espoused by the ku klux klan, at a meeting last night had passed a resolution opposing any agreement entered into between the Williamson county board of supervisors and Sheriff George Galligan except the unconditional resignation of the sheriff.

The meeting was held in the first baptist church, where the body of S. Glenn Young lay in state after his slaying. The resolution was offered by John Ford, former chief of police of Herrin, new deputy circuit court clerk at Marion.

Parks Turns Down the Job.

MARION, Ill., Feb. 6.—Reports from Springfield say that Sheriff Galligan of Williamson county has agreed to leave the state and turn over his office to Randall Parks, his office deputy. The representatives of the local klan went to Springfield to attend the conference between Galligan and Gov. Small to press Small to remove Galligan, have, it is said, agreed to Parks taking the job.

Parks, however, says that under no circumstances would he accept the post of acting-sheriff. What effect this will have on the sheriff's resignation is not yet known.

The sheriff's office is the only county office not controlled by the klan. Galligan has been putting up a stiff fight. He has been threatened and shot at many times in the past few months.

It is no secret around here that Adjutant General Black's klan sympathies (some say he is a member) and the fact that Len Small was elected with the klan support in Williamson county, have a lot to do with the state refusing Galligan's request for troops.

It is understood that Galligan signed the agreement to leave the state under duress from Governor Small and the klan representatives in Springfield.

KLANSMEN FOES OF MINERS' UNION

Most of the homes raided were those of foreign born miners who are in the habit of making up a few gallons of wine a year for home consumption. Opposition to the klan grew. The opposition found leaders. Ora Thomas, deputy sheriff was one. There were shooting frays. Seven klansmen and six anti-klansmen were killed. The county was terror-stricken.

Glenn Young and Ora Thomas were killed on January 24, in a gun battle in Herrin. Sheriff Galligan asked for state troops. He was denied them. With the exception of the sheriff's office, most of the rest of the officials in Williamson county are klansmen. The board of supervisors are trying to force Gallagan out. He is an old miner and a bitter enemy of the klan. He has a good record and is still a member of the U. M. W. of A.

That is the story the world knows. But that is only half the story. That story does not answer the question: "Why should the scene of the Herrin mine riots also be the scene of Glenn Young's klan activities?"

Young A Mine Scab.

John Frothingham and Harry Stoyer, both gunmen, are in Chester, Illinois penitentiary for robbing a bank in Brownsville, Pope county. At the time of the robbery they were living in Herrin and acting as part of Glenn Young's bodyguard. Before reliable persons they stated that on many occasions Glenn Young told an anecdote of the Lester mine trouble. Young, the two said, claimed to have been one of the gunmen in the Lester mine and boasted that he crawled out and escaped the night before the battle.'

Delos Duty, state's attorney for Williamson county, in the trials following the Lester mine affair, told the DAILY WORKER yesterday, "I have it on good authority that Glenn Young was one of the mine guards brought down to run the Lester mine by the Hargrave Detective Agency of Chicago." Officials of sub-district ten of the United Mine Workers told the reporter in Herrin that they have substantial reason to state that Glenn Young was a strikebreaker during the railroad shopmen's strike of 1922.

Several miners who were interviewed, expressed the opinion that Glenn Young's raids on miners' homes were evidence to reopen the episode of Lester mine in the courts. The searchers, the miners said were intended to reveal plants of machine guns, rifles, etc.

To Avenge McDowell.

An avowed klansman told the reporter in a loud voice, "There are a lot of machine guns in Williamson county and some of them aren't found yet." A former employe in the Herrin city hall, a girl, said she overheard Young say on one occasion, "I don't give a damn about the bootleggers; I am here to make someone pay for McDowell's death." "Peggy" McDowell was the superintendent of the Lester mine who was killed in the attack of June, 1922.

Otis Clark, a miner, one of the defendants in the mine riot trial, was taken by Young in a raid last year. Young told him to pray, that his days were numbered and made mention of the Lester mine shooting.

Bob Greer's testimony in the mine riot trials was the most prejudiced and damaging of all witnesses for the prosecution. He is known to be a klan leader and was very active as one of Young's lieutenants in his raids.

Banker Supported Klan.

Earl Jackson of the State Bank in Marion, loaned Lester, owner of the Lester mine, ten thousand dollars for promotion purposes, prior to the Lester mine affair. He is a vigorous supporter of the klan. A. B. McClaren, a prominent business man, who was active in the prosecution of the miners during the trial, contributes ten times as much as any man in the county to the klan, according to klan members. All the men who were actively engaged in trying to get convictions during the riot trials, many of them former Lester mine promoters, are loyal supporters of the klan.

Ora Thomas, who was killed by Young supporters on January 24, had been a notable and influential member of the Miners' Union in Williamson county for many years. He had lived in Williamson county all his life and joined the union when he was sixteen years of ago. He was one of the leaders of the attack on the mine and is said to have been the one who rode the observation plane over Lester mine to direct the attack. He was an investigator for the defense during the trials. Mrs. Thomas, his widow, told the DAILY WORKER that on Dec. 23, of last year, her husband received an unsigned Christmas card on which was drawn a ku klux klan emblem. The card said, "Remember June 21, 1922." That was the day of the Lester mine shooting. Mrs. Thomas said the attack of January 24, of last year was but one of many attempts on the part of Young and his followers to "gang" her husband.

A former klan member, a miner who left the klan when he found out Young's real business, told Mrs. Thomas that Glenn Young was sent to Herrin and paid by the chamber of commerce and the manufacturers' association.

E. L. Stanford, editor of the Herrin News, told the DAILY WORKER he had followed Young's raids closely and that he found most of them were directed against the houses of foreign born miners. When the reporter called today on John L. Whiteside, garage owner, on whose shoulders Young's klan mantle has fallen, he refused to say anything for publication. He did, however, agree to give me an application card for the klan. One of the many tenets printed on the card reads: "Preventing unwarranted strikes by foreign labor agitators."

Mass Meetings in Textile Towns for Fight on Wage Cut

lation of speeding up systems proceed while the resistance is reduced to sporadic strikes of small handfuls of skilled workers in the union and spontaneous strikes of unorganized workers.

What the mill owners are playing for and getting much assistance from union officials to accomplish it, is to avert any general mill strike until March, when the season will be so far advanced that a big strike will be unlikely.

For a United Front Committee.

Five unions still exist in New England textile mills, all very weak. Almost the entire 350,000 New England textile mill workers are unorganized. A movement is gaining momentum in Rhode Island mill towns, as well as Lawrence, Mass., to form a united front committee of rank and file workers.

The purpose, announced yesterday in Providence, is to do away with the effects of the friction between the five fragmentary unions and to bring about a united resistance of all textile workers organized and unorganized under a single direction.

Not Against Unions—But for Unity.

The movement is not against any one of the five existing unions, but that it is determined that the division of the ranks shall stop and that all unions shall amalgamate into a single textile union and shall draw in the vast majority of the workers who are now unorganized.

Communists Engaged.

The Workers Party is actively engaged in many of the mill towns in support of the united front movement. Members of the party are taking a leading part in the formation of the united front committees and in the organization of mass meetings.

FRANCE SAVED BY WALL STREET BANKER ADMITS

Rockefeller Leads Prayers at Dinner

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Admission was made by Alvin W. Krech, chairman of the board of directors of the Equitable Trust company, that the loan of $100,000,000 to France by American bankers saved France from economic disaster. Krech spoke at a meeting of the men's bible class of the Park Ave. baptist church, on the subject of "Business and World Peace." John D. Rockefeller, Jr., acted as toastmaster at the dinner, held at 124th St. and Riverside drive.

Saved France.

"A year ago, when the value of the French franc was declining," said Krech, "American bankers made a loan of $100,000,000 to France with the result that the franc began to rise. Had we failed to lend France that comparatively small sum, and demanded payment of that amount of their debt to us, there is no doubt that the franc would have dropped as the German mark did," he said. Krech was trying to prove that the bankers prevent war.

England Faces Crisis.

"Altho Great Britain is making her debt payments regularly to the United tSates," Krech added "she is facing the most serious unemployment problem in his history."

ARMY AND NAVY IN BIG SQUABBLE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 6.—Brig. Gen. William Mitchell charged flatly before the congressional committee investigating the aircraft situation, that not only are the war and navy departments ineffectively conducted, but that the navy department deliberately hindered the air bombing experiments conducted by the joint army-navy air services off the Virginia capes in 1921.

Mitchell's charges were laid before the special congressional committee that is investigating the aircraft charges. Mitchell is also conducting a written controversy with Secretary of War Weeks over the management of the air service.

It is regarded as certain that there will be a more far reaching investigation that will cost either the heads of some of the high ranking officers of the navy, or of Mitchell himself.

Teachers Refuse Pay Boost on the McAndrew Terms

The school teachers held a special meeting of protest against Superintendent McAndrew's recommendation, which provides for a 10 and 15 per cent increase in their pay. These increases to be secured by using part of the funds obtained thru a special tax for the school board building fund. It was only after an energetic campaign that this appropriation was won for building new schools. The meeting's statement contends:

That the teachers of Chicago know there can be no increase in teachers' pay without increasing the tax rate for educational purposes. That they refuse to be a partner to any proposition that demands greater taxation until those big property owners who are not paying any taxes on their property be made to pay up.

The fact is, that this campaign is started by the employers. It has been stated by the capitalist press from time to time that if the extreme radicals were thrown out of the labor movement, the employers would recognize and deal with them.

Now, Let's Get That Dollar.

It was stated by Organizer Smith that the workers of Minneapolis would have $1.00 a day more pay if it was not for the fact that the labor movement was run by the reds. Where Smith had secured and on what basis he had gained this information, no one was able to find out.

From the time of the ending of the world war up to 1922, a vicious campaign to destroy the trade unions was carried on by the Citizens' Alliance of Minneapolis. The attack was not based on the fact that the Trades & Labor Assembly had some red delegates, but on the fact that the workers were receiving too high pay.

Only a Part of Wage Cut Drive.

Any one who has any sense of judgment, remembers that the capitalist press carried on a continuous campaign against the trade union movement. It picked out trades like bricklayers, plasterers, plumbers, and steamfitters, for their attack on the grounds that they were receiving nine and ten dollars a day.

Most of the business agents, under pressure, accepted reduction after reduction in wages and working conditions until the workers became so disgusted with their union that they left it and have no hope that the present ruling group is ever going to be able to secure anything for them.

The railroad shopmen, who in reality, were the backbone of resistance to the attacks made by the Citizens' Alliance, were destroyed during the shopmen's strike, and the labor movement has up to this date, not recovered any of its previous strenght.

Is there any sensible and honest worker who would say that the reds were to blame for the Citizens' Alliance attack, the shopmen's strike, and the fights that have been carried on with injunctions against picketing from time to time?

The Workers Are Not Deceived.

The Communists have always taken part in these fights for the purpose of strengthening and building a trade union movement that will function in the interest of the working class. They have been functioning on picket lines, on relief committees and as officials of strikes and have to their best judgment fought the battles of the working class. And the workers know it!

Try Any Salvation But Communism Advice of The Labor Aristocracy

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, thru its official organ, the Locomotive Engineers' Journal, makes definite announcement on behalf of all "railroad brotherhoods" that these organizations will oppose the formation of any third party at the Chicago meeting, Feb. 21, of the conference for progressive political action. That will be a bitter pill to swallow for those near-militants in the labor movement who crawled on the LaFollette band wagon last fall, believing that they were thus breaking with the two old parties. They find they are still sitting on the doorsteps of the stables that house the donkey and the elephant. That leaves the question of crawling in or getting out still before them.

• • • •

The Engineers' Journal, spokesman for the railroad brotherhoods, diplomatically offers a little sop to all the conflicting elements that compose "the conference," of which it claims, however, that the railway unions are the backbone.

If there are any misguided elements, it points out, that still want a "third party," then they can have it, providing it is only an educational society that will not interfere with the political maneuvers of the union bureaucracy in the Wall Street parties. The rail chiefs know that nothing else is possible without their support.

• • • •

As against the LaFollette claim that all third parties have been organized after national presidential elections, the rail chiefs now advance the argument that nonpartisan action as between the two old parties is "the thing" for the congressional elections of 1926, and that any threat of independent action must be held in abeyance until 1927-28, the eve of the next national campaign.

The labor bureaucrats are still content to work thru the old party primaries in an effort to elect "good men." They have come a long way since the conference for progressive political action was organized four years ago this month. But they have learned nothing, except to crawl backwards. But the masses that have been misled should have learned something else; to go forwards.

• • • •

The gullible are now informed that breaks with the old parties only take place during presidential campaigns when obnoxious candidates are put forward by the republicans and democrats. This presupposes that there can be "good men" for labor selected by the Wall Street manipulated conventions of these organizations; something that has long ago been driven out of the minds of masses of industrial workers and poor farmers. To these there is fed the following piffle:

> "Those international unions which do not favor launching a new party at this time make it plain that their official policy in no manner binds individual members, who are free to work for any method of political salvation they may choose."

• • • •

But the author of these lines must have had his tongue in his cheek as he gave birth to this idea. Evidently he doesn't want to know of the systematic war waged against Communists thruout the whole of the American Federation of Labor. Workers and farmers are permitted by the bureaucrats to choose any salvation but that offered by Communism.

But it is very evident that large numbers of workers and farmers, who have definitely broken with the old parties, will not seek any salvation short of Communism. They know the spurious brand that is offered them under the heading of "independent progressivism." They know that that is only good to lure them off the path that leads to the real struggle for power.

• • • •

When the C. P. P. A. meets, whatever there is left of it, in Chicago, Feb. 21, the capitalist bell wethers of this organization will discover that there are many oppressed who have made big progress since February, in 1922. It will be the desire of the labor aristocracy to continue resting in the soft lap, for them, of the capitalist reaction. But that soft berth will be made uncomfortable by an increasing number of workers who have accepted and will accept Communism as their goal. As against "independent progressive" political action for workers and farmers, the cry grows louder for class, revolutionary political action that will end capitalist exploitation forever.

The power of the Workers (Communist) Party grows as the mask falls from the conference for progressive political action and its allied organizations.

Labor Fakers in War On Michigan Defense

structed by their organization to support the motion on behalf of the Michigan defense laid over for one week ago which failed to come to a vote last night insofar as the Anti-Communist motion consumed all the time of the council.

Communists Oldest Delegates.

Under the rules of the council further action takes the form of specific charges against individual delegates which must be signed by three delegates to the council. In the event this procedure is carried out some fierce contests loom ahead in the near future as some of the oldest and most trusted members of the labor movement, with years of service behind them, are members of the Workers Party.

Active members of the council denounced the action of the reactionary clique and the manner in which the motion was railroaded thru the council many delegates leaving the council in disgust before the vote was taken.

The meeting was by far the largest in the Seattle council for two years and the interest aroused in Communists and in Communism as a result of this vicious attack promises in the near future to add many active and militant members from the ranks of the labor unions to the Workers (Communist) Party.

AS WE SEE IT

the bourgeois governments to drop hostile movements against workers republic. But while Soviet Russia is surrounded by capitalist nations just so long will they conspire for the downfall of the workers' and peasants' rule.

• • •

THE belief was sedulously cultivated by the capitalist class that anarchists were the most extreme radicals; men and women whose weapons were the bomb and the torch. They did not believe in collective action but in individual acts of terrorism. It was quite a clever move on the part of the master class to confuse all other radical working class organizations with anarchism, which is the antithesis of socialism. But the war and its aftermath has proven very conclusively that there is a strong connecting link between capitalism and anarchism.

THE ideal form of government for the capitalists is one that will interfere as little as possible with business. The uses, to which governments should be put in their opinion are, the suppression of the working class and the protection of one group of capitalists from the onslaughts of others. That was also the view of Samuel Gompers, who liked to call himself a "philosophical anarchist" in his cups. But the anarchists never showed themselves in their reactionary role until after the workers and peasants of Russia overthrew their masters and proceeded to build up a new order of society.

• • •

THE anarchists who posed as enemies of all government, had little difficulty in deciding whether they should support the governments of the robber class or the government of the workers. They could only choose between the two. They choose the former. Practically all the anarchist leaders, are barking in the capitalist press against Soviet Russia. They went farther than that. They organized attempts on the lives of the Russian Soviet leaders. Today, Emma Goldman is paid by the London Times to lie about Soviet Russia. She is warning the British government against Bolshevism, and is advising the king to take steps to crush Communist organizations. She is getting paid for it. The English anarchists uphold Emma. Fortunately anarchism was never popular among the American workers and it is not a serious problem in this country.

SCHOOL KIDS ON STRIKE AGAINST BAD BUILDING

Refuse to Move from Nice New One

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—No temporary solution will satisfy the 250 striking children of Public School No. 33 and their parents, according to the group's spokesman, Mrs. William F. Lange. Let by nine-year-old Ruth Fingerman the children refused to go into unsanitary, dark and dangerous Public School No. 5 when their teachers attempted to transfer them from their modern Public School No. 33.

The old building is 55 years old and is gas-lighted throughout. There are old-fashioned stoves to heat it so that only those near the stove are warm. Toilets are in open unhealthy halls and are used by street-cleaners much of the time.

Assistant principal Mellie L. Goodwin of Public School No. 33 said that No. 5 was all right, that she had graduate from it as a child, but she did not state how long ago that was.

The parents of the striking children organized to back up the fight of their progeny. They insist that they will not allow their children to go to the unhealthy old building nor to the flimsy portable wooden school rooms set in the damp yard over the drains.

MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION FIGHTS AGAINST CHILD LABOR LAW, UNEMPLOYED INSURANCE

If you don't know what the business of the Illinois Manufacturers' association is, the following paragraphs will give you a very good idea, as it is taken from the association's own literature. This literature, inviting employers to join the association for the small fee of $50 per year, contains an outline of—as it says—"what employers are up against."

Naturally, the association is prepared to assist the distressed employer, who is presumed to be "up against" labor legislation, and as such assistance can be obtained for the modest sum of $50 per year, while the benefits resulting from a defeat of the menacing labor legislation appears to be far more than the $50.

Bosses' Interest in Politics.

And what does the Illinois Manufacturers' Association do about labor legislation for the "up against it" employers? It maintains a "legislative committee" in each of the fifty-one senatorial districts of the state; it maintains a "legislative bureau" at Springfield (nasty people call it a "lobby"); a representative attends not only every session, but every important committee meeting; the high power general counsel argues before committee on every important bill, and a daily "pink sheet" is issued to members, listing each bill "as soon as it is introduced" and gives full information on it as it journeys thru the house and senate until it is either passed or beaten.

And what is the threatening "labor" legislation, from which the Illinois Manufacturers' Association is thus careful to protect the employers of the state?

Here are some of the bills and measures the Illinois bosses are fighting at Springfield:

Wants to Work Kids.

The ratification of the proposed twentieth, or child labor amendment to the U. S. constitution. The Illinois Manufacturers' Association wants child slavery.

The "Anti-Injunction Bill." The association says, "This measure which comes up at every session is intended to restrain judges from issuing injunctions in labor disputes." Naturally, the association of manufacturers objects to any weakening of the capitalist dictatorship.

The Very Idea!

"Two bills," the association says, "are intended to insure trial by jury to persons held in labor disputes for contempt of court." Manufacturers are fighting against these, one capitalist judge, safely trained and carefully influenced, is more dependable for bosses to use in dealing with strikers.

The women's eight-hour bill is given as one menacing piece of legislation, without comment as to the particulars of the case against limiting female labor to eight hours. Evidently the employers feel that such an outrageous idea merits no argument. The same laconic style is observed in the opposition to a bill providing for one day of rest in seven. To this bill the brief statement is appended that "This applies to male as well as female labor." How ridiculous that workingmen, or even working women, should be allowed a day of rest any time!

Then, the association opposes a bill requiring corporations, before hiring workers, to furnish evidence that they are able to pay these workers the agreed wages. Getting workers cheap is the main job, but the Association will help the bosses get labor for nothing if possible.

Keep the Unemployed Hungry.

Very important is the bill opposed by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association on unemployment. The comment is very brief, any manufacturer readily understands why he should be opposed. All that is said is: "This is a bill providing for payments of money to persons out of employment, generally referred to as unemployment insurance." There are many "persons out of employment" who are now receiving "payments of money." But they are not workers. They are the idle rich, and the money is paid by the workers, a part of whom are purposely kept unemployed and hungry to use as a "labor reserve" and to force down the wage level of the employed. The above is the program of the benefits of "democracy" offered by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

MARCUS GARVEY FACES PRISON

Conviction of 5 Years in Atlanta Upheld

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Marcus Garvey, head of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, was locked in the Tombs prison yesterday on a bench warrant issued by federal Judge Augustus N. Hand.

The warrant charged that Garvey failed to appear before Judge Hand for sentence on charges of using the mails to defraud. Garvey's conviction in June, 1923, was recently upheld by the circuit court of appeals. He had been sentenced to serve five years in Atlanta and was fined $1,000.

Garvey was arrested for selling stock in the Black Star steamship line, which it was charged, was worthless. Since his conviction, Garvey organized the Black Cross steamship company, which, it is announced, has just completed the purchase of the steamship, Booker T. Washington, which is said to have sailed for the West Indies from Philadelphia. Garvey declared that the steamship was purchased from the proceeds of stock sales to 3,600 Negroes.

Garvey claimed several million members in his organization, which covers several countries. The Universal Negro Improvement Association is said to be the largest organization of Negroes in the world.

"Movies in Russia and America," the Title of Kruse's Talk

A subject all the more interesting because it is slightly off the beaten track, "Moving with Movies—in Russia and America," will be taken up at the open forum conducted by the Workers Party of Chicago, next Sunday night, Feb. 8, at Ashland Auditorium, Ashland and Van Buren streets.

The speaker will be William F. Kruse, known as the "Camera Man of the American Communists," who has made the whole series of working class films with which the I. W. A. has delighted hundreds of thousands of American workers. In the course of his five thousand verst journey in Russia while making the pictures shown in three of the I. W. A. features, he visited movie production studios, theaters, laboratories and talked with hundreds of comrades in charge of the Sovietized industry. He will tell of the sabotage practiced during the early period by bourgeos and menshevik technicians, and of the splendid strides made by the new young Bolshevik movie men.

The American angle will not be neglected, the organization of the industry into one gigantic trust and its use by the capitalists to poison the minds of the workers in theater, school and elsewhere.

ANAHEIM, Cal., Feb. 6.— Mayor E. H. Metcalf, admittedly a member of the ku klux klan, was defeated in a recall vote here in an election run on the klan issue. Three other city trustees, also members of the klan, were also defeated. 2,295 voted for the klansman's recall and 1,820 against it.

CONN. SENATORS DEFEAT CHILD LABOR LAW

W. P. Sends Telegram Condemning Action

(Special to the Daily Worker)

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 6.—The Connecticut senate defeated the child labor amendment by a vote of 33 to 1. No public hearing was held, as the senators said their minds were made up, and nothing was to be gained by holding any public hearing. The senators evidently believe in government by a group, without paying any attention to opposition. The vote came as expected. The mill owners and other manufacturing interests employing child labor fear a federal amendment on the subject of child labor.

The chamber of commerce of the state conducted a referendum on the question, among its members. And wonder of wonders! The manufacturers are actually opposed to the child labor amendment.

Workers Party Send Telegram.

Last night the following telegram was forwarded to the state senator from New Haven:

"Connecticut state committee of the Workers Party condemns your action in refusing a hearing on the child labor amendment as showing contempt for the opinions of the working class. By your steamroller against the child labor amendment you reveal your subservience to capitalist dictatorship. Workers Party demands that you tax rich incomes for money to pay expenses of school children, so that their parents should not be compelled by economic circumstances to send their children to the factory. The children you condemn to child labor by your act will be part of the mighty army of workers and poor farmers that will establish a workers' and farmers' government and force you all to work for a living at honest work.

"Signed: William Simons, district organizer."

Also to Hold Conference.

The next move of the Workers Party is the conference for the abolition of child labor to take place Feb. 10, at 8 p. m. in Trades Council Hall, 215 Meadow St. Many fraternal organizations have elected delegates. Last night the district council of the Painters' Union elected delegates to the conference, thus adding to the trades union representatives who will be present.

The Telegram.

The following is the telegram sent to Senator Joseph Tone:

"Senator Joseph Tone,

"Dear Sir: You were elected state senator with the endorsement of many unions in this state. You are pledged to act in the interests of the working class.

"You are pledged in favor of the child labor amendment submitted to the state legislatures by congress. But merely to grant congress the power to regulate child labor is insufficient. Congress must also provide for the mintenance of the school children. Children are sent to work, because the parents do not earn money enought to support the family. If child labor is to be done away with, then the children must be maintained by the government. Where is the money to come from? From taxation on the incomes of the rich. This measure is one that a true representative of labor cannot object to, for if he does, he shows himself to be a representative of labor in name only, but actually a representative of the employing class.

"There are laws on the statute books with regard to child labor. These laws are insufficient. The state must recognize its responsibility for providing the money with which to maintain the children while in school.

"The Workers Party state committee for Connecticut calls upon you to introduce a bill in the legislature which shall provide for the payment by the state of all expenses necessary to maintain the school children; and that the incomes of the rich shall be taxed to raise the necessary funds.

"We call upon you to introduce such a bill, since it is of benefit to the workers and poor farmers.

"We expect to hear from you as to what you do on this point.

"Truly yours,
"Connecticut State Committee,
"Workers Party of America,
"William Simons,
"District organizer."

WORKERS GIVE EX-BARONESS COLD SHOULDER IN CHICAGO

By M. A. SKROMNY.

Ex-baroness Olga Wrangel is in Chicago. She is being entertained by "society," the parasites of the city.

Spat out by the great Russian revolution, the former counts, barons, dukes and socialists of the Abramovich type spread out all over the face of the earth as a batch of cockroaches dislodged by poison powder.

Dangerous poison to them is the power of the peasants and workers. The parasites, the majesties, the noblemen, are no more honored in the land of the Soviets. Nobody is bending their heads before them, nobody is kneeling any more. The peasant and worker unbent their backs and the parasites and exploiters all over the world began to shake with fear. Those who have been exploiting the laboring masses scattered to all sides.

The Russian people do not believe any more in defending the "czar, religion and fatherland." They believe now in defending their revolutionary rights which they won in bitter struggles at the cost of their blood and lives. They will not give up these rights to the Wrangels and their allies in the capitalist countries. The lickspittles of czardom will never again see a czar on the throne of Russia, the pomieschik (rich landowner) will never get back the land that was taken away for the peasants by the revolution, the capitalists will never get the factories back. All that was won by the revolution will not be given up.

Welcomed by Exploiters.

The executioners, the hangmen who are covered with the blood of the martyrs of the Russian revolution will be welcomed in the capitalist countries. Especially in the United States will they find many friends. The industrial kings of America, the exploiters of workers and poor farmers, all those who live by the sweat and blood of the laboring masses of America, will be glad to meet them. The parasites of "society" who are selling their daughters for the titles of the bankrupt counts and barons, will consider it an honor to be invited to the receptions that will be given to the ex-baroness.

The workers of America will meet her with contempt. The workers know that these barons and baronesses are only a new pastime for the exploiters between the dog shows and the races.

Perhaps the baroness will be able to get some money to renew the bloody murders in Russia. Perhaps the capitalists of the United States will make another insane attempt to down the revolution in the blood of the workers and peasants. Well, let them try it! The more attempts they make, the nearer they will come to their own end.

Dare Not Attack.

At the time of the first intervention in Russia the workers and peasants forced the United States government to withdraw its forces. On the French fleet at the Black Sea the Red flag was raised. The allies were beaten by the armed forces of the Soviet Republic and were forced in shame to retreat. If they once more more attempt to attack Soviet Russia they will be in danger of defeat not only from the armed forces of Russia, but from the hands of their own workers and peasants. The international solidarity of the laboring masses has grown stronger within the last few years. The power of the Communist International has also been multiplied. The next war may turn into a Communist revolution.

In the mean time, let the enemies celebrate! Let them arrange receptions for the former "noblemen." Let them make conspiracies against the power of the workers and peasants.

Power of Workers Grows.

A new power is growing in every land, including the United States—the power that can never be defeated, the power of the world Communist revolution.

The time will come when this power will sweep from the face of the arth all remnants of the czars, kings and exploiters and their servants and lickspittles.

In the meantime, ex-baroness, accept the honor and respect from the exploiters and parasites, and—the contempt of the workers and poor farmers of America.

MRS. WRANGEL HATES IDEA OF WORK, SHE TELLS LOCAL PARASITES

Leading society and business figures of Chicago gave ex-Baroness Wrangel a reception at the Potter Palmer residence, 1350 Lake Shore drive. She told how her husband's soldiers were "used to luxury."

"Picture these educated people toiling at the hardest kind of manual labor," said Mrs. Wrangel. She complained that "the work offered the Russian refugees is all of the hardest kind."

MACHINERY AGE AFFECTS FARMER

Hegira Into Industry Hurts City Workers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. — What modern machinery, motor and electric power are doing to farmers, farming and wage earners is to be discussed by technical experts at a conference called in Washington for Feb. 17.

In the call for this meeting it is suggested that the flight of hundreds of thousands of farmrs each year into factories, mills, mines and transportation will seriously injure the remaining farmers, and impair the standards of organised labor, unless it is checked or scientifically directed.

Plan to Speed Trial Of Murphy Charged With Bonus Fraud

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 6.—Plans were made today to speed up the trial of William Murphy, 29, who was to be arraigned here Monday, Feb. 9, on grand jury indictments charging misappropriation of $5,000 of the $55,000,000 ex-service men's bonus.

Murphy, according to the indictments, was guilty of irregular practices while an auditor of the service recognition board which distributed the bonus.

As he walked from the court room here Thursday after pleading guilty to charges of embezzlement and confidence game, Murphy was arrested on a Cook County warrant charging him with forging the name of Walter G. Schmidt to a claim for $800 bonus.

State Still Using Whipping Post Goes Against Child Labor

DOVER, Delaware, Feb. 6. — The state senate of Delaware has voted unanimously against ratification of the federal child labor amendment, which would give congress power to prohibit and regulate the labor of children under 18 years of age.

The lower house voted last week against ratification.

Delaware still uses the whipping post as part of the punishment of its law violators. It is most often used against Negroes. A bill designed to abolish the whipping post has been presented to the house.

For Textile Strike Victory

There is a deal too much of fatalistic acceptance of disunity in the ranks of labor, and the case in point is the fine resistance the rank and file of textile workers, organized and unorganized, it putting up against the wage cuts in the New England district.

Here is every potential element of a mighty and victorious struggle for the workers. Hundreds of thousands of workers in a concentrated, highly mechanized industry, in an area comparatively small, are savagely attacked and driven below subsistence level in a wage cut campaign, agreed upon and carefully planned by a national combination of great manufacturers. And this while in many industries wages are being advanced and the general cost of living is rising.

Tens of thousands are striking, but sporadically, in isolated groups. One mill's workers go back to work as another's come out. In one city the workers accept the cut reluctantly, in another a spark of militancy, such as is shown by the members of the Trade Union Educational League and the Communists, flames into enthusiastic strikes that close the mills.

Three vital needs are instantly seen by any class conscious worker. These isolated strikes, flaring up and dying out, must be co-ordinated into a great general strike that will sweep into its gigantic army all those workers who are hopelessly but reluctantly accepting the wage cuts.

Everywhere the slogan of strikers must be—"SPREAD THE STRIKE!" and again, "SPREAD THE STRIKE!" To other mills and to other mill towns and to other mill states—"SPREAD THE STRIKE!" The folly of the present union leadership is tragically apparent when it keeps members of one union, or workers in one textile mill, or in one textile town at work, while calling out little detachments in other unions, mills or towns and without general support to get defeated one by one.

Thruout New England the cry should ring till it rocks the hills and closes every mill—A GENERAL TEXTILE STRIKE! Every militant worker in the district who fails to take up this cry is not a militant, but a traitor to his class.

The second great need is the welding into one industrial union of the proven impotent craft unions, which are now demoralizing the noble resistance the mass of workers are striving to make effective. Unions must function to aid and not to obstruct the revolts of the workers against their exploiters.

The masses in the union must, if they ever hope to win, sweep aside with a stern hand, the self-important union misleaders and bureaucrats who oppose amalgamation of craft unions into one industrial union, who oppose a general strike and act as tho the bosses were not completely organized industrially with each mill boss' maneuvers being directed by a central body. Industrial unionism, based upon shop committees representing all workers in the shop, this is the second great need.

Another need calls out the whole working class—SUPPORT THE TEXTILE STRIKERS! Already in Utica, N. Y., we are glad to see hazy unions promising support. This must not remain in the hazy realm of promises. Material support, in food and clothing and other needs, must be rendered at once and with a generous hand. The whole labor movement should demand that textile strikers have a legal moratorium on rents.

The whole labor movement must at once interest itself in material aid to the textile strikers who are only taking the brunt of the battle which soon will fall upon the other workers in case they lose. Every militant must act in every union and act promptly.

Industrial unity, class solidarity and revolutionary audacity—these are the paths to victory in the textile strikes.

Dawes says he won't meet with the Coolidge cabinet. In view of the personnel of the gang and the explaining that Coolidge had to do because of his association with the Harding cabinet, Dawes, probably with an eye on the presidency four years hence, is playing safe. The spotty record of the swivel chair general cannot stand much more adverse publicity.

When the French capitalist press warns of a Yankee-Jap war, it is time for the American workers to sit up and taken notice.

The Communist press is the best antidote for the opium of the capitalist press.

Watch the news from the textile industry—the workers are beginning to fight wage cuts.

Baroness Wrangel

"She stood in front of one of a pair of marble pillars that flank the charming portrait of Mrs. Potter Palmer . . . . She has lovely dark yes, a slender petite figure and a gentle manner." This is the "society reporter" of the Chicago Tribune, describing the wife of one of the most bloodthirsty of the counter-revolutionary murderers who thru the civil war and blockade killed tens of thousands of workers and peasants in open warfare and caused the death of millions thru famine.

The baroness was received by the elite of Chicago society. She is appealing for funds "to be devoted to the care of the large number of tubercular refugees who contracted the disease because of the hardships they endured. Their one desire is to get well and to return to Russia in time to help that country in its reconstruction."

The sentence in italics tells the real story of Mrs. Wrangel's presence here. Her husband's bandit army is in Bulgaria and supporting the fascist government of the cutthroat Zankov. The mission of the "slender petite" lady is to raise funds to properly equip them for the task of returning to Russia, not to reconstruct that country on socialist lines, but to overthrow the workers' and peasants' government and to restore czarism.

This female parasite is made welcome in the circles of the jaded money aristocrats of Chicago. They who looked with amused unconcern on the starving millions who suffered thru the great famine, will weep over the tale of woe told by Baroness Wrangel about the trials and tribulations of the "heroes" who are watchfully waiting for another opportunity to slip back to Russia and cut the throats of the workers and peasants.

Mrs. Wrangel's visit has the same purpose as that of Abramovich, the yellow socialist. They are both actors in the evil drama that is now being rehearsed by the promoters of war on Soviet Russia. Abramovich plays up to the workers wherever he gets a chance. The baroness plays to the financial aristocracy.

The baroness will have a good time here in America. The male elite of Chicago society will get some much needed exercise in bending the knee before her. Their wives will have something to talk about. But the unlucky ones will be the "army of reconstruction" that attempts to restore czarism over the bodies of the Red Army.

If Baroness Olga draws out her panhandling tour long enough, she may have the pleasure of reading in the papers that the United States government recognized Soviet Russia. And perhaps she may enjoy a look at the red flag of new Russia flying over the Russian embassy in Washington.

"Our Colonies"

News reports, carefully hidden by capitalist papers in their advertising acreage, tell of the troublesome tenant farmers of the Philippines. It appears that "our colonies" are a bit bothersome at times, tho they doubtless pay very well for those of "us" who are financially interested in sugar, tobacco, hardwood, and other various corporations.

The present trouble, which moved "His Excellency" the military governor general, Leonard Wood, to the easy extremity of ordering a company of constabulary, armed to the teeth, to proceed to the Luzon province of Neuva Ecija was, however, a strictly class affair.

Landlords are the class enemy of tenant farmers, and true to the Irish precedent of shooting any landlord who dares show his face, it seems that the Filipino tenants who rent land from great landowners, native or foreign, is not specified, have a stubborn notion that the rice they raise belongs to them. The landlord, on the contrary, has a wholly capitalistic view of the case.

By demanding a high percentage of the crop, the landlords keep the farmers extremely poor. Before the crop is harvested the landlord, following the time-honored custom of "company stores," gets the tenants deeply in debt. A real peonage system thus exists in "our colonial possessions." When the crop was harvested this year, the tenants' share of the crop was promptly and, of course, legally attached by the landlords. The tenants are reported to have used some mass action in storming the plantations to get their share of rice. Rice means life to them.

Hence the constabulary. The boys with the Springfield rifles are to settle the dispute, and doubtless the same general result will ensue as when the government "conciliator" is sent into a textile strike in Massachusetts. To the landlords that hath, the rice shall be given, and to the tenants—a few shots on the edge of the jungle will suffice the needs of Amerncan colonial imperialism and the appetite of a wandering tiger or two.

But a new element enter the picture. The tenants are inspired, so dispatches say, by an unnamed "labor organization which encourages tenants to storm the plantations and take their share by force." The exploiter faces a real foe and the constabulary may, if this news be correct, ultimately face a union of all exploited workers and peasants, against which even His Excellency General Wood may be powerless.

The promising things in this dispatch are the spirit of the tenants, the existence of organization and the support of the tenants by a labor organization as against, presumably, native landlords as well as foreign oppressors. The DAILY WORKER hails these beginnings of the modern class struggle on the Island of Luzon, and in the name of the Workers (Communist) Party of America, pledges the workers and farmers of the Philippines every support against national and class exploitation.

BANKRUPTCY OF BERGER'S PARTY CLEARLY SHOWN

will be from the socialist party and student and liberal organizations including a large number of women's clubs brought to the conference thru laborous efforts of Mrs. Berger, a true companion of her worthy husband.

The liberal, chatting, singing and sewing clubs will be the largest element present.

Organized Labor Does Not Support the Conference.

Most of the unions turned down the proposition to send delegates to the conference and at the Federated Trades Council this question was not even raised, notwithstanding the efforts of the Hoan city hall machine.

Even the socialist party membership is revolting against this new plot of Berger and company and refuses to support the call to conference. In many unions where the socialists dominate the call was turned down without any opposition.

Socialist Label Bores Berger.

Berger, it seems, is the most anxious participant in this futile conference. Even the socialist label seems to bore Berger and he is anxious to accept a label that will not be offensive to the "public." There is no doubt that Berger will do everything in his power to get rid of his party affiliation and will jump into the new alliance if it is at all possible. Lining up with him are a few of the bankrupt politicians who aim to coin political capital out of the conference and a few reactionary officials of American Federation of Labor who under the cloak of the progressive movement conceal their extremely reactionary trade union policies. With this group of renegade socialists and union bureaucrots are lined up the forces of Lieutenant-Governor Cummings, an amiable christian gentleman who does not know the difference between the class struggle and a good glass of beer and who believes that all the evils of mankind can be solved by Sunday morning prayer.

5,000,000 Votes Fable.

The last elections exposed the fable of 5,000,000 votes claimed by the socialist party. Of the 350,000 votes cast for LaFollette in this state, only 45,000 were received by the socialist party and even this vote was gathered under the banner of LaFollettism. The balance of the vote went to the real LaFollette man, Governor Blaine.

The bankruptcy and defeat is seen more clearly in the loss of support suffered by Berger in the last election. In 1922 Berger defeated Stanford by a vote of 4,000. This year, in a three-cornered fight, he won only by a majority of 574 votes. As a matter of fact if the Workers Party had had a candidate for congressman Berger would have been defeated.

Berger Needs New Allies.

This fact explains the anxiety of "Comrade" Berger to get on a new proposition for the next election.

His following in the S. P. is fast disappearing and he is now in the position of the proverbial old maid of Rome. When the vandals came to Rome they were raping women and destroying property. Someone told an old maid that the vandals were in the city and she promptly ran out on the street shouting "Where are the vandals?" Berger will look for the vandals at the Milwaukee conference but much to his great regret the vandals will not look for him. Nobody cares for Berger.

Socialist Party of Wisconsin Demoralized.

The socialist party of Wisconsin is demoralized to a much worse degree than they were in 1922. The LaFollette alliance, wiping out even the formal differences between progressives and S. P., left the party no economic basis on which to maintain its identity.

The old maid of Rome is setting a romantic atmosphere for the meeting with vandals. The large hall in the auditorium will be closed to the workers and admission will be by membership cards only.

No one seems to understand just who the members are since the conference for progressive political action in Wisconsin is not a dues paying organization. That the conference will not take up any constructive measures besides an attempt to form some sort of an election alliance is becoming clear to every thinking and class conscious worker.

The workers of Milwaukee are turning for leadership to the only party that stands for and openly champions the interest of the workers—the Workers (Communist) Party. The workers of Milwaukee are learning a historic lesson and rallying to the support of the Workers (Communist) Party in its struggle against reformism.

CITY CENTRAL COMMITTEE HEARS MORITZ LOEB ON DAILY WORKER; URGES SUPPORT FOR RED REVEL

Building the DAILY WORKER was the main point discussed at the city central committee meeting, Workers Party, Local Chicago, Wednesday, Feb. 4, with Comrade Moritz J. Loeb, business manager of the DAILY WORKER. He told clearly the absolute need of the membership responding to an ever greater degree in order to insure the DAILY WORKER for 1925.

If the DAILY WORKER is to live and is to grow, the major efforts fall upon the Chicago comrades. This is plain.

Not sufficient has yet been done by the comrades and branches to make certain the existence of the DAILY WORKER, he said.

"Elect the best comrade or the best group of comrades to push the DAILY WORKER, Workers Monthly and other party literature," said Comrade Loeb.

Every branch must select a group which will visit the unions systematically.

The DAILY WORKER committee in Chicago will visit the branches more than ever to urge the comrades to recognition of the imperative need of every branch getting its quota for the insurance policies.

Shop Nuclei.

Another shop nucleus organized. Nucleus No. 7 was organized from comrades in the needle trades industry. More propaganda and co-operation in this field is required from the language branches and especially the language papers. Language units should provide special speakers on the question of shop nuclei reorganization.

Further and steady progress in trade union activity was reported by the local industrial organizer, Tom Bell. In the metal trades, especially in the machinists, our members have been agitating the question of Labor Defense Council work as well as carrying on a strong campaign in the Machinists' elections.

In the Carpenters our fight for reinstatement of the expelled members continues and the campaign has now taken on a definitely national aspect, as a consequence, especially, of the Detroit expulsion of Comrade Reynolds. Locally our comrades in the Carpenters are fighting the scab agreement and the officialdom action in not standing for a $1.50 scale per hour as is the scale with the other bulding trades.

Many meetings are scheduled with the various food trade groups in an attempt to crystallize a functioning food trades group. (Food Workers take note of meetings scheduled.)

Branches are being visited now by the industrial committee to line up the unorganized party members into the unions.

Elections Campaign.

In the elections campaign progress is reported. In the remaining three weeks the campaign of meetings and literature destribution must be greatly intensified. Branches are expected to send in the names of comrades who are active up till now in the campaign. All branches must purchase a batch of election campaign leaflets and make a special donation to help carry on the campaign.

The elections committee met Friday night to take up future activities.

Party School Proposed.

Comrade Gomez reported on the district committee's action to start a party school dealing with the problems of principles, tactics and organizational functioning in the Communist movement, to begin about April 1. Pupils will be brot in from outlying towns in the district as well as from the city of Chicago. The courses are now being prepared and the next job is that of raising some additional funds to defray the cost of out of town Communist students.

Comrade Lerner has taken hold of Comrade Browder's class in elementary economics meeting every Wednesday at 722 Blue Island Ave. Comrade Henderson's class for new members in the party is functioning very well whose support from the language branches is asked for. Open forum conducted every Sunday.

New members taken into the party at the C. C. C. were:

Labor Defense United Front Conference, Feb. 26.

Responses are coming in regularly from unions for Labor Defense Council for Feb. 26, at 180 W. Washington St., 8 p. m., Room 301 and a large conference of delegates from unions, fraternal organizations, W. P., Y. W. L. is expected. Language groups are expected to try to organize special language defense conferences similar to those organized by the Slavic speaking comrades. There is now being organized a conference by the Russians.

The Labor Defense conference will also take up the Sacco Vanzetti case. A Sacco Vanzetti protest meeting will be held on March 1 in the Emmet Memorial Hall, at 2 p. m.

Anti-Wage Cut Campaign Begun.

The central executive committee of the party has issued a specal leaflet for the campaign against wage cuts, a leaflet has been issued analyzing the economic situation before the workers today and urging the necessity of organized resistance. All branches should order this leaflet at $3.00 per thousand at once and make arrangements for city-wide distribution in shops and factories of this agitational and rousing leaflet.

On the child labor campaign, as a part of the general united front campaign initiated thru the Workers Party against the united front attacks of the capitalist class, our members in the unions and other working class organizations must agitate this live issue and pass resolutions demanding the ratification of the national child labor amendment by the Illinois state legislature and further demanding that the children be taken out of the factories and full support given them by the government.

Continue agitation against participation in the conference of progressive political action conference, a bourgeois outfit insiduously working against the interests of the workers.

Tho a Revel, Yet It is Red.

All comrades on the job to put over the historic red revel on the 28th of February. And lest you forget, get ready for May Day.

Next meeting of City Central Committee, Wednesday, Feb. 18, at 722 Blue Island Ave.

On with Communist work.

FIGURES IN AMERICAN LABOR HISTORY

BY THURBER LEWIS

NO. .

Thomas Skidmore

The First American Agitator

THOMAS SKIDMORE was a rebel who did his fighting around the 1820's and 30's. Being a rebel was hard the first half of the last century. It was at that time that the proletariat began to assume the proportions of a class. It was then that factories began to play an important role in the life of the nation. Skidmore made a real contribution to the first attempts of the American working class towards organization.

Skidmore was a proletarian, machinist by trade. In 1829 the bosses of New York made a move to raise the hours of work for journeymen from ten to eleven. The workmen were up in arms. Skidmore called a meeting of all the mechanics in New York City. He saw further than the ten hour day demand. He was politician enough to know that if some really radical demands were put forward the bosses would forget about the eleven hour day. They did—when they saw the resolution Skidmore got the working men of New York to pass at their first meeting.

"Resolved that all men hold their property by the consent of the great mass of the community, and by no other title," said the resolution, "and that a great portion of the latter hold no title at all, and that, in lieu thereof they have a right to equal participation with others thru the means of their labor." That settled the eleven hour day. The owners of little old New York saw they had a bigger job on their hands.

The working class of New York City began to feel their power. Then they began to use it. They organized a political party. They called it the Workingmen's Party. Skidmore wrote the platform. It said: "Before the great mass of the community can be saved from the evils under which they now suffer, a revolution must take place such as shall leave behind it no trace of that government which has denied to every human being equal food, clothing and instruction at the public expense."

Tammany Hall went crazy. The bankers and commercial interests in and about the city saw the coming of a revolution. When the elections were held, six thousand out of New York's twenty-one thousand votes went to the Workingmen's Party.

Then the reformers stepped in. Robert Dale Owen, oldest son of the English utopian, Robert Owen, branded Skidmore's program as "crude, immaturely digested and hastily passed." "The working men," he said, "were in need of enlightened friends to aid them by prudent suggestions." Skidmore didn't think so. He claimed the workingmen were able to take care of their own affairs. When the party "Committee of Fifty" was elected he said. "Nineteen of them are rich men and have no business there."

But Skidmore and his little band of followers were not strong enough. The reformers took the teeth out of the movement and made a real working class upsurge over into a tame demand for free education. The bankers breathed easily again. Skidmore had done his work. It is not surprising that he failed. It was not Skidmore's fault. He merely lived too soon.

"The idea becomes power when it penetrates the masses."

Veterans of the Russian Revolution Meet

By M. A. SKROMNY.

AN interesting meeting of old time political prisoners, in fact the oldest living ex-politicals, was held recently in Moscow. Most of them were of the Schlusselburg group, that is, people who were imprisoned in the fortress of Schlusselburg, the Bastile of Russia. We are reproducing here some of them.

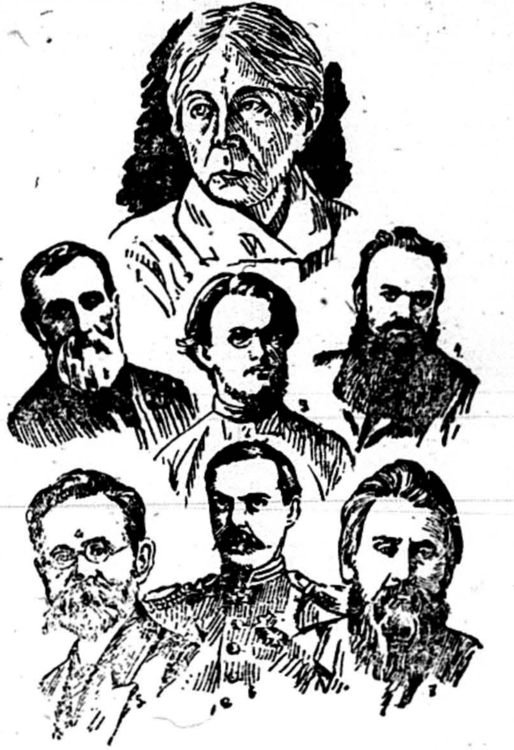
The younger comrades who think sometimes that the work in the movement is hard and tiresome, who sometimes become apathetic, may learn something from these veterans. Read their short life sketches. There is no fiction or poetry in them. Just dry facts. If we would tell of the horrors of the czarist Katorga, give the stories of the most terrible jails and of the work in the mines, that would probably add to the mental picture of the sufferings of these heroes of the revolution. But we did not want to make a "story" out of it. Just a short biographical sketch. Read it over.

The first one on top is Vera Figner, a member of the revolutionary movement since 1873. Was an active member of "Zemlia i Volia" and later of "Narodnaya Volia" (The Will of the People). Participated actively in the assassination of Alexander II., and all other activities of the organization. Was a member of the military committee, arrested in 1883. Given a death sentence, but it was changed to katorga (hard labor) for life. Was about 20 years in prison. Liberated in 1904 and went abroad.

The first in the second row is Michael Frolenko. In the revolutionary movement since 1872. In 1878 he became a guard in the jail where the revolutionists Deitch, Stefanovich and Bochanovski were held for the purpose of liberating them. On May 27 of the same year he succeeded in leading them all out to freedom. He participated in all terroristic work of the Narodnaya Volia, including the assassination of Czar Alexander II. Arrested March 17, 1881. Sentenced to death, but the sentence was changed to life in katorga (hard labor). Liberated by the revolution of 1905 and went abroad. Was in jail 24 years and 8 months.

The second in the second row is Michael Novorusski. Joined the revolutionary movement in 1886. Arrested in 1887. Was accused of participating in the attempt to assassinate Czar Alexander III. Sentenced to death. Sentence changed to life in Katorga. Was imprisoned 18 years and 6 months. Liberated by the revolution of 1905.

EX-POLITICALS OF RUSSIA



The third in the second row is Michael Shebalin, a member of the revolutionary movement since 1880. Was arrested in 1884 with an underground printing plant of the Narodnaya Volia. Sentenced to life in Katorga, but later changed to 12 years. Was in jail for 12 years. After that banished for life to Siberia. Was there for 10 years. Liberated by the revolution in 1905.

The first in the third row is Nicolai Morosov. Member of the revolutionary movement since 1874. First time arrested and sentenced in 1878. Participated actively in the terrorist work of the Narodnaya Volia. Arrested again in 1881. Sentenced to death. Sentence changed to 20 years katorga. Was in jail a total of 29 years. Liberated by the revolution of 1905. Sentenced again to one year in the fortress in 1912 for a poem.

The second in the last row is Michael Aschenbrenner. Born in a family of "nobles." Member of the military organization of the Narodnaya Volia. In the revolutionary movement since 1879. Worked for the party in the army all over Russia. Arrested in March 1883 when 40 years old. Was a colonel in the army when arrested. Sentenced to death by hanging, but sentence was changed to life in Katorga. In 1896 sentence changed again to 20 years. Liberated in September 1904. Was in jail 22 years.

The third in the last row is Dimitri Surovzev, son of a priest. In the movement since 1874. Was arrested and banished to Siberia in 1876. Escaped in 1878. Arrested again in 1882 in Odessa. Sentenced to 15 years katorga. Served all 15 years. After that, in 1896, banished for life to Siberia. Remained there 19 years.

This is, in short, the story of the above comrades who were among the first to raise the banner of revolt against czardom in Russia. While they were in the jails at hard labor, their comrades kept up the fight which finally resulted in victory, in the overthrowal of czardom and capitalism and the establishment of the first workers' and peasants' Soviet republic in the world.

Physical Culture In U.S.S.R.

By N. SEMASCHKO
Chairman of the Central Council for Physcal Culture.

THE Soviet Union is the country of the worker. The Soviet Union is surrounded by bourgeois enemies. These two features which characterize the position of the Soviet Union determine its immediate tasks regarding physical culture.

The foundation of the Soviet system is labor. The most important duty of the republic of the workers is therefore to maintain the working capacity of the population, and preserve and develop the young sources of creative power of the country. Physical culture in our Union chiefly serves this purpose and aims in this direction.

The bourgeois-capitalist environment is another factor which induces us to devote a corresponding attention to the development of the protective power of our army. As it is, our army is at present built up on the territorial principle. It is, as a matter of fact, a part of the working population. The first task (improving the health of the population) is thus inseparably linked with the second (increasing the fighting capacity of the army).

The tsarist system has bequeathed us a very burdensome inheritance as regards to physical culture. Tsarist Russia was a country with a tremendously high rate of mortality: about three million persons died every year. The chief causes of death were the so-called "everyday illnesses", the various forms of typhoid fever, cholera, smallpox, infantile diarrhoea, and syphilis, which was not due to sexual intercourse. About twenty-five per cent of all diseases were such "everyday" illnesses. In a population so backward in culture the most elementary hygienic habits were lacking.

Handicapped by such an inheritance, the Soviet government had to train the population in physical culture.

The sense of the necessity for physical culture seized hold of the widest circles of the active workers. It is only a year since the Central Council for Physical Culture at the Presidium of the All-Russian Central Executive was founded, and already, on a moderate estimate, millions of workers are practising various forms of physical exercise. The youths were the first to respond to this call. The C. Y. P. A. R. (Communist Youth League of Russia) was a pioneer of the idea of physical culture. At every congress of the C. Y. P. A. R. members were urged to take a really active part in this movement, and there is at present no group of the C. Y. P. A. R. which does not, in some form or other, take part more or less in the general movement.

The trade unions also have taken up keenly the idea of physical culture They grasped at once that physical culture is, for the workers, the fundamental prerequisite for their personal well-being and for the improvement of the national economy. The trade unions also had a decisive influence on the nature of the physical exercises. For the workers, physical culture is not a means to hypertrophy in one particular direction (and therefore injurious)—it is no bourgeois sport which produces champions with strong fists and weak brains. Physical culture in a workers' state is a powerful means for the harmonious development of the mental and physical forces of man. The physical exercises are also intended to counterbalance the injurious sides of certain occupations. Thus, for occupations which involve for instance the breathing in of dust, noxious vapours, etc., exercises are organized which differ from those for occupations associated with abnormal positions of the body (carpenters, turners, shoemakers, etc.) The idea of physical culture has become popular among the troops. Physical exercises are a part of the system of military training. In this way the ideas of physical culture not only permeate the Red Army, but are also carried by the territorial divisions to the towns and villages of our extensive Union.

The Soviet physical culture has no easy fight against the remains of the old bourgeois sport (even now this struggle has not come to an end). We are of course not opposed to sport. On the contrary, we regard sport as one of the most important factors in the development of the body. We are, however, opposed to sport which does not promote health, but cripples the individual; we disapprove of sport which does not promote human feelings in man but turns him into a brute.

In order, however, to direct the physical training in this way towards a "eugenic" goal, the goal of the harmonious development of all the forces of the individual, it was necessary to form a staff of well trained instructors. The State Institute for Physical Culture of the People's Commissariat for Health has undertaken this task and, during the six years of its existence, has specially educated several hundred doctors and pedagogues for this function and, in short training courses, has prepared special instructors for various factories and assigned them for this purpose to the factories in question.

The Stockyards - -

By JOHN LASSEN

I asked a worker where the stockyards are and how I could best reach them. He tells me by the street car line and says that I could read in the car with tranquility—"As soon as we get near it, you will smell it right away."

What he said was true.

A terrific, pervading stench enveloped the car. A stench that bursts into the nose, that penetrates the brain and remains there a long time. One feels it for days. When one eats, when one goes in the street, when one sees meat.

Seen from outside, the neighborhood of the stockyards would not attract special notice. A broad street. Animation. The offices of the stockyards. The cattle market. Officials. Police. Inspection stations for the cattle. A division for the department of agriculture. In the street, mounted messengers gallop by, and I notice also a saddle factory.

Suddenly a loud bellow pierces the air. A dead ox in a cart. Bloody and dirty. And another dead ox. It may have died on the way.

The stench which infects the air over a stretch of ten blocks, grows stronger and stronger in the broad street. And the number of mounted messengers grows continually. The rhythm of life increases from one moment to the next. Now a line of carts crosses the street—the carts are like prairie dogs. The line of carts is loaded with manure which is transported from the cattle pens for freighting.

All of a sudden a horrible bellowing makes the air tremble. This is not the bellow of cattle pasturing on the open prairies of the wild west. The animals seem to feel that what is happening here is the beginning of the end. The bellowing spreads. It mixes with other sounds coming out of the depths.

The cattle are crowded in pens. The watering troughs are connected by canals.

Cattle, cattle everywhere.

All of America's cattle seem to have been driven here. And now the cattle stand here. Penned up. Bellowing. Waiting for the last moment. There is no rescue from these enclosures. Men come. Terrible to look upon with their clubs. These men push in among the cattle. The closely crowded cattle. And they swing their hard clubs. The defenseless, abandoned beasts look up at them with fright in their eyes.

Now comes a troop of cowboys. Noisy. Yelling. The cowboys yell here in Chicago the same as in the wild west. The cattle hesitate a moment at first, then they rear. They defend themselves, and their bellowing breaks out like a veritable hurricane.

The cattle are in commotion. They strain in the direction of a bridge. The bridge bears a resemblance to the bridges of Venice. It connect the two sidewalks and vaults over the street in an arch. This is the bridge of sighs. A cowboy yells. One of the cattle bellows. The many cattle trot in that direction. Even the bridge seems to have acquired a voice. It is as if the tones do not break out of the animals, but that the bridge itself were wailing, bellowing, sobbing.

The cattle push on.

A few minutes later the railroad trains spit out new loads. The enclosures fill up again.

Mounted messengers gallop by in the street.

A little further off are the sheep. Not all of these go to the death machines today. Three men stand in the midst of the herd. A red, chalky substance in the hand. Every animal on which the red mark is stamped lives its last day. Do the sheep know it? Terrible fear quivers in their eyes, the horror of the unknown. A struggle begins. The sheep want to flee from the red mark. They rear. They want to break thru and away over the bodies of other sheep. They want to hide.

But whither?

There is no refuge.

If a sheep is picked out by the man's eye, it is lost.

The animals are driven from the enclosures.

The sheep push forward in the street.

The odor becomes unbearable. Here is the assembling point for hogs. The grunting does not stop for a moment. Just as piercing as their odor.

The hogs get nothing to eat before their slaughter, for it is easier to work on them this way.

The hogs are hungry, they burrow eagerly in the ground. They too, are filled with uneasiness. Death hangs here in the air. A yelling bursts out. The hogs start moving. They are counted. The line seems never to end. It is the last road. . .

The hogs hasten forward in the street.

Beasts . . . beasts. . .

A jumble of people.

One is tired from seeing and hearing.

Beasts . . . beasts. . . .

And all are being killed.

• • •

What is the fate of the hog?

We go into the building.

The scene:

We stand on a bridge. Underneath us a wheel. A wheel that never stands still. And a sound cuts thru the air. In the din which is overwhelming, this very sound itself becomes part of the scene. It comes out of the depths. A shrieking sound of self-defense, which has not the slightest bit in common with the sound a hog makes, but seems much more as if coming from a child. A child, a little child, which is in the neighboring house, and whose shrill, bitter entreaty gives the same feeling as if on a feverish night one is tormented by the impression that a criminal is just getting ready to cut a child's throat.

• • •

The hog is hanging in the air.

The wheel turns.

The hog is seen swinging on the turning wheel, the constantly moving wheel. And chains hang down from the wheel.

A Negro seizes the hog's hind legs One does not see how the hog came down. A cry breaks out now. The hog defends itself. And the wheel revolves. Revolves without a stop and pulls the animal along. Now it is in the air with the hind legs upward. And it suddenly is struck dumb. It is bound against the wheel and is dumb.

A second hog.

Ceaselessly, one after the other, without interruption.

Thirty head a minute. Two seconds are enough for one hog. The wheel revolves. Does not stop an instant. The chain pulls past, the ever-revolving chain which comes ever back again.

The stunned animal with head hanging towards the ground reaches the first man. No halt is made here either. The wheel revolves. The chain pulls past. Rolls on. The eternal chain. Together with the hog. It is still living, but is completely stunned. It gets the death blow from the first man.

This is a powerful Negro. A knife in his hand, shod in high rubber boots.

With the knife he pierces the heart of the hog. Thirty hogs a minute. The Negro stands in blood. He drips blood. The room in which this goes on is in the form of a basin. The blood has a fearful odor. The blood spurting in every direction. The blood in which they wade here.

The room is red. The man is red. From the red blood.

It is a question of always making the same movement. One must be skillful, quick. One must guess exactly the place where to stab. The wheel revolves, Thirty hogs must be slaughtered in a minute.

Blood . . . blood. . .

The Negro looks up a moment. Two hogs still alive are dangling from the chain against each other. He must hurry. He must make the movement more quickly. The Negro is red. Drips with blood. His hands. His face. His boots. His cap. His overalls. Everything here drips with blood.

From the enclosure nearby can still be heard a last rattle. Here, however, only blood prevails.

The hog is already dead now. The chain swings off, and the animal together with it.

A long way still lies ahead of it.

On this floor it has to move further on along a winding route. The men sit here along the chain in two long rows. The dangling hog moves past them. Six hundred men work in this one big room. The room seems to stretch off into infinity.

Every worker has a single motion to perform. Here, too, there is no pause. Everyone must do his own work with the same speed with which the hog is slaughtered. Thirty movements in one minute. The same movement thirty times. Exact to a hair.

The hog moves in quick measure from one to the other. The second man slits open the belly, the third has to make a further cut; then the intestines have their turn. At one point the bristles are removed. At the next the dirt is swept away . . .

Further than that the hog is disposed of in various ways.

One part goes entirely to the refrigerating room. Another is cut up and dressed. To the animals themselves this should be of no concern.

The chain reaches one floor higher up, still loaded with the hogs. Those which reach the highest floor undergo a complete process of treatment.

On this floor the hogs are divided into pieces. This work too, goes on at a breathless pace. Here they work with axes. Moving tables advance the meat further on. The axes whizz downwards. Always on the same place. The fat is cut away. Every piece has the same shape.

From there everything goes to the salting rooms, where the separate pieces remain thirty-six hours.

In the packing rooms again a flood of workers. Here too, each one performs a single movement . . . without a let-up, without a pause, one and the same movement. . . .

Swift & Co. . . Best quality . . . That is the way the meat is advertised.

The meat . . . the bloody . . . bloody meat. . .

The cattle are slaughtered by a different method, but the essential does not change. Fourteen cattle are handled at once. Here too, the way leads over a bridge from upon which the whole room can be surveyed. Here too, the men are bloody. And the floor is bloody. The axe is bloody.

Fourteen cattle are awaiting their turn. There are two cattle in each of seven enclosures. They do not bellow. At least their bellowing is not audible.

It is so far off.

Hurry up!

Everything is ready. The chains. The people. The axes. Twelve o'clock is near. The men are already tired. The big, broad-shouldered men drag themselves on, bent over. Their clothes stick to their bodies. The blood has already oozed thru their clothes. The blood drips even from their caps. They wade thru the blood.

The poor men are dead tired.

But the working time is not yet over. Another bit must still be done. Their mouths move constantly. They chew tobacco and spit from time to time.

Strained waiting.

A signal sounds.

The trapdoors fly open. The cattle. The cattle stand with their legs planted wide apart. Their eyes—those great cattle's eyes—stare rigidly, stare at the scene before them. The bloody people. The shreds of meat hanging from the axes. The lifeless cattle's heads. The lumps of meat. The chunks of meat.

An ox wails. Wails in the most literal sense of the word. Wails! This sound has nothing of the animal about it. And now the other thirteen wail too.

In vain.

Still they do not give up without a struggle. That would be contrary to the nature of a living being. The will to live, which every creature has.

The ox stumbles.

The men start up.

The axe strikes downward.

The animal still writhes.

It is all in vain.

Blood spurts. Hot blood. It streams over the men. A bright red.

Blood runs from the axes. Blood runs from the hands of the men. Poor, tired men drag themselves bloody thru the blood. . .

Everything here smells of blood. Even the chewing tobacco tastes of blood. Even the spit seems to be blood.

The room exhales blood.

And the poor bloody human bodies moving about the bloody animal bodies are ever inhaling the bloody air.

The beasts, the people, the room, everything, everything exhales blood.

The chain clinks.

The bloody animal's body swings up into the air. The tired, bloody men's bodies pounce upon the animal. They slit open its belly with a single motion.

The intestines burst out.

A man fetches off the intestines in a small cart. The excrement, the dirt, which fell out of the body thru the opening, is shoveled together.

The intestines are carried away in small carts; the animals are skinned.

All who work here, are already tired, very, very tired. They can hardly drag themselves forward.

The piercing, heavy smell of blood settles on the chest. . .

The work goes on in rhythm.

The fast work.

Even we are tired, altho we have only looked on.

Now it is the turn of the refrigerating rooms. Before we step in, everyone pulls up his collar. It is very cold here. We seem accustomed already to the smell of blood and flesh.

The refrigerating room offers a hellish sight.

It is almost impossible to see the end of the immense room. The meat hangs from hooks. The bloody meat. One sees nothing else than meat, fresh meat, as it had just been hung up. Bloody and red. An endless mass. Meat, meat, meat. . . .

• • •

Noon rings.

Lunch.

The steel arms of the tired, bloody people sink down. Then faintness takes possession of their muscles.

The meal is eaten in the building. The dining room is there. The smell of blood prevails where the people work; the smell of blood prevails where they eat. Even their stomachs feel it. With tired, but nevertheless with quick step the bloody people go on. They are going to eat.

• • •

On the floor below there is also a lunchroom. The officials come here. And visitors also come here.

I go along.

But the blood follows me. The smell of blood.

Everything smells of blood. I no longer feel the smell of dung at all. It has succumbed to the smell of blood. I only feel the blood which is unavoidable.

I fetch myself a plate of food. I get corned beef and cabbage.

I move forward mechanically.

I bite into the meat.

Blood . . . blood . . . blood.

The smell, the taste.

I take a bit of cabbage with the end of the fork into my mouth.

Blood . . . blood . . . blood.

The smell, the taste.

I set down knife and fork.

I close my eyes.

Blood . . . blood . . . blood.

• • •

The hogs weep.

The cattle weep.

The poor, tired, bloody people weep. . .

I flee.

Mr. Pickwick on Communism

Bernard Shaw's Excellent Satire on British "Socialism."

By KARL RADEK.

BERNARD Shaw was asked by Izvestia to express his opinion concerning Anglo-Soviet relations after the fall of the labor government. Isvestia approached Bernard Shaw as a sincere friend of Soviet Russia, evidently overlooking the fact that he is at the same time, one of the greatest satirists in the world. The result is that a reply was received equally valuable both from the standpoint of politics and literature. Bernard Shaw is a first class satirist, not only when he directs his arrows against the philistinism and prudery of the British bourgeoisie, but also in his reply, he presents an excellent picture of the poverty of thought, the philistinism and the national narrowmindedness of the best of the British petty bourgeoisie.

In publishing his satire in the Daily Herald, the organ of the British labor party, and wishing completely to camouflage it, Bernard Shaw expressed the fear that Izvestia would not dare to publish his "article". The Daily Herald in publishing the article in full, stated that the author is exceedingly well able to mystify his readers; but we are convinced that the very first number of the Daily Herald falling into the hands of the more intelligent readers, would immediately expose the scheme of the brilliant satirist and would cause a hearty laugh at the expense of Mr. Hamilton Fyfe. Mr Bernard Shaw's new satire is ten times more excellent than his "St. Joan," for it takes as its subject, not the religious prejudices of the middle ages, but the burning questions of reality. It is reported that Bernard Shaw was not pleased with the manner in which "St. Joan" was produced at the Kamerny Theatre in Moscow. I hope that I have grasped his idea better than Tairov, the Kamerny producer.

Bernard Shaw commences his satire by words of consolation addressed to Soviet Russia:

"Don't be afraid of Baldwin and Chamberlain, don't be afraid or the conservative government, they are businesslike fellows. MacDonald dare not even look over the hedge but Baldwin would steal a horse. MacDonald dare not grant Soviet Russia a loan, and actually come to an agreement. If economic facts press with sufficient firmness upon Baldwin he will be 'Marxist' enough to draw all the political conclusions. You see to it that the economic relations between Soviet Russia and the rest of the world are strengthened. Wait, and Mahomed will come to the mountain."

Can a more witty satire on the British labor government be imagined than this from the pen of Bernard Shaw? Picture to yourself: Bernard Shaw, member of the labor party, and friend of MacDonald comes forward and says to the British workers: Rapprochment with Soviet Russia is one of the central questions of the world, one of the central questions affecting the international proletariat. Fortunately, the economic interests of the British bourgeoisie demand the improvement of relations with the Union of Soviet Republics. MacDonald and the labor government could have taken up the fight on this question, if they had only dared. But they lost their heads and quailed before the camorra of foreign office officials and the professional prisoners of public opinion of the yellow press. Baldwin could and would dare to steal a horse, but these cowards dared not even look over the hedge. How then can they lead you to the fight for emancipation from the domination of capitalism? Why, in that fight, it will be necessary not only to look over a hedge, but over a barricade.

Concerning Moses, Marx, Wells and English Simpletons.

INDICATING by a motion of his eyebrows the direction in which he intends to direct his arrows, Mr. Bernard Shaw strives to give us a description of the philosophy of the British—pardon the expression—socialist intelligentzia. He says to us: If you wish to know where we get our MacDonalds, look where these gentlemen get their philosophy:

"You Russian Bolsheviks were brought up on Marx and Engels. Marx and Engels lived in England in the pre-imperialist days when the British Empire was not as great as it is today and when capitalism was only in its first stride. Poor Marx, too poor to buy a postage stamp, or newspapers, was obliged to study in the British Museum the whole history of capitalism, the whole history of England, and the whole history of England's foreign policy. There is not a single English economist whom he did not know. There is not a single English philosopher whom he did not study, there is not a single secret of British foreign policy into which he did not penetrate. His trousers were ragged, he could not go to five o'clock tea to freethinking ladies of both sexes in English society. But, in the quietude of his study he learned all the secrets of capitalism and of the premier capitalist state. Engels, obliged to engage in commerce, studied not only biology, but also the anatomy of capitalist England and helped his great friend in the study of all the details of the mechanism—of the great apparatus for exploiting the world—the British Empire." And what did the British so-called intelligentzia understand of Marx and Engels? Hyndman tried to make of the great doctrines of Marx something in the nature of a collection of worthless recipes, a cookery book of revolution, but he failed to link it up with the vital work of the masses. And the MacDonalds and the Snowdens?—they discovered the the living stream of the British labor movement, but they did nothing but render it turbid with the bourgeois mud they brought to it. Although they had at their disposal the life work of Marx, they studied economics from Marshal and John Stuart Mill who taught that competition would defeat monopoly: they learn sociology from Spencer the last descendant of Robinson Crusoe. They imbibed their philosophy from parsons. What results could one expect? These people regard Mr. Wells as a great thinker because he hashed up a history of man, from Pithecantropus ' Erectus to MacDonald. It is a tremendous work, it has all about the stone-age and about the Great Mogul and about Queen Victoria. But what sort of science does this historian present to man with this hash of herring, whipped cream and Scotch whiskey. The 'little' Communist Manifesto of 20 pages was a contribution to the history of man concerning not only what had been in the past, but what would be in the future. It gave a key to humanity: it lighted up like a searchlight its future history. And you Bolsheviks holding in your hands the torch of Marx were able to see how competition gave birth to monopoly, how class antagonisms were becoming more acute, how this led to world revolution. Meanwhile the MacDonalds and the Snowdens armed with the works of Wells and their guides to 'constructive socialism' with their Fabian text books under their arms waited for the class antagonisms to die out, for capitalism to grow into socialism, for the era of peace and for the time when liberalism will become permeated with socialism, when the war broke they became terrified by the thunder of the guns: they shed copious tears over the bloodshed, but they were incapable of teaching the workers how to overthrow the domination of the class which flung the British and the world proletariat into the horrors of the war, which drove Welsh miners to the deserts of Kut-el-Amar, to the graves of Gallipoli, to the forest of Archangel and the tundras of Siberia. Some of them, frightened by the war shed tears and wrung their hands: others more scared by the prospect of revolution flung themselves on their knees before Moloch and themselves brought sacrifices to him.

"I, Bernard Shaw, have not studied Marx, but you will remember how I exposed the war in my 'Arms and the Man.' If you think that I wrote only about the Bulgar-Serbian war, then read the articles I wrote at the beginning of the war on 'The British Lion on the Edge of a Precipice' (?) Or my pamphlets published prior to the Versailles Conference. But these other fellows understand nothing, they laugh at Marx as if he were a queer relic of the Victorian age, and fail to see that they are laughing at themselves. Mr. Wells wrote a book entitled: 'Mr. Brittling Sees it Through' but he could have written a better one entitled 'Mr. Pickwick, Socialism and War'. These simpletons, these intellectual cowards and heroes of phrases ridicule you, ridicule the young British Communists who are striving to take possession of the only weapon capable of destroying the British bourgeoisie, and call them pupils of Moscow. Stupid asses, they fail to realise that all their lives they have been merely pupils in Sunday schools of the British bourgeoisie."

Bernard Shaw says all this with incomparable art. The author takes up the role of the hero in a petty-bourgeois socialist comedy of errors: he speaks in the name of the British philistine intellectuals in order to express their thoughts clearly as MacDonald, Snowden, Webb and Wells could never formulate to them, for they fear even to express their cowardly thoughts.

Factors Which Exist and Factors Which Should Not Exist.

AFTER this brilliant gem of satirical humor at the expense of the philosophy of the "socialist" intelligentzia of England, Bernard Shaw presents in a new setting a picture which is frequently drawn in his satires. Bernard Shaw is an Irishman and therefore is better able than anyone else in England to ridicule the Englishman's conceit, in other words, the attitude the Englishman takes in regarding himself as the center of the universe, as not having any connection with the external world and his demand that the only relation that the external world shall have to England, is that of a worshipper and slave. In one of his dramas Bernard Shaw pictures a young Englishman of good family who travels in Europe after leaving the university. It is well-known that a young Englishman of good family would dress for dinner, even if he was stranded on an uninhabited island and had to dine alone. On the ship, however, where he dined with Germans, he wore his loung suit. In reply to his tutor's query as to why he did not preserve the good old British customs, the young man said: "I am going to dine with foreigners." The most witty Austrian writer and statesman, Pernesdorfer, relates that once on the Danube he met a young English woman and, like the gallant gentleman he was, he offered her his services, explaining that, as she was a foreigner, she no doubt required his aid. The pert young English miss retorted: "I, a foreigner—No, you are a foreigner." Since England is the axis of the universe, it follows that all those who are not English, are foreigners, Englishmen however, are never foreigners anywhere. On one occasion, I was visited by a young and not very clever English diplomat, who had long lived in Russia and had traveled abroad generally. He was surprised at the fact that it was necessary to secure a pass to enter the Kremlin, and the Kremlin, as is known, is the headquarters of our government. When I asked him whether I could enter Buckingham Palace or Downing street straight from the street without permission, he looked at me in astonishment as if to say, how can one compare the formalities that are required to enter a royal palace in England or the premises of the British government with what is required for the Kremlin? For an Englishman there are two categories of facts, those that exist in England and those which are known to exist somewhere in other countries. Before British facts, even if it is the stupid wig of the speaker of the house of commons, one must bow, all the rest can be regarded as none existing; if they desire to be recognized, let them go down on their knees before the highly respected British facts, and then perhaps, they may be favored with the latter's gracious observation.

All his life Bernard Shaw has been scourging and ridiculing his slave-owners' outlook of the British, inculcated into them by centuries of training. In his letter in "Isvestia", he desired to show that even the so-called socialist intelligentzia, as well as the entire British bourgeoisie, were imbued with this imperialist arrogance and conceit. And how charmingly he exposes them.

On behalf of this intelligentzia, Shaw says to the Soviet Union and to the Comintern: Messrs. Russian Communists, chuck this Comintern, really it is just a cinema farce. The idea of a world revolution is all nonsense. You have made a revolution in an enormous country, but that fact is of much less importance than the displeasure which your revolution has caused to the British lords. How do you expect to live if our lords do not please to consent to this? The intervention did not work out, they failed to crush you. But if they did not kill you with bullets—they will kill you with pounds. Stop agitating, calm down, submit. Mr. Rakovsky has remembered that at one time he could wear a dress coat. He eats and handles a knife and fork quite like a respectable person. Make this general. Stop messing about with Cominterns and such like, and behave like respectable people. What? You say that the Comintern has nothing to do with the Soviet government? Well, perhaps someone will believe it. But why should you have anything to do with this Comintern even privately? Remember revolution is a serious business. Chuck these stories out of old romantic pamphlets and sensational cinema films. You talk about revolution in China, about 400,000,000 human beings taking the broad historical path and shaking the whole world. Yes, our learned Bertrand Russell and our clever Wells have also chattered about this; a writer writes and a reader reads. But our lords, except for a few freaks, do not read anything and consequently world revolution doesn't concern them. Do we not keep 300,000,000 Indians in subjection? When the time comes, we will prohibit the Chinese revolution. Look at these Egyptians; they too attempted to show British imperialism that there was an Egyptian revolution. Well, how did their little game end? For one British officer they had to pay 500,000 pounds, although that officer was not even a lord. Moreover, they lost the Sudan, and that's what they got out of revolution. Only British facts exists, the facts of British might—all the rest is just nonsense, romance and cinema acting. Real politics takes no notice of romantic raving, but crawls on its belly before British imperialism.

Perhaps the reader will think that this, Bernard Shaw's satire is overdrawn. Nothing of the kind. The entire so-called "socialist" intelligentzia has been trained to worship British imperialism. It worships it even when it thinks it is fighting it. At a certain conference of three internationals, I had occasion to take up the cudgels against a friend of Bernard Shaw, Ramsay MacDonald. When the latter at this conference brought forward the program of liberating the Russian border countries as a socialist program, I asked him why he had forgotten Egypt and India. Publicly he made no reply, but at dinner, he confessed that it was very difficult for an Englishman to abandon the idea that all that lies in the English belly, is all right. When Mr. MacDonald came to power, he hastened to prepare more food for the Britist stomach; he spread his nets in South Persia and made preparations for intervention in China. No, Bernard Shaw is not exaggerating in the least. His satire hits straight at the mark, right in the very midst of the British socialist intelligentzia which is imbu-

Present Political Life in China

THE political life in China is being shaken by two events, the effects of which will be felt not only in China but also in the imperialist states.

These are firstly the counter-revolutionary movement of the merchants and the rich farmers of the south of China, where at the present moment the leader of the national-revolutionary party, the Kuomintang, the famous Sun-Yat-Sen, is in power; and secondly, the conflict between the military governors of the provinces of central China, Chekyang and Kyansu.

The Imperialist War Against the National Revolutionary Movement in the South of China.

In order to understand these events it is necessary to throw light on the facts which preceded them. At the end of August last, telegraphic communication was received from China to the effect that the government of Sun-Yat-Sen had captured a vessel with a cargo of arms, traveling from a British port in the principal city of the Kwantung province for a British commercial agent in China named Lin-Puck. This merchant is the head of a merchants' militia, established to protect the property of the Chinese merchants in the Kwantung province.

At a conference of this militia held in May, it was resolved to centralize all the detachments. This was a symptom of the preparations being made by the Chinese merchants jointly with the rich farmers and with the support of the British imperialists for a rising against the national revolutionary party and against Sun-Yat-Sen.

The relative strength of the Kuomintang government party and the merchant forces was such that Sun-Yat-Sen did not dare disarm these counter-revolutionary detachments. Moreover, both the Kuomintang party and Sun-Yat-Sen himself, owing to their failure to understand the process of class differentiation taking place in the social basis of the national movement, did not observe the serious danger this merchants' militia represented. Sun-Yat-Sen even believed that he could gradually subordinate these detachments to himself without having to resort to violence. He thought he would be able to use them in his fight against the reactionary general who was being supported by the British imperialists.

Sun-Yat-Sen did not see the intellectual connection between the reactionary movements of this general and the preparation being made for the rising of the merchants, and for that reason he failed to see the organizational connection betwen General Chin-Chun-Ming's staff and the staff of the merchant's militia.

He failed to take into account the fact that behind the whole of this counter-revolutionary movement in south China stood the government of J. Ramsay MacDonald; but the seizure of the cargo of arms, the boycott organized by the merchants in Canton, the note despatched by the British consul to Sun-Yat-Sen's civil governor, and finally the arrival of British cruisers and gun-boats in Canton waters, revealed to Dr. Sun the counter-revolutionary conspiracy of the Chinese merchants and British imperialists.

In a telegram addressed to J. Ramsays MacDonald on Sept. 5, Sun-Yat-Sen says the following:

"Dear Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the chief of the Hong Kong-Shanghai Banking corporation has organized a detachment of so-called fascists, the object of which is to overthrow my government. This aim is to be achieved after these rebels have been well armed and with the aid of arms and munitions imported from Europe on board the steamship Gaff. This steamer arrived in Canton on 10th August, and was immediately arrested by my government. Since then a state of rebellion has arisen in Canton under the guise of a strike organized by rebels and other counter-revolutionaries. When I decided to take measures against the rebels, the British counsel-general sent to my government the following letter:

"'I have received a communication from the commander of the British naval forces in which he informs me that he has orders from Hong Kong to the effect that in the event of the Chinese authorities bombarding Canton, he was to take measures against them.'

"In view of the diplomatic and financial support which the British government has constantly rendered to the Chinese counter-revolution, and in view also of the fact that my government at the present time is the only centre of resistance to this counter-revolution, I am compelled to conclude that the aim of this ultimatum is to overthrow my government. I most strongly protest against this latest act of imperialist intervention in the internal affairs of China.

"SUN-YAT-SEN."

What principally caused the British imperialists to reveal their role as initiators of counter-revolution in China, was the consolidation of the Chinese bourgeoisie side by side with the growing revolutionary temper of the masses of the poor in the towns and the countryside of southern China.

The congress of workers and artisans of Canton, with its two million population, which has held almost simultaneously with the congress of Chinese militia shows that the Chinese masses are rapidly acquiring class consciousness and will force the democratic Kuomintang towards the left.

The Kwantung province is important as a revolutionary place d'armes not only for China but also for the islands on the coast of the Pacific, as was shown by the conference of Transport Workers of the Pacific, held in Canton last June. This could not but be taken account of by the imperialists and particularly by the British imperialists who are most interested in this part of China, and who have the most "sensitive" colonizing apparatus.

On the other hand the recognition by the central government of China in Peking (which has an Anglo-American orientation) of the Soviet government in spite of the efforts of the imperialists to prevent it was beginning to have its effects thruout the whole of China in increasing the anti-imperialist movement in literally every province. The league to combat imperialism recently organized caused a rushing tide of sympathy in favor of the national-liberation movement in the south of China, and a similar tide of hatred was set in motion against all the enslaving treaties of the imperialists which degraded and savagely exploited the Chinese people.

Apparently, the British government decided by armed force to break the movement for emancipation in China. It had nothing good for itself to expect in China in the near future, and therefore hastened to apply force, not caring what methods were applied in its haste.

What has been said represents only one aspect of the question and refers to south China, principally the Kwantung province, with its population of 30,000,000.

Events in Central and North China

Simultaneously with the events in south China a sanguinary struggle is being fought out in central China, and as is evident from latest telegraphic communications, the principal forces of China are being drawn into it; from the south central China and northern China, including also the three northern provinces of Manchuria. The immediate cause for the quarrel between the military governors of Kyangsu Marshal Chi-Sun-Yang and the governor-general of the province of Chekyan, Lu-Yung-Siang, is the dispute over the administration of Shanghai, the most important commercial centre in China, having a population of one and a half millions, and is the most important strategic center in the China Sea.

Shanghai is in the province of Kyangsu, but when the former military governor of this province became the governor of the neighboring province of Chekyan, he retained the administrative control of Shanghai in his own hands, and appointed one of his adherents to the position of chief of police. The controversy between the governors of these two provinces over the administration of Shanghai is of long standing, but until this moment it has never led to armed conflict. This is partly due to the fact that both Kyangsu and Chekyan are the two richest provinces in the country, having an enormous commerce, and providing large revenues not only for the imperialist but also for the Chinese merchants. The most important commercial towns in modern China are also included in these provinces, such as Shanghai, Nanking, Chang-Chow and Hank-Chow. Consequently the outbreak of civil war in these provinces would mean the severance of one of the most important nerves of the commerce and industry of the country. To the extent that the fight between the Chinese generals depended upon the influence of the various imperialist groups, and to the extent also that the Chinese commercial bourgeoisie could bring financial pressure on these generals, they strove to remove the field of conflict from these provinces.

Sufficiently strong causes must be in operation, from the point of view of the imperialists, for them to permit the fight to open directly on these territories.

It should be observed that the idea that it is as easy for the imperialists at the present day to set the various Chinese generals against each other, as it was soon after the revolution in 1911, is an erroneous one. Undoubtedly, the partition of China into spheres of economic influence by the imperialists facilitates the wars between the Chinese military governors. But on the other hand, the imperialists back one or other of the warlords of China in accordance with the real strength he commands, and that is not always determined by the amount of support given by the imperialists.

Civil war in China depends now not only on imperialist intervention but also on internal economic processes. Thus for instance, Sun-Yat-Sen's base in southern China is consolidating more and more, while the base of the militarist Chan-Tso-Ling in the three northern corn provinces, is also becoming more firmly established, thus establishing him as a military factor in the Chinese civil war.

From the viewpoint of the national factors of China, the conflict between the two military governors of the provinces of Yyangsu and Chekyan may be looked upon as a conflict between the militarist Cihili clique on the one hand, and the Fyntiang clique together with the adherents of the Anhui club on the other hand. Marshal Wu-Pei-Fu is at the head of the former He was formerly its military commander and is at present the official president of the Chinese republic of Tsao-Kung. The latter is headed by Marshal Chang-Tso-Ling and by the oldest politician of China—the reactionary Tuan-Tsi-Chui. Both these cliques have their supporters, the governors of the provinces of central and southern China. In the present conflict the Ksiang-Si, Anhui and Fukiang will evidently support the Chili party, while Chan-Tso-Ling has already had negotiations with the representative of Sun-Yat-Sen who has supporters in some parts of the Yunang, Gutchzhousk and Ruah provinces. Thus, there is every prospect that the conflict will develop into a general civil national war. The reasons which might draw Sun-Yat-Sen into this conflict consist in the fact that the Chili clique is a direct menace to him, while the sphere of influence of the Fyntiang groups and of the adherents of the former Anhui club is geographically remote from the Kwantung province. Both Sun-Yat-Sen and Chang-Tso-Ling are fully aware that in the event of their victory over the Chili party, a conflict between them is inevitable.

Sun-Yat-Sen and the Fight of the Generals

The question arises what caused this fight between the militarist cliques and in how far the leader of the national-revolutionary party can be interested in the support of one clique against the other. The answer to the first question is the whole history of civil war in China, from the time of the revolution of 1911, when China, after its dismemberment by the imperialists, began to be governed by the so-called Tuchun system, namely by military governors general. Since then China practically ceased to exist as a united empire and became divided into a number of subsidiary principalities. As to the second question, it can be answered by the fact that the movement headed by Sun-Yat-Sen and directed towards the abolition of this Tuchen system is drawing him inevitably into a conflict with this or that military clique, sometimes joining forces with one of them against the other, as strategical considerations require. But the fundamental difference between Sun-Yat-Sen's fight and the fight of the militarists consists in the fact that, in the process of this fight, he is emancipating the Chinese masses within the sphere of his influence.

We cannot study the civil war in China only from the point of view of national factors, for it is intertwined with the fight for power between the imperialists who are using the Chinese imperialists as their medium.

In the present case the fight of the Chili clique against other militarist cliques is tantamount to a fight of the Anglo-American capitalists against the relics of the influence of Japanese imperialists, who in 1915 obtained enormous advantages in the matter of the exploitation of China. It is also tantamount to the transformation of the anti-imperialist movement into national civil war. On the other hand, a victory of the Chili clique at the head of which are the agents of Anglo-American capitalism—Tsau-Kung and Wu-Pei-Fu will make imperialist economic penetration and political control over China easier. At the same time the victory of the Chili clique would strengthen militarist reaction within the country. The brutal suppression of the labor movement, the shooting of workers during the Peking-Hankow railwaymen's strike in 1923, the execution of labor leaders, the shooting of revolutionary students—all this will be magnified tenfold in the event of a victory by the Chili party.

At present when revolutionary students' and workers' organizations are the center of the anti-imperialist movement, MacDonald, Herriot, Coolidge and the Japanese imperialist governments would like to see the full weight of reaction directed against them.

Hence, in spite of the clash of the economic interests of the imperialists of China, there is complete agreement on the question of intervention, which is evidently being prepared by negotiations; the soul and initiator of this imperialist attack on China is at this present juncture British imperialism.

PREPARATIONS FOR JOINT BAZAAR GO ON ENERGETICALLY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A whole force of comrades is at work making the last preparations for the joint bazaar, which takes place at the Lyceum, 86th St. and Third Ave. Feb. 11, 12, 13 and 14 will be red-letter days in the history of the revolutionary movement of New York.

The membership of the Workers Party is working to make the bazaar a success. Branches are taking booths and are collecting material for sale. They have gathered everything from a belt to a phonograph. Kitchen utensils, clothes, shoes, hats, books, works of art—in short, everything useful that can be converted into cash.

The present outlook is that there will be at least 25 booths. The Indian trick maker will be on hand every day—and his tricks will be interesting for many reasons—but chiefly because they are novel in this part of the world. There will be a printing press at the bazaar, so that every visitor may procure visiting cards and other printed matter.

Exploiters' Paradise Is Aim Of Alien Registration

By MAX BEDACHT.

DEMOCRACY is revealing more clearly every day the mephistophelian hoof of its real character as a capitalist dictatorship. The greater the importance and powers of the workers grows in the economic machinery of society the more open must capitalism maneuver with its political power to retain its ruling position, the more open must it use its instrument of rule, the government. This government develops gradually into an undisguised agent of capital in foreign lands. And at home it become an agency for strikebreaking and an instrument for labor persecution.

In late years these strikebreaking activities of the government of the American capitalists have revealed themselves in activities against labor struggles and against labor unions in general, and also in the attempts to adapt the immigration policy to the task of importation of prospective strikebreakers.

Selective immigration is nothing but an attempt to sift prospective immigrants and assure a steady stream of meek "hands" into the United States.

But although those workers admitted into the United States may have a politically spotless, a strike-less and a unionless past so that they can pass the closest scrutiny of American consular agents, yet the bitter experience of these workers in the profit-mills of American capital may drive them into labor organizations, into strikes, and eventually even into the revolutionary party of the workers, the Communists Party. So our steel and other industrial barons of the United States find selective immigration insufficient. It does not guarantee absolute and definite submissiveness of all the "hands" finally admitted into the country.

To remedy this and incidentally to give another prooof of the character of gloried "democracy" in the United States, attempts are made to tie a string to all immigrants. The department of labor is to be made a real and unmistakable agency for the supply of strikebreakers to open-shop American capital. To assure a supply of strikebreakers for the department of labor that body is to be given powers which would automatically make it the slave driver with the immigrant workers as the slaves.

A number of bills have been drafted in late years to accomplish this end. There is at this moment a bill before the house of representatives in Washington introduced by Congressman Aswell.

Mr. Aswell is a professor. He advanced rapidly in his chosen field of activity because he quickly caught on to the educational needs of capitalism. To drive meekness into and to drive tendencies to think out of the heads of the pupils—that is the essence of the science of goosestepping education. Mr. Aswell proves in his serves his capitalist masters as efficiently in the field of legislation as he did in the field of education.

The bill provides the registration of all aliens and the payment of a yearly registration fee of from $3 to $10.

The bill practically regulates the immigrant worker to an existence of a peon. It puts him under police regulation and police supervision. The immigrant worker will have the hand of the police suspended over his head like a Damocles sword. Any particlpation in a strike is bound to bring the alien worker into conflict with the police, since the main task of the police is to prevent the wage slave from leaving the tread mills of profit-hungry American capital. To strike, to picket, or to do anything in conjunction with the other workers of an establishment that would force the capitalist to pay decent wages or establish acceptable conditions of labor is a major crime in our "democracy". Participation in such "criminal" activities would be bound to bring the alien under the clutches of the police. Any such conflict with the police will be checked up against the alien. Naturalization will be made impossible for these aliens and thus police supervision over them will be prolonged indefinitely. Repeated conflicts of that sort will definitely establish the undesirability of such aliens and deportation will result.

But that is not the final aim of this bill. The big object is intimidation. The immigrant worker is to be delivered into the hands of the official strikebreaking agency of American capital, the department of labor. With the threat of deportation hanging over them these alien workers are to be kept out of labor unions. Fear is to keep them in the factory when unbearable conditions of labor drive the workers out on strike. And this fear is to be kept alive by the deportation of those few courageous aliens who will not submit.

The Aswell bill is an attempt to make the United States one great prison camp for alien workers.

The bill falls little short of establishing actual peonage for the alien. It provides that the department of labor furnish the American consulates in Europe with information as to open labor markets; that is, information about states, territories, or cities where "hands" are needed. The visas are to be given to the prospective immigrants only for the states or cities specified in the visa. The visa is to be recognized only if the alien actually settles in the territory or city specified.

All that is needed to make a real slave out of the immigrant is a police regulation that forbids the alien to leave the place specified in his visa. This would make a more perfect slave out of the alien worker than the southern cotton planters ever had.

But the bill is not only directed against the alien workers. By organizing the immigrant worker thru police regulations into an army of open shop and strikebreaking hands the bill is also directed against the native and naturalized workers. With such a law as a weapon the official strikebreaking agency of American capital, the department of labor, will strengthen the open shop campaign of the capitalists. It will marshall unorganized immigrants with the help of the police power of the department against the existing labor unions. It will try to fill the places of strikers by a terrified army of unorganized alien workers.

Thus American capital will succeed, on the one hand, to defeat the workers in strikes and to break up their unions; on the other hand it will creat an antagonism with the native workers against the immigrants. This antagonism will make still more difficult united and solidary action of all the workers against their capitalist exploiters. It will make one-half of the American workers look upon the other half as enemies instead of having both halves unitedly fight the common enemy: capitalism.

The Aswell bill is only one of many such ingenious attempts to enslave the American workers more and more. The very fact that such bills are introduced is sufficient proof that the desire for such regulations exists among the American capitalist masters. Final passage of such a bill, therefore, is only a question of time. No momentary pause in the attempts to pass such slave acts by congress must lull the American workers into a feeling of security. The protection of the foreign-born workers is one of the tasks of the hour for the American workers. Protection of the foreign born is an act of protection of the whole working class of America. Therefore workers, be on your guard!

The Role of Workers' Correspondents

The worker correspondents of the Soviet press recently held an all-Russian conference in Moscow. At this conference Comrade Zinoviev made an important speech the most vital passage of which we give herewith:

You know, comrades, the slogan originated by Vladimir Ilyitch, and which became the slogan of our party at the dawn of the first revolution, before 1905, "Every shop must become a fortress of our party." The meaning is that our party must know how to conquer the majority of the workers (in the shops), how to bring them under their leadership, dominate the thought of the workers there, and implant their influence by organization measures. This aim has not yet been attained, although we are approaching it. It is up to the workers' correspondents of our press to help us to reach it.

The worker correspondents form, in a way, the guard of our fortresses, the shops. Wherever they work, their task is to describe conditions of work and the life of the workers as it really is. Its a big job!

In our peasant country it is necessary in addition that each village become if not a fortress of our party, at least one of its front trenches. And again the most responsible, the most difficult, but also the finest task falls upon our peasant correspondents.

I am of the same opinion as Pravda, which thinks that the recruiting of worker and peasant correspondents must be entirely free, and based upon volunteers. The most important consideration to us at this moment is the number. Our country is so large, it still contains so many ignorant people, that the 50,000 volunteer collaborators of press form no more than an advance contingent.

The institution of worker and peasant correspondents is now acquiring an international character. In western countries, by contagion, the labor press is beginning really to "workerize" itself. Wall papers have made their apperance in shops in Berlin and Paris. In Berlin, their authors are tracked down. German social democracy realizes what a new weapon we have in them.

The chief thing is that we have demonstrated that we know how to initiate important new steps in order to put into motion the life of advanced workers and peasants. In this sense, the institution of press correspondents deserves to be called a practical realization of Leninism.

The Bolshevik is above all a man of the masses. The Leninist knows how to speak to the masses.

The worker correspondent must become the elder brother, the guide of the peasant correspondent.

Our Solicitor General Is Frank

By ART SHIELDS

Review of the Constitution by James M. Beck (Duan), $3.00.

Solicitor General James M. Beck reverences the constitution but he approaches the time worn sacred theme with more frankness than is common in this age of exploitation and bunk. Beck readily admits that the venerable document was drawn up by men of property in defense of their property against what he terms the excesses of democracy.

Our elderly solictor general is a tory of the tories, but he has a measure of bold-facedness about his policy. He does not ooze with words of love for the masses. The place of the masses, he makes plain, is at work, and he is much disturbed by the tendency of the masses to take things easier than they used to. In fact he fears that the moral foundations of the republic the founding fathers founded are badly shaken.

Beck mourns the decay of leadership in politics today. He finds few giants in these days as when George Washington, Ben Franklin, Alexander Hamilton and James Madison sat through the secret sessions of the constitutional convention. Ah! those days. Yet all is not lost. Beck finds two moderns who are worthy to sit with the ancients of the eighteenth cenury. Guess who they are? One was Warren G. Harding and the other his present chief, Cal. Coolidge.

For the most part the tone of the volume is gloomy. Yet a not unmerry clink comes in the chapter on Ben Franklin's dinner to the constitution founders—a dinner featured by a huge cask. They could drink in those times. Beck says if the eighteenth amendment had been in effect, Franklin's guests would undoubtedly have left. He tells of another dinner, one given by Governor Clinton to Washington and LaFayette, with 120 guests present when the bill cited the consumption of 36 bottles of Madeira, 36 of port, 60 of English beer and 30 bowls of flowing punch, and the wreckage of 60 glasses and 8 broken decanters.

As a matter of interest we may note—though not mentioned in this book—the author served for years as a leading counselor for the oil trust and the sugar trust.

Poems for the New Age.

A book of poems which must prove of interest to readers of the DAILY WORKER is "Poems for the New Age," by Simon Felshin, recently published by Thomas Seltzer, New York. Many of Simon Felshin's poems have already appeared in the Communist press and this is an opportunity for comrades to possess a collection of the poems by the Communist poet, a member of the Workers Party.

The first section of the book contains revolutionary poems. The book as a whole is a work of art, and, we are proud to say, a distinct contribution to literature. The revolutionary poems are straightout revolutionary, they do not equivocate, as so much poetry of protest does. There is no ambiguity here, no possibility of a double interpretation, for the poems are written by a Communist, and that makes a difference. And yet they are not poems of propaganda purely and simply. Art is not shoved into the background. The book from cover to cover is replete with beauty, is a rare treat.

Those who desire to have the book can buy it from the Literature Department of the Workers Party at the price of one dollar.

Railwaymen's Educational Work in Russia

HOW THE MOSCOW-KALUGA RAILWAY CLUB WAS FORMED.

By VLADIMIR GAVRILOV

THERE were near the station Moscow 1 two sections of a munition factory badly damaged by fire in 1919. They were mere ruins without windows and doors and the roof was badly damaged. In fact they were an eye sore to the railwaymen who had to pass these dilapidated buildings. For several years the local organizations of the railwaymen's union kept watch on these forsaken buildings, and they had a vision of a well-equipped club on this very place, which would satisfy the needs of their large organization with its 8,000 members. At that time their union had to be satisfied with very small club premises, equipped during the first years of the revolution where it was impossible to carry on regular educational work of which the masses stood in such need.

THEN came 1923, and what was impossible before, became possible then. They began their work by visiting all the big economic and financial departments of the railway obtaining promises of material support from these departments and of physical support from the workers themselves. They planned out the repairs, made an estimate of their resources, brought pressure to bear on those at the head of economic departments, and once more decided that it was high time to make a beginning. The actual building operations had to be handed over to a building artel after all, for although the workers were willing to give their labor power for the erection of that club, it would have taken too long as they could only give the time after their regular working hours. So the railwaymen decided that this would delay the necessary repairs, while the need for the club was growing day by day. But all the work connected with the equipment and furnishing of the club the workers took upon themselves.

THEY collected furniture wherever it was possible, repaired it themselves, prepared appliances for study circles, etc. At last the happy and longed for day arrived (February 22, 1923)—the opening of the club which was called the Kukhmestoroff club in honor of a locksmith of that name who had been the first educational worker on the Moscow-Kursk Railway Junction, and who had recently died. The opening session of the club members took place in the still damp hall the walls of which were decorated with the portraits of the leaders of the revolution. This is how one more live organization came into being, created out of the ruins of the old world and by the will and efforts of those who had been nothing but had become everything. . . .

AS soon as the RED STAR began to throw its light from the entrance of the Kukhmestoroff club many workers went out of their way on their journey home in order to drop in at the club and to have a look at the newspapers and periodicals. The young workers joined study and other circles in very large numbers: physical culture, Marxist, dramatic, choral classes and others. Fathers of families began to follow their example. They were attracted by the technical study circles where they could learn their particular work and could receive information about the economic situation and the technical improvements in connection with production.

GRADUALLY, women were also drawn into the club, at least those who were not tied to their homes by the care of children and household duties. A sewing and cutting out circle was opened for them, and lectures were given on hygiene the care of children and improvement of domestic conditions. The study circle work took possession of all the members of the club, and there were so many candidates for these circles that the workers decided to ask the administration of the railway to allow them to use another building in the vicinity for the extension of club work.

AT present the Kukhmestoroff club, has, in addition to the above-mentioned circles, ten more smaller circles, such as: a scientific organization of labor circle, an art circle, a radio circle and others, including a legal advice circle.

THE club occupies three biuldings, two of which are two storied buildings connected with a covered passage. One of the buildings was a hall with accomodation for 750 people, fully furnished with arm chairs, chairs and benches. It has also a stage large enough to answer all requirements. The rooms where the study circles are held are on the second floor, and every circle has its permanent room equipped with the necessary appliances. On the same floor there is a creche for the children which is under the supervision of a medical specialist. This enables working women visiting the club to devote themselves to their studies leaving their children at this creche. In the second building one floor is occupied by a foyer which has upholstered furniture. A chess room, a reading room, a Lenin corner, a bezbozhnik (atheist) corner, etc. are attached to the foyer.

HERE various exhibitions are held. Children have also their place in the club, there is a Young Pioneer corps with about 250 members which has been alloted separate premises.

IN order to satisfy the needs of the masses, the administration of the club has made a contract with the "Narpit" (Peoples's Food Supply), on the strength of which a dining hall has been opened on the second floor of the second building capable of catering for 2,500 people. Good nourishing dinners are served for a very small sum. A barber shop is atached to the dining hall, and the charges there are 65 per cent lower than the town charges.

THE club has a library which has reference books on a variety of questions. It has over 8,000 volumes. In the adjoining building which has also a mere ruin not so long ago, a physical culture hall has been equipped with all the necessary appliances for gymnastics, such as vaulting horses, tourniquets, etc. Behind the stage there is a box for a cinema appartus, and lectures are frequently given with a cinema illustration.

THE Kukhmistoroff club has also a summer theatre with a garden, an open stage, a reading room and an open-air cinema. In summer there are always many people in the garden and one hears joyous and healthy laughter. A brass band from the ranks of the workers themselves performs on the open stage.

THUS the small club, which consisted of a few little roms has been converted into a very big club covering an area of about 500 square sazhen (1 sazhen—7 feet). On the strength of its equipment and the work carried on by it this club holds first place in the neighborhod of Moscow. It is called, the "model" club and we hope that it will serve as an example to the cultural and educational work of the workers of the West when they will have thrown off their political slavery and will march side by side with their Russian brothers towards Communism.

Enlarged Executive Committee of Czech Communist Party Against Trotskyism

The enlarged executive committee of the C. P. of Czcho-Slovakia adopted the following resolution with regard to the question of comrade Trotsky at its session of December 13th.

The Russian opposition has caused considerable damage to the C. P. of Russia and the Comintern in that it sought to shake the confidence of the masses in the leadership of the C. P. of Russia and also in the leadership of the Comintern. The Russian party congress and the E. C. C. I. and the V. World congress have completely refuted the reproaches and complaints of the opposition, and proved that the action of the opposition was chiefly attributable to petty-bourgeois deviations.

Comrade Trotsky, as his present attitude shows, has only formally submitted to the decision of the Russian party conference and of the Comintern. His struggle against the leadership of the C. P. of Russia and the leadership of the Comintern is continued with other means than in 1923, in the attempts by his incorrect presentation of the history of the October revolution again to shake the confidence of the workers in the leadership of the C. P. of Russia. The Executive of the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia must decidedly protest against these attempts to revive the discussion which was concluded by the decisions of the party conference of the Russian C. P. and to create new differences in the sections of the Comintern. Many members of the Russian opposition and their followers abroad have, after the decision of the party conference of the C. P. of Russia, reckoned on the so-called autumn crisis in Russia, which was to prove the correctness of the economic principles of the opposition and of the political tactics advocated by them. As a matter of fact, these predictions have proved to be entirely incorrect, and the policy of the C. C. of the Russian C. P. has proved to be quite correct. It was to be hoped that these facts would have a sobering effect upon the obstinate leaders of the Russian opposition and upon their followers in the other sections of the Comintern. The attack of Comrade Trotsky, his presentation of the October events, have, however, the character of an appeal, or at least of an encouragement, to all oppositional elements to fresh "actions" against the leadership of the C. P. of Russia and of the Comintern.

For these reasons the executive committee of the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia expressly declares itself to be in agreement with the condemnation which this new challenge has now received from the comrades of the most prominent party centrals of the C. P. of Russia.

ing the British proletariat with profound respect for British imperialism.

Communism for Millionaires

ONCE upon a time, Bernard Shaw wrote a pamphlet entitled: "Socialism for Millionaires". In his witty reply to the Isvestia he practically repeats this pamphlet. Speaking in the name of the British socialist intelligentzia, he says: "Unless the Russian revolution bows to British imperialism and repudiates world revolution, the Russian revolution will have as much influence on its 'Western European' friends as Madagascar has on the Russian revolution." Let the reader observe how well Bernard Shaw mimics the hypocracy of the British bourgeoisie. When in the British house of commons one member wishes to charge another with having stolen a silver spoon, or allowing himself to be bribed, he always addresses him as "my honorable friend". Mr. Bernard Shaw commands his friends, the MacDonalds and Snowdens to come out as friends of Soviet Russia, although he knows perfectly well that these gentlemen hate Soviet Russia more than they hate capitalism. His satirical notion of a Communism for millionaires that it is possible to create a Communism and a Soviet Russia that will please Lord Curzon, is priceless. In this, Bernard Shaw rises to the great heights of Swift. Recall the latter's pamphlet on trading in the flesh of Irish children. There was a devastating famine in Ireland in Swift's time and millions of children were dying of starvation. Swift was eager to help them, but how. If he simply cried, "Save Ireland's children", his appeal would probably be read only by a few sentimental English ladies. But the brilliant satirist Swift, wrote a pamphlet in which he showed that it was very unprofitable to allow millions of children to die. He calculated how much it would cost to keep them until the age of twelve months and then to cut them up and sell their flesh. Even today when one reads this pamphlet, a cold shiver runs down one's back.

Bernard Shaw could not say to his dull-witted petty bourgeois countrymen: "The Russian workers and peasants have taken the first step towards the reign of labor, towards the great new historical epoch. They are being hard pressed by British imperialism, but surely growing throughout the world. The progressive workers, in their awkward way, are learning in Russian the A B C of their emancipation. It does not matter for, first of all, they will copy the Russian revolution and then they will learn to make their own. British imperialism, the bulwark of world capitalism, is cracking in every joint, even the peoples of Asia and Africa are affected by the movement. Let the Russian Communists bear in mind the realities of today, but let them hope for the realities of he morrow. British imperialism wishes to crush them. We will come to their aid. We can aid them by combating the treachery, the stupidity and the servitude of the MacDonalds, the Snowdens and the Wellses."

But Shaw could not use such language. If he did the Daily Herald would not publish his letter. Therefore, he, like Swift, resorts to satire, and in his own person he reflected dull-witted British intellectual socialism, in order to say: "See! This is what those who wish to act as the leaders of the British proletariat, look like."

P. S.—The social democratic press of all countries, forgetting the satirical genius of Bernard Shaw, seriously believes that he was speaking in his own name. I do not believe this for a single moment. But if this were true, it would merely increase the artistic value of Bernard Shaw's production. The best humorists are the unconscious humorists. The height of satire is self-satire, when the author does not perceive that he is writing the most biting satire. Such cases are rare in literature, but they are the most valuable reflections of their epoch. It would be a pity if the assertions of the social democratic press regarding Shaw's politics, proved to be correct, but the value of his letter as a satirical document would be thereby increased.

Lord Reading on Labor in India

By CHARLES ASHLEIGH
(Special to The Daily Worker)

ON Jaunary 20th, Lord Reading made the official viceregal speech at the opening of the Indian legislature.

With regard to the question of trade unions, Lord Reading remarked; "I believe the opinion has been expressed in some quarters that we are moving too fast along the lines of labor legislation." Lord Reading carefully refrained from stating what quarters these were. He did not mention the fact that the "quarters" which had expressed these opinions into the ever-ready ear of the Viceroy, were representing about one-millionth of the population of India. He did not mention the fact that hundreds of thousands of the Indian workers think that the projected trade union legislation is a mockery, and that only by the complete legitimisation of trade unions, and all forms of their activities, can they be satisfied. "Moving too fast!" That is callously cynical comment on the slow starvation of the Indian masses.

STILL on the subject of trade unions, the Viceroy proceeded: "The future of trade unions in India will, I believe, largely depend, not on enactments, but on the spirt shown by employers and workers and in the attitude of the public." So far, the spirit shown by the Indian employers has been a particularly martial one. Their spirit has expressed itself in the summoning of troops, in order to protect their profits by cold steel and by the bullet, whenever the workers, goaded into protest, have struck a blow in their own defense. The spirit shown by the workers, of course, must be of the correctly servile kind, in order to secure the benevolent patronage of the Viceroy for "trade union legislation."

In Support of the Terror

DEALING with the subject of the Bengal situation, the Viceroy stated: "It may also become necessary for my government to introduce to the legislature a measure to define the powers of the high court in relation to the tribunals, and proceedings held under the special Bengal criminal legislation. You are aware the governor of Bengal has exercised the powers conferred upon him under the government of India act, and has certified and signed the bill. I take this opportunity of stating that His Excellency's action in this respect has my full approval and I shall support both him and his government to the extent of my powers in meeting what I regard as a serious emergency."

THE above refers to the legislation which was introduced in order to legalise the arrests made under the special ordinance in Bengal. This, it will be remembered, was voted down by the nationalist majority in the Bengal council. Then, under special powers, the governor of Bengal certified and signed the bill, despite the contrary vote. Lord Reading here declares his approval of this flouting of the minute parliamentary democracy which the Indians are permitted to enjoy. So now, the imprisoned Bengalee Swarajists may have the comfort of knowing that they are lying in gaol, not under an emergency ordinance, but in accordance with a real act of parliament—even tho this act was disapproved by a majority of legislators. We do not believe, however, that the imprisoned nationalists will much relish this very shadowy mitigation of their lot. A gaol's a gaol, for a' that.

"IT is now admitted on all sides," continued Lord Reading, "even by the most convinced opponents of special legislation, that a terrorist movement exists in Bengal and that wide spread conspiracies for violent crimes have been established." We, in Britain, at any rate, have still to see a convincing piece of evidence of these conspiracies. In the reactionary press, we have had it reiterated, with monotonous frequency, that such conspiracies exist, but these same papers have failed to give their details.

WE are, however, convinced that a conspiracy does exist, nevertheless. But it is not a conspiracy of tremendous and subtle secret societies, which constitute the nightmare picture presented to us by Lord Reading and his bureaucrats. It is a gigantic conspiracy, by the imperialistic rulers of India, to check the movement of the Indian people towards national freedom. It is a conspiracy to hamper the expression of India's oppressed millions, to stifle their demand for liberation from the galling shackles of British imperialist capitalism, by flinging their best leaders into prison, forbidding the free publication of their organs, and the free assemblage of their societies. It is a conspiracy to intensify the heavy repression, under the weight of which the Indian masses are bowed.

The Labor Government Approved.

IN dealing with the special ordinance, the instrument used in the wholesale arrests of Bengal nationalists, Lord Reading took his hearers into his confidence. He gave them the details of the genesis of this ordinance, of this imperial edict which filched from the Indians the scanty rights they possessed. The Viceroy states that in this revelation, he is departing from the usual course. "I am well aware that I am taking an exceptional course in giving you this information, but I do it advisedly after careful thought." After careful thought, Lord Reading considers that it is just as well to give credit where credit is due—and, in this case, it is due to—the labor government!

LET us see what the Viceroy says. Referring to the promulgation of the special ordinance, he remarks:

> "The whole matter was submitted to careful examination by Lord Oliver and his majesty's government as then constituted. They agreed with the course suggested as the only possible method of dealing with the dangers facing peace in Bengal."

Thus, you will see that the special ordinance, the wholesale arrests—the "course suggested"—were submitted to that sterling proletarian member of the labor party, Lord Oliver, and to the labor government, before this course was adopted, AND THAT THE LABOR GOVERNMENT APPROVED OF IT!

IT was the labor government, then, according to Lord Reading, which unleashed the police hounds, and set them at the throats of the Indian nationalist leaders. It was the labor government, that mixed hodge-podge of pacifists, sentimentalists, bureaucrats, trade union officials and intellectuals, which approved of this final and heaviest burden being laid upon the bowed shoulders of the Indian masses. It was the labor government which cheeered Lord Reading on, when he was still in doubt, and consulted them as to whether he should take this extreme step. Lord Reading says so; will they deny it?

AND, actually, when the labor government came in, there were Indians who greeted it with faith and hope. Now was a new era about to dawn for India, thought they. For they were simple souls, and they had given credulous ear to the mealy-monthed chattering of "brotherhood," issuing from the various P. S. A. halls where our I. L. P. leaders were performing. They had believed the fine, idealistic declarations, proceeding from these labour "leaders,"—before they took office.

NOW they will no longer believe. This admission of the Viceroy will destroy for ever any lingering hope the people of India may have in the labor party politicians, in the I. L. P. "socialists." Now that they are out of office, the cat is let out of the bag. They stand revealed as the infamous oppressors of the Indian people, as the politicians who gave the word which set all the powers of repression upon the Indian nationalist movement. Thank you, Lord Reading! We always knew it, but it is well you should confirm it.

THE toilers of India are slowly learning. Now, they are learning who are their enemies. Now, they are discovering their false friends. Let them go further; let them know what the Communists say, regarding imperialism, and its overthrow. Let them know that the Communists have always foretold the actions of the pretended friends of India—these white terrorists who impudently adopt the title of "labor." Let them hear and read the Communist message to the colonial peoples; and then they will have started, at last, upon the road which, after strong determined struggle, shall lead to freedom.

Lenin Is Our Darling.

(To the air of "Charley Is My Darling," Scotch folk song.)

'Twas one November morning,
In '17, my dear,
When Lenin threw Kerensky out—
The Yellow Chevalier!

REFRAIN:
O, Lenin is our darling,
Our darling, our darling,
Lenin is our darling,
The Red Chevalier!

As Nick went marching thru the world
The rich grew white with fear,
But common folk came runnin' out
To meet our Chevalier!
O, etc.

With scarlet banners o'er his head
He called in accents clear:
"Now come and fight for workers' might!"
Our Red Chevalier!
O, etc.

They've left their mines and mills and shops,
They've left their children dear,
To draw the sword at Lenin's word—
Our Red Chevalier!
O, etc.

The workers' hearts beat high with hope,
The rich men's low with fear,
And everywhere the workers dare
To follow Lenin dear.

O, Lenin is our darling,
Our darling, our darling,
Lenin is our darling,

A Mother and Her Son.

Dear Juniors:—It is late at night, but I can't deny myself the luxury of a chat with you. I'm so happy tonight! For my oldest son, my twelve-year-old baby, my twelve-year-old little man has joined the young Leninists.

A week ago tonight he came from a meeting very enthusiastic about the memorial meeting that is to take place in this city. He brought me a DAILY WORKER.

While I did my work he read for me the whole paper and in his voice I detected the revolutionary spirit. I put the younger children to bed and we two discussed every article. I told him how many comrades have dedicated their lives to the cause of the working class. He listened attentively to everything I told him, then he said: "Maybe I'll be one of them some day. I think it is wonderful to work for such an ideal. No sacrifice is too great." There was a serious expression of determination and decision in his little face.

And now he has joined the Junior groups. He is a Leninist! And I am the proudest of Communist mothers!

With affectionate greetings,
M. H.

Our Readers Views

Life Would be Miserable Without The DAILY WORKER.

To The DAILY WORKER:—I would rather go without a meal than The DAILY WORKER. It is the power that inspires hope, without which life would be indeed miserable. I had great hope in the S. L. P. (but like that bitter fake, the S. P. or S. D. or "whatever you may call it,") it proposed to practice the pure "non-resistance," and any one who thinks the capitalist dog will give up the fat bone, without a fight, is a fool, and he who thinks that votes are counted right, when private interests are in danger, is a worse idiot, and he who thinks that the workers can "overtake" the establishments and machinery of industry, like the I. W. W., without resorting to force, is a hopeless fool.

Communists Are Not Dreamers.

The Communists are the only ones who seem to be free from the political somnambulism affecting all the others. As a poet says:

"'Tis said the gods produced this precious crew,
In a time when they had nothing else to do;
And when they are ensued with state affairs,
To make them merry they will look downstairs;
And see the tom-fools' action here on earth,
Will cause their godships everlasting mirth."

We have in this state a progressive, Hiram Johnson by name. Before he became governor, we could file on our water, needed for irrigation and domestic purposes, for only ninety cents. Now we are compelled to get a surveyor and have a map made; made to suit the water commissioner.

Well, by the time we are thru, $30 will not cover the costs and it only gives us a fighting chance in court. When Johnson stepped down from the governor's chair, there was nothing left to graft on, according to the L. A. Times, he had one of his friends appointed "Commissioner of Parsnips," reason given, "wild parsnips are poisonous!" He says he favors labor, there is no doubt about it, if labor will submit peacefully to the yoke. I could give a long list of Johnson's wonderful reforms, but he is a cat—not worth the powder.

Greetings to all the comrades,
Fraternally, Thor.

Leninism or Trotskyism - L. Kamenev

The forms in which the bourgeoisie has exercised its influence over the proletariat have changed with the changes of the historical epoch. And the forms and methods of menshevism have changed accordingly. What has remained unchanged is the "wild" Leninist struggle against menshevism Lenin's ability to distinguish the true character of menshevism in very changing form, and to recognize the essential hostility of menshevism against the Bolshevist ideology and the development of the Bolshevist Party. Everyone knows this, or at least it may be assumed that everyone ought to know it. Everyone comprehends that those who are not fully conscious that Bolshevism signifies a systematic struggle against menshevism, understands nothing whatever of Bolshevism, nothing of the history of Bolshevism, and nothing of the reasons why Bolshevism has been victorious. But everyone does not know, though it has been assumed till recently that everyone was bound to know it, that precisely as Leninism originated, grew, and conquered in a constant and systematic struggle against menshevism; it originated, grew, and conquered in a constant and systematic struggle against Trotskyism.

Why? Because Trotskyism, during the whole of the period in which our party was preparing for the decisive class struggle of the proletariat against the bourgeoisie, and in which Leninism was the source of the teaching of the proletarian revolution and welded the party together as leader of the revolution—during the whole of this time Trotskyism played no other role than that of an agent of menshevism, a glossing over of menshevism, a masking of menshevism.

Everyone who studies the history of the party in the works of the party in the works of Lenin—and we have not, nor shall we ever have, a better and profounder textbook on the history of the party and the revolution, or one richer in matter and the conclusions to be drawn from it—will be inevitably convinced that during the whole of his struggle for the party and for the revolution, and during the whole of his struggle against the mensheviki, Lenin regarded Trotsky (taking the line followed by him for decades in its totality, and his separate actions) exclusively as an agent of menshevism, as a servant of menshevism, as a tool employed by menshevism for the purpose of gaining influence in this or that section of the working class. To Lenin, Trotsky and Trotskyism were characteristic and not accidental phenomena, caused by the pressure exercised by the bourgeoisie, in precisely the same manner as the other phenomena hostile to the really proletarian party, the many other groups and sub-groups, fractions and sub-fractions, whole and semi-tendencies, which the working class have had to combat when creating their own party.

To Lenin, Trotsky was entirely uninteresting as a personality after the year 1903. For Lenin and for the party he has been the typical embodiment of one of those historical currents which have run counter to the creation of the Bolshevist Party, and to the development of Bolshevist ideology, the ideology of proletarian revolution and Bolshevist proletarian organization. To Lenin, Trotsky was the wordy embodiment of an element hostile to the proletariat, an element showing talent at times and at other times entirely superfluous and extravagant; he regarded Trotsky as little as a personality as he regarded Martov, Tschernov, and Axelrod as personalities. To him these were again simply the embodiment of certain social phenomena. This systematic struggle against Trotskyism and anti-Bolshevist current is to be found in every volume of Lenin's works up to the time when Trotsky joined our party. At this point there is an interruption, followed by the resumption of this struggle—in another form.

The Period of the First Revolution (1905).

Up to the time of the 2nd Party Congress, up to the split between Bolsheviki and mensheviki, Comrade Trotsky worked for the Leninist Iskra, like Martov, Potressov and other mensheviki. Comrade Trotsky's zeal for the execution of Lenin's plans even led to his receiving the nickname of "Lenin's cudgel," at the first meetings of the party congress. An honorable role! But for Comrade Trotsky's political history this role is less characteristic than the fact that he immediately changed roles as soon as the mensheviki appeared on the scene at the later sessions of this same congress.

The organizatory rupture between the mensheviki and the Bolsheviki took place at the Party Congress on the question of the election of the Central Committee of the party.

Three members had to be elected to the C. C. With respect to two members the mensheviki and the Bolsheviki were in agreement. As third member the mensheviki wanted the "Lenin's cudgel" of yesterday, but Lenin would not agree at any price. The mensheviki would not give way at any price. It is probable that Lenin and Martov had both formed a correct estimate of the degree in which the "cudgel" was "Lenin's." Lenin had the majority at the congress and Trotsky was not elected. Upon this, Comrade Trotsky, in collaboration with Martov, Axelrod, and others, formed the fraction of the mensheviki, broke the decisions of the party congress, headed the boycott against the central authorities of the party under Lenin's leadership, and wrote a political pamphlet against Lenin—one of the most arrogant and offensive productions in menshevist literature, in which Lenin's whole policy is explained as mere greed of power on the part of a "candidate for the post of dictator." The whole set of mensheviki, headed by Martov, Dan, and others, recommended the press to propagate this pamphlet as far as possible. This was the beginning of the history of menshevism, and of the history of Comrade Trotsky in the party.

Trotsky, now become sword-bearer to Martov and Axelrod, lost all interest as a political figure in the eyes of Lenin. Lenin entered into lengthy and systematic conflicts with the mensheviki, with Plechanov, Martov, Axelrod, Martinov; he explained and revealed their standpoint to the workers; but he held it to be superfluous to lose time in contentions with their co-worker, Trotsky.

"Plechanov must be combatted, Martov's arguments must be refuted, and we can contend against the extreme opportunist, Martinov, but it is not worth while to lose time in contending against Trotsky"—so said Lenin at that time to his fellow workers. But when, in the summer of 1905, Comrade Trotsky tried to draw himself out of the menshevist bog by presenting the ideas of Parvus on "permanent revolution" in his own wording, then Lenin entered into a detailed discussion on the ideas and slogans brought out by Parvus, and rejected them. With reference to Trotsky's pamphlet he merely expressed his regret that the "revolutionary social democrat," Parvus should deem it possible to concur "with Trotsky" and his "revolutionary phrases." Lenin had not another word to say about Comrade Trotsky and his "original" theory. (See Lenin, complete works, Russian edition, Vol. 7, page 130.)

And now Comrade Trotsky is endeavoring to lay precisely this pamphlet before the party as certificate of his revolutionary past, and is trying to prove that Lenin was only right in so far as he shared the standpoint of Trotsky's pamphlet. We shall deal with this in detail later on.

During the whole period of the first revolution, when the working masses had for the first time the opportunity of testing in action the various theories of the Russian revolution and their resultant tactical methods, and when Lenin defended the Bolshevist scheme of revolution in desperate battle, he did not think it once necessary to add anything to his characterization of Trotsky's principles, or to the designation of "revolutionary phrases."

Lenin knew that Trotsky's "left phrases" on the "permanent revolution" would certainly have no effect upon the actual course taken by the labor movement revolution, and would not in the least prevent Comrade Trotsky from remaining in the menshevist organization, co-operating in the menshevist central organ, and collaborating politically with the mensheviki. Lenin had the Marxist habit of judging people, parties and fractions according to their deeds, and not according to their words.

During the whole epoch of the first revolution (1905 till 1907), which gave the proletariat its first opportunity of appearing in the arena as mass force and of expressing its class policy and relations to other classes by actual action, there was a bitter struggle between two tactics only, between two political trends only, between two schemes of Russian revolution only, between menshevism, which underestimated or neglected the peasantry and aimed at an understanding between the working class and the bourgeoisie, and Bolshevism, which called upon the peasantry to support the working class, both in its struggle against czarism, and in its struggle against the bourgeoisie on behalf of the dictatorship of the proletariat and the peasantry. This struggle between Bolsheviki and mensheviki during the first revolution, essentially a struggle for the direction to be assumed by the revolution, as also the whole of the first revolution itself, contained all the elements of the struggle ended in the second revolution in 1917. The Parvus-Trotsky theory played no part whatever in either the first or the second revolution. It remained the empty phrase foreseen by Lenin, and had nothing to do with the actual course taken by the class struggle. It has not been preserved in the living events of the actual struggle, but solely in the dusty files of old menshevist newspapers. Therefore Lenin never lost a word, during the revolution, in the refutation of this theory.

The Period of Counter-Revolution.

The tide of revolution ebbed. The party reorganized for difficult and tedious work in the atmosphere of counter-revolution. The "left phrases" entirely lost effect. The foundations for new tactics had to be saved—the banner of the revolutionary tactics of the proletariat and the principles of their ter-revolutionary pogroms, the destrucillegal organization—from the countion of proletarian organizations, the orgies of apostasy, the atmosphere of exhaustion in the working class, and the treachery and malicious joy at the failure of the revolution. The banner of the revolutionary policy of the working class, derided and trodden in the dust by all the mensheviki, had to be defended. At this moment, the most difficult of all for the Bolshevist Party, since the whole atmosphere engendered by the crushing of the revolution took effect against the Bolsheviki, and aid was given an all sides to menshevist and liquidatory tendencies (liquidatory both with regard to party and the revolution)—at this moment Comrade Trotsky, who at the time of the rising revolution combined with Parvus in wanting "to be absolutely more revolutionary than the others," should obviously have rushed to the help of the Bolsheviki. At least this was the course taken by Plechanov, who had been our opponent in principle from 1905 till 1907; the old revolutionist could not bear to stand aside,. and in the face of general apostasy he rushed into the fight side by side with the Bolsheviki, under the slogan of "General Differentiation," that is, a general separation of proletarian revolutionists from the menshevist liquidators.[*] Trotsky acted differently.

During this period of beginning counter-revolution, Comrade Trotsky stepped forward for the first time at the London party Congress. At this congress the Bolsheviki were fighting against the menshevist liquidators, especially against the fraction of the second Duma, headed by men now well known to us, Dan and Zeretelli. The Bolsheviki criticised this Duma fraction as a fraction which, representing the menshevist standpoint, was attempting to tread the path of West European social democratic parliamentarism. We are only too well aware that this is a hothouse in which the most poisonous fruits of treachery against the working class find the most fertile soil. The Bolsheviki criticized severely the very first step being taken in this direction.

Comrade Trotsky of course defended the menshevist fraction against the attacks of the Bolsheviki. Lenin characterized his standopint as follows:

"Trotsky spoke on behalf of the Center; he expressed the views of the 'federation.' (The federation is the most opportunist and unprincipled organization which ever existed in the party; lack of principle is even more characteristic of it than opportunism. It was the organization of the artisans, and reflected their unproletarian spirit.) He attacked us for submitting the draft of an 'unacceptable' resolution. He threatened with an actual split. Is this not monstrous? . . . The fact that it is possible for a question to be put in such a manner shows in itself that our party contains something foreign in it. . . This is not a standpoint based on principles, it is the lack of principle characteristic of the 'Center'— and at the same time, naturally, of its defender, Trotsky." (See Lenin, complete works, vol. 8, pages 387 to 388.)

Comrade Lenin found equally trenchant terms in which to characterize Comrade Trotsky's standpoint at the time when our party summed up its experiences won in 1905, and established on this basis the foundation for the whole future of the party. The words uttered by Lenin at this time reached into the future, and foresaw the role which Comrade Trotsky was destined to play in our party during the next decade.

This was Comarde Trotsky's first deed after the revolution of 1905. From this time onwards until the year 1917 Comrade Trotsky acted unceasingly as defender of the mensheviki against the Bolsheviki, as adversary of the Bolshevist Party steeling itself in the struggle of that time; and he was invariably regarded by the party as an adversary.

Let us follow Lenin still furthr, and see how he characterized the role played by Comrade Trotsky during the difficult process of creating a Bolshevist Party, that is, during the process of creating the theory and organization for the leadership of the proletarian revolution.

Physical Culture In Soviet Russia

Councils for Physical Development, which was held in the spring of last year, recorded the fact that a tremendous success has already been attained in this domain, but it is also emphasized that much still remains to be accomplished, both in the field of ideological elaboration of the principles of physical culture and in the field of the methodology and organization of this work. Soviet practice shows, however, that once the mass of the people has made up its mind to accomplish a given task, their aim will be attained.

The Supreme Council for Physical Culture is firmly convinced that it will succeed in its aim of turning Russia, from a land of capitalist slavery, of semi-serfdom and backwardness in the domain of health, into a land of free, happy, healthy labor.

FRED MARVIN, the stoolpigeon who has succeeded Whitney as secretary of the American Defense Society, is quite excited because an amendment has been introduced in both houses of congress calling for equal rights for women thruout the United States. Parasites like Marvin must always have something to excite the ruling class about, else they might have to sweat for their grub. Marvin figuratively tears his hair over the attempts that are being made to "tamper with" the constitution. If the new amendment has as little luck as the proposed child labor law, Marvin and his paymasters need not worry. They need not worry about constitutional amendments anyhow.

MACLAY HOYNE, democratic leader, heavy stockholder in the Thiel Detective agency, and famous as a radical baiter is again in the public eye, but bricks not bouquets are coming his way this time. Hoyne was the leading figure in arresting Communists in Chicago in 1919. It seems that he has a great fancy for the long green. In 1919, he induced other stoolpigeons to get the bankers and manufacturers excited over the "red menace" so much so in fact, that they put up something like $60,000 to get rid of it.

BUT most of this cash dribbled into the coffers of the Thiel Detective agency with which the honorable democrat, Hoyne, was connected. The bankers had the satisfaction of devoting some of their loot to the "worthy object" of protecting the looters and Hoyne got a lot of publicity and a lot of good money. In those days, patriotism was the main business of almost every scoundrel because it was the business that paid best.

AGAIN we find Maclay Hoyne robbing the robbers. In that respect he resembles Robin Hood. The latter took from the rich and gave to the poor. Hoyne takes from rich and poor, but he is never on the giving end. The latest achievement of this bold defender of "American institutions" against "those who would rob the people of their property" was to frighten two old people into turning over their property to another burglar associated with Hoyne. The robbery was almost a half million dollar job. Had it been done by ordinary robbers, they would face a long term in jail, but it is not likely that Hoyne will ever find himself on the wrong side of a cell on account of it.

"TRUTH is essential in newspaper work and no one who does not love it will succeed in reporting," declared Miss Maurine McKernan, Chicago Tribune reporter, to members of the high school press association. Truth is not essential in capitalist newspaper work any more than honesty is essential in business. If such was the case, the Chicago Tribune would not have made millions of dollars for its owners. The Tribune publishes all the lies that sound good to the ears of its readers and to the businessmen who advertise in it. The individual reporter who makes a mistake may be given a calldown, if the mistake injures the paper's interests, but lying is indulged in by all capitalist papers as a policy and every reporter knows this.

THE report on the vote for officers of the United Mine Workers of America for the next two years indicates tremendous strength for the left wing elements opposed to the reactionery dictatorship of Lewis and company. Lewis counted 136,209 votes for himself and 62,843 for George Voyzey, his left wing opponent. Phil Murray got 126,800 votes for vice-president and Arley Staples polled 66,038. That the left wing could poll so many votes, despite the absence of a campaign, outside of the distribution of a few leaflets shows that Lewis

SHAFT REACHES HALF WAY TO FLOYD COLLINS, BURIED IN SAND CAVE

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 8.—The shaft being dug to Floyd Collins, entombed for eight days in a crevice of Sand Cave, reached a depth of twenty-five feet last night. It was said by H. T. Carmichael, engineer in charge of the work, that it will be Friday or Saturday at the earliest before the diggers can reach Collins.

The cost of the rescue work to reach the imprisoned cave explorer was estimated by Carmichael to be $1,500 per day, but with the material and labor volunteered, the cost may be reduced to $700.00 per day.

Homer Collins, brother of Floyd Collins, continues to explore the caves around where Floyd was caught in a crevice, in the hope that some entrance to the crevice may be discovered.

SEVERINO CASE WITNESSES DO NOT RESPOND

Krumbein and Katterfeld Refuse Subpoena

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 8.—Chas. Krumbein, district organizer for the Workers Party in New York, and L. E. Katterfield were subpoenaed to appear as witnesses in deposition proceedings presided over by Max Burger, department of justice agent from Cleveland. The hearing is part of an attempt to have the citizenship papers of A. V. Severino revoked by the United States district court at Cleveland.

One of the Washington Defendants.

Severino is one of the defendants in the Michigan criminal syndicalist cases and the attempt to take away his citizenship papers is a revival of an old case obviously purposing to make him eligible for deportation.

The fact that Max Burger, who was one of the "red specialists" for the prosecution in St. Joseph, Mich. during the Michigan trials, is taking the leading part in the present case against Severino makes it plain there is a distinct connection between the two. Both Katterfield and Krumbein refused to answer questions or give testimony for deposition on the grounds of incirimination.

"Contempt of Court"—Ho! Ho!

Burger dismissed Katterfield but informed Krumbein he would be the object of court proceedings to make him answer. He said he would charge Krumbein with contempt of court, and there matters stand.

Burger has recently been attached to the Cleveland section of the department of justice for this purpose. He was in Chicago several weeks ago taking similar depositions, for the most part from department of justice finks, on the Severino case. He was also recently in St. Joseph, Mich. collecting evidence to be used in Severino's trial in Cleveland.

General Deportation Plot.

It is the belief of defense attorneys that this attack on Severino's citizenship is a plot on the part of the department of justice to start wholesale deportations of all the defendants in the Michigan and other cases who are or can be made elegible for deportation by the labor department.

In the meantime the department of justice is busy trying to make Severino the object of deportation from the country. Severino or any of the other Michigan defendants cannot be deported while they are held for trial in this country. The move is obviously intended to put deportation on the order of the day in case convictions are not secured in those cases in which the defendants are elegible for deportation.

Calls Brotherhoods For Pre-Conference Meeting on Feb. 20

(Special to the Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 8—Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and chairman of the executive committee of railroad brotherhoods, has issued a call to all brotherhood executives to meet in Chicago on Feb. 20, one day before the date set for the meeting of the conference for progressive political action.

The meeting, says the call, "is for the purpose of defining and outlining the brotherhoods' position insofar as their further activities and connection with the conference for progressive political action are concerned."

It is reported that 200 individual liberals, mostly from the east, have been invited to the conference for political action. These are responding to the headquarters in Washington.

Open Shoppers Of 'Frisco Used Guns on Molders

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8.—The local organization of the open shop employers, going under the name of the "Industrial Association," is being investigated by the grand jury on account of the crimes of violence against union men by the thugs employed by the association.

It is admitted that large numbers of thugs from private detective agencies have been hired by the industrial association, which of course, denies that these worthies shot and slugged by its orders.

A number of members of the Molders' Union have ben shot and badly wounded just as they were entering their homes, where the gunmen of the detective agency laid in wait for them, shooting them down from hiding.

SOVIET RUSSIA TO SPEND 75 PCT. MORE ON EDUCATION THIS YEAR

MOSCOW, Russia, Feb. 8.—Expenditures on the people's education, in the general budget for 1925, is to be 75 per cent higher than in 1924, Lunacharsky, the commisar for education announced, during the recent sitting of the All-Russian Schoolmasters' Congress, according to press dispatches.

Last year the government published about 28,000,000 school books for use in the villages. The Soviet government has fixed a compulsory minimum salary of 28 rubles.

TURKS CERTAIN OF NO GREEK WAR DANGER

British Rulers Hesitate to Aid Greeks

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 8—There is no fear here of war threats made by the Greek government following the entirely legal expulsion of the Greek orthodox catholic patriarch.

Neither the Turkish government nor the masses generally seem to be worried. High Turkish officials gave the following reasons why the fulminations of the Greek government are not taken seriously:

1. All Macedonians are working in a united front with the Communist Party and are prepared to begin a revolutionary uprising the moment Greece declares war.

2. Bulgaria wants the Greek port of Dedegeatch on the Aegean Sea and would seize the city in the event of war.

3. Jugo-Slavia has admitted her intention of taking the port of Salonica at the first opportunity and war would give her the excuse of "national safety" for occupying it.

4. A declaration of war would be followed immediately by the deportation of the 200,000 Greeks still in Constantinople—a move that would intensify the refugee problem in Greece.

5. The Turko-Russian treaty provides for Russian support of Turkey in event of war with Greece.

6. Greece cannot borrow money to finance a war. The British government does not wish to strengthen the Turko-Russian alliance and it is improbable that it will support Greece financially.

7. The Greek navy cannot penetrate the Dardanelles because of the Turkish fortifications.

8. Italy and France would aid Turkey.

It is stated here that all diplomatic representatives of the major powers have agreed that Turkey was justified in deporting the Greek church prelate.

The danger in the present situation for Soviet Russia is that Great Britain will demand as a price for her neutrality the severance of the Turkish alliance with Russia. British success in this maneuver depends a good deal upon the outcome of the negotiations relative to the disposition of the Mosul oil fields.

HERRIN KLUXERS REFUSE TO GIVE UP GUN PERMITS

Exiling of Galligan Is Not Expected to Help

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HERRIN, Ill., Feb. 8.— Altho the board of supervisors of Williamson county yesterday ratified the "peace" agreement between Sheriff Galligan and ku klux klan forces, many klansmen here said they will refuse to give up their gun permits.

It was declared in Springfield by those who had followed the conference of klan and anti-klan representatives with Governor Small, that the repudiation of the agreement by klan forces in Herrin would bring on more shootings.

The klan political party at Herrin sent word to the board of supervisors that they would accept nothing less than Galligan's unconditional resignation. They demand that the klan be placed in full control of the city administration of Herrin.

Governor Small has successfully exerted pressure on Sheriff Galligan to leave the county, and under the agreement Galligan must leave his deputy, Randall Parks, in charge of the sheriff's office.

The county grand jury in session at Marion, investigating the recent Herrin klan killings, is nearing the end of its meeting, with the probability that no one will be indicted for the shootings of Ora Thomas, Glenn Young and three other men.

HERRIN WAR HERITAGE OF MINE STRIKE

Young Led Kluxers for Coal Bosses

Article II.

By THURBER LEWIS.

It is very hard to get people to talk in Williamson county. Very few people care to express an opinion. But a very reliable person unlikely to be prejudiced, said there was a good ground for the DAILY WORKER'S belief there is a very concise connection between the recent klan trouble and the Lester mine affray of 1922.

A prominent lawyer in Marion who did not wish to be quoted told the DAILY WORKER "Glenn Young certainly must have had powerful forces behind him. He always had plenty of money. He drove around in the best car in the county. He had a paid bodyguard of some twenty men with him all the time. He made trips to all parts of the country. It is my belief this whole movement is an attempt to break up the labor unions in Williamson county."

Says Union Leaders Scared.

Another prominent person in Williamson who did not want his name used for obvious reasons, said in answer to a question by the reporter regarding the attitude of the officials of the Miners' Union, "The reason they don't do anything about this obvious attack on organized labor in Illinois is because they are either jelly-fish or

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA., WILL ENTERTAIN REAL BOLSHEVIKS

Meeting Sunday 15th to Organize Reds

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Feb. 9.—A short visit to the town soon discloses the working and effect of class collaboration schemes upon the mass of workers. Here we see the building crafts, shop crafts on the railroad and the skilled workers in some other plants reaping rewards for their betrayal of the masses at the expense of the masses.

During the past fifteen years class collaboration (in this case some workers protecting their employers against sympathetic strikes, agitation or suspension of work, in return for average wages, working conditions and perpetuation of their "union") has been practiced in this city by the building crafts.

Every craftsman on the job was a "card man." His local had to affiliate with the Building Trades Council which was the guardian of his behaviour on the job. Cedar Rapids, to the labor faker is a good and a union town to the rebel it is reactionary and a good union town, and to the unorganized and unskilled it is hell and a "no-good union" town.

Canfield and Stewart "Sitting Pretty."

The class collaboration plan is operated thru a board of arbitration. The labor unions and chamber of commerce are quite friendly. The leaders often meet, they boost for the town, are very patriotic to the institutions of "our" contry, even to the stand-pat parties. LaFollette is too radical and Brookhart is a Bolshevik to them.

Would Return German Property.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The $300,000,000 worth of German, Austrian and Hungarian property, held by the alien property custodian since its seizure in 1917 would be returned to the German owners under a bill introduced in the senate yesterday by Senator Borah, republican of Idaho.

HOUSE TO CONTINUE PROBE OF FEDERAL JUDGE GRAFT CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—Federal judge, G. W. English, of the eastern district of Illinois, probably will be investigated on charges of official misconduct by the house judiciary committee. A sub-committee, which heard preliminary evidence against the judge, reported to the full committee that reasonable grounds existed for these charges.

Judge English is accused of illegal interest in a "bankruptcy ring" in his court at East St. Louis, Ill., and with "arbitrary and unjust practices."

AMSTERDAM TRADE UNION CONGRESS PLANS TO CONFER WITH THE R. I. L. U.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 8.—It is reported here that favorable action has been taken by the executive council of the Amsterdam Trade Union International on the proposal for a joint conference with the representatives of the Red International of Labor Unions.

Hitherto the Amsterdamers claimed they would not confer with the R. I. L. U. until it had accepted the Amsterdam program. The present developments would therefore indicate a big concession to the R. I. L. U.

It is also reported that the executive council of the Amsterdam International has voted favorably on the admission of Russian labor unions to the various internationals of industries affiliated with Amsterdam. The Amsterdam International was forced to take a stand on this question because the various Russian unions were demanding admission to their various international organizations. They had hitherto been denied admission because the Amsterdamers claimed they were already affiliated with the Red, International of Labor Unions, claimed to be a rival organization.

WORLD LABOR IN PROTEST FOR SACCO-VANZETTI

Gatherings in Many Lands on March 1

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 8.—On March 1, the workers of the world will protest against the conviction and continued imprisonment of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Originally set by the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee as the day on which the workers of the United States would voice their indignation at the unjust punishment being visited on these two labor men by the capitalist courts of Massachusetts, the workers' organizations of other countries are also arranging mass protest meetings for the same day.

Protests in Many Cities.

From Paris, Rome, Mexico City, Havana, Berlin, Buenos Aires, Moscow, Lisbon and many other cities word has come to the defence committee here of the arrangements being made for the March 1, protest meetings and parades.

Workers all over South America will hold parades and meetings on that day. Many South American unions have made arrangements for calling one-day strikes. The plans as outlined to the committee promise that the meetings will rival those held during 1921 all over the world following the conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Meeting in Havana, Cuba.

In Havana, Alberto Baldino, leader of the tobacco workers, will be the star speaker at several meetings. In the Argentine, Fredando Torres is in charge of the arrangements.

DEMOCRATIC RED BAITER EXPOSED AS BIG CROOK

Former State's Attorney Caught with Goods

Maclay Hoyne, democratic leader and former state's attorney for Cook county is charged with having coerced James W. McElvain and Mrs. Frank Crozier into turning over almost half a million dolars worth of property to Fred A. Burton, wealthy coal operator, in a decision handed down by Judge Sullivan a few days ago.

The method used by the holdup men was to threaten their victims with exposure, unless they turned over their property. Maclay Hoyne won considerable notoriety in 1919 when he led the "red raids" against the Communists.

A Thiel Tout.

It was afterwards learned that he was then an official of the Thiel Detective Agency and that he had an agreement with Mike Flanagan, head of the spy concern, whereby a certain part of the funds collected from the bankers to prosecute the radicals could be dumped into the Thiel treasury.

That Maclay Hoyne is just a common criminal type is amply shown in his latest piece of blackmail. Hoyne frightened McElvain into turning over his property by telling him that he had detectives watching him and that he would expose his alleged relations with women outside of the sacred bonds of matrimony, and would prosecute him.

RUSSIANS IN NEW YORK DISTRICT PLEDGE AID TO THE DAILY WORKER

The national office of the Workers (Communist) Party has received a telegram from the chairman of the District No. 2 (New York) convention of the Russian section of the party as follows:

"We, the delegates of District No. 2, Russian section, Workers (Communist) Party, in convention assembled, send our heartfelt congratulations to the central executive committee on the work it is carrying on in connection with the DAILY WORKER, and we pledge our full support in connection with that campaign. Long live the DAILY WORKER!"

REIMBURSE BANK FOR SUPPRESSION OF STEEL STRIKE

Youngstown Business Levies Assessment

(Special to The Daily Worker)

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Feb. 8.—Letters have been sent out by the Youngstown chamber of commerce to business concerns assessing them fixed sums to reimburse the First National Bank for money advanced to the city to pay for special police protection furnished by the American legion during the great steel strike of 1919. The amount asked is $377,651.91. Assessments on business concerns vary in size.

During the great steel strike of September, 1919, that closed down the entire steel and iron industry in Mahoning valley, Mayor Craver was requested by the steel barons and others to appoint special policemen. The city had not the money to pay and borrowed from the bank to meet the cost, that of $200,568.91 in all.

The expenditure had not been authorized in legal form and repayment was refused by the city administration under Craver's successor in office. Attempts were made to have city council declare the debt a "moral obligation" followed, also legal action. The common pleas court held that no "moral obligation" existed, but higher courts upheld the legality of part of the bill, that of $144,216.03.

A special act of the Ohio state legislature permitted a city bond issue to meet this "moral obligation." The debt of $56,352.88 spent by the city for ammunition, arms, and other equipment and overtime pay was not upheld by the courts. This is part of the bill that the chamber of commerce wants concerns to pay. In addition to the $56,352.38, there are unpaid attorneys' fees of $21,293.03.

For Arms and Ammunition.

Declaring that "If the great danger confronting us at the time (during the steel strike) could have been known, there would have been a voluntary desire to avert the impending danger," the chamber of commerce has appointed a special assessment committee "to determine equitable assessments upon all business interests."

The bill now presented for payment is for arms, ammunition, lawyers, used by the steel police, consisting of mostly members of the American legion, to defeat the steel strikers. The bank paid out $144,216.03 for wages to special police in Youngstown.

Rainfall Causes Disaster.

ADELAIDE, Australia, Feb. 8—A record rainfall left the streets flooded today, isolated the suburbs and damaged offices and factories. A number of railroad bridges collapsed.

LEWIS MACHINE IN MILD PANIC OVER RESULTS

Progressive Candidates Are Communists

(Special to The Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 8.—The report of the international tellers of the United Mine Workers of America on the recent elections for officers of the organization for the next two years, created a sensation among the labor bureaucrats, not alone of the U. M. W. of A., but of the other big internationals whose headquarters are located in this city.

The tremendous and unexpected vote cast for the progressive slate indicates that the left wing revival which has been obvious for some time is not a mere flash in the pan, a protest vote, or a tribute to some well known and popular leader, but a genuinely conscious vote reflecting the development of a radical left bloc within the United Mine Workers of America, that understands what it is after and is learning to organize so that it can accomplish its purpose.

The Votes They Counted.

The summary of the tellers' report issued from the headquarters of the Miners' Union shows the following vote for the three leading candidates:

For President

John L. Lewis, reactionary..136,209

George Voyzey, Progressive.. 62,843

For Vice-President

Philip Murray, reactionary..[illegible]

Arley Staples, progressive...... [illegible]

For Secretary-Treasurer.

William Green, reactionary..128,977

Joseph Nearing, progressive.. 51,656

Progressives Without Funds.

In view of the fact that the Progressive Miners' Committee that ran the slate in opposition to the Lewis gang was without funds and with only a skeleton organization and was therefore unable to wage any campaign outside of the distribution of a few leaflets, gives this vote extraordinary significance.

The candidates of the progressives were practically unknown outside of their own district. The Lewis gang took care to throw well known progressive leaders like Howatt, Duncan McDonald and Jim MacLachlan out of the organization or else render them ineligible for office so that the progressives would be unable to run a popular figure of national prominence in opposition to the reactionary slate.

As it was, thousands of votes were thrown out in several districts, notably Kansas, where at least 90 per cent of the locals endorsed Alexander Howatt for president of the district. The vote in District 14 was so overwhelmingly against Lewis and for his opponent, George Voyzey, that the Lewis gang refused to count 75 per cent of them.

Communists Against Fakers.

It is interesting to note, in view of William Green's leadership of the fight to expel William F. Dunne from the Portland convention of the A. F. of L. on the ground that he was a Communist, that the three leading candidates against the Lewis machine are Communists and that they made their fight for election on a Communist program. This is also true of the great majority of the other candidates on the progressive slate.

That such a heavy vote should be cast for Communist candidates has created consternation in the Lewis political household. Nobody would [illegible]

ILLINOIS EMPLOYERS REWARD POPE FOR HIS FIGHT ON COMMUNISM

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Cardinal Mundelin, of Chicago, sailed in the Cunarder Berengaria yesterday, on his way to visit the pope. Mundelin took with him $100,000 which was contributed by Illinois manufacturers as a present to the vatican.

Francis J. Lewis, a manufacturer, gave $20,000 toward this fund, and other manufacturers located in Illinois gave large sums. The pope recently made a declaration against the Communists and against Soviet Russia. He has given his silent support to the Mussolini fascist government.

NATIONAL GROUPS JOIN FORCES FOR LABOR DEFENSE

Great Gotham Bazaar Opens Wednesday

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 8.—The attempt of the United States government of Wall Street and Teapot Dome to crush the party of the workers in America, the Workers (Communist) Party, by imprisoning its leading members in Michigan's state penitentiary, will receive a fitting reply from the class conscious workers in New York City when the doors open on one of the biggest bazaars ever organised in this city.

The affair will begin on Wednesday evening, February 11, and will run full blast until Saturday evening. It is held under the auspices of the Labor Defense Council and the International Workers' Aid and the proceeds will not only be used to defend the victims of American capitalism, but the victims of the White Terror in every country in the world.

Every radical organization in New York that believes in the class struggle is represented and the program offered does credit to the artistic abilities of the working class.

Among the organizations that will participate in the program are: the Freiheit Singing Society, the Paterson Mandolin orchestra, the Finnish Gymnastic and Choral clubs, the Ukrainian Workers' Chorus, the German mass Declamation Society, the Workers' Dramatic League, the modern school and of course, the Young Workers' League and the inimitable Juniors.

ALLIED DEBTS TO BE PAID BY GERMAN WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, England, Feb. 8.—Great Britain will not expect France to pay her war debts to England until France can secure payments from Germany, the British note to France which will be made public Monday will declare, it was said in official circles. It is also intimated that England will use the money paid her by France to pay England's war debt to the United States.

The note will declare, officials here say, that England will be ruled by the general principle that Great Britain does not ask for more money from Europe than the amount Great Britain is pledged to pay the United States.

Britain presumes, the note will continue, that payments will be forthcoming from Germany. If Germany does not pay, then Britain will not expect the allied debtors to make up for the German shortage.

The note will invite France to make a definite offer regarding the payment of its debt to Great Gritain. The foreign office would welcome a visit from Premier Herriot to discuss the matter, the note will say.

World Labor in Big Protests for Lives Of Sacco and Vanzetti

walls of which Ferrer was shot, Raion Merino Gracia has sent a letter calling on the workers to come to the aid of Sacco and Vanzetti. Gracia, leader of the Spanish Communist Party, has been in prison several years, but is more interested in seeing the workers protest against the fate which awaits Sacco and Vanzetti than in asking them to demand his release.

Face Fascisti Rule.

The workers in America can hardly realise the difficulties which will face the workers who plan the holding of protest meetings in Spain and Italy. In both countries the demonstrators will be faced by the clubs and guns of the fascists but the plans to hold meetings are being made.

In all countries a united front of all working class elements has been formed to make the protest day the biggest thing ever seen.

In Russia the trade unions have taken it on themselves to see that the meetings will be a huge success.

Many Meetings in U. S.

In the United States protest meetings will be held from one end of the country to the other. The Workers (Communist) Party will have a large part in arranging many of the meetings and furnishing speakers for others. Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, San Francisco will all have meetings. Hundreds of little meetings will be held in mining towns all thru Pennsylvania and the middle west.

Joseph Ettor, leader of the famous Lawrence textile strike, and who himself faced the electric chair in a case growing out of that strike, will speak in Detroit March 1.

To Accomplish Big Things.

Ettor has already made several speeches in Massachusetts on behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti and is about to begin a tour of the east ending with his Detroit speech.

Indications are that March first will go down in working class history as the day on which united action accomplished big things.

JAPAN KICKS OUT WHITE GUARDISTS FROM RUSS EMBASSY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKIO, Feb. 8.—The Japanese authorities yesterday took over the Russian embassy and notified the remnants of the old counter-revolutionary white guard government to vacate.

The embassy will be turned over to the Soviet ambassador and will soon be occupied by the representative of the workers' and peasants' government of Russia.

Lewis Machine in Mild Panic Over Union Referendum

cuse the Lewis tellers of making any mistakes in counting the votes in favor of the radicals. In fact, it is a well founded belief in labor circles that the reactionaries never allow themselves to be defeated in an election as long as they are able to count the votes.

Yet Voysey polled almost half as many votes as Lewis and Staples received more than half as many as his opponent, Phil. Murray. The vote for Green shows that he is the most popular member of the Lewis machine while his opponent, Joseph Nearing, was less known than the other progressives.

It's a Gloomy Outlook!

An official of the Typographical Union, in a conversation with a leader of the Carpenters' Union, commented on the growing menace of the progressive movement to what he termed the "bonafide leadership of the trade union movement," but he expressed no hope that anything could be done to stop it, admitting that expulsions were futile in view of the tactics of the Trade Union Educational League, which is the leader of the left wing fight in the entire trade union field. "They make more trouble for us fighting to get back again, than they make on the inside," he declared. The more expulsions, the more trouble, said this official, and the carpenters' lieutenant with whom he was conversing, nodded his head.

Lewis is said to have expressed fear that the morale of the progressive will be so strengthened by this vote that they might push for the special convention to give Howat and other miners' leaders a square deal and a fair trial. It is reported that the necessary five districts have already voted for a special convention.

That the vote for the progressive candidates was a thinking vote is shown from the following titles of the Progressive Miners' election program: Nationalization of coal mines; shorter work day and week; unemployment; alliance between miners and railroad workers; Dawes' international "open shop" plan; international affiliation; amalgamation; independent political action; for class struggle against class collaboration; special convention to give Howat and other Kansas miners a fair trial; organize the unorganized; national agreements only; direct election of organizers; secession and dual unionism; Lewis violates miners' policies; recognition of Soviet Russia.

Chinese Strike and Boycott Hits Fish Trade of Americans

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKING, China, Feb. 8—"American interests"—which the American workers know nothing about—again are in conflict with the Chinese people. And again the Aemrican government treats the Chinese nation as a conquered and subject people.

The American consul at Foochow, has telegraphed the legation here that "American interests" in Foochow are in a critical condition owing to a student strike, with subsequent rioting, on account of a boycott of American dried fish.

The government here, when the American legation demanded satisfaction, ordered the students' union disbanded and its leaders arrested.

However, the local governor of Foochow has ignored the order and the boycott continues along with the strike. The American Oriental Bank and other American firms are complaining that they cannot sell the fish they have imported and that the cargoes are rotting.

FAKERS DISRUPT CENTRAL BODY IN MINNEAPOLIS

Smith Slates Harthill for Cramer's Job

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 8.— After three years' work, Paul J. Smith has succeeded in changing the name of the Minneapolis Trade and Labor Assembly to the Central Labor Union of Minneapolis and Hennepin County. He has also succeeded in expelling a few Communists from the central body and in getting a lively scrap under way.

According to all indications the fight has barely started. The object of the reactionaries led by Smith is to secure a stranglehold on the central body, so that they can form a united front with the Citizens' Alliance, an employers' organization that has built up one of the most efficient organizations of stool pigeons in the country.

Former Police Chief.

Smith has, as one of his chief lieutenants, a notorious faker by the name of Lewis Harthill, who is running a hold-up sheet called Minnesota. Harthill was police chief under Van Lear. He is a stupid person, and is very easily satisfied, as far as titles are concerned, but it takes a lot of money to make him sleep easy. All he wants now is the editorship of the Labor Review, which is run by Robly D. Cramer.

Cramer has done everything possible to please his foes, but unfortunately, Harthill wants his job, and tho Cramer did penance in sackcloth and ashes for his past progressive sins, Harthill will not be satisfied until he steps down from the editorial chair of the Labor Review.

Stevens Back Again.

The fight is an interesting one. Dan Stevens, veteran leader of the Painters' Union and former secretary of the assembly was back again with a new set of credentials the meeting after that at which he was expelled. His credentials were turned down, of course. But Stevens will be back again and again.

Smith has written a new constitution for the new central body. One of its provisions excludes "Communists, members of the I. W. W. and other dual or revolutionary organizations." The present officers of the central body may hold office until next May. After then, elections will take place annually.

Trade unionists are wondering who is paying Smith for his work here. For three long years he has not turned in the name of a new member to the trade unions, tho he is drawing his salary as an "organizer." Is he getting paid by the Citizens' Alliance? The question is pertinent, and Minneapolis trade unionists would like to hear what Smith has to say in reply.

Another provision in the constitution prevents Cramer from acting as an officer of the Central Labor Union or representing that body as a delegate. Hitherto, Cramer was the rather automatic delegate from the assembly to all political gatherings at which the council was represented. This clause bars him from being a delegate to the farmer-labor federation. He is now a member of the state central committee and of the city central committee of the federation.

Threat to Lift Charters.

Paul Smith, the A. F. of L. dictator, declared that if the local unions insisted in sending Communists to the Central Labor Union as delegates, after warning that they were unsatisfactory, the international officers of the locals would be called upon to take approriate action, which means lifting the charters of the locals. It is now a fight to the bitter end between the progressives led by the Communists and the reactionaries led by the "czars" of the A. F. of L.

15,000 Furriers Get Wage Increases in New Agreement

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Feb. 8.—Wage increases of approximately 10 per cent will be paid to Brooklyn fur dressers under the new two-year agreement signed with employers.

First class floor workers are to receive a minimum of $50 a week instead of $45; second class, $44, instead of $40; third class, $35, with provision that all third class men now employed in shops shall receive 10 per cent increase in wages. Floor workers employed at time of settlement are to receive not less than $35 and new, inexperienced workers will start at $30 and receive $35 at the end of six months. Apprentices are to be retained by firms at conclusion of apprenticeship period and paid not less than the minimum scale for full fledged floor workers provided in the agreement.

About 1500 workers make the additional wages under the new agreement. Watchmen are to become members of the union and are not to work over eight hours daily nor receive less than the minimum wage of the agreement.

20,000 MARINE MINES, LAID DURING WORLD WAR, PERIL SHIPPING

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 9.—Twenty thousand deep sea mines are slowly rising to the surface in the Baltic and adjacent waters and are becoming a formidable menace to shipping, according to A. Flaes, Netherlands consul general in Hamburg.

In a report published here recently Mr. Flaes says that during the war 60,000 mines were laid between Bergen, Norway, and the Baltic archipelago.

Forty thousand of them have been recovered in some way or other; mostly, it is assumed, thru the chains by which they were secured being gradually eaten away by the action of the sea water.

The rest are still unaccounted for, and they are reappearing gradually in unexpected places. The consul gives warning that the Baltic, the Bothnian gulf, and the Finnish waters will not be entirely free for a long time to come.

Labor Officials Hear Mayor Dever Talk on Traction

Mayor Dever is expected to announce today that, contrary to his former statements, he will approve the purchase price of $163,000,000 for Chicago's traction lines. This price was the contract price provided for in the 1907 city ordinances. The bankers have demanded this price for the traction lines, and in spite of the statement previously made by the mayor that he would not meet the exhorbitant terms of the bankers, Dever has let it be known he is about to give in to them.

The officials of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who conferred with Dever again Saturday have made no decision as to their attitude on the dever traction ordinance. John Fitzpatrick, president, and Ed. Nockels, of Labor, and Victor Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, were in conference with Dever, Ald. Schwartz, Special Attorney Jerome Frank, Assistant Corporation Counsel W. Holly, Oscar Nelson, vice-president of the federation, and John Walt, also of the Chicago Federation of Labor. They made no statement after the conference.

It was declared by city hall attaches, however, that the mayor told the union officials that "he could not avoid" the price of $163,000,000. The labor union officials are said to have asked for more time to consider the ordinance before taking a stand.

Bankers Want Two Thirds Jury Verdicts And No Legal Defense

The Illinois Bankers' Association wants to abolish trial by jury—that is the practical meaning of a recommendation by the organization's criminal code and practices committee of which C. W. Terry is chairman. It recommends that convictions be made legal in all criminal cases if only two-thirds of a jury so vote.

The Illinois Manufacturers' Association is now fighting against a bill introduced at Springfield to provide for trial by jury in cases of so-called "contempt of court" in labor cases. The Bankers' Association goes much further.

In addition to the two-thirds recommendation, the committee recommends that the association "discourage" lawyers defending "persons charged with robbery and like crimes."

Joe Manley to Speak.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The downtown English branch of the Workers Party, which meets at 208 East 12th street, will hold its regular educational meeting this Wednesday, Feb. 11. The speaker of the evening will be Joseph Manley, Trade Union Educational League organizer of the eastern states. Comrade Manley has had wide experience in the trade union field and his talk should prove highly interesting. Visitors are permitted to attend educational meetings.

Labor Must Keep Its Eyes and Feet on Earth If It Would Conquer World

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, George William Norris, United States senator from Nebraska, appeals to God in an effort to find out where the "common people" are to get protection against the inroads of big business. Norris, like LaFollette, believes in the "good man" theory of capitalist politics. But to his way of looking "Cal" Coolidge is appointing anyone but "good men" to the high places in official power in Washington.

The "good man" theory, especially in politics, presupposes the power of the individual as supreme over organizational strength. Ostensibly republican, Norris thinks that if enough "good" republicans can be elected, the "common people" will be saved from the depredations of the standpat G. O. P. machine and its Wall Street master.

• • • •

Coolidge thinks differently. He wouldn't be the idol of the capitalist dictatorship at Washington if he didn't. Coolidge believes in an organized strength that works smoothly in every cog. That is why he is changing the parts, and getting new ones where needed, in the capitalist government of which he is the nominal head.

Here and there, tried and true servants of the money power are being substituted for those who show any signs of vascillation or independence in the service of their masters.

The elevation of Harlan Fiske Stone, from the attorney generalship, the post recently held by Harry Daugherty, to a place on the bench of the United States supreme court, is just the beginning.

Morgan's lawyer, John "Wallstreet" Davis, did not get elected to the White House. Instead, another Morgan lawyer, Stone, becomes a supreme court justice.

With Morgan and Company's lawyer sitting in the nation's high court, the business of which is to be restricted largely to cases affecting the moneyed interests, other branches of the American dollar oligarchy are planning similarly to entrench themselves.

The sugar trust is to get Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, into the attorney general's office, in the place vacated by Stone.

The railroads are to put T. F. Woodlock on the Interstate Commerce Commission, and thru him control that important body.

W. E. Humphreys, hailed as the "nation's greatest reactionary" is scheduled for the federal trade commission.

All of which causes Senator Norris, of Nebraska, to rise excitedly in his place in the U. S. senate and ask:

> "Tell me, Oh God, tell me, where the toiling millions of the honest, common people of this country are going to be protected in their rights as against big business."

Perhaps Norris will get an answer about the time that the Reformed Seventh Day Adventists correctly predict the end of the world. Which will be never. This is not the first time that a capitalist politician has turned to god. During the great unemployment crisis of 1907, William Howard Taft, appropriately named "Bill the Fat," was called on for his solution of the jobless evil. He readily responded with, "God knows."

• • • •

But the difference between Taft and Norris is very clear. Taft turns the eyes of the "common people" toward god and then joins with other upholders of the capitalist system in going thru their pockets. Taft and Coolidge are big cogs, and important cogs, in the capitalist political machine. Norris is a fifth wheel, useful in his way to the capitalist masters. He will join LaFollette in aiding capitalism fight the Communists whenever necessary. He can be dropped completely when capitalism needs him no longer.

• • • •

The workers and farmers, thru observing the care and persistence with which the capitalist dictatorship is being strengthened at Washington, must learn by this example to look to the building of their own class power.

Never before was it so apparent that the banking, transportation and other great interests absolutely dominated at Washington. These interests have all power today; to be used as they see best fit. The fight to oppose that power is led by the Communists. All those exploited workers and poor farmers who would fight effectively for their own interests must join the Communists. While Norris, LaFollette and their ilk have their eyes on the stars. Let labor keep its eyes and feet on the earth, so that it may ultimately win and rule.

Unemployed Unionist In Southern Scab Town Kills Himself

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8.—George Weibel, aged 55, a carpenter by trade, out of employment for many months, killed himself one morning last week. He leaves a wife, three sons and a daughter. Capitalistic newspapers report work in the building line the most prosperous in years with a scarcity of men. Weibel was fifty-five, a good workman, and carried a union card. Union cards in this city are about as welcome as a poor man at a church gathering.

RUSKIN COLONY STRONG FOR THE DAILY WORKER

Kluxers Have Rifles, So Have Colonists

By M. ZENIN.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 8.—Yesterday I visited Ruskin, Fla., a town that was organized about 15 years ago as a socialist colony by McCay Miller and Dr. Emery of Toledo, Ohio. Tho the leaders have turned yellow and are not known any more to the revolutionary movement, their followers have remained hard boiled reds.

According to Aaron R. Long, a miserable stunt performed by the organizers of the colony, was discovered only a few days ago. When the ground was sold to the members they were assured that there are no mortgages of any kind on these grounds, and now after many years had gone by, a genuine heavy mortgage was produced on the ground of James R. Walker, one of the colonists, and the rest them are now anticipating the same surprises in the near future.

It is believed here that the introduction of a mortgage to one member of the colony is just a trick thru which the people responsible for these mortgages hope to beat the colony, one by one, but the colonists are no fools, and are beginning to organize in order to put up a strong fight.

Friends For the Daily.

James R. Walker, an enthusiastic sympathizer of the Workers Party, the Communist International, and its mouthpiece in America, The DAILY WORKER, has invited me to come here. He had also made arrangements that I should address the colony at the school house on behalf of the daily and the party, but on account of my encountering here with an Ohioan who has declared himself as a member of the ku klux klan and attempted to give me a forceful argument with a shotgun that the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Monthly are un-American, I have decided to postpone the meeting for a more opportune time, for fear that he may get reinforcements from the neaby town chapters of the ku klux klan and the meeting would turn into a bloody battle, because our sympathisers, with long range rifles in their hands, have decided that no one shall lay a hand on me as long as I am representing a workers' and farmers' revolutionary cause.

I have obtained here three subscriptions for the Workers Monthly and two for the DAILY WORKER, remittances for which you will find enclosed, and skipped town. I will, however, take another flopdown into Ruskin in the near future, for there is a unanimous desire on the part of the colonists to join the Workers (Communist) Party.

The Carpenters' Union in Tampa has promised to give me news for the daily, but on account of the long hours I am forced to work here, I was unable to tend to them, to my sorrow.

Bill Giving Muscle Shoals to the Power Trust Goes to House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Muscle Shoals conference report is now before the house.

Altho several important changes were made by the house and senate conferees, the report incorporated all the fundamental features of the Underwood bill that passed the upper chamber.

Administration leaders announced they would demand early action on the report so that Muscle Shoals legislation may be finally disposed of at this session.

The Underwood bill turns the project over to private interests at millions of dollars below its cost to the government.

SUN YAT SEN INSISTS ON MASS CONFERENCE

Capitalist Powers Try to Block Unity

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKING, Feb. 8.—Despite the intrigue of the capitalist powers, the movement for the unification of China is proceeding as well as could be expected. The Kuomintang party is adhering strictly to its policy of a real people's conference, that will represent the masses. The policy has the backing of Soviet Russia.

The capitalist powers, on the other hand, want another conference of tuchuns, and purchasable generals, who will agree to turn over the resources of China to the foreign governments for a consideration.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, who is still alive despite alarmist reports, has issued a manifesto in the name of the Kuomingtang party, the only mass organization in China, declining to participate in any handpicked conference. He wants a "people's conference."

The delegates from South China, the industrial section of the country, while not participating in the so-called unification conference maintain a conciliatory spirit towards it.

Church Congregations Will Be Forced to Pay Parsonage Tax

Church congregations thruout Illinois, will be forced to pay taxes hereafter on parsonages, as a result of a ruling of the Illinois supreme court.

The ruling was made by the supreme court in denying a re-hearing of the methodist episcopal church of Waukegan, which had waged a legal fight to prevent taxation of its parsonage.

ELECT MANCHESTER COMMUNIST DESPITE LABOR PARTY PLAN

LONDON, England, Feb. 8.—The Manchester Trades Council has declined to accept the labor party ban on Communists. By a vote of 114 to 79 the council rescinded action previously taken, and re-elected M. J. Munro, member of the Communist Party of Great Britain, as a delegate to the labor party.

At a previous meeting the barring of the Communist was agreed to by a majority of two, and another delegate was elected in place of Comrade Munro.

Munro, who is president of the Manchester Trades Council, is again a delegate to the labor party.

CITY TO ACCEPT TRACTION PLAN

Dever Ordinance Gives Banks Long Franchise

The committee on transportation of the city council will adopt the proposal of the bankers committee representing the present owners of the traction lines, which in effect gives the bankers a long term franchise on the traction lines, opponents of the measure declare. It is commonly understood that Mayor Dever is willing to accept the recommendations of the bankers, in order to get his traction ordinance passed in any form, so that he can make political capital out of it in the next campaign.

Forty Year Franchise

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, who reported for the bankers owning the traction lines, recommended that the certificates to be issued by the city run for forty years, and the transportation committee let it be known that the bankers plan will probably be adopted.

Under the Dever ordinance, the present owners will be in complete control of the traction lines for at least twenty years. The board of control will have four banker members to the city's three until 51 per cent of the certificate have been retired by the city. After that three members will represent the city and four members the bankers. Even after the 51 per cent of the certificates are retired by the city, the four city representatives must vote unanimously against the bankers to gain municipal control of the traction lines.

Lines Give Large Income

Traylor said that the present income of the surface lines is sufficient to permit the expenditure of $50,000,000 on improvements in addition to the cost of the lines. "Taking the income of the surface lines as our starting point, $50,000,000 more can be expended on extensions and improvements and all the obligations of the municipal railway system can be met without increasing the present fare."

Red Revel Masquerade Ball, 37 South Ashland Avenue
Corner of Monroe and Ashland Block, February 28.

ACTORS' EQUITY MEMBERS WILL BE AT RED REVEL

Famous Annual Ball is Talk of the Town

"Suffer the little children to come unto me" declared Jesus (tho not to a DAILY WORKER reporter), "for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

This is not an article on the proposed child labor amendment. It's a trick to call your attention to the Red Revel Masquerade Ball which will be held in Womens' West End Club Hall, 37 South Ashland Blvd., on the evening of Feb. 28 and until the wee small hours of the morning after.

The reason the children are mentioned is because the Junior group of the Young Workers' League are working their foxy little heads off thinking up little tricks with which to entertain, amuse and instruct the happy red revellers on Red Revel eve. Many of the Juniors are little girls and the female of the species is supposed to have it all over on the radio for broadcasting secrets but what the juniors are going to do, none of the news sleuths on the staff of the DAILY WORKER have yet been able to find out.

Juniors on the Job.

This much we can say, however, that if their past record means anything, the Juniors will add another chapter to the history of their accomplishments on Feb. 28.

Thousands of copies of a little baby paper, the smallest in the United States, excepting the official organ of the socialist party of the state of Washington, will be distributed early next week among members of the Workers Party, all radical organizations and trade unions.

The Red Revel Masquerade Ball will give Chicago radicals an opportunity to meet each other. The more the capitalists attack the Communists the more interesting they become. Hundreds will come to see what a Bolshevik looks like. Many will come to scoff and remain—to dance.

Meet the Girls.

The Red Revel publicity agent is now able to inform the public that three young and handsome actresses, now playing in a well known Chicago theater will be there. The publicity agent will even go further. He agrees to introduce to said comely girls, any young men of ordinary pulchritude and good manners who can show proof that he has disposed of at least twenty tickets for the Red Revel Ball.

Scores of tickets have been purchased by some of the leading literary lights of Chicago who make their home in what the natives of this village are pleased to call, Greenwich Village. They will come to see the Communists and many Communists will come to see the Greenwich Villagers.

The committee on arrangements for the Red Revel Masquerade Ball is leaving nothing undone to make things as interesting as possible for the guests. The only responsibility that is placed on the shoulders of our guests is to buy a ticket or tickets at the local office of the Workers Party, 166 W. Washington St., Room 307 or at the office of the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd.

COMMUNISTS IN CEDAR RAPIDS, IA.

Meeting, Sun., Feb. 15, to Organize

the Cedar Rapids Labor Tribune, a sheet well patronized by advertisers and, in turn, he keeps the town free from radicals and his hand on the throat of the unions. He gets a good income and has no worries.

Canfield was president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor for a number of years and prepared for himself an easy berth. He is now government conciliator for the department of labor in Iowa state. These two, Stewart and Canfield, with a few more of their dupes and tools, dominate the labor movement in Cedar Rapids. Any rebellious worker or anyone who commits "lese majeste" against them or their system has been hounded until compelled to quit the city, for he could not stay on a job in town.

Packingtown and Quaker Oats Workers.

The result of this betrayal of the masses by the bell wethers of the skilled union crafts, is best seen in the packing plants and Quaker Oats factory, which has a large plant here.

There are about one thousand workers employed in the packing plant, a subsidiary of Wilson company. The butchers, the highest paid workers, receive 48 cents per hour. More and more of the work is being done by girls who receive 16 cents an hour for a ten-hour day. This has been further aggravated by a speed-up system, five girls now doing the work of eight and in some instances two doing the work of four.

One rebel woman who was working in this plant last year urged the girls to demand a raise in wages. This is how it worked, as told to the reporter: "You girls can't live on such low wages," said the rebel to them. "Why don't you ask a raise? They must have girls to do the work." But not one had the courage to take the lead.

Girls First Strike.

The rebel was working in another department so could not speak for them. A few weeks went past and more agitation and then the girls told the rebel to come at noon hour, fifteen minutes before time, the girls would have a meeting. The rebel was there, she talked some more. Yes, they would ask for a raise.

So at on oclock the whistle blew but no girls went to work. Meat was piled high on the tables, but ten, then fifteen minutes went past and no girls were at work.

"What's the matter?" says the foreman, "why don't you go to work?" No answer from the girls huddled behind the rebel.

Then to the rebel: "What do they want?" Up spoke the rebel: "They want a raise, two-fifty a day."

The superintendent was called in after an hour had gone without any work being done. He agreed to give a raise in two weeks, but still no girl could be made to speak up, so often have they been betrayed.

Result of No Union.

They got a raise to $2.10, fifty cents a day raise, but that has been taken away by firing them and then hiring again a few days later at a beginner's rate of 16 cents an hour.

In the Quaker Oats plant the driving system at low wages is even worse. The highest pay for men is 37½ cents per hour, and for girls it is 25 cents.

This is Capitalism.

Lately they have put on new machines and one girl now wraps packages where formerly five were employed. This has forced many girls out of employment and the competition for jobs has given the employers an opportunity to cut wages still further.

Such is the result of betrayals of the masses, with class collaboration or arbitration schemes and a little comfort for the craft union aristocrats of labor—soft berths for their fat boys; while the great mass are ground to earth and their spirit crushed by misleaders and traitors.

Workers Party Enters Filed.

Cedar Rapids cast a good vote for Foster and the Workers Party, and in an effort to locate and organize the rebels in that territory, J. E. Snyder, district organizer, assisted by Comrade David Coutts, will hold a mass meetings at the Trades and Labor Assembly Hall, in the Don Cook building, First Ave. and Second street, East; on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 15. Then we shall see what we shall see.

POLICE CHIEF TOLD HOW LABOR VIEWS HIS REPRESSION

Condemn Stopping of Lenin Meeting

WATERBURY, Conn., Feb. 8—The superintendent of police here let himself in for an education when he broke up the Workers (Communist) Party Lenin memorial meeting. It seems he has yet to learn that Communist propaganda cannot be downed, that it comes back every time hitting harder and more effectively. The party took advantage of the opportunity to tell this satellite of the Waterbury bosses what they thought in a letter sent him immediately after this occurance.

The letter follows:

"Sup't. of Police Beach, Waterbury, Conn.:—The district executive committee of the Workers Party for the state of Connecticut was not greatly surprised to hear that your department broke up an orderly meeting of workers assembled to honor the memory of the leader of the revolutionary working class of the world, Nikolai Lenin. It is perfectly logical for the American Brass company and its representatives in public office to try to keep the slaves of the brass empire from hearing the truth about conditions in Waterbury and the United States. We know that you kept workers' speakers off the corners during the recent election campaign. You determined the law, because when you were compelled, you granted permission to speakers for one week previous to election day. It is not a question of law, but of your own sweet will, dictated by brass company. And you are frank about it—you want to keep out agitators. If that is the case, then throw out Goss and Chase, for their exploitation of the mill slaves is agitating the workers, and making them ripe for the Communist form of society. What the Communists do is to point out the lessons of this exploitation, and show where it leads. The Communists propose that instead of parasites enjoying the good things of life, that the workers and poor farmers own the industries and run them in their own interest; and that the government should not be a tool of the financial interests, but a government of the workers and poor farmers.

"You fear this. So do Goss and Chase. And you try to crush the efforts of the workers to come together and discuss their problems. But you cannot do so. Your arbitrary rule will merely drive home quicker the lessons we are bringing to the attention of the working class. The Workers Party has a message for the workers of Waterbury, and will deliver that message.

"What we particularly object to is that you pretend to uphold the laws of the United States and the constitution of the country. If you were frank about it, and admitted that you were going to allow free speech only for upholders of capitalism and that the constitution was a scrap of paper, that would be another matter. But you fear to do this. You would be revealing the class nature of the government, the existence of a capitalist dictatorship over the working class. If you pretend to allow free speech, we demand that you cease breaking up orderly meetings of workers.

Banks Dodge Taxes On Foreign Notes, is Lawyer's Charge

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.—Foreign bank notes sold in the United States have not been taxed by the treasury department as they should be according to law, it is alleged by Walter Holland, a lawyer of this city.

"The treasury department holds that a little Maine bank paying out Canadian bank notes must pay 10 per cent as an excise tax to the government," asserts Holland, adding that big banks are not required to pay a like tax.

"Foreign monies of every description bear a tax under section 3413, section 20, page 577, treasury internal revenue laws, of 1920," Holland charges. "And every person, firm, association, corporation, state bank, or banking association, and also every national bank that has sold or is selling foreign money is liable to a tax of 10 per cent on the face amount of foreign notes sold by them."

Holland alleges that banks thruout the United States are not requried to pay taxes on foreign bank notes of the Imperial Bank of Germany, Bank of France, Bank of England, of Italy and of Spain.

Commissioner D. H. Blair denies that such action is required by law.

New Haven Painters' Union No. 4 Endorses Labor Defense Council

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 8.—Painters' Union, Local 4, is the first union in Connecticut to come to the aid of the Michigan defendants. They voted to endorse a resolution condemning the "criminal syndicalism" laws of Michigan and other states, condemning the conviction of Ruthenberg, and calling upon the governor of Michigan to pardon Ruthenberg, should the conviction be sustained by the United States supreme court. The resolution in part reads:

Be It Resolved, That we protest against and condemn the action of the Michigan state supreme court, record ourselves as in support of the Labor Defense Council in this case, and call upon all labor bodies and working class bodies to take the same stand. That we petition the governor of the state of Michigan to pardon the defendant in the event that the United States supreme court sustains the conviction, it being our view that such action on the part of the federal supreme court would be a nullification in the interest of capitalist suppression of the workers, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the governor of the state of Michigan and the Labor press.

Approved by the Painters' Local 4, New Haven, Conn. Signed, Morris Rohinsky, Pres. Max Abbott, Rec.-Sec. Date, January 28, 1925.

Put Off Action in U. S. Senate to Join World Court

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Action on the world court resolutions referred to the senate foreign relations committee has been abandoned for the remainder of the life of the present congress. Opposition based on unwillingness to form any affiliations with European nations was in this case strengthened by the insistence of Chairman Borah that sweeping changes in the plan of the court be made, and that international law be codified before the United States should formally adhere to the court.

MC LEAN'S POST IN WASHINGTON SAFELY FASCIST

It Gives Prince Caetani Proper Farewell

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Ned McLean's Washington Post, which became convinced, in mid-January, that Mussolini was a tyrant who must go, and make way for consititutional government under the Italian king, is now safely fascist again. Its alarm over the crushing out of free masonry by Mussolini is forgotten, or has been overcome by Latin argument.

"Italy's recovery from the infection of radical socialism," says an editorial of Feb. 4, "was accomplished by the prompt and ruthless application of patriotic power, energizing and purifying the government and affording to the people an opportunity to express their will."

Moreover, "The fascisti overruled the zealots who attempted to set up a chimerical social scheme based upon the overlordship of a single class; they rallied around Mussolini and enabled him to grasp the government and purge it of graft, extravagance and tyranny. The people rule in Italy as a result of the heroic solidarity of the fascisti."

This is in the nature of apology to Mussolini, thru his departing envoy, Caetani, for the earlier editorial pronouncing doom upon the despot. Fascism in Washington is looking up.

KLAN WINS IN INDIANA HOUSE

Object to Pious Garbs; "Nighties" Not Barred

(Special to the Daily Worker)

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 8.—While the house considers the religious garb bill received favorably Thursday, members of the ku klux klan faction were awaiting final verdict to determine advisability of introducing measures of a similar nature, according to proponents of the bill today.

The klan bloc objects to women teachers wearing religious garb, which they say is prevalent in Dearborn, Floyd, Dubois, Warrick, Franklin, Spencer and other counties. The holding of schools in connection with, or adjacent to church buildings is also a target for future attack, it is said.

Thursday the house, by a vote of 64 to 27 accepted a minority report of the educational committee favoring passage of the Cooper bill, the klan measure prohibiting the wearing of religious dress by school teachers.

Cooper had previously introduced a bill prohibiting the wearing of even religious insignia, but withdrew it and substituted the one which finally passed.

Senators Told by Hughes Just Where They Get Off At

(By Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Secretary Hughes has coldly informed the senate, in response to its resolution fathered by Hiram Johnson, that the negotiation of the war reparation claims at Paris was the business of the executive branch only. Thereby he suggests that it is none of the business of the senate to inquire what Ambassador Kellogg said to the British and French and Italian and Belgian representatives in that parley.

This rebuff has hardened the resentment of the Johnson-Borah group in the foreign relations committee toward Hughes. The California senator launched a preliminary attack, Feb. 4, on the Paris agreement itself. But later, when the nomination of Kellogg to be secretary of state shall come before the commmittee, the candidate will probably be called upon to explain precisely what he did in Paris, under pain of possible filibuster and rejection in the senate. Hughes may conceal the written records of Kellogg's negotiations at Paris, but the foreign relations committee has the power to make Kellogg talk.

Leninism or Trotskyism

64-PAGE PAMPHLET ON LENINISM OR TROTSKYISM NOW IN PREPARATION

This installment is part of a pamphlet "Leninism or Trotzkyism" now in preparation. It includes articles by three outstanding figures in the Russian Communist Party: G. Zinoviev, I. Stalin and C. Kamenev, to form a most timely and important contribution to a discussion of world interest. The pamphlet will be of 64 pages, selling at 20 cents and will be ready at the conclusion of this serial publication.

May, 1910.

This is the date of the formal separation of the Bolsheviki, the final mental and organizatory withdrawal of the Bolsheviki from the supporters of bourgeois influence upon the proletariat, from the menshevist liquidators headed by Martov and Axelrod, and from the "Otsovists," led by the subsequent renegade, Alexinsky. Lenin writes (Complete works, XI.-2, pp. 49 to 53):

"The representatives of the two extreme tendencies, both of which are subject to bourgeois ideology, and both of which are equally hostile to the party, agree with one another in their contest against the Bolsheviki. . . . The resolution proposed by Trotsky differs in form only from the effusions of Axelrod and Alexinsky. Its terms are exceedingly 'cautious' and aim at expressing a 'super-fractional' justice. But what is its actual import? The 'Bolshevist leaders' are to blame for everything—this 'philosophy of history' does not differ in any way from that of Axelrod and Alexinsky. . ."

"It is not difficult to see," continues Lenin, "how the empty, hollow phrases of Trotsky's resolution serve for the defense of the same standpoint as that adopted by Axelrod and Co., and Alexinsky and Co. Here lies the great and abysmal difference between the conciliatory pose of Trotsky and Co., in reality the most faithful servants of the liquidators and Otsovists, and forming the more dangerous evil for the party that they are skilled at concealing their true character behind clever and artificial phrases, and behind apparently anti-fractional and pro-party declarations, and between that really party standpoint which stands for the purging of the party from all liquidators and Otsovists."

The irreconcilable struggle for the principles of Bolshevism continued. All the enemies of Bolshevism joined hands and attacked the Bolsheviki, the party, and its central authorities. Lenin, dealing with the significance of this struggle and Trotsky's part in it, wrote as follows at the end of 1910 (XI.-2, pp. 182, 183, 187):

"Martov's article and Trotsky's resolution are backed up by certain practical actions directed against the party. Martov's article is merely a literary form clothing the campaign undertaken by the mensheviki for the purpose of causing schism in our C. C. Trotsky's resolution pursues the same menshevist aims: the destruction of the central authorities (of the Bolsheviki) so hated by the liquidators, and with this the destruction of the party as an organization. It is not sufficient merely to expose these anti-party actions on the part of the mensheviki and Trotsky; they must be combatted."

You will see, comrades, that many things have happened in our party and many of the things which may appear new to our younger comrades are by no means so new to older ones, or to the younger comrades who have studied Lenin's works attentively. "There is nothing new under the sun."

Lenin continues:

"We therefore declare, on behalf of the whole party, that Trotsky is carrying on an anti-party policy, that he is undermining the legality of the party and entering on a path of adventure and schism. . . Comrade Trotsky preserves silence on this incontestable truth (about the anti-party groups), because the real aims of his policy cannot stand the truth. These real aims are: an anti-party bloc. Such a bloc is being supported and organized by Trotsky. . . It goes without saying that Trotsky supports this bloc, for the anti-party elements here get everything they require: liberty for their fractions, glorification and concealment of their activity, skillful advocacy defending them before the working class. It is precisely from the standpoint of 'fundamental principles' that we have to regard this bloc as adventurism in the exactest meaning of the word. Trotsky does not venture to assert that he finds in the mensheviki, in the Otsovists, real Marxists, real defenders of the established principles of social democracy. But it is just this necessity of continual dodging which is characteristic of the adventurer. The bloc formed by Trotsky with Potressov and the group around the Vperjod (Forward) is just an adventure judged from the viewpoint of 'fundamental principles.' This assertion is no less important from the standpoint of the tasks of party politics. . . The experience of a year has shown that in reality it is precisely the Potressov group, precisely the Vperjod set who incorporate the influence exercised by the bourgeoisie on the proletariat. . . Thirdly and finally, Trotsky's policy is an adventure in an organizatory sense."

1911.

The struggle for the party and its ideas continued. Trotsky continued his anti-party policy. Lenin supplemented his characterization. In June, 1911, Lenin writes as follows (XI-2. p. 322):

"All Bolsheviki must now gather more closely together, strengthen their fraction, determine their party line with greater accuracy and clarity, collect all scattered forces, and take up the fight for the R. S. D. L. P. (Russian social democratic labor party) purged of the supporters of bourgeois influence upon the proletariat."

And he immediately adds:

"Such people as Trotsky, with his puffed-up phrases on the R. S. D. L. P., with his kowtowing to the liquidators who have nothing whatever in common with the R. S. D. L. P., are now the 'disease of the age.' In reality they are the bearers of capitulation to the liquidators, who are anxious to form a labor party on Stolipin's lines."

After the lapse of a new months, Lenin wrote as follows in a special circular addressed "to all party organizations, groups, and circles":

"Let us merely mention one feature the most characteristic and general one, in the utterances of Trotsky's little group: In the question of tactics and of differences of opinion on principles within the party, Trotsky's arsenal can only supply weapons against the left wing of the party. It need not be said that such a policy is grist to the mill of the adherents of the 'Golos' (the menshevist newspaper, the Voice) and to all the other various degrees of opportunists." (XI-2, pp. 335-338.)

"The real liquidators conceal themselves behind their phraseology, and make every endeavor to frustrate the work being done by the anti-liquidators, that is, the Bolsheviki. . . Trotsky, and the Trotskyists and opportunists like him, are more harmful than all the liquidators, for the convinced liquidators state their views openly, and it is easy for the workers to recognize the errors of these views. But Trotsky and those similar to him deceive the workers, conceal the evil, and make it impossible to expose and remedy it. Everyone who supports Trotsky's group supports the policy of lies and deception of the workers, the policy concealing liqiudatory aims. Full liberty of action for Messrs Potressov & Co. in Russia, and the clothing of their actions in 'revolutionary' phrases for abroad—this is the essential character of Trotsky's policy." (XI-2, pp. 359-360.)

This chracterization: the disguise of right actions in left pseudo-revolutionary phrases, was for Lenin the distinguishing feature of Trotskyism, repeating itself from year to year in different and progressive forms. And Lenin was never weary of pointing out this feature to the party as the most important and characteristic, and at the same time most dangerous feature of Trotskyism. A few months after writing the characterization here quoted, Lenin wrote as follows on Trotsky:

"One trifle has been overlooked by this poor hero of phraseology: A social democrat (in our present terminology a Communist) is not a revolutionist unless he recognizes the harmfulness of anti-revolutionary pseudo-socialism in a given country at a given time, that is, unless he is able to recognize that liquidatory and Otsovist aims are harmful in Russia, and unless he knows now to combat similar unsocial democratic tendencies."

A few months after this (December, 1911) Lenin wrote:

"Trotsky calls himself an adherent of the party principles, but on the basis of almost total disregard of the Russian party central, which was called into existence by the overwhelming majority of the Russian social democratic organization. . . The revolutionary phrase serves to conceal the tendency of liquidators and to throw sand into the eyes of the workers. . . It is not possible to discuss essentials with Trotsky, for he has no views. It is only possible to contend with convinced liquidators and Otsovists; but we do not care to enter into discussion with a man who plays at concealing the errors of either group; we merely expose him as a diplomatist of the meanest description." (XII-2, pp. 446-448.)

It is not difficult to prophesy that these party historical documents here quoted will presently be explained away in the most convenient and philistine manner, by references to: Anger, heat of the contest, accidental collisions, etc. I thus consider it to be my duty though a disagreeable one—since Comrade Trotsky has now forced the party to occupy itself with the history of the relations between Trotskyism and Bolshevism—to follow Lenin's utterances, and the characterization made by Lenin of the relations between the party and Trotskyism, not only for a single year, not only with regard to any single question, but systematically during the whole period of fifteen years which have passed since the party became acquainted with Trotskyism.

If a definite relation has existed between Trotskyism and our party for a number of years, cropping up systematically at every turning point of party history, and not merely becoming apparent on one single question or on one single occasion, then even the more philistine and sluggish mentality cannot explain away this circumstance by reference to momentary anger, accidental conflicts, and the like. Even the most sluggish mind must recognize that if Lenin continued for fifteen years to enlighten the party on Trotskyism, and his characterization proved correct at every turning point of party history, whether the tide of revolution was rising, falling, or rising again, then it is not a case of animosity, of personal opinion, but it is perfectly obvious that Trotskyism represents a trend of policy which reappears systematically, and that the foundation of Bolshevism as theory and practice of the proletarian Communist revolution can only be laid down by fighting against this trend of policy.

Comrade Trotsky confined himself to defending to the Russian workers the standpoint which I have above characterized in Lenin's words. The position held by the Bolsheviki in the Second International is well known. Even at that time the Bolsheviki, especially Lenin, were hated by the leaders of the Second International. Even at that time these leaders felt that Bolshevism, and again especially Lenin, represented some new force destined to supplant them, and therefore the press organs of the Second International opened their pages to every slander against the Bolsheviki and Bolshevism. But during the whole period of Lenin's exile, during the whole period of the revolution and counter-revolution, Lenin was never given even one single opportunity of appealing to the workers from the tribune of the press organs of the Second International, and of telling the German, French or Austrian workers the truth about Bolshevism.

In actual fact we were boycotted by the Second International. But on the other hand Lenin's opponents, Martov, Dan and Trotsky were given every opportunity of expressing their views, and these were able to spread abroad any amount of lies and slanders, since they were assured in advance that Lenin would not be permitted to reply. Trotsky availed himself of this opportunity to lay the "philosophy" of Bolshevism before the international labor movement in something like the following form: The Leninist clique of intellectuals who, under the leadership of Lenin, a man who shrank at nothing, were holding the Russian proletarian movement in their hands in some obscure manner, whilst it was only the ignorance and backwardness of the Russian proletariat which made it trust the Bolsheviki. The most important task was to rescue the proletariat of Russia from the power of this clique and its leader, Lenin.

This is the conception of Bolshevism which Comrade Trotsky forced upon the International at that time. This is the manner in which he represented the historical victory of the inner party struggle in Russia, the import of the struggle between the Bolsheviki and the mensheviki, to the socialist workers of Europe. With reference to the articles sent on this subject to the International by Martov and Trotsky, Lenin wrote the following in the year 1911:

"Martov expresses the view of the menshevists; Trotsky clings to the mensheviki and hides behind particularly sounding and hollow phrases. For Martov the 'Russian experience' meant that the 'Blanquist and anarchist unculture had won the victory over Marxist culture' (read Bolshevism over Menshevism). Russian social democracy had been too zealously Russian (that is, revolutionary. L. K.) as differentiated from the 'general European' (that is, parliamentary) methods of tactics. We find Trotsky representing the same 'historical philosophy.' The 'sectarian spirit, intellectual individualism, ideological fetishism' are placed in the foreground. 'The struggle for influence over the politically immature proletariat'—that is the core of the matter to him."

After describing the views thus presented to the German workers by Comrade Trotsky, Lenin continues:

"The theory that the struggle between Bolshevism and menshevism is a struggle for influence over an immature proletariat is by no means new. We find it in innumerable books, pamphlets, and articles published by the liberal press since the year 1905 (if not since 1903). Martov and Trotsky lay liberal views, trimmed with Marxism before the German comrades. " 'It is an illusion to believe,' declares Trotsky, 'that Bolshevism and menshevism have struck deep roots in the proletariat.' This is a typical example of the sounding but empty phrases of which our Trotsky is master. It is not in the 'depths of the proletariat' that the differences lie between Bolshevism and menshevism, but in the economic conditions of the Russian revolution. Martov and Trotsky, by ignoring these conditions, have deprived themselves of the possibility of comprehending the historical import of the internal party conflict in Russia. . . To talk about various trends in the Russian revolution, and to label these 'sectarianism,' 'unculture,' etc. (the terms employed by Trotsky against the Bolsheviki, with the idea of alarming the German philistines. L. K.), without according a single word to the most important economic interests of the proletariat; the liberal bourgeoisie, and the democratic peasantry, is to sink to the level of the most vulgar journalism."

STRIKE AGAINST WAGE CUTS!

"The capitalists of this country have united in a declaration of war upon the working class!

"The workers must defend their wages, their rights, their lives! They must unite every one of their forces, every worker in shop, every shop in the industry, every union, every working class organization, to strike back!

"The capitalists won the election! A strikebreaker, Calvin Coolidge, sits in the White House! At once, the capitalists have begun their offensive, their war upon wage standards, upon hours, upon the rights of the workers . . ."

The above is a quotation of a leaflet, "STRIKE AGAINST WAGE CUTS" issued by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party. It is a most timely leaflet. The whole country should be flooded with it. Every shop, factory, mill, store—anywhere where workers gather, should be visited and the leaflets distributed. One million by April 1 is the mark set. It can be done and must be done. Every reader of the DAILY WORKER can help and will help. See to it that your branch, your union—orders a supply for free distribution. Price $3.00 per thousand, $1.50 for 500. Order from National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

PHILADELPHIA BALL FOR DAILY WORKER COMING

Great Preparations to Make it Huge Success

(Special to the Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 8.—Communists, sympathisers and friends of the DAILY WORKER are making preparations for the First Annual DAILY WORKER Ball which will be held Friday, Feb. 27 at the beautiful New Traymore Hall, located at Columbia Ave. and Franklin street.

The response received from the many labor unions and workers' fraternal organizations indicate a huge success for the ball as well as the growing influence of the DAILY WORKER among the labor organizations of the city.

A ball committee of 45 delegates meets every Saturday afternoon at the party headquarters, making plans and working out the details that will make this ball the greatest event ever held by the labor movement in Philadelphia. Several surprises are in store which the committee is not ready to reveal at the present moment. One of Philadelphia's finest orchestras has been secured to furnish the music. The Souvenier Program promises to be a true work of art. Special cartoons are being prepared by Chicago artists for the program.

The sale of tickets is proceeding at an astounding rate and the interest and enthusiasm displayed in the preparatory work is a good sign of the seriousness with which the comrades take the task of building and financing the DAILY WORKER.

All members of the Party, the Y. W. L., the Trade Union Educational League, as well as the many sympathisers and friends who have in the past participated in the many sided activities of the party will be present at this ball to demonstrate their support for the DAILY WORKER as well as to enjoy a festal evening, dancing, singing and merrymaking. The great banquet hall will be open during the entire evening where plenty of tables well filled with good thing to eat will await the jolly rebels who tire of dancing but whose appetites and voices still remain fresh and lusty.

Jakira Speaks at Washington General Membership Meeting

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Comrade A. Jakira, district organizer, addressed a general membership meeting of Washington local. This was Comrade Jakira's first visit to this city and nearly every member was present. The meeting did not adjourn until after midnight and many matters of importance were discussed and acted upon.

The drive for the DAILY WORKER was the chief order of business and $250.00 was pledged by members who were present, and notes signed for this amount.

A committee was elected to organize a Labor Defense Council with instructions to draw up a letter to be sent to all local labor unions. The committee consists of Comrades Pearlman, Macintosh and Puzrin. The secretaries of the local branches were instructed to supply each comrade with a defense subscription list with instructions to act.

Comrade Jakira spoke at length concerning all activities of the district, including the situation in the anthracite coal region; the industrial conditions in Bethlehem and in other cities. The shop nucleus question and many other matters were explained by the speaker.

READ THE DAILY WORKER

APOLOGIES TO DISTRICT 15!

The DAILY WORKER is deeply regretful of the fact that it erred Wednesday, February 4, in calling the insurance police roll call for District 15 by overlooking contributions given at the general membership meeting in New Haven, Conn.

At this meeting, $98 was collected to insure the DAILY WORKER from the following branches: Jewish branch, New Haven, Conn., $38; Russian branch, New Haven, Conn., $30; Ukrainian branch, New Haven, Conn., $20; English branch, New Haven, Conn., $10.

This brings the District 15 total to $300.50 instead of $202.50, as the February 4 report stated. It means, besides, that almost $1.50 a member has been raised to date, putting an entirely different color on this district's record.

Instead of there being "more loafers than laborers" in District 15, the disclosure of this mistake reveals the opposite condition. The DAILY WORKER is sincerely apologetic for its misinterpretation. It wishes that it had not been so strenuous in "calling names;" but pleads that this was due to over-zealousy for the cause; and on this grounds, asks pardon.

DIST. 6 HAS PROGRAM OF WORK

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 8.—District six will issue bulletins which will lay the basis for the activities locals and branches must engage in according to decisions made and campaigns announced by the central executive committee of our party and by the district executive committee. Branches and locals of this district are to make these bulletins as they appear a part of their order of business. The news items appearing in the bulletins are for general information of the party membership and should be read at the meetings.

The following is the first bulletin issued:

1. A full hour at the next three meetings of every branch should be devoted to a discussion of the shop nuclei form of party organization. Branches should elect the most capable comrade to lead the discussion. Language branches must send to their federation secretary for a translation of the C. E. C. thesis on shop nuclei. At the next meeting of all city central committees a comrade must be named to supervise and assist in the branch discussions.

2. A state police bill is to be presented to the Ohio legislature. Comrades that are members of labor unions must lead the discussion in opposition to this bill in their unions. Opposition to this bill must be made a part of the general united front campaign as announced by the C. E. C.

3. The child labor amendment has been defeated by the Ohio legislature. This, however, does not end our activity for this measure. In accordance with the C. E. C. resolutions on child labor, we must now agitate for a reconsideration of the action of the Ohio legislature. We must call to the attention of labor unions and other workers' organizations this failure of the capitalist parliamentary machine at Columbus to legislate in the interests of the exploited children, explaining this failure in the light of the Communist conception of the role of the capitalist democratic political machine.

4. City central committees are requested to make a thoro investigation of unemployment within their territory and report to the district office. Where considerable unemployment exists, where it can be made an issue, there locals and branches must assume leadership and begin activities. Reports are especially requested from Toledo, Akron, Youngstown-Warren steel district, Bellaire and other coal districts.

5. The open shop and wage cut offensive of the employers is becoming more intensive. Where wage cuts occur our party must lead the workers in opposition to them, in strikes against them. Full reports of wage cuts should be made to the district office.

6. Participaiton by workers' organizations in the activities of the conference for progressive political action should be opposed at every opportunity. See resolution sent you by national office.

7. City central committees attention: In order to educate and organize the party membership so that members will enter and carry on the party campaigns in a full Communist spirit, all city central committees, by order of the C. E. C., are to hold membership meetings. The district organizer will address these membership meetings. A special letter will go forward to the ten city central committees in this district advising them of the approximate dates for their meetings.

8. The district tax: We fully realize that the party branches and members are burdened with many calls for money. But the district work must be financed. The district tax is not a temporary levy, but a permanent tax which should be considered by all branches in this light. It has the endorsement of the C. E. C. of our party. It is not a heavy tax, branches with less than 15 members only having to pay $1.00 a month, branches with more than 15 members having to pay $2.00 a month. This does not prohibit the large branches that have from 75 to 125 members from paying more. Payment of the district tax by your branch must be made a special order of business at the next meeting. City central committees will give this attention.

9. The more readers we get for the DAILY WORKER the larger our party will grow. We all want to increase the English speaking membership of our party. One best way is to get additional DAILY WORKER readers all the time.

10. There are still 25 branches in this district that have not yet helped to insure the DAILY WORKER for 1925. Every branch that has not bought and sold insurance policies as yet knows that it has not, and knowing it, should immediately rectify this oversight.

11. A new Hungarian branch has been organized in Dillonvale; a new Russian branch in Youngstown; a new Greek branch in East Youngstown; a new Hungarian branch in Martins Ferry; a new Hungarian branch at Braton; an English branch is in process of formation in Warren. The Lima English branch, organized some weeks ago, is beginning to function actively.

12. The subscription lists of the Workers Party press will soon be sent to all locals and unaffiliated branches. A card file should be made of these lists to which other names should be added as received. This card file should then be used to (1) secure new members for the party, (2) secure renewals of subscriptions (3) use in enlarging the attendance at all mass meetings.

The campaigns and party tasks assigned the locals and branches by the C. E. C. and the D. E. C. of the party, as well as the decisions of these bodies, will be conscientiously carried out by the undersigned as the new district organizer, and it is expected that every local, branch and member will give full and loyal cooperation.

Alfred Wagenknecht,
District Organizer.

LAUNDRY TOILERS' STRIKE AIDED BY WORKERS PARTY

Communist Women Join Fight on Open Shop

(Special to the Daily Worker)

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Feb. 8.—The drivers and chauffeurs of the Clovelen Laundry in Brooklyn have gone out on strike demanding the continuation of the present contract and the recognition of the union.

More is involved than this one laundry. The strike is a test for the union, and if the 30 drivers of the Clovelen plant lose, the attempt will be made by all the other laundries to oust their union drivers.

Boss Uses Camouflage.

Already the owner of the Clovelen laundry has asked for an injunction, and the judge is ready to serve as soon as he finds it advisable. He has postponed the issuance of the injunction for the time being in hopes that the boss may win without it. At the same time the boss is feeling the sting of the strike and the loss of trade. To overcome the odium of trying to run a scab plant he has changed the name to "Clovelen Premier," thus hoping to cover up the fact that this is the laundry in which there is a strike.

Word has gone out to all organized labor and others advising that laundry work be given only to drivers wearing the union button and the response is widespread, the people instinctively supporting the union drivers.

At the meeting of the striking drivers many women and men who work in the laundries, tho not yet organised came to offer their aid. Lena Chernenko, of the Workers Party, told the strikers that the Workers Party was there to aid in any way the union desired and that if there was an injunction the members would still help picket and give any assistance possible. This offer was received enthusiastically by the drivers, and comments were heard in hearty approval of this method of co-operation.

CHILDREN MUST BE SAVED BUT NOT TOO SOON, SAYS LIBERAL LOVEJOY TO LADIES

Owen R. Lovejoy, general secretary of the national child labor committee, gave another demonstration in Chicago recently of the reasons the child labor amendment has been temporarily defeated in the United States. Representing the unorganized movement of liberals that have been carrying on a pacifist fight against child labor in America, Lovejoy apologized for the amendment in a debate before the Illinois women's joint legislature forum, where some 14 Illinois women's organizations were represented.

Bosses Mostly Good, Says Speaker

As in his lecture before a group of Chicago business men at the city club recently, Lovejoy paid tribute to the bosses who he tried to prove had no interest in the exploitation of children. "Only a ragged fringe of manufacturers—a small percentage—are interested in child labor," he claimed; but we need a law to protect the children of the country against this small group. He made no mention of the millions of dollars that had been spent and the work done by the various organizations of manufacturers to defeat the amendment; but lead the audience to believe that the only reason the amendment was lost was because the public did not get a chance to hear the question fairly.

Confidence in Capitalists

Lovejoy ridiculed the possibility of manufacturers, trying to violate a child labor law once it was passed in the face of the many instances of violations of state child labor laws; and said that very little would need be spent for enforcement of a national child labor law. He said the manufacturers could be trusted not to violate the child labor law since there were no huge profits to be made out of child labor; such as there are out of bootlegging.

A little later in his talk he contradicted himself by showing with statistics that child labor was greatly on the increase in America at the present time; and that ever since the recent immigration restrictions it had been growing by leaps and bounds; and manufacturers were going to the children for the supply of cheap labor which they had obtained from other countries before.

Lovejoy also assured the audience that Congress would not pass anything "radical" once it was given the power to form a federal child labor law." Whatever opinion you may have of the United States congress," he said; "you can be sure it wont be so foolish as to committ suicide by passing a law prohibiting children under 18 from working."

He demonstrated in his talk and in his statement of the recent defeat that the child labor amendment stands no chance of being ratified unless the working class put up a united front fight in all states and thruout the country during the next two years and forces the state legislatures to take action despite the dictator they have received from the employers of children.

FREE UNWED MOTHER ON TRAL FOR MURDER OF NEW-BORN CHILD

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Feb. 8.—A jury of fathers acquitted Blanche Galvin, Atlantic, Iowa, 22-year-old unwed mother of first degree murder late Thursday, while an audience of mothers and daughters applauded.

The Galvin girl was on trial for her life for exposing her ten-hour-old baby to the elements on October 28, from which it died. Her plea was that she had gone for help, and fainted while on this mission. While gone someone found the baby and gave it shelter. The following day the baby died.

HERRIOT'S PAL WARNS FRANCE OF PACIFIC PERIL

Claims French Hold Balance in East

PARIS, Feb. 8—Sans Fil, an newspaper that strongly supports the Herriot government, and which is considered the premier's mouthpiece, warns France that she must take steps to protect French interests in the Pacific, in view of the approaching and inevitable conflict between the United States and Japan.

Sans Fil declares: "Now, with the Russo-Japanese treaty signed it is clear to any one studying the international situation that France is called morally and geographically to take up a position in the Pacific battle which will decide the hegemony of the east."

The editor of Sans Fil is an intimate friend of Premier Herriot.

EBERT GAVE RUHR BOSSES DOUBLE COMPENSATION

But Let the Unemployed Workers Starve

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—That the German government, under the regime of the "socialist" Ebert, deliberately paid twice over to the Ruhr manufacturers the loss of profits they suffered by the "passive resistance" to the Ruhr occupation, while permitting the great mass of workers thrown out of work by closing of all industry to starve slowly with little or no relief, is now divulged in the quarrel going on between the new German cabinet and its out-of-office critics.

Seven Billion for Bosses.

A vigorous protest against the government's action in handing over hundreds of millions of gold marks to the Rhur industrialists was made today by the German Federation of Labor and by the Union of Employes which together claim a membership of more than 7,500,000.

The protest states that the government found it possible to grant the big Ruhr industrialists more than 7,000,000,000 gold marks tho only 70,000,000 was set aside for indemnifying all others incurring losses from the Ruhr occupation.

It also declares that the government by most drastic taxation managed to show a surplus last year of 940,000,000 gold marks, only to squander more than three-fourths of it on the industrialists.

Got Paid Twice.

The latter, in fact, were twice indemnified according to the protesting unions since they profited first from the lowering of wages, the raising of prices and escaping taxation and then by receiving directly from the government the huge sums concerning which the controversy is now raging.

The protest also repeats the accusation already made by the government's critics that the government sought to conceal the granting of Ruhr credits until after they had been made and declares the governmental action has filled the employes of the industrialists who received the indemnities with bitterness and indignation.

The Lokal Anzeiger, organ of the government caustically defending the reactionary present cabinet, wants to know exactly what the government socialists are denouncing—the big coalition government including the socialists, which resolved to grant the Ruhr credits, the Marx cabinet which started granting them, or the Luther government.

Indiana Senate Postpones Action On Child Labor

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 8.—The senate of the Indiana legislature, by a vote of 32 to 16, indefinitely postponed consideration of the child labor amendment to the constitution yesterday. Senator Lindley of Kingston, who presented the motion, led the opposition to ratification of the amendment, supported by Senators Batt, Neydl and Branaman, and Senators Saunders, Holmes and Daily spoke in behalf of the amendment.

COMMUNIST-CHILDREN'S-COLUMN

By ROSE COHEN, Organizer of Chicago Juniors.

Comrades, we all know that many of the children of working class parents belong to capitalist organizations like the girl and boy scouts, the camp fire girls, and so forth. Even tho we fight against their propaganda thru our school nuclei, our hardest task is to get them to join us during the summertime when these same capitalist organizations try to attract the children with camps and other good times in order to make them forget how poor they are and how hard everything is for them.

Knowing all this, I think that the Junior groups all over the United States should start right in on a campaign of which our slogan shall be: "Summer Camps for the Juniors." If we are at all interested in this idea I am sure we shall succeed in really having our own camps, perhaps as soon as this coming summer.

The Vanguard branch in Chicago plans to bring up this question thru their delegates at the Chicago Second Junior convention which is due in a few weeks. I think it is a splendid idea! We shall in this way have a means of combatting the propaganda in the capitalist camps, and also be able to draw more children into our ranks.

Our poets are already at work, making up songs and poems which we shall sing instead of the usual camp songs. Even tho we intend to have a good time, we are not going to forget that we are Communists and spread our propaganda in every way that we can possibly do so.

But I do not want only Chicago to take up this idea. I would like to see every city in the U. S. that has Junior groups have a camp by next summer. How about it, comrades? Don't you think it would be a dandy thing for the Juniors? I would like to hear what other comrades think about this plan. Think it over and send in your ideas to the DAILY WORKER Junior Column. Are you ready, comrades?

Loud now! Let's go!

FLIERS READY TO HOP OFF WITH DIPHTHERIA ANTI-TOXIN FOR NOME

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb. 8.—Roy S. Darling and Ralph T. Mackie, aviators, were ready to hop off today from Fairbanks on their flight over the frozen tundra with 1,000,000 units of antitoxin for Nome's diptheria sufferers.

The serum shipment from Seattle was expected to arrive at Seward today or tomorrow on the steamer Alameda and will be rushed to the flyers at the end of the Alaska railway by special train.

There were five additional suspects today in Nome's diptheria epidemic but official determination of the cases will not be made until tonight. No new cases were reported officially.

Efforts were made by the authorities to determine the truth of reports that the epidemic has spread to Elim, White Mountain and numerous Indian villages near Nome.

BUILDERS AT WORK

ONE MAN IN CLEVELAND.

ONE comrade, is thoroughly awake. And the beauty of it is that the comrade in question is the local secretary. Comrade Hamilton is so thoroughly awake he was one of the very best local DAILY WORKER agents in the country. So they made him secretary also and now he holds two jobs.

Does it hinder his activities? You can decide. When the DAILY WORKER took over the distribution of all Communist literature it electrified our agents—it gave them POWER—organizational possibilities, educational measures—it gave them power to BUILD the party. And Comrade Hamilton took full advantage.

To begin with he orders 50 copies of the pamphlet soon to be issued: "Leninism or Trotskyism"; 5 copies of Bucharin's "A. B. C. of Communism"; 3 copies of Nearing's "American Empire"; 20 outlines (for study classes) of the "A. B. C. of Communism". And he adds: "Also anything else in the line of outlines on educational work."

Get that "also"! It means that local Cleveland is fully in line for a course of Communist education in and out of the party—and we look for proportional membership gains in the near future.

This is the electrification of our comrades by a centralizistion of all Communist literature distribution thru the hands of the DAILY WORKER. Communist efficiency for best results in Communist work—and we offer local Cleveland and Comrade Hamilton as sterling examples to follow.

COOLIDGE APPOINTEE FOUND TO BE FORMER TEAPOT DOMER

That the Teapot Dome exposure had not the slightest effect on the Coolidge administration is shown by the discovery this week that Coolidge has appointed Rochester, the lookout man for McLean in his oil deals, as secretary of the oil conservation commission. The secretary of the interior is chairman of this commission. Rochester was McLean's stool pigeon in the department of justice during the time Fall, Daugherty, Doheny, Denby and the other Teapot Domers were stealing millions of dollars worth of oil land from the government.

Rochester telegraphed to McLean from Daugherty's office that the Walsh investigating committee was checking up on his bank accounts to learn if he had the amount on deposit for which he said he had given checks to Fall.

Rochester now bobs up again as a Coolidge appointee, and the present congress has made no objection to the appointment.

IRELAND BLAMED AS CANADIANS SLAM JOHN BULL

Erin Established Very Bad Precedent

(Special to the Daily Worker)

GENEVA, Feb. 8.—One of the most refined and suave of the many polite and suave diplomats on the payroll of the British empire was heard to curse Ireland softly but earnestly, when he received a document from the Canadian government and a letter introducing the document.

The document was nothing more or less than a fisheries treaty between the United States and Canada. The letter requested that it be "deposited" with the league.

The British government does not want its colonies to get the idea into their heads that they are free and independent, and Downing street insists on taking care of all their troubles with foreign nations. But the Irish Free State, while Ramsay MacDonald was still in office, sent its 1921 treaty with England, special delivery, to the league of nations and this started the scrimmage.

Nothing was said or done about it until the tories came into power. The tories promptly advised the league that Ireland was still the same subject nation except that it toted a fancy title.

Things Looked Bright.

Ireland being accustomed to fighting empires several thousand times her size never felt so happy since 1921, the prospect of another scrap with John Bull cheering the country up considerably.

But the worst was yet to come. Canada got jealous of Ireland and dug up its fishy treaty, scraped the scales off it and shipped it C. O. D. to Geneva. This explains the streak of profanity from the noble Sir Eric Drummond, who is playing post office for John Bull in the Swiss town.

If Britain gets fresh with Canada over this little assertion of dignity, the Canadian government only has to threaten amalgamation with the United States. That will send Mr. Bull to bed with a bad attack of malaria.

UTICA BREWERY WORKERS STAND BY COMMUNISTS

Resolution Condemning Arrests is Passed

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 8.—At the last regular meeting of the Brewery Workers, Local No. 54, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, the following resolutio ncondemning the so-called "criminal syndicalism" law and protesting against the arrest of Communists, was unanimously endorsed:

"RESOLVED, That we protest against and condemn the action of the Michigan state supreme court, record ourselves as in support of the Labor Defense Council in this case and call upon all labor bodies and working class bodies to take the same stand. That we petition the governor of the state of Michigan to pardon the defendant in the event that thh United States supreme court sustains the conviction, it being our view that such an action on the part of the federal supreme court would be a nullification of the constitution in the interest of instruments of capitalist suppression of the workers, and be it further

"RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be sent to the governor of the state of Michigan and the labor press.

A FAT YEAR FOR COUPON-CLIPPERS

The B. & O. plan is now bearing fruit, a report just issued by the B. & O. R. R. shows. This fiendish plan designed by the profit-thirsting magnates, in conjunction with the betraying officialdom of the Machinists' Union, has for its purpose the grinding of the workers' bones and muscles into greater profits and the reducing of their resistence to this more intence exploitation by class collaboration.

The last year has been a lean and hungry one for the railway workers—leaner and hungrier than usual, what with the machinists' broken strike and with the series of reductions of wages and privileges by the Railway Labor Board in all branches of the industry. By the same token, it was a particularly fat year for the "investors," the coupon-clipping hyenas.

Loud is their smacking of lips and licking of chops, fat with the blood and marrow of their wage slaves: "rails are strong and rising steadily" their oracles, the finance experts call it. Loudest of them all is the B. & O. R. R. And well it may be.

Among the reports of annual earnings of railroads just issued, the B. & O. stands out as the most ruthless exploiter of them all—even more so than the strikebreaking, company union Pennsy. Where the Pennsy shows an increase of net income—pure profits as a result of more intense exploitation—of a paltry six million dollars over 1922, the year of the strike, and of the B. & O. plan, the B. & O. R. R. shows an increase of eighteen and fifteen million dollars for 1923 and 1924 respectively, greater as we said, than any other railroad.

Mr. William Johnston, of the Machinists' and LaFollette leader, has well served his masters, the railway magnates.

DOWELL MINERS DEMAND END OF CHILD SLAVERY

Call for Maintenance of School Children

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DOWELL, Ill., Feb. 8.—The Dowell Local Union No. 3703 of the United Mine Workers of America, has passed a resolution demanding that the state legislatures ratify the child labor amendment to the constitution, and in addition that the state and federal legislatures provide by-laws for the full maintenance of all school children of workers and poor farmers. The resolution demands that the funds for this maintenance come from special taxes on high incomes.

The local union declares itself ready to enter a "common political struggle against child labor exploitation and for full government maintenance of the school children of workers and small farmers."

The resolution in part follows:

"Resolved; That we demand the immediate ratification by the state legislatures of the child labor amendment to the constitution, and that congress shall immediately pass a law prohibiting the labor of children under eighteen years of age; and be it further

"Resolved; That since the child labor amendment would be meaningless without government maintenance of the school children of the workers and small farmers, the state and federal legislatures shall provide by law for full maintenance of all school children of workers and small farmers, the funds for this purpose to come from special taxes on high incomes, and be it further

Resolved; That our organization is ready to enter a common political struggle against child labor exploitation and for full government maintenance of the school children of workers and small farmers, and pledge ourselves to co-operate with other working class organizations to this end; and be it further

"Resolved; That we send a copy of this resolution to our representative, a copy to the Illinois Miner and a copy to the DAILY WORKER for publication.

Mines Should be Nationalized, Says English Unionist

(Special to the Daily Worker)

LONDON, England, Feb. 8.— The mining industry should be taken over and run in the interests of the community, A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation at Folkesone, said in a speech here. "If the owners have no other solution than longer hours and reduced rates of wages, then to avoid a struggle, the mines should be taken over and run in the interests of the community," Cook declared.

"Is it not the business of every citizen of this country, to see that the basic industry is run on efficient lines, that the men who work in such danger and under such abnormal conditions—excessive heat, water, etc.—in cramped conditions in thin seams, are ensured safety, adequate compensation, and economic security?"

FINNISH BRANCH DONATES $400 TO LABOR DEFENSE

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—At the last meeting of the Finnish branch, Brooklyn of the Workers Party, a contribution of $400 was made to the Labor Defense Council.

Whenever the defense of comrades who are grabbed by the capitalist class for their activity in behalf of the workers of this country is concerned, the Finnish comrades are the first on the job. This last manifestation of the solidarity of the Finnish workers with the indicted at Bridgeman, Michigan, is worthy of emulation all over the country.

The activities of the Finnish comrades of the Workers Party in connection with the joint bazaar of the International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council are exemplary. They will have a booth—and a whole evening of entertainment. The Finnish night—the opening night—will be one of the best of the bazaar.

French Press Sees Pacific War

The conflict between American and Japanese imperialist interests in the Pacific is having its international repercussions.

From France comes the news that a portion at least of the French press is announcing that a choice must be made—that the nation must decide soon which of the contestants it is to support.

The Sans Fil, an influential Paris paper, edited by Hyancithe Philouze, a close friend of Premier Herriot, says:

> "Now with the Russo-Japanese treaty signed it is clear to anyone studying the international situation that France is called morally and geographically to take up a position in the Pacific battle which will decide the hegemony of the east."

In the war towards which the imperialists of the United States and Japan are driving at headlong speed, in spite of the recent expressions of accord designed to lull the masses into a sense of security, there will be fewer neutral nations than in the last holocaust. Every one of the great capitalist powers has vested interests in the Far East and the expression of the French press is, like the attitude of the Italian government in the last struggle, nothing more or less than a notification to the world that the French imperialists are willing to throw their support to the highes bidder. They come into the arena of international politics like a prostitute to a county fair.

It is significant that the French press also has stated categorically recently that one of the clauses of the Russo-Japanese treaty provides that Japan shall, as a partial return for concessions in the iron, coal and oil of Saghalien island, build for Soviet Russia a certain number of battleships of the latest type and, in other ways is trying in American parlance, "to throw a scare into" the allies and the United States.

It makes little difference whether the battleship story is true. The fact remains that Japan, on friendly terms with Soviet Russia, the dominant power in the Far East, and with the Saghalien iron, coal and oil—the essentials of modern warfare—as a foundation for her national economy, is in a far stronger position than ever before in her history and, in this wicked world, with its doctrine of the survival of the slickest, it is quite possible that by building battleships for Soviet Russia, Japan sees an easy way to get around the 5-5-3 Washington pact.

Soviet Russia looks with great interest but little worry at the storm that is brewing in the capitalist world. She feels assured that whatever danger for the workers and peasants of Russia lies in giving the Japanese government accession to raw materials on Saghalin, it is but a temporary one. The growing strength and militancy of the Japanese workers and peasants is a guarantee that whatever the Japanese capitalists get will within a few years be the possession of another member of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The situation of the workers of America is different from that of the Russian workers. The American government is an imperialist government—the creature of the finance capitalists and the big industrialists. It will use every means to drive the American workers to slaughter in the Pacific when the need arises, and the open expectation of war voiced by the French press is proof that the Workers' (Communist) Party of America is indulging in no idle maundering when it warns the American workers of the coming conflict and urges them to organize against the bloody plans of their rulers.

From the Other Side

The Chicago Tribune occasionally publishes editorials from the DAILY WORKER under the caption "The Other Side."

We herewith reciprocate in some measure by publishing a news story from the Sunday Tribune, headed "Pleads For Fine So He Can Get In Jail; Granted":

> "A white haired man, 82 years old, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and no costs or serve ninety days in the home at Oak Forest yesterday by Judge Howard Hayes. And the old man thanked the judge with tears in his eyes.
>
> "The octogenarian is Pat Kelly, no address. He walked into the central police station to beg alms and was arrested for vagrancy. Judge Hayes looked at him and said: "Discharged."
>
> "'Please fine me,' begged Kelly. 'I haven't any place to go and it's liable to get cold again. Fine me enough so I'll have to go to jail.'"

Our only comment is that we are indebted to The Tribune for this further proof that capitalism has only jails for those who survive after being thrown on the scrap pile of capitalist industry.

The Height of Futility

President McMahon of the United Textile Workers' Union is quoted as protesting in horrified surprise at the boss-controlled antics of one Wood, a government conciliator, who is doing a little strikebreaking in the textile industry.

Brother McMahon, according to reliable reports, will complain to Calvin Coolidge and the Davis steel trust department of labor and ask for redress. In the language of the day, we say to brother McMahon, "try and get it."

How anyone who has been in the trade union movement as long as McMahon has, and where the oppression of the bosses and their support by the agencies of the government is as naked and unashamed as it is in the textile industry, can have escaped absorbing some knowledge of the function of capitalist government as a super-strikebreaker is rather hard to understand, but McMahon seems to have accomplished the feat.

Instead of telling the textile workers that government conciliators are by virtue of their jobs agents of the bosses, McMahon fools them with the hope that the removal of a clumsy capitalist tool will aid the workers. It is possible that the obnoxious Wood may be cast into the outer darkness for not being slick enough to fool even McMahon, but he will be replaced by another of the ophidian species who will wriggle a little more elusively.

Let President McMahon stop worrying about federal conciliators, organize the scattered strikes of skilled and semi-skilled textile workers into a general strike in the industry, let him work militantly for amalgamation of the innumerable feeble textile unions into a powerful industrial union, let him abandon the futile hope that the textile bosses will give anything that the power of the workers does not force, let him recognize the class nature of the struggle and the fight against wage cuts and he will get results.

Will he adopt and urge such a program? He will not.

He believes in the capitalist system, denies the class struggle and is therefore the type of labor leader that complains because a government conciliator does the kind of work he is hired to do—disrupt and demoralize striking workers' organizations.

McMahon himself would be federal conciliator, only he has better pickings as the reactionary head of the United Textile Workers.

The puerilities of the McMahons are sufficient proof that nothing of benefit to the workers can be expected from such leadership. The united front from below of the textile workers, in accord with the program of the Trade Union Educational League, is the only avenue of escape from the autocratic rule of the textile bosses.

Send in that new "sub" today!

The Miners Answer Lewis

Sixty-six thousand votes for the left wing slate in the United Mine Workers' election is ample justification for our claim that there is a decided revival of militancy in the labor movement.

The Lewis administration was able to poll, steal and otherwise secure a total of 136,000 votes and when we take into account the methods used in previous elections we can be certain that many thousands of votes for the left wing were never counted—or if counted were placed to the credit of the administration. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that the left wing candidates actually ran ahead of the administration.

The left wing candidates were practically unknown outside of their districts and that they were able in the face of intimidation and expulsions to roll up 66,000 votes with no campaign except distribution of leaflets, is a tribute to the militancy of the miners and their knowledge of and loyalty to the left wing program.

The left wing had no money, it could put out no speakers, it had no press except the DAILY WORKER which cannot reach all mine districts effectively as yet and the program was the most advanced ever put forward by the left wing.

There is no other conclusion possible than that the left wing vote was a vote for the left wing program—not for individuals.

The vote cast by the left, the elements that follow the lead of the Workers (Communist) Party and the Trade Union Educational League, is the most important development in the American labor movement since the left wing began its work.

Picture the situation. William Green, as secretary of the United Mine Workers of America, led the fight on Communists in the American Federation of Labor as represented by William F. Dunne. Lewis sponsored a series of anti-Communist articles that were published by the entire reactionary labor press. Members of the Workers (Communist) Party were expelled because of their affiliation and at the last convention of the union the administration made the Communists and their activities the major issue.

In the face of all this the left wing, led by the Communists, registers the greatest gains ever made and appears as a mighty force in the biggest union in the American Federation of Labor.

We stop here to give three rousing cheers for the militant miners who have given the kind of a reply that counts to the lies of Lewis, Murray, Green and other tools of the capitalists and the capitalist state in the American trade union movement.

Yes, there IS a real and rapid growth of the Communist-led left wing in the unions.

Coolidge and Hoover have another plan to "help the farmers." Our advice to the farmers is to see that the chicken coop and granary doors are locked every night.

VALUABLES IN KIEV MONASTERY ARE DISCOVERED

Counter - Revolutionary Plot Brot to Light

(Special to the Daily Worker)

KIEV, Feb. 8.—In his interview with the Pravda representative, Retau, the chief of the Kiev state intelligence department, Comrade Ivanov stated that already last spring, his department got to know that part of the church treasures which ought to have been given up in 1922 during the famine, were concealed in the Kiev-Pechersk monastery. Most of these valuables were buried in the ground and sealed up in cellars.

On Dec. 16, the state intelligence department began the search for these valuables, which lasted several days and nights. There were brought to light 350 carats diamonds, 50 carats uncut diamonds, scores of carats of rubies, sapphires and pearls, one and a half poods gold (one pood 36 English lbs.) 1 pood ducat-gold, 40 poods silver, etc.

Search Reveals Church Plots.

Among the things which were found there was also a considerable number of various church property: priests' vestments, covers, altar vessels and two bags full of bonds. It is characteristic that the monks did not pay heed to the "sacredness" of the objects: gold patens were buried in latrines, cups were hidden in a box containing gold drain-pipes, panagies (images worn round the neck by bishops) and diamonds were found buried in the garden of the Kitaev Soviet farm, 25 verts from Kiev.

Among the things which were found there was also a voluminous counter-revolutionary correspondence with the Patriarch Tikhon and other prominent opponents of the Soviet government such as Antonious Khrapovitsky.

Monks Starve Midst Wealth.

These treasures were hidden by Archimandrite Clement, the monastry's business manager. His helpers were—the Archimandrite Macarius and the Abbot Eustratius. Fifteen people, belonging to the "upper stratum" of the monastery have been arrested.

The ordinary monks did not know anything about these misdeeds of the monastery "Soviet." They expressed their profound indignation when the treasures were brot to light, for according to their accounts, some of the inmates died last year of starvation, while their superiors had everything in plenty.

Nome Holding Its Own in Fight on Diphtheria Plague

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 8.—This far northern isolated city is holding its own in a fight against diptheria.

No new cases have been officially reported and Dr. Curtis Welch, Nome's lone physician, declared today he thot rushing of antitoxin here by airplane would assure complete checking of the plague.

Work of making the trail from Nenana to Nome for the aviators was started today by signal men.

Ekimos Suffer.

A pathetic story was related by the authorities today when an Eskimo family was discovered with one child dead, and five other children suffering with the disease. The father was found making a crude coffin from scrap lumber in the same room where the five victims were critically ill.

is sitting precariously on his throne. The fact that the left wing vote was cast for men barely known outside of their own districts is proof that the vote was a real left wing vote for the left wing program and not a tribute to some popular leader, as might be said had Alexander Howat been running.

THE old Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly is abolished. This is the only way the Communists could be gotten rid of, as The DAILY WORKER pointed out when the fakers failed to oust Dan Stevens in their first attempt. But the Communists are not easy to get rid of. The capitalists have learned this to their cost and the labor fakers will not be any more successful. Paul J. Smith, the dictator from Washington, has not yet granted the new Minneapolis Central Labor Union a charter. The funny thing about the situation is that Robly D. Cramer, who led the successful fight to oust Dan Stevens is now going to be repaid by the fakers with the loss of his job just as soon as Smith succeeds in putting the bosses' stoolpigeon, Lewis Harthill, former chief of police under Van Lear, over as editor.

THIS is the usual reward of the renegade. Cramer played with the radicals until he saw his meal ticket jeopardized. Then he went the way Fitzpatrick and Nockels in the Chicago Federation of Labor went, and E. B. Ault, of the Seattle Union Record. When two fakirs want the same job there is liable to be trouble. Harthill, who is now editing a scandal sheet called Minnesota and acting as stoolpigeon for the employers in denouncing every radical worker in Minneapolis to the bosses, wants to edit the Labor Review. Harthill is working with Smith. One of the clauses in the new constitution provides that the editor of the Labor Review shall not act as an officer of the Central Labor Union or act as a delegate from that body. Cramer is getting the reward of his treachery sudden and sure.

Anna Louise Strong, Writer and Lecturer, Returns from Russia

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Anna Louise Strong, under the pen name, Anise, is in New York after two years' sojourn in Russia and lectured at Community church on Sunday evening on her observations in the land of the Soviets, where she lived in everyday contact with the workers and saw their rapid progress in field and factory and schoolroom.

She will tour this country to lecture on the John Reed Children's colony, one of the most interesting educational centers in Russia. Her dates in the immediate future will bring her to Boston, and New Bedford, Mass., and to Bloomington, Ill., after which she goes to Chicago, where she lectures before the Chicago Women's club on March 11, and before the Friday morning forum in the same city on March 13. She will return to Russia.

CLEVELAND HOLDS MASS MEETING TUESDAY NIGHT

To Talk Fight Against Bosses' Offensive

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8. — A mass meeting against unemployment, wage cuts and open shop drives has been called by the Cleveland Workers Party for Tuesday, Feb. 10, at 8 p. m., in the Cooks' and Waiters' Union Hall, 2182 East 9th St.

Jobs are scarce in this city and the employment agencies and offices are crowded daily with men seeking a chance to make some profit for the boss in return for the price of a meal or two; but the chances are few and far between.

Not All Rosy.

The building industry is fairly busy Dramatic League, the Modern School have been unable to connect with a job for weeks at a time. The clothing manufacturers have taken advantage of the poor state of the market in order to wring concessions from the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, both in the way of increased output, and actual reduction of pay.

A Danger to All.

To those fortunate to have fairly steady work, and to those whose condition is better because of the protection of their union, unemployment is a vital problem because no worker is sure of escaping longer or shorter periods of no work; and because the existence of a large army of unemployed constitutes a danger to organization and a great handicap to the maintenance and improvement of living standards.

Under the slogan of "A United Front of Labor Against the Capitalist Offensive," the Workers Party of Cleveland, calls upon the workers of Cleveland, employed and unemployed, to join in this meeting of protest against the unemployment situation; and of action towards the meeting of this great evil of capitalism.

VIRGIN ISLANDS, Feb. 8.—Rothschild Francis, editor of the Emancipator was convicted of criminal libel on Jan. 10 and sentenced to 30 days in prison for the publication of an article denouncing an unnamed policeman for brutality. Francis was tried without jury by Judge Washington Williams, whom Francis has opposed politically. The case will be appealed.

PRESIDENT MAY FIRE WILBUR IN AIRCRAFT ROW

Has Long Been at 'Outs' with Navy Head

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8.—That President Coolidge may take advantage of the quarrel over aircraft now going on between army and navy officers, to dismiss Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, is being rumored here today. Coolidge has not forgotten that Wilbur went against the Coolidge tactics toward the southern Negroes on a speaking tour some months ago. At that time Wilbur was hastily recalley by Coolidge, after the navy secretary had declared the republican party a champion of the southern Negro. Coolidge has followed Harding's policy of agreeing with southern democrats that the Negroes should not have social equality.

A weeks ago Wilbur appeared before the congresional committee investigating the war machine of the country, and declared it "untenable and ridiculous" to think that an airship could destroy a battleship. Wilbur told the committee that Coolidge was opposed to an independent, and a larger air service.

Coolidge, however, refused to confirm Wilbur's statement, and intimated that Wilbur "went too far" in speaking for Coolidge.

Now that Brigadier General Mitchell has created a row by charging the war and navy departments with inefficiency, Coolidge may take advantage of the probe and dismiss Wilbur.

PREFERENCE SHOWN FOR U. S. DOLLARS IN FIGHT FOR SO. AFRICAN MINES

CAPE TWON, South Africa, Feb. 8.—A diamond war between American and British interests was seen today by mine owners in the reported offer of an American syndicate to purchase the entire output of the Debeers' Premier Diamond mines. J. P. Morgan, the New York financier, was said to be interested in the American syndicate. Heretofore the output of the Debeers' mines has been sold to an English syndicate.

Herrin War Heritage of Fight on Miners

pussy-footers. Some of the officials are just plain scared and others of them are in politics and looking for jobs."

Phase of Class Struggle.

Taken by and large, the klan and counter-klan fight in Williamson county can be said to be merely a phase of the class struggle. Without question, Glenn Young represented interests who were chaffing under the strain caused by the solid organization of the southern Illinois miners. Even the mine union officials, referred to above, who talked with the utmost caution, said there was ground to believe an under current of wage cut propaganda is at work here. They wouldn't talk about the klan. They merely said that miners who are members of the klan are expelled as soon as their membership comes to light. They make no effort to find out who are members and who are not and they haven't, they said, taken any official position regarding the klan. Different sources that the DAILY WORKER came in contact with alleged that even some of the officials were members of the klan.

Precisely what particular interests sent Young to Herrin cannot be proven. But Young was obviously posing when he said he came to clean up the county. The mere fact that his immediate following was composed for the most part, of thugs and old-time boozers makes his expressed intentions ridiculous. And more than one miner's wife was known to have complained about the "good stuff" her husband got in Glenn Young's "soft drink" parlor on W. Madison street, Herrin.

God's Army With Young.

Whoever sent him to Herrin sent him to make trouble. He made plenty. He got the whole riff-raff of the county behind him. And in addition he got the preachers. With the exception of one or two and the catholic priest, every man of god in town was preaching klanism from his pulpit and making a hero of Glenn Young. Under Young's leadership the klan maneuvered into every office in the county except the sheriff's. They are trying to get that now. If they do, there is no telling what will happen to the United Mine Workers.

While the most of the miners and especially the foreign born miners are belligerent enough against the klan in Williamson county, they have no leadership. Their own officials are either klansmen or spineless. With Ora Thomas gone and the sheriff going, the miners are on the way to being made the victims of whole sale campaigns by klansmen in complete control of the county.

In a conversation with some miners in West Frankfort, in Franklin county, next to Williamson, the DAILY WORKER was told: "Anytime the men in Herrin need any help, we're all ready." One prominent miner in West Frankfort said, "If Sheriff Gallagan would send out a call tomorrow he could get six thousand men from this county to go in there and help him."

Young's Successor.

The killing of Glenn Young and Ora Thomas by no means settles the issue in Williamson county. Things are likely, if anything, to be far worse than before. John L. Whiteside, the new klan leader, told the reporter as he sat at his desk in his garage office, "Just because Glenn's gone, don't matter." He was playing with a big colt automatic and was surrounded by a half dozen not so nice looking characters who smirked when he said it.

The fact that Governor Small was supported by the klan in Williamson county and that many reputable people here say with assurance that Adjutant General Black is a klansman, would indicate the reason why troops have not been sent here. It appears the state administration is perfectly willing to let the klan run the county. The last reports from Springfield state that Sheriff Gallagan has agreed to leave the state. Gallagan is in conference with the governor and a committee of klansmen sent by the county board of supervisors, all of whom but one, is a klansman. Gallagan has agreed to let Deputy Sheriff Parks take over his office. But when I saw Parks this afternoon, he said he would not under any circumstances take the post of acting sheriff.

Miners Quitting Klan.

Many miners have recently quit the klan. They are beginning to get their eyes open. There are very few miners in the klan now, altho at first a great many flocked in. If any leaders spring up there are some terrible battles in store for Williamson. The miners are being hard hit in more ways than one. Most of the mines are not working in southern Illinois. The reason is that coal orders are being concentrated in the non-union fields of Kentucky and elsewhere. Three more mines have shut down in the past few days. If this condition keeps up and it is further aggravated by outside support to the anti-labor klan forces, as will probably be the case, the Lester mine massacre will be a skirmish compared to the battles that will follow on such conditions.

IF Wall Street ever decides that a king would look better in Washington than a mere president it will have at its disposal two funkeys trained in the art of wearing black silk knee breeches. They are, George Harvey and the present American ambassador at London, Mr. Kellog. The latter gave a dinner to the king of England, not that the king needed it, but Kellog is leaving for the United States to take over Charles Hughes' job and he thought it only proper that he should show the king what a yankee could do in or around the court of Saint James.

THE women who wore tight shoes were not pleased because the king did not sit down after he rose from the dining table. Because the king did not sit nobody else did. If the king had sported a pair of bunions, chiropodists would go out of business, such is the devotion of our American parasites in England to royalty. Bunions would become as popular as cross-word puzzles are now.

WARREN S. STONE, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and chairman of the managing board of the scab Coal Rivers Collieries company has called a conference of the chief executives of the sixteen standard railroad labor organizations, to take place in Chicago on February 20, the day prior to the convention of the conference for progressive political action. Stone was one of the founders of the C. P. P. A. but it appears that he is not very proud of his offspring. The announced intention of the meeting is in Stone's words: "for the purpose of defining and outlining their position in so far as their further activities and connection with the conference for progressive political action are concerned." The prospects are not very bright for the poor C. P. P. A. It may be turned over to the socialists in return for their self sacrifice in burying the socialist party.

THIS scandal epidemic in Germany [illegible] [illegible]. Otto Bauer, socialist leader and first chancellor of the German republic is kicked ignominiously out of the reichstag because of his involvement in the Barmat scandal. Another scandal has been unearthed in the post office. A leak of $15,000,000 took place under the Marx-Stresemann regime. The industrialists are accused of forcing the government to turn over the gigantic sum of $500,000,000 to them while the passive resistance war took place in the Ruhr.

THIS at a time when the workers were toiling one extra hour for nothing in order to carry on the fight against Poincare. There is more trouble in store for the industrialists and for the social democrats who stood by them against the Communists, the only elements that supported the workers against the coal and steel barons.

• • •

THE capitalist papers all over the world thought they saw in the controversy between Trotsky and the central committee of the Communist Party, the beginning of a severe crisis in the Soviet government. But despite the services of their stoolpigeons they do not yet realise what a highly disciplined organization the Communist Party of Russia is. It is the party that forms the government by the mandate of the workers and peasants.

• • •

WHEN Trotsky lost the confidence of the Communist Party, as the Soviet Union Review points out, his offer of resignation from his position as president of the revolutionary war council was accepted. But he is still a member of the Communist Party, and the entire party, which has over half a million members supported the central committee of the party so wholeheartedly that the counter revolutionary hope of a split in the Communist Party has gone a glimmering. Soviet Russia was never so strong either industrially or politically as it is today. This is good news for the workers of the world.

17 CITIES SHOW JUMP IN RETAIL COST OF FOOD IN JANUARY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The retail cost of food took a jump in 17 cities during January, ranging one per cent to 4 per cent the department of labor announced today. Louisville and Peoria had an increase of 3 per cent; while Detroit, Indianapolis and Springfield, (Ill.) [illegible] two per cent.

ITED FRONT AGAINST WAGE CUTS CALLS UPON LAWRENCE TEXTILE WORKERS FOR ACTION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 9.—A big mass meeting of textile workers in the Winter Garden Theatre here on Friday night unanimously resolved to resist all wage cuts and the speeding-up system, to compel the amalgamation of all existing textile workers' unions into one industrial union, and to assist the striking textile workers of neighboring towns.

United Front Committee at Lawrence.

The meeting was called by the Lawrence United Front Committee for the first pay-day of the new reduced wage scale, which the workers commemorated with this outburst of protest.

The united front committee is composed of about thirty members representing the Franco-Belgian Club (a workers' organization which functions as a labor union), an Italian workers' group, a Syrian workers' group, a French-Canadian workers' group and four branches of Workers (Communist) Party. This town, the scene of such heroic struggles of the past twelve years, including the world-famous strike of 1912, that of 1919 and that of 1922, is today practically without the slightest fragment of a union organization.

Robert Minor, the principal speaker, representing the Workers (Communist) Party, appealed to the textile workers to revive the old traditions of Lawrence as a stronghold of the fighting kind of working class. Pointing out that 70,000 workers in New England cotton mills had already been struck by the wage cut, Minor said that the plan of the employers constitutes a huge, united drive of all manufacturers acting as one man to lower the whole living standard of an entire working class population. "It is called a 10 per cent reduction," said Minor, "but that is deceptive. The straight cut often runs as high as 25 per cent, and even that is not the worst.

A Fifty Per Cent Cut!

"Down in Providence and in Natick the B. B. & R. Knight Co. has cut the weavers' piece work scale 50 per cent. They have been using old machinery. Now they have put in new magazine looms, and they are trying to force the weavers to run twice as many looms as before, speeding up beyond human endurance.

"But here in Lawrence it will be worse still. The Pacific Mills—that giant corporation of $40,000,000 capitalization, which paid 262 per cent dividends in the years 1915-1920 and watered its stock to three times the investment—is not satisfied in reducing your pay 10 per cent. They are now preparing to put in the 72-loom system. One weaver is to take charge not of 16 or 32 looms, but 72!

Double Work For Less Pay.

"I understand furthermore that the Pacific Mills here have begun to force the spinners to take 18-size spindles instead of 9-size. All of this means that they are determined to get, not merely the same amount of production for less pay, but double the amount of production for less pay.

What "Going Slowly" Means.

"Now, what are you going to do about it? There have been some plans offered. Mr. Wm. T. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers, is said to have made proposals as to what to do about it. I hope I don't do him an injustice, but he is quoted as proposing an appeal to the United States senate, to the general court of Massachusetts and to the so-called 'civic bodies' of business men and church ladies. The policy is also attributed to him of 'going slowly' about this matter.

Going Slowly Means Going to Defeat.

"What does that 'going slowly' mean? I'll tell you what looks bad about it. You know there is a popular belief that in the textile industry if a strike is put off thru January and February, and then March, after that there is no strike. I don't know what there may be in the theory, but it is the belief of this country based on its past experience. Then what does this advice to 'go slowly' in February with wages already cut—what does this advice mean? It sounds as tho Mr. McMahon does not want any resistence to be made to the cuts. Whose friend is he? Is he organizing 'civic bodies' of church ladies to attend to your affairs? Why is there no organization—rapid organization of textile workers going on? The church ladies are too busy spending the dividends of their husbands' textile stocks. You will have to depend on yourselves.

"You will have to depend on yourselves in organizing yourselves. In this crisis you cannot afford to make any concessions to the petty ambitions—or worse—of this or that labor leader who has a job as head of some one of the dozen varieties of labor unions which claim to be the whole show but which have only a fragment of organization—and in this city no organization whatever. I don't want to attack any labor union. I don't take

MAHONEY TO BE REWARDED BY THORNY CROWN

Fakers Are Gunning for His Scalp

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 9.—The Communists of St. Paul are causing as much excitement in the dove cote of the reactionaries in the labor movement here as the radicals in the city across the river.

William Mahoney, erstwhile progressive, has taken it upon himself to rid the farmer-labor party, or what is left of it, of the Communists. His success in doing so is not likely to bring him any laurels more comfortable than a fresh crown of thorns from the fakers he is trying so hard to please.

Mahoney's heart was set on getting rid of Otto Wangerin, secretary of the Ramsey county division of the farmer-labor federation, at its recent convention on Jan. 31. But when the votes were counted Wangerin was wearing his characteristic smile and Mahoney wore the face of a "Jiggs" who met his "Maggie" at the door while trying to sneak over to Dinty Moore's for a game of forty-five with the boys.

Wangerin Re-elected.

In other words, Comrade Wangerin was re-elected. This caused Mr. Mahoney to wail loudly and long in the columns of his paper, the Union Advocate, and to inform all and sundry that the Communists had a most devilish habit of nosing in where they did not belong and "fooling" the workers.

Why the delegates persisted in electing Wangerin, Mahoney does not say, tho he sincerely believes they are not revolutionists. To add to Mahoney's mental anguish Wangerin introduced a resolution condemning the so-called "unity conference" called by the reactionaries for the purpose of liquidating the federation as a labor political party and making it respectable in the bourgeois sense. The resolution caused so much discussion that no action was taken on it until the next meeting.

Mahoney as Red Baiter.

The DAILY WORKER is getting under Mr. Mahoney's political hide. In the current issue of his paper, a leading story on the front page is taken up with an attack on Wangerin, the Communist secretary of the Ramsey county division of the farmer-labor federation; the fake unity manifesto is an anti-Communist document, an editorial is devoted to attacking the Workers (Communist) Party, and a signed statement by Mahoney replies to a recent article in the DAILY WORKER by Earl R. Browder, entitled, "Mahoney—Agent of Minnesota Bankers." Comrade Browder's article is reproduced in six point type. It is an effective scorching of Mahoney's position, and the only reason Mahoney published it in his paper is to prove to the capitalists that the Communists have him on their "no-good" list.

Attorney General Seeks $50,000 from Illinois Legislature

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 9.—Watch dogs of the state treasury came back to Springfield today to make a stand in the Illinois legislature Tuesday, against unqualified appropriation of $50,000 "to run Oscar Carlstrom's office until July 1."

The attorney general says the sum is needed for the period ending July 1, 1925.

SEATTLE FAKERS PACK CENTRAL LABOR COUNCIL

Metal Trades Council for Michigan Defense

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., (By Mail)—The Central Labor Council was packed last Wednesday night by the reactionaries in the grand opening of the fight to expel the Communists from the council. Delegates from two locals; Teamsters 174, and Plumbers 32, that had not been affiliated with the central body for two years were lined up during the week and when they appeared to take the pledge on Wednesday night the fakers applauded vigorously.

Several columns of the Seattle Union Record are devoted to the attack on the Communists. It appears that E. B. Ault, editor of the privately owned alleged labor sheet has made a better job of going over to the enemy than his prototype, Robly D. Cramer of Minneapolis. The Seattle Record is no longer owned by the Central Labor Union. It is owned by a profit making concern, the central body selling its endorsement for $15,000. This is the extent of the Record's labor character.

The leadership in the attack on the Communists was taken by the reactionary Building Trades Council, which met the previous week and arranged to bring the plumbers and teamsters back to the central body in order to expel the Communists. But it will take more than one night to do that job.

Recites Gompers Bible

The motion to expel the Communists was made by J. N. Belanger, business representative of Steamfitters Local 473, and a member of the executive council of the State Federation of Labor. When the radicals demanded to know on what authority this action was taken, President Jepson recited section 8 of article II of the constitution of the American Federation of Labor, which gives central bodies power to oust any delegate against whom written charges are preferred by three members, but provides that a trial be given the accused member.

According to the Seattle Union Record, which seems to be on the inside of the conspiracy, the faction that led the fight against the Communists at the last meeting of the council, were busily engaged Thursday morning following, preparing written charges against half a dozen of the Communist members of the council.

It is rather significant that William J. Tracey, secretary-treasurer of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor and John Coefield, president of the Plumbers and Steamfitters International Union, are here on their way to San Francisco.

Metal Trades Fight Gag Law

The Seattle Labor Record, published interviews with several labor fakers who are opposed to any kind of radicalism but did not publish a line from any delegates who supported the Communists. The M. T. Council, passed a resolution condemning the criminal syndicalism laws and urging the Central Labor Council to protest the action of the Michigan state supreme court and pledge support to Michigan victims of criminal syndicalism laws.

There were thirty new delegates rushed in at the last meeting to take part in the attack on the Communists. They were from the plumbers and steamfitters; teamsters, taxi drivers; garbage wagon drivers; card and label league; molders and pressmen. This is about the composition of the reactionary "majority."

PHILADELPHIA CEMENT WORKERS, LOCAL 592, DENOUNCE CRIMINAL SYNDICALIST LAW, MICHIGAN CASES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 9.—Cement Finishers' Local No. 592, at their regular meeting, with about 400 members present, unanimously passed a resolution protesting against the criminal syndicalist law in Michigan under which C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers Party, was found guilty of "assembling with" the Communists and sentenced to prison for a period of from 3 to 10 years.

Members of the Trade Union Educational League who introduced the resolution pointed out that Robert Minor, William Z. Foster, William F. Dunne and 28 other men and women active in the labor movement, are about to be tried under this law, and unless the labor movement takes definite steps to combat this law and come to the defense of the Michigan cases, a precedent will be set, after which any militant labor leader can be railroaded to prison for actively participating in the interests of the workers.

CHARGE WARDEN SOLD SOFT BERTHS TO RICH CONVICTS IN ATLANTA

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 9.—Trial of A. E. Sartain, former warden and L. J. Fletcher, former assistant warden, at the United States prison here, were ordered today by Judge Irwin after he had listened to a lengthy argument by attorneys for the defense, who had demanded a continuance.

Sartain and Fletcher are being tried under indictment charging they solicited and accepted bribes from prisoners in return for soft berths.

COAL BARONS ORGANIZE SCAB UNION IN W. VA.

Treason and Reaction Wrecks U. M. W. of A.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 9.—While John L. Lewis and his reactionary machine were engaged in waging war on the radicals in the United Mine Workers of America, the coal operators were busy destroying the union in West Virginia. Today, nothing is left of the union but a skeleton of its former self in this stronghold of open shoppers and black reaction.

Coincident with the announcement that Wall Street was putting thru a $100,000,000 coal merger in the Fairmont-Clarksburg-Morgantown district, came the news that a fake labor union under the name of the "Mine Workers' Association of West Virginia" had taken out a charter at the office of secretary of state. The president of this scab union is Thomas Cairns, a former president of District

The Labor Lieutenant.

Evidently Cairns is the labor lieutenant of the coal operators. He has incorporated his fake union and announced that the object of the association was to "preserve the coal industry of the state from destruction" and the incorporation would show good faith and convince operators that when negotiating wage contracts the association "would be responsible for faithful performance of contractors."

This stoolpigeon, in a public statement, undoubtedly written by the attorney for the coal operators, say: "It has been established in the courts and elsewhere that there has been a conspiracy to cripple production of the coal mines in West Virginia" and tells of the tent colonies all over the state where the striking miners and their children are huddled in cold and hunger. These gallant unionists have battled for years against the most bloodthirsty and heartless group of exploiters in the United States. Yet Lewis and company instead of assisting them have spent thousands of dol-

Two Probes Into Train Wreck That Took Six Lives

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Feb. 9.—With one investigation baffled, two others got under way today to seek the cause of the wreck of Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 104, which sideswiped a freight near Nearman, Kansas, late Saturday with the loss of six lives. The death of Kenneth Bunker, soldier, at Fort Leavenworth, Sunday, made the sixth death.

The 15 injured were improving today.

An unofficial inquiry by the railroad failed to find any cause for the wreck, reporting the road and equipment in good condition and that engineer Marvin Wodell was running within his schedule speed.

CLAIM "RED" RUSSIANS MAN AN ARMORED TRAIN FOR SUN YAT SEN

WASHINGTON CONFESSES PARIS PACT DRAWING U. S. INTO DAWES PLAN CHANGED AFTER SIGNING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Official admission was made by the state department today that certain textual changes were made in the Paris agreement, under which the United States became an official partner in the Dawes plan in exchange for 2¼ per cent of the revenues received, some days after it was originally signed at Paris by Ambassador Kellogg and the allied representatives.

These changes, however, were of "little consequence," it was said at the department, and changed neither the context nor the ultimate purpose of the agreement.

After the agreement was signed, the state department explained, it was found that certain "obvious errors" were contained in the language, whereupon the delegates re-assembled and agreed upon a protocol to correct these errors. The second meeting was hedged about with considerable secrecy, and it was only a few days ago that press dispatches from abroad told of it.

Knowledge that the agreement was changed after its adoption, and after the official text had been given world-wide publication, served to increase the suspicion with which the senate irreconcilables viewed the whole transaction.

The state department's explanation of the changes as "incidental" and "unimportant" was calculated today to allay this suspicion and forestall any further outbreak in the senate such as occurred some days ago.

One of the changes made was the insertion of a clause stating that America should get its 2¼ per cent "after the deductions of sums allotted for other treaty charges by this agreement."

This change had the effect today of further convincing the irreconcilable senators like Johnson, republican, of California, that the Paris agreement really is "a treaty" and consequently should be submitted to the senate for ratification.

Secretary Hughes has contended that the agreement was not a "treaty," and thus was of no concern to the senate.

SPECIAL POLL ON PENSION PLAN IN DISTRICT 12

Two-Thirds Vote Needed to Make It Stick

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 9.—Nearly 100,000 Illinois coal miners will be called upon tomorrow to vote for or against re-adoption of the miners' old age pension act.

The special election set for February 10, was ordered by Frank Farrington, president of the District No. 12, United Mine Workers of America, following recent announcement by international President John L. Lewis and the Miners Advisory board that the Illinois pension system was unconstitutional.

Against the Law—Lewis

The pension act, adopted January 1, 1925, was carried by a vote of 34,124 against 23,142 in an election on December 9. Inasmuch as the vote represented a majority instead of a two thirds vote of all ballots cast, President Lewis declared the election in conflict with the international constitution.

Under the pension system any man who had been a member of the Illinois District Mine Union for a period of twenty years, could draw more than $25 a month for the rest of his life—provided there were enough money in the treasury to warrant payment of that sum.

District officials here today refused to comment on the probable outcome of Tuesday's election, results of which will be made known within a few days, but it was evident little hopes for the referendum were held in some quarters. Progressives declare the referendum is a bluff on Farrington's part in order to stand in well with the old members.

DUBUQUE, IOWA, WILL SEE SOME REAL BOLSHEVIKS

Meeting in Town of 688 Foster Voters

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DUBUQUE, Io., Feb. 9.—This town gives the impression of being old, many of the buildings having the appearance of age and neglect. There are also quite a large number of big factories that make it look like a bee hive, and the reports given by the workers as to conditions makes the impression more realistic, the droves wax fat at the expense of sweated workers.

The visitor is greeted with a large sign board at the railroad depot stating the population is 42,181; factories 120; wholesale houses 40; churches 33; academics 4; colleges 3; universities 1; seminaries 1; parks 8; and, railroads 4.

Notice These Figures

Upon another sign board they advertise that between 1910 and 1920 wage workers in their factories increased 18.2 per cent and production 133.0 per cent. This shows the prospective factory site seeker that Dubuque wage slaves are speeded up over one hundred per cent.

Religious Factionalism Rampant

The city is estimated to be 50 per cent Roman catholic, about 15 per cent are foreign born, and up until the past few months the kluxers had a strong organization. A counter movement was started against the kluxers through a paper called "Tolerance," which promised to publish the names of every kluxer in town. They published about 50, the first week, then dropped to 10 and then only 3 and now the paper has ceased publication.

Even a Webbly in K. K. K.

The result of these names being published in a catholic community started a boycott. Every little "hero" that had promised to save his country for Billy Sunday and the holders of white slaves, against the jesuits, black slave, foreign devils or reds, came out of his hole and hollered in large type that he was not and never had been a kluxer.

The kluxers have roped in quite a number of the union members, creating a bitter factionalism that has completely demoralized the movement. A few of the old-time socialists and at least one wobbly have joined the kluxers.

Chicago Allowed 8,500 Cubic Feet Of Lake Water

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9.—A permit will be issued to the Chicago sanitary district, it was announced today to withdraw an annual average of 8,500 cubic feet per second, for the drainage district—thus postponing for five years at least the permanent settlement of a problem that has engaged the municipal authorities of Chicago in conflict with authorities of other lake cities, and with Canadian authorities.

Permission to withdraw the water was granted by Secretary of War Weeks.

CLEVELAND WILL HOLD BIG SACCO-VANZETTI MEET

Labor Unions Unite with W. P. in Protest

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 9. — That the workers of Cleveland are deeply interested in securing freedom for their fellow workers, Sacco and Vanzetti, is demonstrated by the response to the call issued by the Workers Party of Cleveland far a great mass meeting and demonstration for the release of Sacco and Vanzetti, and against all persecutions of workers.

This meeting will be held on Sunday evening, March 1, in the Engineers' Auditorium, Ontario and St. Clair Aves., and preparations are being made for a packed house.

Many Unions Respond.

The labor organizations of Cleveland have been circularised with an invitation to a united front conference February 13 in the Labor Temple, 2536 Euclid Ave., to further the arrangements for this great demonstration of working class solidarity, and already many unions have been heard from favorably. All working class organizations are urged to send delegates to this conference, and every militant must be on the job to see that his organization supports this meeting to the fullest extent.

The following resolution was adopted unanimously by Local No. 195, Auto Workers' Union:

"WHEREAS, the real reasons for the persecution of these workingmen are their ploitical opinions and their activity in the labor movement, and therefore their conviction and continued imprisonment are in violation of freedom of thought and expression, and the right of organization, upon which the organized labor movement is based, therefore be it

"RESOLVED, that we demand the release of Sacco and Vanzetti and condemn the perversion of justice by the courts as exhibited in this case, and be it further

"RESOLVED, that this resolution be given the widest publicity."

PITTSBURGH MACHINIST LODGE CONDEMNS C. P. P. A. AND BACKS WORKERS PARTY UNITED FRONT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 9.—Pittsburgh machinists are not only against Bill Johnston's co-operation with the bosses on the railroad and in the industries, but are showing signs of knowledge that his unity with the bosses politically is just as dangerous to the workers. The medium of this political unity is the conference for progressive political action.

Both of these are the pet schemes of Bill Johnston altho the Pittsburgh machinists have repudiated his "B. & O. Plan" but they had not until now learned the danger in the C. P. P. A., and that it is more dangerous because it is a way to fool the workers. But the T. U. E. L. has been busy exposing the capitalist nature of the C. P. P. A.

Adopted by Westhouse Lodge.

This was brought to the attention of the machinists in this district by the following resolution which was adopted at the Westhouse lodge, where delegates were instructed to bring it into the district council. When the resolution came to the vote in the district council, the vote was tie and it took the chairman of the council to cast the deciding vote against the resolution.

Resolution on the Conference for Progressive Political Action.

Whereas, the conference for progressive political action (C. P. P. A.) will hold a conference in Chicago on February 26, 1925.

Whereas, the C. P. P. A. is part of the LaFollette movement which is not a labor movement, but a combination of so-called liberal capitalist politicians, bankrupt socialists, and reactionary union officials, and includes prominent "open shoppers," and

Whereas, the purpose of the C. P. P. A. is not to organise the workers and poor farmers for active political struggle against their exploiters, but on the contrary to subject the exploited masses to the leadership of small capitalists and professional politicians, and

Whereas, the C. P. P. A. is organised on a basis of representation which secures it from rank and file influence and insures its complete domination by the class collaborationist officials, and

Whereas, the most burning need of the working masses at present is to unify all forces of labor for a real struggle against wage cuts, against child labor, against the jailing and persecution of working class militants and for the defense of the foreign born workers, and

Whereas, the policies of the C. P. P. A. can have no other effect than to raise illusions in the minds of the workers, thereby distracting the attention of labor from its real needs and weakening its fighting power, and

Whereas, the Workers (Communist) Party of America, the T. U. E. L. and other labor bodies are carrying on an agitation for a united front of labor and the poor farmers for an organized political struggle against the offensive of our enemies, the capitalists, and their government,

Therefore, Be it Resolved, That we are opposed to the C. P. P. A. and will carry on a struggle against the attempt of their organization to impose upon us their policies of class collaboration on the political field which can only serve the interests of the bosses, and

That we refuse to participate in any of the conferences of the C. P. P. A. and call upon every labor organization to do likewise.

That we endorse the United Front Campaign of the Workers (Communist) Party and pledge our support in the struggle against wage cuts, against child labor exploitation, against the criminal syndicalist laws, for the defense of the working class militants in the Michigan cases, and for every other measure that will strengthen the forces of labor against the capitalists, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the international officials, and to the labor press.

ONE FRONT AGAINST WAGE CUTS

sides against any of these little unions. But I tell you they have got to get together now in this crisis and cut out this division which is bringing you to ruin. You rank and file workers have got to force these various textile unions to amalgamate now, quickly, and you have got to get a single industrial union of all the textile workers without exception or discrimination.

Majority Have No Union.

"And these existing little organizations can't hog it all, either, and pretend that they now represent the workers. The truth is that the vast majority are not organized at all. They won't be organized unless you take it on yourselves to do it thru your united front committee.

"These mill owners claim that they have to reduce your pay to 'meet the competition of the southern mills' where they say that wages are 25 to 30 per cent lower than in New England 'because there has never been any labor organization in the southern mills.'

"Then, by God, it's time for you to put some labor unionism into the south. Again, you can't have any effect on the south unless you have one, single, huge textile union covering the whole country. And that's another reason why you have to force these little unions to merge into one huge organization and draw the unorganized majority into it. Otherwise there will be no labor unions north or south, and soon they'll be reducing the southern wages, and then yours again.

"But then they say they have to meet foreign competition. By their hideous Dawes' plan, they reduce the German workers to starved beggars working in rags, and then they say they have to reduce you toward the same standard to 'meet the competition.'

"What is the lesson of that? Simply that you've got to extend your organization, not only thruout all New England, and not only thruout Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas and the whole country—but also thruout all the countries of the world, internationally.

"Now I'll tell you that something has already been done in this line. The Red International of Labor Unions is already organized. The more advanced workers of France, Italy, Germany, Poland, England, the United States and Russia, in this Labor Union International, are bringing the unions of the whole world into a solid block, a united solidarity for resistance on a world scale against this huge attempt to crush the workers into worse and worse slavery.

"I advise you workers to rely on yourselves—build up and support your united front rank and file committee. Organize yourselves rapidly, and tell the mill bosses to go to hell with their wage cuts."

French and Italian Speakers

Gust Lescarbeault, a French-Canadian mill worker, made an impassioned appeal in French for the textile workers to organize and resist the wage cut, and to spread their organization to the other mill towns.

He was followed by Joseph Salerno, famous in this district for his militant leadership of the textile workers in the past big strike battles, who spoke in Italian. He insisted on solidarity, and he didn't hesitate to speak plainly of a strike. The audience, largely of Italian workers as becomes this district, wildly applauded him.

Samuel Bramhall, a carpenter prominent for many years in the Lawrence labor movement, was chairman.

John J. Ballam, district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party, made an appeal for concrete organisational steps, and introduced the following resolution, which was passed unanimously:

Resolution of Lawrence Textile Workers, Mass Meeting Feb. 6, 1925

The textile workers of New England are now facing a concerted drive on the part of the mill owners to reduce wages;

The Everett mills, Pacific mills, the Acadia mills and the Lawrence Duck mill have already made wage cuts averaging from 10 per cent to 22 per cent;

Speeding-up systems, in which operators are required to run from 26 to 72 looms have been instituted;

In Manchester, Fall River, New Bedford, and in the Blackstone and Pawtuxet valleys the mill owners have slashed wages;

Wage cuts, longer hours, speeding up!—that is the message of the textile bosses united in the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers. Some of the companies that make this announcement paid up to 262 per cent dividends in the period of 1915-20, on watered stock;

In answer to this challenge of the textile millionaires, thousands of textile workers are on strike;

The bosses are united in their drive to reduce the textile workers to slave conditions. The textile workers are divided into many unions, and none of these is strong enough, to say nothing of of the great majority who are unorganized and who must be organized.

In view of the above conditions, we, the textile workers of Lawrence, in mass meeting assembled in the Winter Garden this 6th day of February, 1925, do resolve:

1—That we will resist all wage cuts and speeding-up systems and call upon our brothers and sisters to organize and fight the wage cuts and speeding-up systems.

2—That we will work for amalgamating all existing unions into one industrial union of all textile workers.

3—That we pledge ourselves to assist our striking fellow-workers and to join them in the struggle against the textile millionaires.

The Workers (Communist) Party and the Trade Union Educational League, which initiated the present united front movement and which took the lead in bringing about the demonstration in Lawrence, is working tooth and nail to establish similar committees with other workers' organizations and groups in all mill towns of New England, and to hold similar demonstrations everywhere.

Much success has already been had. The united front committee in Providence, R. I., arranged meetings for Middlesboro, Mass., Sunday, Feb. 8, and for Providence Sunday, Feb. 15, among others. That the campaign in the Pawtuxet Valley, Blackstone Valley, Fall River and New Bedford will soon begin to show results, is the belief of the Providence committee.

TWO DEAD, SCORE INJURED IN N. Y. SUBWAY CRASH

Blame Fog When Three Trains Come Together

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Two persons were killed, a score injured and hundreds of children and adults trampled when panic followed a triple rear-end collision of three crowded, seven-car subway trains today. The collision resulted from the heavy fog, obscuring the tracks, which run above the surface at the point of the collision. The crash was the most serious of several resulting from the fog.

Struggling, fighting passengers striving to leave the wrecked trains contributed to a panic that menaced other lives.

Three ambulances were sent to the scene, with police and firemen reserves to aid in getting the injured from the smashed cars.

Nine Hurt in Brooklyn.

Nine persons were hurt when two elevated trains went together in Brooklyn. Four other persons were injured when a subway train and an elevated train met in Long Island city.

A dozen trans-Atlantic liners were held up at quarantine because they could not negotiate the Narrows.

COTTON MILLS STRIKERS WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

Bosses Fomenting Race Feeling Among Workers

By ROBERT MINOR.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Feb. 9.— A mass meeting of strikers of the Greenhalgh Cotton mills here yesterday, decided unanimously to continue the strike begun a week ago against the wage cut and to begin picketing the mills this morning when the company attempted to reopen.

The picket line was on duty before daylight today and no worker or scab entered the gates. The strikers held another mass meeting this morning at Carpenters' Hall and reported the strike one hundred per cent solid. Notwithstanding the success here and despite the general nature of the textile struggle thruout New England, William T. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers yesterday declared his policy to be against calling a general textile strike to resist the wage cut but only to "fight at the weakest point."

Workers of the Ninegret Mills here yesterday in a mass meeting at Carpenters' Hall, were practically unanimous in expressing their desire to strike against the ten per cent wage cut. McMahon addressed the meeting and persuaded them to take no action. The strike of 250 girls of the Pawtucket Hosiery Mills now in its fifth week, was reported at a mass meeting yesterday to be without a break, the picketing being entirely successful.

• • •

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 9.—An attempt to precipitate a race riot in the Fall River strike situation was made last night when a fight in the Flint street district apparently incited by provocators, involved a hundred Syrian and Portuguese mill workers. Four men are under arrest. No cause can be found for the disturbance except that unknown persons started shouting denunciations of Portugese workers in the Syrian working class district of Flint street and similar denunciations of Syrian workers. Thruout this section mill owners have begun systematically offering the jobs of striking Syrians to Portugese and the jobs of striking Portugese to Syrians. Syrian workers imported from Lawrence by means of misrepresentations to scab on the striking French-Canadian and native workers of the Nemasket Mills at Middleboro, Mass., have in some instances been persuaded to return to Lawrence after a strikers' committee explained the situation to them.

SENATORS SLAM MUSSELMAN PACT

Declare Treaty Is Not Good for U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The senate foreign relations committee late today considered the Lausanne treaty with Turkey which has been pigeon-holed for more than a year.

The treaty would establish full diplomatic relations with Turkey, broken off during the war.

Upon invitation of Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, chairman, Senator King, democrat, of Utah, appeared before the committee in opposition to the treaty, declaring it was "unfair to the United States."

After more than an hour's discussion, the committee failed to reach an agreement and postponed until Wednesday further consideration of the treaty.

Washington Solons Out for Nice Picking Quizzing Big Trusts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Two gigantic federal investigations, one into the General Electric company's trust activities, and the other into the tobacco industry, appeared certain this afternoon when the senate began consideration of the Norris and Ernst resolutions.

The investigation were linked when Senator Norris, republican of Nebraska, offered his electric trust resolution as an amendment to the tobacco inquiry proposed by Senator Ernst, republican, of Kentucky. Both investigations would be conducted by the federal trade commission.

Socialist-Laborite Helps Raise Imperialist Agent to Earldom in Britain

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, King George V., the titular head of British imperialism, plans to advance his loyal Field Marshal Lord Allenby to an earldom. It was Allenby who recently helped save Egypt for the British empire. He held it with the usual bloody British methods, aided by prisons and executions.

But Allenby didn't do the job alone. His chief supporter was James Ramsay MacDonald, Britain's late labor premier, whose foreign policies were so suited to British imperialist rule that it is declared Stanley Baldwin, as premier, and Austen Chamberlain, as foreign secretary, in the present conservative cabinet in London found no reason to modify the position which MacDonald had taken with regard to Egypt.

• • • •

It was Lord Allenby personally that persuaded MacDonald, against the protests of British workers, to champion the cause of British control of the Sudan, with a military protectorate over Egypt and the guardianship of the Suez Canal. British labor forced MacDonald to recognize Soviet Russia; it forced his government to drop the attack on the editor of the Communist Workers' Weekly. But at no time were the workers in England able to turn MacDonald a hairsbreadth from the accepted policies of the empire in Egypt, as well as in India, China and other spheres of British foreign influence.

It is therefore on the shoulders of the MacDonald government, that illusioned workers put into power, that Allenby rises from a lord to an earl; on the shoulders of MacDonald whose feet rest on the bones of murdered Egyptians, on the temporarily defeated aspirations of the Egyptian peoples.

Writing in the New York Times, Sunday, February 8, Frederick Cunliffe Owen, presumably a Britisher, tells why Allenby is showered with the gifts of the British rulers, in words as follows:

> "Perhaps one of the principal services rendered by Lord Allenby in connection with the Egyptian situation, and one which has heretofore received but little attention, was his conversion of James Ramsay MacDonald to the vital necessity and policy of English predominance in Egypt and in the Sudan."

• • • •

British imperialism gives its greatest rewards to those who advance its foreign policies. It may be that MacDonald, Thomas, the Snowdens, Henderson and the rest may yet be knighted.

But the MacDonald allies of imperialist rule are caught between the growing power of the British Communist Party on the one hand and the Egyptian Communist Party on the other; both moving under the guidance of the Communist International.

"MacDonald and Thomas do not express the wishes of the working masses of this country, just as your government has nothing to do with the toiling masses of your country," was the recently sent message of the Communist Party of Great Britain to the Egyptian peoples. "Continue your fight! Let us work together for the creation of a real commonwealth; to emancipate the workers upon the principle of equality without any distinction of race, color or creed."

• • • •

When the workers realize that Allenby has become an earl thru the aid of the so-called "socialists" of MacDonald's labor party, then British toilers, as well as labor in Egypt, India, and elsewhere thruout the British empire, will recognize more than ever the necessity of a revolutionary organization to wage the Communist struggle for power, at home as well as in the colonies. Let King George the Fifth make his earls while he may. The revolutionary masses, once in motion, will quickly topple then all into dust.

HOUSE CURTAILS TALK ON POSTAL PAY RAISE BILL

House Bill Draws Fire of Newspapers

(Special to the Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9.—According to present plans the new postal workers' salary increase and postal rate raise bill, presented to the house by the post office committee, will be driven thru the house under a special rule curtailing debate. Amendments are expected to be limited to those introduced by the post office committee.

The bill was attacked by the newspaper publishers as soon as it was placed before the house by the committee. They objected on the ground that it raised the zone rates on second class mail.

Instead of the salary increase being retroactive to July 1, as the senate postal bill provided, the house bill makes the raise retroactive only to Jan. 1, 1925.

The house postal bill, if passed, will have to go to a conference between representatives of the senate and the house to settle diffrences between the Moss bill passed by the senate, and the house bill. It is probable that the raise for the postal workers will still be hanging fire when congress adjourns.

Nome Recovering from Diphtheria Epidemic

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 9.—Nome today faced the most cheerful outlook since the diptheria epidemic broke out.

Dr. Curtis Welch, in charge of the fight against the epidemic, reported conditions were slowly improving. No new cases were reported and the sick were reported recovering.

Prospects were bright for the arrival of a fresh supply of antitoxin—this time via air route. Preparations were nearly complete for the flight of a plane carrying more serum from Fairbanks. It was expected to stop at Ruby and Kaltag. Temperatures of 30 below zero were reported along the route.

RIFFS CONTINUE TO HOLD SPAIN'S TROOPS AT BAY

Moslems Warn Allies Against Interference

TANGIER, Morocco, Feb. 9.—Spain now has 200,000 men in western Morocco fighting the Riffs, led by prince Mahmed Ben Abdel Krim, brother of the sultan. The Spanish troops have not been able to blockade the Riffs, who have free access to Tangier, which they claim they could capture at will. It is declared that Spain would need 1,000,000 men to successfully blockade the Riffs.

Two thousand Moslem delegates to the Khilafat conference meeting recently at Balgaum, India, passed a resolution condemning the Spanish attack on the Riffs, and warning England and France against attempts to intervene against the Riffs on the side of Spain.

The resolution declares:—

"This conference offers its warmest congratulations to the heroes of Riffs, who under their gallant and intrepid chief, Ghazi Amir Abdul Krim, have so bravely defended their liberties and whose glorious feats of arms have filled the world with admiration and astonishment. This conference condemns the unrighteous and wanton attack of Spaniards on Riffs and the barbarous atrocities committed by them during the course of the war.

"The conference further warns England and France that any attempt on their part to deprive the Riffs of the fruits of their hard-earned success and to crush their libtrties as is foreshadowed in the recent utterances of their ministers will be treated as an act of hostility towards the Moslems of the world."

The chamber of deputies of France has granted Marshal Lyautey additional credits of 5,000,000 francs to be used by the French in Morocco to prepare for war against the Riffs. The government of Syria had given this money for the upkeep of French troops there, but the chamber voted to use the money to prepare against the Riffs in Morocco.

The Communists voted in a body against the war appropriation. All other parties, including the socialist deputies, voted to send more troops to the colonial possession.

COOLIDGE FAILS TO PUT CHARLES WARREN ACROSS

His Steamroller Runs Into Red Tape Bog

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—With a bitter fight threatened by a democratic-insurgent coalition, the senate judiciary committee today unexpectedly postponed final action on the nomination of Charles B. Warren of Detroit, as attorney general to succeed Harlan F. Stone.

The committee discussed the appointment in secret session for two hours and then adjourned without having reached a decision.

Members of the committee declined to comment on the reason for the delay. Senator Sterling, republican of South Dakota, acting chairman said the nomination would be considered again at another meeting. This was an unusual procedure and indicated further delay in the committee's final action.

Indications were the nomination would be tied up indefinitely despite administration efforts to force early confirmation.

SECTION OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE

UNION MEMBERS EXPELLED BY W. H. HUTCHESON

Tried and True Union Men Got No Trial

The names below are a list of the victims of Czar Hutcheson's expulsion policy. His lieutenants boast that this is only a beginning. All of these victims are old-time members, many of them were active in the union when Hutcheson was still in didies. They were expelled without a trial.

If there is any fight in the membership of the carpenters' union they will resent the czaristic rule of Hutcheson and demand the immediate reinstatement of the expelled good union men. If not, they had better shut up, saw wood and do just what Hutcheson tells them to do, or else they will be next.

In Los Angeles, Local No. 158, two business agents, J. W. Walker and Fred Miller, and one trustee, E. N. Diebler, were expelled along with A. Renner, A. Nelson, A. Abramamson and D. Z. McClure.

Sixteen Los Angeles Victims.

In Los Angeles Local No. 1976, the secretary, J. Reiss; the business agent, N. Karpiloff and Members L. Babin and M. Bragin were expelled. In Local 424, A. Super; in Local 1848, Brother Corell, and in Local No. 884, Brothers Castner, H. Jacques and J. Newman were expelled. All without a trial, remember.

The Five in Chicago.

In Chicago, Local No. 181, five members were expelled, including Niels Kjar, A. T. Jacobson, Matt Peterson, Nick Olson and Andrew Westerson.

Detroit and Philadelphia.

In Detroit Michigan, Hutcheson has expelled and had a capitalist court issue an injunction against Wm. Reynolds, president of Local 2140, and vice-president of the Detroit district council.

In Philadelphia, the business agent of Local No. 8, F. W. Burgess, who is also delegate to the Philadelphia district council, is expelled. And merely for daring to oppose Hutcheson in the recent election. All without trial, remember.

Members of the Carpenters' Union, do you want these men reinstated? If so, what are you doing? What is your local doing to accomplish their reinstatement? Let us know and we will publish it on this page.

LEFT TURNS

Now look at the militant painters. You can see they are smart, because they are well red. And you can't brush aside this statement because it certainly is true that they add a lot of color to the movement.

• • •

IT'S REMARKABLE, BUT—

Everytime the left wing activities are mentioned in the executive offices of the A. F. of L. it just makes Wm. Green.

HERE'S THE REASON—

When you order a bundle of this issue of the DAILY WORKER containing the T. U. E. L. page, you have a lot of fine paper for wrapping—the trade union fakers.

ONE OF THESE FINE ELECTION DAYS—

The reactionary electricians are in for an awful shock when the left wing has the volts.

TEMPORARILY—

The shoe workers in the east are under the bosses' heels. But they are the sole of the trade union movement there and they will run their industry some day cause they stick to the last.

• • •

WHICH REMINDS US—

Some trade union leaders must have had training as baseball umpires, because—

They force the workers to make at least three strikes before they call them out.

BUT—

If you haven't read the article by Jack Johnstone in the February issue of the Workers' Monthly called "The Pan-American Fig Leaf," then you don't know the naked truth underlying his statements. You had better get it.

• • •

IT'S CERTAINLY TRUE, THAT—

Trade union bureau-crats feed on the poor cheese who supports them.

TOOT! TOOT!

The railroad workers are one group in the left wing that hasn't gathered up steam yet.

But when they get further wage cuts, just watch them rail at their leaders, and become conductors of a militant campaign, to break the power of their misleaders, so they can run the road.

No fare—this is where we stop with

WALT CARMON.

WHAT IS WRONG IN THE COAL MINING INDUSTRY AND THE WAY OUT FOR THE MINERS

By Freeman Thompson and John Watt

(There is great unemployment and consequent suffering among the union miners in the bituminous coal fields. At the conference with the operators' association held in Jacksonville, Florida, last year when a three-year agreement was signed by the officials of the United Mine Workers of America, John L. Lewis agreed with the operators that the industry must be "deflated." He accepted the operators' scheme of starving out some 200,000 miners. This was his solution of the miners' problem.

Freeman Thompson, president of Sub-district 4, of District 12, state of Illinois, and John J. Watt, secretary, have a different view of the problem. They take issue with this plan of driving out men who have spent their lives digging coal. They analyze conditions in the coal fields, explode several of the pet theories of the coal operators and the reactionary officials and set forth the left wing program for the mining industry.

The following series of articles contain a wealth of material dealing with technical but highly interesting facts having a vital bearing on the subject as well as a militant program.—Ed. Note.)

Article I.

An organized movement is now being conducted by the coal operators and organizations that favor the "open shop" drive, to frame the minds of the workers to accept a reduction in wages so that the four competitive districts, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania may be able to compete against the non-union districts south of the Ohio river, who they claim on account of a wage scale that is considerably lower than our wage scale, are able to take the markets that formerly belong to the four competitive states.

The Illinois operators, associations of commerce, etc., seem confined to having the miners of Illinois accept a wage reduction and similar moves have been made in other states, but the mine workers are standing firm, knowing that a reduced wage scale is not the remedy and will only put them in a much worse plight than they now are in, as a reduced wage scale would not increase the amount of coal used, nor would it prevent those who are working in the non-union districts (who have not the benefit of a union to protect them) from accepting further reduction in the wages they are now receiving, so in the end of such an experiment the mine workers would be face-to-face with the same problem that they now have.

Wages and Coal Prices

The scale of wages paid to the mine workers in the state of Illinois is not responsible for the sub-normal demand for coal, neither can the sub-normal demand for Illinois coal be laid to the door of "competing districts," to the contrary, the government in a report issued on January 10th, 1925, explains the reasons for sub-normal demand for Illinois coal and the reasons we believe are logical and food for thought for all mine workers.

However, before going into the reasons given by the government for sub-normal demand for Illinois coal, we wish to clear your minds of the operator's "nightmare" called "cheap Kentucky coal that is taking our markets away from us." Many of you we know, believe that the reason you are not employed is due to "cheap Kentucky coal" that is flooding Illinois, this however is not altogether the case.

"Cheap Kentucky Coal"

For your benefit we have made a partial survey of certain points within and near to Illinois in regards to non-union competition and the letters we have received from these points speak for themselves and cannot be disputed. We have written to the other side for this information, the letters all being of similar nature, asking for practically the same information, and addressed to the secretaries of the various chambers of commerce, therefore we shall quote the letter to these secretaries and their replies thereto, which we ask that you carefully read and study:

Springfield, Illinois,
October 30, 1924.

Chamber of Commerce,
Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Dear Sirs:

I note in the Chicago Journal of Commerce where considerable Eastern Kentucky coal is being used in Cedar Rapids. I am after information concerning this matter. Will you furnish me with figures of what it costs to buy coal in Eastern Kentucky and also the freight rates per ton from there to Cedar Rapids, also the figures on Central Illinois coal?

I am enclosing a clipping of the Chicago Coal Market which will give you an idea of what I am trying to find out in regards to the Cedar Rapids market. You will note that the freight rate from Eastern Kentucky to Chicago is $2.16 and coal, Lump $2.75, total per ton $4.91. Central Illinois freight rate is $1.65, coal $2.75, total $4.40.

Any other information as to why Kentucky coal is sold in your vicinity will be appreciated. I am, very truly yours,

JOHN J. WATT, Secy-Treas.

Here is the Reply Addressed to Secretary Watt.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa,
November 21, 1924.

Dear Sir:—

Sometime ago you requested us to to furnish information and figures on the cost in Cedar Rapids of Eastern Kentucky and Illinois Central coal. We referred this matter to cur traffic department and received the following information:

Upon inquiry I find that considerable coal from Eastern Kentucky is used in Cedar Rapids, and a relatively small amount of Central Illinois coal. The reason given is that Eastern Kentucky coal is more efficient, and consumers are demanding coal that gives the most heat for the money invested.

The attached letter refers to rates from Eastern Kentucky to Chicago as being $2.16, however the correct rate is $3.09 to Chicago. The present rate to Cedar Rapids is $5.15 per ton via the shortest route. This rate is high in comparison to rates to other Iowa points, for example, the rate to Waterloo, Marshalltown and Des Moines is $4.53 per ton, and the rate to Mason City is $4.86 per ton. This rate discrepancy will be corrected.

The price of coal at Cedar Rapids is not uniform at all dealers, but the prevailing prices are:

Eastern Kentucky	$11.00
Central Illinois	8.50

These prices include delivery at all points in the city and placing of coal in consumer's bins or cellar. You will note that there is a margin of about $2.50 between Eastern Kentucky and Central Illinois coal.

Yours respectfully,
Chamber of Commerce,
Chas. D. Marson, Sec'y.

Here is a Reply from St. Paul, Minnesota.

Dear Sir:—

In compliance with your request of the 15th inst., we take pleasure in giving you below the carload rates on bituminous coal to St. Paul, Minn., from respective districts. We regret very much that we cannot give you the cost at the mines or the selling price in this vicinity.

Northern Illinois	$2.61	$2.44
Central Illinois	3.10	2.93
Southern Illinois	3.75	3.49
Western Kentucky	4.00	3.87
Eastern Kentucky	4.86
(Via Certain Routes)
Eastern Kentucky	5.40
(Rate prescribed by Interstate Commerce Commission)
Arkansas (Group 9)	4.37
West Virginia	5.55

If there are any further rates which you desire we will gladly furnish same to you upon request.

Yours very truly,
H. Mueller, Traffic Director.

Here is a Reply from Bloomington, Illinois.

December 8, 1924.

Dear Sir:—

We have your letter of the 6th requesting information to coal used in Bloomington. We are unable to advise you the amount of coal used in Bloomington but for your information wish to advise the present rate from Springfield, Illinois is $1.42 per ton and from Lincoln $1.14 per ton. Lump coal from these two points sells at an average of $6.00 per ton. The rate from Eastern Kentucky points is $3.19 to $3.34 per ton and from Virginia fields $3.34 to 3.41 per ton. This coal sells from $7.50 to $8.00.

In this connection we might state that the Bloomington association of commerce has filed with the Illinois commerce commission a complaint against the present rates from Springfield and Lincoln and this case is being heard at the present time in Chicago. We no doubt will be granted some reduction and at the present time we are unable to state just what rate will be granted.

Yours very truly,
Bloomington Association of Commerce,
E. L. Henninger, Mgr. Traffic Bureau.

And Here is a Reply Received from Decatur, Illinois.

January 9th, 1925.

Dear Sir:—

As near as we can determine there are in the neighborhood of 35,000 tons of Kentucky coal consumed annually at Decatur, about one-half of this quantity going to foundries and gas plants, the balance being utilized in domestic consumption. As far as I can determine the price of Eastern Kentucky coal, which is used here, ranges from $2.75 to $3.25 per ton and the freight rate is from $3.19 to $3.34 per ton.

The price at the mine in Springfield field, I am informed ranges from $2.75 to $3.25 per ton and the freight rate from Lincoln and Springfield is $1.10. So far as I can find the mine at Niantic is shut down and the movement from Danville and Taylorville is negligible. There appears to be a material increase in the use of Kentucky coal here and I am advised that Kentucky has almost entirely supplanted Southern Illinois coal in this market. However, as a matter of information, this situation may be somewhat affected by the fact that fuel oil is becoming quite a factor for domestic use. I trust that the information herein outlined, which covers the situation in a general way, is of value to you.

Yours very truly,
M. J. Brion, Mgr. Traffic Bureau.

Here is Another Letter from Decatur, Illinois.

January 15, 1925.

Dear Sir:—

Referring to your letter of January 12, I am informed that the selling price of Eastern Kentucky coal at Decatur ranges from $7.00 to $9.00 per ton and Illinois coal from $5.25 to $6.25 per ton.

Yours very truly,
M. J. Brion, Mgr., Traffic Bureau.

The Riddle

In view of the prices people are willing or are forced to pay for this "CHEAP KENTUCKY COAL" the riddle is how much of a wage reduction must we miners in Illinois take to force them to buy Illinois coal, when scab coal is selling from $2.00 to $3.75 a ton higher than Illinois coal. Before answering this problem, remember that the solid price the miner receives for a ton of coal is $1.08 and from that amount he must take out all expenses incured in the mining of that coal.

At any rate the price you are receiving, (this awful war time wage that the operators keep yelling about) would not cover the difference if you gave it all back to him and some on top of that. So much for this "cheap" Kentucky competition. Now let's analize the reasons given by the government for SUB-NORMAL DEMAND FOR ILLINOIS COAL. The report reads in part thus:

Illinois
January 10, 1925.

Market Conditions—General.

"The weather continues to be and will probably remain for the next three months the chief determining factor of work time in all independent mines in Illinois.

Sub-normal demand for steam coal by industries heretofore served exclusively by Illinois mines has been quite notable throughout 1924. This condition is not explained, or at least totally, by loss of business to competing districts. To the contrary, close investigation develops the following facts:

A. Subnormal industrial activity.

B. Extensive and growing economics in coal use.

C. Some substitution of other fuels.

D. Very marked increase in the use, by smaller industrial plants, of purchased power from public utility companies, and finally

E. The rapid growth of captive and industrial output of mines.

The above facts submitted in this government report cannot be contradicted as contributing to the sub-normal demand for coal, each fact given is a story in itself, but should be defined briefly in order to show the effect it is having on the sub-normal coal consumption in Illinois.

Fact (A) Sub-normal Industrial Activity:

We see evidence of that in our own state, even in our immediate vicinity, factories and mills closed down or work part time only. Government reports shows that in the steel industry the recent summer, that furnaces in blast totaled only 144, as compared with 298 the previous year, and that is one industry that uses considerable coal. Shoe factories, textile mills, many closed, some working part time. This is nation wide, only such crafts as the building trades and road building have held their own and they are small users of coal. No one doubts the statement of the government on "Sub-normal industrial activity."

Fact (B) Economics in Coal Usage:

Experiments in properly firing boilers on locomotives and in the industrial has tended to economize in the use of coal by industries and also in buildings and apartments more scientifical arrangement of the heating apparatus so as to spread more heat over a larger area with a smaller amount of coal used. This causes lesser demand for coal.

Fact (C) Substitutions for Coal:

No one will dispute the fact that electricity and oils are playing a prominent part in displacing coal both for transportation, manufacturing and domestic use.

Fact (D) Industries Purchasing Power:

Industries and residences and buildings, heretofore using coal for heat and power are now being supplied with electrical power by public utility companies who have wires spread all over the state, selling power direct to such places. This industry is displacing the use of coal to a large extent.

DETROIT FAKERS' TOOL RUNS AMUCK WITH CHAIR LEG, LOSES APPETITE FOR GORE AT ONCE

DETROIT, Feb. 9.—Hutcheson's henchmen in Detroit have, in the last week, fallen back to the last line of defense, the employment of their more stupid supporters as common thugs. At a meeting of Local 19 last Monday night Andy Frohman, a member of that local with more bulk than courage or sense, made a lying statement to the effect that Reynolds, the expelled member of No. 2140, did not want a trial.

To Be Regretted.

When the statement was branded as a lie by Reynolds, this yellow cur who weighs 30 pounds more than Reynolds, broke up a chair and with a leg of it attacked Reynolds. He got in one blow with his club and then Reynolds and everyone in reach got to him simultaneously. He got away without any very serious injury, which is to be regretted, and has since shown no disposition to fight Hutcheson's battles with chair legs. He is entirely unequipped for any other sort of struggle.

Many old reactionaries who have not attended meetings for years, some with very good reasons for staying away, are being rounded up by the machine and used to bolster up the autocratic rule of President Ball of Local Union 19.

These old harpies have all at once felt a supreme concern for the union, and take the attitude that any ideas later than 1880 or any militant struggle must be fatal to the organization. The fossils and a few lickspittles such as Sharrock and Fish constitute the sole support of the stool-pigeon Botteril.

The meeting of the district council on Thursday, Feb. 5, was guarded by three cops and watched over by Lawler Carson of Indianapolis, who seems to have taken up permanent residence here. Reynolds was granted the floor by Sharrock, in spite of the injunction, and read an appeal which he is sending to Hutcheson. Reynolds prefaced the reading of the appeal by branding as malicious lies all those statements that he would not appeal his case, or that he did not want a trial.

He stated that the constitution forbids the circulation of "begging letters" and that this appeal instead of being a "begging letter" was an emphatic demand that the constitution be observed and his rights be restored.

No "Democracy" Here.

When Brown, of Local 2140, inquired of the chair what steps were required to remove the president from office, the chair, President Sharrock, refused to answer. A committee from 1191 instructed by that local to take up the matter of lifting the injunction against Reynoldss was refused the floor in case they wished to speak on "any phase of the Reynolds matter."

In Detroit at present, a majority in every local union and a majority of the delegates to the district council are behind Reynolds in his fight for reinstatement. In Local Union 1805 and the district council, where the would-be czar, Sharrock, reigns as president, this renegade and tool of reaction blocks the will of the majority by autocratic rulings from which he recognizes no appeal.

In Local 19, an old reactionary, President Ball, has consistently defeated the will of the majority by the same method.

He is now under charges and will be up for trial this coming week. All other local unions have gone on record unanimously, to support Reynolds and to repudiate the unconstitutional action of the general executive board.

League Building Trades Militants Fight Wage Cut

The building trades of Kansas City, Mo., are facing a threatened cut of 12 per cent. The employers feel that due to the ruinous jurisdictional strike between the carpenters and the sheet metal workers, called last year by Wm. L. Hutcheson, has demoralized the unions so much that they can put it over.

The rank and file, however, think differently about it, they are beginning to see the need for a united front of building trades workers as the only means to stop the ever increasing encroachment of the contractors. Some of the leaders wanted to talk the proposed cut over with the employers but the rank and file would not allow it. They are accepting the slogan of the T. U. E. L.: "Strike Against Wage Cuts!"

A MINER TELLS HOW FARRINGTON STOLE ELECTION

Crooked Tellers and Duplicate Ballots

By A COAL MINER.

Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners, each election becomes more expert in stealing the election for himself and his slate. Last year they were satisfied to erase the cross for the left wing candidate and mark in one for the administration candidate.

Had Duplicate Ballots.

This is rather crude, however. So this year Farrington's henchmen were supplied with a duplicate set of ballots and tally sheet, so all they had to do was to agree among themselves how many votes they would allow the progressive candidate, prepare the falsified ballots before election and proceed to change the ballot boxes.

Of courses, this necessitated control of the tellers and Farrington, altho most of the miners in the district are opposed to him, controls a sufficient number of locals to steal enough votes to count himself into office.

Bare-Faced Stealing

A good example of this was exposed in my own local 224, of Lincoln, Ill. The tellers reported that Joe Tumulty, the progressive candidate for district board member, only received 26 votes as against Joker Young's, Farrington candidate, 185. However, 78 men in the mine where I work signed a petition that they had voted for Tumulty.

At the meeting of local 224, Brother Tumulty condemned the fraudulent election. There were not very many present, considering the size of our membership, but when Tumulty asked all those who had voted for him to stand up, 58 of the few present stood up as having voted for him. So you see, comrades, the real fight we have on our hands. But we are getting stronger, more mature. We have licked Farrington in two elections and the next one we will make sure that he cannot count himself in.

We, of course, contested the election and our representatives went over the ballots and found that almost every one had been marked by the same person. The hand writing being the same.

Build the DAILY WORKER!

Jensen Uses Slick Trick to Put Over His Scab Agreement

Last year President Hutcheson and Harry Jensen, president of the carpenters' district council, signed a Landis award "open shop" agreement without consulting the membership It took away the right to strike and abandoned many working conditions which were the result of many hard fought victories.

Now the carpenters are voting whether or not they will accept a compromise wage increase of from $1.25 to $1.37½ per hour. Most of the skilled trades in Chicago have been receiving for the past year $1.50 per hour. This wage increase offered to the carpenters carries a joker with it; to accept the wage increase means that they also accept the agreement. Of course, most of the rank and file do not know of this subtle maneuver.

The T. U. E. L. is carrying on a propaganda against the acceptance of the agreement. The DAILY WORKER, carrying a story on the agreement, will be sold and distributed at the local meetings on the days on which the vote is taken.

UNIONS, BASIS OF NEW ORDER, NEED A PARTY

Craft and Industrial Union Limitations

By N. LENIN.

While capitalism transmits a heritage to socialism of century old craft and trade distinctions among the workers, it, at the same time brings out the trade unions within which, in time, can and will develop broader industrial forms embracing whole industries; and which will abolish all trade and craft distinctions, eventually bridge the gulf between intellectual and manual labor. The workers then become universally educated, trained and equipped to accomplish all their necessary tasks.

Communism tends toward and must accomplish this, but thru a long process of development. To go into raptures over this inevitable growth and to expect these industrial unions of themselves to grow into a full fledged and perfect Communist society is as criminally foolish as to expect a four-year-old girl to become a mother. At the best, this is ridiculous and puerile, and at worst, a nasty crime.

Realism Needed—Not Fantasy.

We should and must begin to construct Communist society, not out of fantastic notions nor from artificially and man-created materials, but from such materials as are at hand and inherited from capitalist society. It is self-evident that this is a difficult task to accomplish, but any other means to achieve this end is pure circumvention and unworthy of serious consideration.

The trade unions in the early period of capitalism represented a great advance by the working class, during the transition from their helpless and unorganized condition to the beginning of class unity.

When a higher form of class unity of the proletariat begins to develop the revolutionary political party of the proletariat would be unworthy of its name if it failed to understand how to connect their leaders with the working class and the masses in one integral whole.

It is inevitable that the trade unions will show reactionary craft narrowness and conservative characteristics. But there can be no other process of development of the proletariat than thru the trade unions and the reciprocal influence of the working class party.

Functions of Communists in Trade Unions.

The conquest of political power by the proletariat is a tremendous step forward. The mission of the party is to educate the trade unions to use new tactics instead of old ones to lead them, and at the same time to remember that the unions are and will be for a long time "schools of Communism" and preparatory schools for the realisation of the proletarian dictatorship.

The unions are necessary to achieve the solidarity of the workers in order to take over the administration of all the industries of the entire country by the working class as a whole and not by the individual trade or industrial unions.

Patient Leadership Required.

Even under the proletarian dictatorship some forms of reaction are unavoidable within the trade unions. Not to understand this means not to have the slightest conception of the fundamental conditions obtaining in the transition period from capitalism to Communism.

To fear this backwardness of the trade unions, to attempt to circumvent it, to try to escape, is nonsensical and indicates a lack of faith in the role which the proletarian vanguard must assume as the instructor, the leader, and the beacon which attracts to the new life the lowest strata and the backward elements of the masses, the working class and peasantry.

To postpone, however, the realisation of the dictatorship of the proletariat, until the last reactionary trade unionist or workingman relinquishes his craft or trade union bias, would be a profound mistake.

The Art of Politics.

The art of politics, the proper understanding by Communists of their problems, consists in correctly considering and discounting the conditions and the moment when the proletarian vanguard may successfully conquer political power; to be able to immediately obtain sufficient support from the non-proletarian elements of the laboring masses, and afterward to be able to safeguard and maintain their power and to extend it, educating, leading and attracting the whole laboring masses.

Leninism or Trotskyism

64-PAGE PAMPHLET ON LENINISM OR TROTSKYISM NOW IN PREPARATION

This installment is part of a pamphlet "Leninism or Trotzkyism" now in preparation. It includes articles by three outstanding figures in the Russian Communist Party: G. Zinoviev, I. Stalin and C. Kamenev, to form a most timely and important contribution to a discussion of world interest. The pamphlet will be of 64 pages, selling at 20 cents and will be ready at the conclusion of this serial publication.

Comrade Lenin explained the mat-er to Comrade Trotsky:

"Martov defends the education of the peasantry (who are carrying on a revolutionary struggle against aristocracy) by the liberals (who betrayed the peasantry to the aristocracy). This is nothing else than the substitution of liberalism for Marxism, it is nothing more nor less than liberalism disguised in Marxist phrases. . . The struggle between menshevism and Bolshevism is indissolubly bound up with this actuality, for it is here the struggle between the support lent to the liberals (on the part of the mensheviki) and the overthrowal of the hegemony of the liberals over the peasantry (by the Bolsheviki). Thus the attempt to explain away our dissensions by the influence of the inteligenzia, the immaturity of the proletariat, etc., is merely a naive and childish repetition of liberal fairy tales."

We see that "Trotsky came to Lenin" by means of telling the international proletariat liberal fairy tales on Leninism.

"A chasm lies between our standpoint and Martov's standpoint, and this chasm between the views of various 'intellectuals' merely reflects, despite Trotsky's opinions to the contrary, the chasm which actually existed in the year 1905, between two classes, that is, between the revolutionary fighting proletariat and the treacherous bourgeoisie."

This is what Comrade Trotsky, according to Lenin, did not comprehend about Bolshevism. But if he did not comprehend this, did he comprehend anything about it at all?

"Trotsky distorts Bolshevism, for he has never been able to form any definite views on the role played by the proletariat in the Russian bourgeois revolution."

Comrade Lenin, after characterizing Trotsky's whole representation of Bolshevism to the uninformed German workers as a refined breach of faith," closed his characterization with the following words:

"In 1903, Trotsky was a menshevist, he left the mensheviki in 1904, returned to the mensheviki in 1905, brandishing ultra-revolutionary phrases the while, and again turned his back upon the mensheviki in 1906; at the end of 1906 he defended the election alliance with the cadets (thus actually siding with the mensheviki again), and in the spring of 1907 he declared at the London congress that 'the difference between him and Rosa Luxemburg was rather a difference of individual shading than of political tendency.' Trotsky plagarizes today from the ideas of one fraction, tomorrow from those of the other, and thus he regards himself as a being superior to both fractions. Theoretically, Trotsky does not agree with the liquidators and Otsovists on any single question, but in actual practice he is entirely in agreement with the Golos and Vperjod group (that is, with the supporters of bourgeois influence over the proletariat. L. K.). I must declare that Trotsky represents his fraction only, and enjoys a certain amount of faith exclusively on the part of the Otsovists and liquidators.' (Compl. works XI-2, 292, 293, 296, 307, 308.)

The year 1912 was a year of changes. In January the Bolsheviki broke off the last remains of organizatory connections with the mensheviki, and formed their own purely Bolshevist Central Committee at their own Bolshevist conference (at Prague). The excluded the liquidators from the party and proclaimed a program of revolutionary action. After the blood bath on the Lena, a stormy wave of proletarian movement arose, for the first time since 1905. This movement appropriated the program and tactics of the Bolsheviki in their entirety. The "Bolshevist epidemic" (to use the malicious term coined by the mensheviki at the time) began to spread, and presently gained the final victory. The awakening labor movement removed the liquidators systematically from every position which they had contrived to gain during the previous sorrowful years of counter-revolution. This was the beginning of the revolutionary attack under the slogans of the Bolsheviki, under the leadership of the Bolsheviki—an attack which led to barricade fighting in Leningrad as early as the middle of 1914.

What was the attitude adopted by Comrade Trotsky with regard to these decisive events? Did this wave of revolutionary uplift, this strengthening of the labor movement, perhaps induce Comrade Trotsky to abandon the standpoint of an agent of menshevism, held by him during the preceding years of disintegration and decay? Did his ultra-left theory of "permanent revolution" after lying unused for years in his drawer, perhaps aid him to break the bonds fettering him to counter-revolutionary menshevism?

No. Comrade Trotsky remained true to himself and—to the menshevist liquidators.

He replied to the organizatory development and establishment of the Bolshevist Party by a closer alliance with the mensheviki in their struggle against Bolshevism. It was due to his endeavors that the so-called "August bloc" came into being; this bloc was the alliance and organizatory mustering of every non-Bolshevist and anti-Bolshevist group and sub-group.

"This bloc," writes Lenin, "is composed of lack of principle, hypocrisy, and empty phrases. . . The basis of this bloc is evident. The liquidators receive full liberty to proceed as before and Comrade Trotsky covers them by the revolutionary phrase, which costs him nothing and binds him to nothing." (Compl. works, XII-1, p. 94, April 1912.)

On the orders of this bloc Comrade Trotsky spread abroad even more slanders than before against the Bolshevik leaders of the proletarian advance then beginning. Comrade Lenin characterized Trotsky's writings at that time as "deceiving and misleading the whole working class." With regard to an article written by Trotsky for the German workers, Lenin wrote that it represented "such a copilation of unconsidered self-praise and sententious lies that there can be no dobut but that the liquidatory commission to write this article was placed in competent hands." (Ibid. p. 93.)

But perhaps Comrade Trotsky was only in agreement with the enemies of the Bolsheviki as far as the Bolsheviki organization was concerned, perhaps there was still some difference between him and the mensheviki, the servants of the liberals, in questions referring to the tasks, the aims and the tactics of the rising proletarian movement, in questions referring to the tasks, aims and tactics of the new revolution? Let us ask Lenin again:

"Trotsky abused the conference in every key, and assured the good people that 'the struggle for the right of combination' was the basis of the events on the Lena and their aftereffects that 'this demand stands and will continue to stand as central point of the revolutionary mobilization of the proletariat.' Scarcely had a week passed away, and these miserable phrases, ground out of the same machine which supplies the liquidators with their phrases, were blown away like dust."

"It is only the liberal chatterboxes and the liberal labor politicians," continues Lenin, "who are capable of placing the right of combination in 'the center of the revolutionary mobilization.'"

Lenin then compares the policy pursued by the liquidators and by Comrade Trotsky with the revolutionary Bolshevist policy of the Petersburg proletariat:

"The proletariat of Petersburg," writes Lenin, "has grasped that the new revolutionary struggle is not to be carried on for the sake of one single right (the right of combination. L. K.), but for the liberty of the whole people. The proletariat of Petersburg has grasped that the evil must be attacked at its center, at its source, that the whole system of czarist reactionary Russia must be destroyed. The proletariat of Petersburg has grasped that it is a piece of ridiculous stupidity to make this demand for the right of combination. . . There is no greater lie than the liberal invention, repeated by the liquidators and immediately afterwards by Trotsky, that the 'struggle for the right of combination' lay at the root of the tragedy on the Lena, and of the mighty echoes awakened by this event all over the country." (Compl. works, XII-1, pp. 183, 185.)

The difference is very obvious between the Bolshevist conception of fundamental tasks and that of the mensheviki and Comrade Trotsky. But Lenin explains again and again the counter-revolutionary trend of Comrade Trotsky's conception of these tasks.

Trotsky followed Axelrod. He found himself superior to the "uncultured," "barbaric," "sectarian," "Asiatic" Bolsheviki in that he, Trotsky, is a "European," and fights "beneath the tactical flag of European social democracy." But what is the meaning of this confrontation of "Europeanism" and "European tactics" with Bolshevism? It means one thing only: renunciation of the fulfillment of the immediate revolutionary tasks in the Russia of the czar and the great landowners, and all for the sake of the parliamentary tactics of the European socialists.

"This famous 'Europeanization,'" writes Lenin, "is being talked about by Dan and Martov, Trotsky and Levitsky, and by the other liquidators, in every possible key. It is one of the main rivets securing their opportunism. Their opportunism lies in the fact that the moment which they choose for imparting a 'European,' parliamentary propagandist character to the party is precisely the moment when the party is not faced by European tasks, but by an immediate struggle on the spot. Their idea is thus to avoid the task of revolution, and to substitute revolutionary tactics by parliamentary tactics."

The little word "Europeanism," on the lips of the liquidators and Trotsky during the period between 1910 and 1914, further supplemented by the little word "barbarism" (of the Bolsheviki), served to conceal the renunciation of the revolutionary tasks and revolutionary tactics of the proletariat of Russia. Let us read what Lenin wrote in reply to such a "European" article from Comrade Trotsky's pen:

"This is the daydream of an opportunist intellectual who, in the midst of the difficult and non-European conditions facing the labor movement in Russia (Lenin wrote this article for the legal Svesda, and therefore employed legal terms; here we should read: under the condtions imposed by the revolutionary tasks facing the labor movement in Russia. L. K.) has worked out an excellent European plan, and because he has done this, boasts of his 'Europeanism' to the whole world." (Compl. works., XII-1, pp. 222, 223, July 1924.)

These tactics, actually implying approbation of the transition of the party from the path of revolution to the path of the then peaceful European socialists, were proclaimed at the time when the new wave of revolution following the blood bath on the Lena demanded an expressly revolutionary leadership. It is possible that someone will submit the question: "How is it possible that the theory of 'permanent revolution' did not restrain Comrade Trotsky from such unrevolutionary tactics? How could he, the representative of this ultra-left theory, lend his support to such anti-revolutionary tactics, side by side with the mensheviki, during the obviously revolutionary situation from 1912 to 1914?"

But anyone putting this question would only prove that he has not yet comprehended Lenin's characterization of Trotskyism: "Right politics disguised in left phraseology."

"Examine the standpoint of the liquidators," Lenin continued to explain to the naive in the year of 1913. "The essential character of their liquidatory standpoint is artifically disguised beneath Trotsky's revolutionary phrases. The naive and entirely inexperienced are still often deceived by this disguise. . . But the slightest closer examination immediately disperses this self deception."

1914.

Then came the year 1914. The revolutionary movement in the proletariat made rapid strides forward, the waves of the tempest of revolution rose higher and higher. Trotsky's viewpoint remained unchanged in the questions of the principles of revolution and the tactics of the proletarian movement. Let us read what Lenin wrote about him in the year 1914:

Comrade Trotsky has never yet possessed a definite opinion on any single earnest Marxian question; he has always crept into the breach made by this or that difference, and has oscillated from one side to another." (Compl. works, XII-2., pp. 536, 537.)

"The liquidators have their own viewpoint—a liberal and not a Marxian one. Everyone familiar with the writings of Dan, Martov, Potressov and Co. knows this viewpoint. But Trotsky has no viewpoint, never has had one; he has merely transitions and flittings from the liberals to the Marxists and back again, fragments of words and sounding phrases, swing here and there. . . In reality, Trotsky's resounding, confused and empty phrases, so misleading to the untrained worker, serve solely for the defense of the liquidators; Trotsky accomplishes this by preserving silence on the question of illegality (that is, of the revolutionary organization and policy of the working class. L. K.), by endeavoring to convince us that a labor policy does not exist amongst us at all (that is, no endeavor on the part of the mensheviki to subordinate the labor movement to the cadets, etc. L. K.) Comrade Trotsky addresses a special and lengthy sermon to the seven deputies, headed by Tscheidse, instructing them as to the cleverest methods of carrying out the policy of rejection of illegality and of the party." (Lenin, XII.-2, pp. 410 to 413.)

Then came the tempestuous months of the year of 1914. The labor movement advanced from political and economic strikes to armed demonstrations, only interrupted by the mobilization of the army. In July the workers of Petersburg were already at the barricades. It was necessary to strike a balance, it was necessary to show to the working class the political currents and tendencies emerging from illegality and from the influence of the refugees from abroad, in order that they might carry on their movement further. Lenin wrote a comprehensive article and had it published in May, 1914, in the Bolshevist periodical, Prosweschtschenje (Enlightenment). Here he drew the balance of the ten years of struggle between Bolshevism and Trotskyism, the struggle which we have followed in its various stages:

"The old participators in Russia's Marxist movement know Trotsky's figure very well: there is no need to say anything about him to them. But the younger generation of workers does not know him, for he represents a certain type. At the time of the old Iskra (1901-1903), people of this type oscillated between the economists and the Iskra group. . .

"When we speak of the liquidators, we so designate a certain ideological tendency rooted in menshevism and economism. . . a tendency closely bound up with the policy and ideology of a certain class, the liberal bourgeoisie.

"These people 'explain' that they are above the fractions, but the sole basis for this assertion is that they take their ideas from one fraction today, from another tomorrow.

"Trotsky was an open adherent of the Iskra from 1901 till 1903, and Rjasanov named the role played by Trotsky at the Party Congress in 1903 that of a 'Lenin's cudgel.' By the end of 1903, Trotsky was an open menshevist, he had deserted from the Iskra to the economists. He proclaimed that 'a deep chasm yawned between the old and the new Iskra.' In the years 1904-05 he left the mensheviki and maintained an irresolute attitude; at one time he co-operated with Martinow (an economist), at another time he dished up his left 'permanent revolution' again. In 1906-07 he approached the Bolsheviki, and in the spring of 1907 he declared himself in full agreement with Rosa Luxemburg.

"During the epoch of the decline he turned to the right again after lengthy 'anti-fractional' vacillations, and in August 1912, he joined the bloc of the liquidators. Now he leaves them again, but in all essentials he repeats their ideas.

"Such types are characteristic of the crumbling away of the historical formations of yesterday, when the mass labor movement in Russia was not fully awakened.

"The younger generation of workers must learn to recognize this type of person, who, without concerning himself about party decisions or . . . about the experiences won in the present labor movement in Russia, simply step forward with the most unheard of claims." (XII-2, p. 462.)

Lenin deemed it necessary to say this to the younger generation of workers on the eve of a fresh advance of the revolutionary movement in the working class; he here drew the balance of the ten years' struggle carried on by Bolshevism not only against menshevism, but also against Trotskyism.

It is comprehensible to everyone that when a characterization of this kind is repeated from year to year, and not merely with reference to this or that error, but with reference to the whole course pursued by Comrade Trotsky, it is not done for any superficial reason. Comrade Lenin saw in Trotsky the embodiment of a current, of a political tendency, harmful to Bolshevism. For this reason, and for this reason only, Lenin considered it necessary to warn the party against Trotskyism.

DUBUQUE, IOWA, WILL SEE SOME REAL BOLSHEVIKS

One kluxer told the writer that he subscribed for the kluzers paper through the masonic order, and that it was sold to him because it contained news of the fraternity. The masonic order here is fostering the klan under the pretense of increasing circulation for papers with news of the masons.

Taking advantage of this demoralization of the labor unions the Dubuque chamber of commerce have imported a "union buster" by the name of Ramsay. He has already succeeded in smashing the teamster's local which was fairly well organized: they were getting $5.00 for 9 hours and truck drivers $28 to $30 per week. Non-union teamsters were hired for lower wages and union members blacklisted.

Two Strikes On

The bakers' and sheet metal workers' locals are now on strike, the first for a union agreement and the second for an increase from 85 cents to $1.00 per hour. The bakers have lost about 10 per cent of the shops and the metal workers have also lost out on much of the work.

The carpenters are fairly well organized and receive 97½ cents per hour. The plumbers get $1.00 per hour. Ramsay, the "union buster," has promised to reduce their wages to 80 cents per hour. The bricklayers, masons, carpenters, plasterers and plumbers have formed a conference board here, there is no building trades council, and Mr. Ramsay is promised a real scrap when he tackles the job of smashing any of these locals.

"Open Shop" Employment Agency.

Ramsay has opened up an employment agency where the serfs are bought at from 21 to 35 cents per hour for work in the sash and door factories. Mechanics on machines get up to 65 cents per hour. Girls are employed to take finished work away from the machines at $12.00 per week. This work was formerly done by men. Machinists are hired at from 40 to 45 cents.

If a slave quits a job no other plant will hire him or her. The employment agency keeps their list up to date, so the serf must stay with one master.

Shop Crafts Have Agreement.

In the C. M. & St. Paul railroad shops here they now employ about 600, their normal force is about 1,000. The car shop has about 100 instead of the normal 300 employed. Machinists receive 72 cents, helpers 49 and sweepers did have 41 cents, but now are paid 36½ cents per hour.

Dubuque shop is the only plant working under the new agreement, with a direct schedule of rates with the company. This is not the infamous B. and O. plan, as all grievances are settled thru the local shop crafts federation. The crafts are now almost 100 per cent organized and receive time and one half for Sundays and overtime.

There are three large factories here producing mill work for houses and other wood work for trimmings. The Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, makers of pictures, pool tables, etc., also have a large plant here, all of them completely non-union.

Workers Party Meeting Scheduled.

The socialist local here has disbanded. The LaFollette fiasco finished it, altho a few still get together to operate their hall which is rented to other organizations.

The Workers Party received a large vote for Foster at the November election, 688 votes being credited to our candidates.

In an effort to locate these sympatizers a mass meeting will be held at Carpenters' Hall, 9th and Main Sts., on Tuesday evening, February 17th. J. E. Snyder, district organizer, and David Coutts will be the speakers.
